168 PERISH IN TWO PLANE CRASHES

Rescued Greek Sailors Reach Shore

Two Shipmates Dead As Vessel Broken By Storm

Two Sections of Ship Drift 35 Miles Apart

By ED WALTERS

HALIFAX (CP) — Thirty-five Greek seamen were pulled from the stormy North Atlantic Sunday by a combination of perseverance, skillful navigation and personal heroism.

Canadian navy sailors dived overboard, hung from cargo nets and braved 10-foot waves in a small boat and liferafts to save the crew of the Liberian tanker Amphialos which broke in two 220 miles southeast of here this Saturday.

Cmdr. Peter R. Hinton of the destroyer escort Athabaskan manoeuvred his ship dangerously close to the drifting and almost upended stern - section of the tanker to take the men off.

Of the 36 men aboard the Amphialos, 34 lived to be landed here early today from the Athabaskan. Nicolaos Pantazelos, 49, lived an hour after he was rescued. Markos Doukatsos, 19, disappeared early Sunday when the first attempt was made to launch lifeboats. He was presumed drowned.

Five others were treated in hospital for exposure.

RAN INTO STORM

The 15,800-ton ship was en-route to neighboring Dartmouth from the Dutch island of Aruba in the Caribbean with a cargo of fuel oil when she ran into a violent winter storm which lashed Nova Scotia Saturday.

Capt. Polemis said the ship broke in two just forward of the bridge, but all crew aboard made it to the stern before she broke.

There was no time to send a distress call. The vessel's stern rose high in the air, threatening to pitch the crew into 20-foot waves. They clung to rails around the stern and spent Saturday night there.

In the morning the crew launched two lifeboats. Eight

3 Navies Exercise Near Cyprus

ATHENS (AP)—Ships of the U.S. 6th fleet and the Turkish Navy began joint NATO manoeuvres in the Aegean Sea today as a Greek naval strike force operated in the Aegean just 12 hours sailing time from troubled Cyprus.

The Greek units sailed from Piraeus, Crete and other Greek ports Saturday night. The force included destroyers, troop carriers and landing craft.

Defence Minister Peter Papoulias said the Greek exercise was planned a year ago and had no connection with the Cyprus crisis. But it underscored the Greek government's warning last week — after Turkish naval units manoeuvres off the Cypriot coast—that it would oppose any Turkish intervention on Cyprus.

The American ships arrived off Crete four days ago in preparation for the three-day manoeuvres with the units from Turkey, easternmost member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). Three Turkish submarines are taking part in the manoeuvres.

Greek officials said last week that Greece, also a NATO member, would not participate, because of the presence of Turkish vessels. But informed U.S. officials in Athens said that Greece had not been scheduled to take part.

PLAN FOR MONTHS

They said the manoeuvres had been planned months ago as an American-Turkish exercise. The officials said that the 6th Fleet

Tobacco Auctions Closed

TILSONBURG, Ont. (CP) — The possibility of violence erupting at Ontario's three tobacco auction exchanges has forced officials to keep them closed indefinitely.

George Demeyere, chairman of the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board, said Sunday: "I don't want to be responsible for any violence that might occur. I feel it is time for the security and safety of everyone concerned that the auction exchanges remain closed until a suitable solution is found to the price problem."

The farmers demanded that the exchanges in Delhi, Tillsonburg and Aylmer remain closed and said they would post guards at each building to ensure their demand.

Robert Nixon, Liberal member of the legislature for Brant, attended the meeting and said he planned to raise the matter in the legislature.

MEETING

Crowds of farmers, dissatisfied with prices being paid for tobacco, at their only outlet, the auction exchanges, had marched on the Tillsonburg and Delhi exchanges Friday, forcing their closing. Police closed the Aylmer exchange after receiving a bomb threat, but no bomb

President Tells Of New Plane

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson took the wraps off the nation's newest military secret Saturday, disclosing that the United States has developed a high-flying interceptor that can slice through the air at more than 2,000 miles an hour.

Johnson said this plane is capable of a performance that "far exceeds that of any other aircraft in the world today."

Development of the hitherto super - secret plane was announced at Johnson's first presidential press conference to be carried live by radio and television.

The conference, with Johnson facing 305 reporters from the state department table in the state department conference room, coincided with the end of the 100 days in office period, which Johnson said have produced real accomplishments.

Clearly, the biggest surprise was word that the United States now has a needly - shaped plane called the A-11, protected under a program that was, amazingly, kept secret since the effort was launched in 1959.

DOESN'T DENY REPORT

Other conference highlights were:

—Johnson passed up a chance to deny a report that his brother Roger in Florida was cooperating with Kremlin secrecy because of a tip that a Cuban exile group might try to ram his plane. Without being specific, he said he had been told there were reasons for taking additional precautions."

—The president said he has neither a first nor second approved plans to carry South Viet-Nam's guerrilla war into Communist North Viet Nam.

—William B. Bundy, now an assistant defence secretary, will succeed the recently resigned Roger Hilsman as assistant secretary of state for

Nazi 'Mercy-Killer' Held By Police at Buenos Aires

FRANKFURT (Reuters)—Argentine police have arrested a fugitive ex-Nazi who fled to Buenos Aires to avoid standing trial on mass murder charges, it was revealed today.

Fritz Bauer, chief public prosecutor of Hesse, West Germany, said Bernhard Bohne, charged with complicity in the "mercy killing" of 15,000 persons during the Second World War, was under arrest in Buenos Aires.

Bohne, who was to have been one of four accused at a current euthanasia trial at nearby Limburg, escaped from the country last summer.

He had been released from pre-trial detention on health grounds.

Two of the original accused committed suicide and the fourth, Dr. Hans Hefelmann, now is on trial in Limburg.

Dr. Werner Heyde hanged himself in a jail cell last month and Friedrich Tillmann hurtled to his death from an eighth-floor window a few days before.

Bohne, 62, is alleged to have helped set up Hitler's euthanasia program under which more than 200,000 mentally ill and deformed people were killed.

Hefelmann was the only accused in the dock when the euthanasia trial opened at Limburg two weeks ago.

When the trial opened the proceedings against Bohne were separated from the trial against Hefelmann, accused of the murder of 70,000 persons.

Bohne, who is alleged to have led the euthanasia campaign until April, 1940, spent 3½ years in custody.

Trouble Symptoms Present, Syria Faces Another March

DAMASCUS (AP)—Syria, like Caesar, has reason to beware of March.

Plots thicken as the warm spring wind begins sweeping off the desert into the wide streets of Damascus. In March, 1962, and March, 1963, they resulted in bloodless overthrow of Syrian governments.

Internationally, the country stands alone—edgy about neighboring Iraq, distrustful of Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic, at odds with the Jordanian regime, in a chilly meeting with enmity towards Israel, suspicious of the West and against the Communist East.

In the recent Arab summit conference in Cairo, Syria hardly nibbled at the love-feast. Syrian delegates went home complaining of weak resolutions against the Israeli plans to divert Jordan River waters.

Internally, the Baath government which came to power in a military coup last March seems strong enough for the moment.

—The president said he has neither a first nor second approved plans to carry South Viet-Nam's guerrilla war into Communist North Viet Nam.

—William B. Bundy, now an assistant defence secretary, will succeed the recently resigned Roger Hilsman as assistant secretary of state for "dangerous move against national security" and hastily convened a special military court. Less than 24 hours later, five men had sentences ranging up to 20 years at hard labor.

Other intriguers could see the hint—the government will react strongly to threats of a general strike.

The greatest trouble now facing the government is economic. The winter has been bad for crops. Syrian business is stagnant, prices are rising and investments are at a standstill. The socialist moves by the Baath—nationalization of banks, tight restrictions on foreign exchange and general discouragement of private business—have thrown the powerful merchant community into despondency.

Maj.-Gen. Amin Hafez, Syria's strong president, has created an intellectual theorist of the Baath, Michel Aflak, have no desire to see either their rule or Syria finished. Their policy now is turning toward appeasement.

Gen. Hafez and his fellow officers have adopted precautions the Baath party failed to take during its brief reign in Iraq—they have purged the army of anti - Baath officers. A coup probably would have to be set in motion outside the army—from the ranks, for instance, of the retired officers.

Expect Lively Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — The House of Commons mops up the eight-day throne speech today and then digs into the big list of legislation before it.

Item No. 1, Justice Minister Favreau said last Friday in his new role as House leader, will be the resolution to send the Columbia River treaty and protocol to the external affairs committee.

Thus, the government is carrying out its intention of getting the earliest possible start on a subject that may shed more heat than light in the next few weeks.

The debate on the resolution itself may indicate clearly just how stoutly treaty opponents will fight.

The issue is the long-called plan to harness the Columbia River of British Columbia with three storage dams. The United States is paying cash for flood protection and for a big slice of B.C. owned power that would total by 1973 an estimated $501,000,000—more than enough to build the three dams.

HAVE BEEN CHANGES

There have been some changes in the 1961 treaty with the U.S. which was engineered by the former Conservative government—but no indication of just what line the Conservatives now will take with the treaty and with the protocol which was signed Jan. 22 in Washington to cover the power sale and some treaty modifications.

The Social Credit group of 11 is expected to back up Premier Bennett of B.C. to the hilt in his approval of the whole package. The Creditistes may as well.

The main opposition thus seems assured from the 17-man New Democrat group and particularly H. W. Herridge, the former socialist from Kootenay West which is right in the middle of the Columbia country and which contains the controversial High Arrow Dam, by-elected 2,000 people.

The NDP has accepted the view of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former head of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission and instrumental in laying the ground-work for eventual Canada-U.S. agreement, that the treaty and protocol are bad for Canada.

The ins and outs of this intricate and complex political-engineering situation will be examined in greater detail in the committee itself, with witnesses expected from B.C., Saskatchewan and federal agencies, plus private individuals.

Airliner Plunges Into Lake Tahoe During Storm

83 Lost at Innsbruck, Plane Hits Mountain

TAHOE VALLEY, Calif. (AP) Searchers prepared today to comb the rugged sierra around Lake Tahoe for a Constellation transport plane that disappeared in a blinding snowstorm with 81 passengers and a crew of four.

The plane, loaded to capacity, vanished suddenly around noon Sunday. The pilot, Capt. Glenn Henry Norris, 43, had just radioed that he was starting his 27-mile approach down 23-mile long Lake Tahoe to the airport here.

The four - engine, propeller-driven Connie may have plunged into the huge lake, which is 6,200 feet high in the granite sierra that in some places is more than 10,000 feet high.

The 81 passengers were flying toward a gay Sunday at Nevada's gambling casinos, theatres, bars and restaurants — only two miles from the airport at the south end of Lake Tahoe.

GIVES REPORT

Of the plane's disappearance Paradise Airlines President Herman Jones, 32 said:

"There have been no reports, no sightings, no nothing.

"We don't know what happened," he said. "As far as we can trace, the flight was all routine. There was nothing alarming about the weather at the time. However, the weather at Lake Tahoe was dropping. Snow showers. Pilot Norris never said anything adverse to the flight."

In contrast, a resident of the area said it was snowing hard and winds were high and gusty.

And investigator Ivan Stracener of the Civil Aeronautics Board said "the pilot reportedly had seen a hole in the overcast and was beginning his approach. The weather was unstinking you couldn't search" Sunday.

FREE KURDS

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) Four hundred and fifty Kurds taken prisoner by Iraqi government forces during the years of war in northern Iraq were released Sunday, Baghdad radio said. This made a total of 1,100 prisoners set free, according to official Iraqi government announcements, since a cease-fire ending the fighting was proclaimed three weeks ago.

INNSBRUCK (AP)—The bodies of the 83 victims of a British airliner crash were to be recovered from an alpine ravine today and brought to this winter resort for an attempt at identification.

Helicopters took Austrian rescue teams to the charred wreckage of the four-engine British Britannia between two peaks Sunday after a U.S. Air Force search plane spotted the blackened tail fin sticking out of the snow.

Austrian officials said the airliner, trying to land through fog at Innsbruck airport, slammed into a 8,800-foot Mt. Gamslahner Spitz southeast of the resort where the 1964 Winter Olympics are to be held.

The big turboprop plane, its fuel tanks still nearly full, apparently struck the mountain at full speed and crashed. Debris and bodies were strewn over a 30-yard area in the gully between Gamslahner and Glungeezer peaks.

The 76 passengers included 72 British bound for a skiing holiday, two Australians and an Austrian. The airline, International Eagle, said there were 18 married couples aboard and at least five children. The plane carried a crew of eight.

SCENE 'HORRIBLE'

"It is horrible," said an Alpine rescue Service member. "Arms, legs and heads are strewn about in the debris. I don't know how one could ever identify the victims."

Tape-recorded messages between the pilot, 40-year-old Captain E. Williams and the Innsbruck control tower roused suspicions that the plane's altimeters were defective. Williams gave his altitude as 10,000 feet, which would have been well above the peaks.

Dr. Leopold Kochler of the Austrian civil aviation office and Williams described as one of Eagle's veteran pilots, was given a detailed weather report and said that the flight was to have international safety limits.

"Apparently the pilot was prepared to land because he did not inform the control tower of any intention to climb after alternate airport," Koehler said.

"The pilot was approaching under visual flight rules after he had changed from instrument flight to visual flight over Innsbruck (in nearby West Germany)."

Great Wave of Hatred, Fear Sweeping India's Subcontinent

DACCA, East Pakistan (AP) A great wave of hatred and fear is sweeping a section of the Indian subcontinent.

Entire families, some clutching only a few bundles, a brass pot or a prized possession, are on the move across the dusty Assam Plain of India and the rice paddies and jute fields of East Pakistan.

Hindus and some Christians are leaving Moslem Pakistan for India in a tragic replay of the religious, linguistic, economic and social strife.

The Moslems are moving the other way, from Hindu areas of India into Pakistan.

Each fleeing family, each refugee camp is fuel for the explosive powder keg of pentup emotion that could touch off fighting that could spread around such migrations in the past.

Blood already has been spilled.

No one can say with accuracy how many persons are on the move or what the death toll has been in sporadic clashes that have broken out when frightened, fleeing Hindus met frightened, fleeing Moslems.

The Pakistan government said earlier this month that more than 122,000 Moslems had registered as refugees from India—but the borders are unmarked in places and uncontrolled in others.

Many thousands just walk across.

Indian officials say as many as 10,000 line up daily in Dacca to apply for permission to enter India.

Estimates of the toll of last month's big riots range from hundreds to thousands. In some areas, bodies are simply tossed in rivers and not counted.

There is an ever-present danger of an escalation into serious conflict between India and Pakistan.

The two nations, already bitter enemies, almost daily trade charges of border infiltrating, or at least condoning, religious persecution and shoving unwanted minorities across the border.

The large scale migrations started last month when a story of killing, looting and rape erupted in parts of both India and Pakistan.

Tells of Seeing SS Toss Child Into Open Fire at Auschwitz

FRANKFURT (Reuters) — A woman doctor sent to the Auschwitz concentration camp as a political prisoner in 1943 told today of watching SS (Elite) Guards throw a child into an open fire near the camp crematoria.

Dr. Ella Lingens, 55, of Vienna was the first woman witness to testify at the trial of 22 former camp staff facing charges of mass murder.

She was the only German doctor in the women's camp.

Tall, slim and silver-haired, Dr. Lingens spoke her evidence clearly and without emotion, though she said "I felt so outraged by Auschwitz that even today I have not got over it."

She had been asked to describe used by Dr. Josef Mengele, chief camp doctor, to give the women's section its first proper delousing.

"He took a whole block, holding 700 women, and sent them all into the gas. Then he deloused the block, transferred the women from the next block into it, and so on."

Her own life was saved by an SS doctor who found out, after learning she was a doctor, asked where she had studied and discovered that she had gone to the same university and had acquaintances in common.

A few weeks later she fell ill with spotted fever. Normally, as a sick person, she would have been killed by an injection, but Rhode sent her to the experimental medical station, where she got better food and treatment.

"Rhode once came to me with two breathtakingly beautiful girls. They were Italian Jews, one aged 14, the other 15. I was astonished by their beauty, and Rohde said to me: 'Please find me a cure.'

"He was a man who could not bring himself to kill beautiful women, although he sent 10,000 others into the gas."

Dr. Lingens said of the SS men between five and seven per cent were sadists or war criminals in the clinical sense. The rest were perfectly able to distinguish between good and evil.

A.N.A.F. Weekly News

Last Saturday afternoon saw the inauguration of, at least for this district, a new sport's tournament. This is the shuffle-board tournament, started at short notice when the veterans' clubs of Belleville received a challenge from two messes of the South Stations.

The sports chairman reports it was a tremendous success, with a Royal Canadian Legion team coming through in the finals to win the first prize with the team of Al Adams and Jack Scanlon, who beat the challenging team from the Armory Mess, A. D. Lougard and A. G. Branch, two games out of three. A return match will be played in the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 99 Hall on Pinnacle Street on March 21st.

In the meantime the sports chairmen of the various clubs are having a meeting to try and organize a summer league and hope to have teams entered from the following organizations: Airmen's Mess and Cpls' Mess from the South Station and both of these messes from 6 R.D., the Royal Canadian Legion Branch at Trenton and Branch 99 from Belleville and the ANAF Unit 201, Belleville. Each club in turn, acting as host. It certainly looks like it will fill a long needed break for summer sports, besides meeting a lot of comrades and forming new friendships around this district. So good luck to the organizers, there is no apparent reason it should not be a success.

SICK LIST INCREASED

The sick chairman reports that there has been an increase on the number of comrades in hospital over the last week. Comrade Harold Dracup was home suddenly ill last Wednesday and had to be rushed to hospital but is reported to be recovering nicely. The beginning of the week one of the older comrades was also admitted to B.G.H. Comrade Mike Phillips who is resting comfortably. Also Comrade Jack Cavanaugh was admitted to B.G.H. room 242 where he is doing as well as can be expected. Comrades A. Brenton, room 227 and Bert Herrington, room 227 are still in hospital also and coming along nicely. All of these members would appreciate anyone caring to visit them, "Warpy" O'Brien is now in room 207, Bowden Bldg., Kingston General Hospital still taking treatment.

The membership chairman would like again to tell the comrades that time is getting shorter all the time. Just 24 more days on which you may pay your dues. The drive for new members is going along and don't forget the very acceptable prize Dominion president, Jack Sanderson, has put up for the new member bringing in the most new active members by the end of March. It is well worth striving for.

The entertainment chairman reports that he was a very happy crowd out for last Friday's dance with the Plaza Four supplying the music. Spot prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. J. Meikle and Mr. Norm Meldrum and Mrs. E. Cortes, while Mr. and Mrs. R. Blaind won the door prize.

STAG NIGHT COMING

On March 20th Comrade Len is putting on another Stag Night and anyone who was at his first one can tell of the swell night everyone had. By popular request Georgs Gellner will again entertain the comrades while Ed Nickles will be on hand to show another in his series of sports films. The Executive Committee are promised to put on another of their delectable lunches so all-together, it looks like another big evening so don't miss it.

The president has requested that any members who joined Unit 201 before 1936 and has not been initiated yet, would send or get their correct mail address to the secretary as a big Initiation Night and social evening will be held on Friday, April 3rd. This applies to active members and there is good supply of lapel pins and buttons on hand. He would like to see everyone initiated.

Charles Lovett And Rink Win Local Spiel

The men's spiel at the Quinte Curling Club on Saturday was a decided success and a rink from the local club won all the marbles. Charles Lovett had a rink of Mac Moffatt, W. Spinelli and Ernie Jones and they won out over another three - game winner, an RCAF rink skipped by Ed Walker with George Peters, Jack Curtis and Art Sharpe as members.

There were four two - game winners with Gordon Edwards leading (the pack although he was tied in points with T. A. Carruthers but won on the for and against count. Edwards had Al Snetsinger, Harold Mott and Ed Lewis as partners while Carruthers had Lloyd Lanz, Mac White and Al McCullam. Charlie Cox had Lloyd Sheppard, Bill Riley and Murray Johnson while the low two-game winner from a rink skipped by Keith Markham of the Granite Club from Ottawa. Hendrickson and Ken Mitchell and was top for one - game high followed by Bill Nelson, Doug Graham, Cliff Neill with Wes Andrews as skip. Bill Gault, Fred Maskell, Cec Kirkwood and Ray Wilkinson as skip was next high with Jack Olaveson. Hugo David and Doug Sim) and Ralph Ellis with Pat Houston as skip in the fourth spot.

A Kingston rink skipped by Dr. Bob Hurst and one skipped by Roy Pettierew of the RCN, Kingston, failed to place in the standings.

The curling was excellent and there were a number of extra end games during the day. The women's section of the club provided light refreshments during it and these were appreciated by the players. Some basketball bridge games were played during the afternoon and evening before the ice and a most enjoyable time was spent. The ice was lightning fast.

Heavy Fog Reduces Traffic To a Crawl

Traffic in the Belleville area was slowed to little more than a crawl just before daylight this morning as a heavy fog settled to blanket the area.

The fog settled in shortly before 5 o'clock and was particularly dense for the next couple of hours.

Despite the lack of visibility, however, city police reported no accidents. Motorists were forced to leave their headlights on until the fog thinned out shortly before eight o'clock — but they could see any better at a walking pace.

Earlier in the night a light rain fell over the area.

Tobacco

Tobacco prices at the exchanges have been dropping for weeks, and they were at their lowest Friday—61 cents a pound. In the last three days of exchange sales, prices have declined 41 per cent of all bids as too low.

Mr. Dempeyere was to lead a board committee to Ottawa today to confer with members of the government from Ontario's tobacco growing area. He hoped to meet Agriculture Minister Hays.

He said Sunday the growers are in a "hostile mood. There have been suggestions that the auctions open under police guard, he said, but he wouldn't "want to see tobacco if such actions had to be taken."

"I hope this can be settled as quickly as possible so that the exchanges can re-open and tobacco be sold without violence," he said.

Saturday's meeting was called when the board declared it would re-open the exchange today. The Hungarian Hall was jammed by 15 minutes before meeting time and loudspeakers were installed in the basement for about 300 men unable to get into the hall.

Bert Van Loon of St. Williams, a former director of the marketing board, declared: "We have been cheated by the growers for the past few weeks . . . We must stop the sales so we can get enough out of this crop to live. When they offer five and 10 cents for 50-cent tobacco it is high time we halted sales. Don't allow another pound of tobacco to be sold until action is found." His speech was applauded.

There was some speculation that the Greeks talked of boycotting the manoeuvres to create an impression at home of a tough diplomatic position in the Cyprus dispute.

Premier George Papandreou protested on Saturday against the American stand in the Cyprus dispute. The Greek press generally accuses the United States of favoring Turkey in the dispute.

Some of the 6th Fleet ships are scheduled to call at Athens after the NATO manoeuvres end March 4. But some U.S. officials consider this universe in view of the current atmosphere, and it was believed the visit may be cancelled.

More than 18,000 persons gathered Sunday at Iraklion, Crete's largest city, for an anti-American and anti-British demonstration. Speakers accused the United States and Britain of siding with Turkey in the Cyprus dispute.

In New York, the UN Security Council was scheduled to continue its debate on the Cyprus question this afternoon amid reports that the chief obstacles blocking creation of an international peace force and appointment of a mediator had been cleared away.

IN MEMORIAM

RAY — In loving memory of a dear brother, Percy Ray, who passed away March 4th, 1963.

Memories in our hearts are many,
But losing you was worse than any.
Close to our hearts you will always be,
Loved and remembered every day.
We treasure in our memory
To love and to cherish and never forget.
—Sadly missed by Jean, Keith and family.

NOLAN — In loving memory of my dear mother Zita Louise Nolan who passed away March 1, 1963.

Years of striving, little of play,
Loving, giving the whole of the way.
A quiet smile, a heart of gold,
To the dearest mother, sweet and old.
—Sadly missed,
Happy memories fond and true,
From up there thought the world of you.
—Maynard and Dorothy.

LATTA — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Ann Latta, who passed away March 2nd, 1943.

There comes a time for all of us,
When we must say goodbye,
But faith and hope and love and trust,
Can never, never die;
Although the curtain falls at last,
And time is done to grieval
The future's fairer than the past,
If only you believe.
And trust in God's eternal care,
So when the master calls,
You will be ready and have part,
Although the curtain falls.
—Sadly missed by daughters.

CRAWFORD — In loving memory of a very dear brother, Clifford (Cliff) Crawford, who passed away one year ago on March 2, 1963.

Broken is our family circle,
Our dear one's passed away,
Passed from this earthly darkness,
Into a bright and perfect day.
But we all must cease to languish,
Over the graves of our dead,
Strive to be prepared to meet him,
When our work's all done.
Beloved and remembered by sister Gertrude and brother-in-law Alex and family.

Further Moves On Project To Be Stopped

Federal Works Minister Deschatelets has intervened in the controversial proposal to build a new RCMP district headquarters in suburban east Belleville.

No further move will be made on the project until it has received careful ministerial scrutiny.

A letter from the federal Works Department received on Saturday by Mr. Temple said his request had "been immediately brought to the attention of the minister, who has asked that everything be stopped on this project until he has had a full report on same."

Music Column

By KARL WALSH

There are certain ulterior fields in the immense realm of music that are seldom considered by the average student in secondary schools taking the instrumental music options. Such a concept is now being presented, to be frank, to little students into music. This area deals with the more physical attractions, that is, the financial aspects, which may help students support themselves or supplement their allowance while studying to better themselves.

The first method offered is through organizations such as the Kiwanis Club (who sponsor the Kiwanis Musical Festival annually) who award scholarships up to $100 plus to students on any instrument in contest. Along the same lines all universities with a Music Faculty offer bursaries and scholarships which may exceed $1,000. An example of this is the Black Bursary of $400 to assist a worthy student in the School of Music at Acadia University.

A second, and most profitable, of these financial aspects includes the dimention termed "dance-work". From this medium personal satisfaction, experience, and most important, capital, may be obtained. In Quinte Secondary School there exists many of the dance musicians who currently and in past years have been playing commercially. A few of these people are: Rick Eves, John Huddleston, John Lenson, Steve Smith, Greg Smith, John Beach, Darwin Hoskins and myself, Karl Walsh. These musicians play for such groups as Commodores, Music Makers, Checkmates, Crown Scepters and those up to $20 for an evening's playing.

A third method of earning money is by teaching. This may be done either through a studio or by the individual on his own. This brings in an additional $2 an hour, to those with the time and ability.

As a concluding note I would like to implore any student not to consider any of the above methods as a means to an end but rather to stress simultaneously the importance of an inflexible stable base knowledge of the fundamentals of music including sight-reading and tone which are two of the major necessities.

Tourist Region Gathers Data For Centennial

The Hastings and Land O' Lakes Tourist Region will delve into the past to gather historical data of the Region as a Centennial Project.

The Region — No. 11 — comprises most of the townships of Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac.

At the February meeting held at the Tweedsmuir Hotel in Tweed, Russell Brown of Cloyne and Del Hiatt of Steenburg were named as a committee to contact all fish and game and conservation clubs and advise them that a grand prize will be given for the best fish caught in this region.

The winner will be selected from winners of the various contests sponsored by the various clubs in the Region.

In order to publicize the Region everything possible will be done to encourage manufacturers in the Hastings and Land O' Lakes Region to put the name of the county or Region on their product.

It was decided to again offer $100 toward a free vacation in this region to the winner of the lucky ticket at the Toronto Sportsmen's Show Booth.

Historic Ponton House Visited On Walking Tour

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Zimmerle were hosts to a group of the Community Planning Association Sunday afternoon at the historic Ponton house on Dundas Street West. The property has been proposed as a city park, and the house as a museum.

Though cut by the highway and by the railroad, this would be a lovely place for a park. It has a fine bit of unspoiled bay shore adjoining the filtration plant and looking out across towards Zwick's Island and the Bay Bridge. It is in a fast-growing part of the city, where such a park must sooner or later be greatly appreciated.

The house is a Regency Cottage, evidently of the 1830's. (See The Ancestral Roof by McCrae and Adamson for parallels.) It seem originally to have had two important rooms at the front and two smaller rooms behind, a wide centre hall led through to the kitchen wing, built earlier but altered.

The main house is set high to accommodate basement bedrooms, and there seems to have been no upstairs at first. The present lower room that is such a distinctive feature of the facade was built very much later, in the Italian taste. Presumably, the graceful stairway that leads up to it was built at the same time. The fireplaces in the main rooms must date from the 60's or the 70's.

NO VERANDAHS

The house would look much more in Regency self if it still had its verandahs and shutters.

There is a ghost, one of General Brock's men, reputedly having died in the dairy.

As a playground, the whole property north of the highway, surrounding the house, is a children's paradise, with its fences and hedges and lilac thickets and terraces and porches and sheds and barns.

Regarding museum use: the County Museum proper would need more space for its displays, but the barnyard would be a good place for an agricultural museum. The present barn is mostly new, but it would be easy to bring in another.

As a historical tea - room, restored pretty much to the Regency period, the house would have far more charm than the famous Marie Dressler house at Cobourg, and would nicely complement the bay - shore park across the way.

Next Sunday at 2 p.m. the CPAC will meet at the CPR station to tour the waterfront parks and possible route of a bay - shore drive. Naturally, any interested person is welcome on these tours.

Four Arrivals At Hospital Leap Year Day

The first February 29th arrival was a baby girl born to Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Milton, of 3 Grove Street.

This, of course, means that the four babies will not celebrate their first birthdays until February 29th, 1968.

India Allowed to Set Up Posts in Disputed Zone

CP from Reuters-AP

COLOMBO — Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-lai has agreed to allow India to set up posts in a disputed zone between Chinese and Indian forces in the Ladakh border area, it was reported in this Ceylonese capital Sunday.

The Colombo Times said the "compromise proposal" was made during talks between Chou and Ceylonese Prime Minister Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike Saturday following cabled instructions from Peking.

Chou and his party returned to China Sunday following visits to Burma and Pakistan and a four-day stay in Ceylon.

While there was no official confirmation of The Times report, diplomatic observers said that if it was true, it was an important concession on China's part.

China has insisted the disputed border area, where fighting broke out in 1962, is Chinese territory and has refused to allow Indian troops to enter the region.

WANT EQUAL NUMBER

Proposals growing from an earlier Colombo conference on the border dispute recommended that both sides should have an equal number of posts in the area.

The communique said Chou has expressed readiness "to continue to seek direct negotiations with India on the basis of the Colombo proposals for a peaceful settlement of the Sino-Indian boundary question."

The Sino-Ceylon communique also declared support for the "establishment of nuclear-free zones in various parts of the world" and said Chou commended Ceylon's ban on the entry of nuclear-capable ships and aircraft.

Mrs. Bandaranaike reaffirmed Ceylon's view that Formosa is "an integral part of mainland China.

She also re-stated her stand that Communist China should have a seat in the United Nations.

The toughest language in the communique was a statement of firm opposition to so-called colonialism "in all its forms and manifestations" and Mrs. Bandaranaike's statement that an Afro-Asian conference would "contribute to the cause of opposing imperialism and colonialism."

It has a fine bit of unspoiled bay shore adjoining the filtration plant and looking out across towards Zwick's Island and the Bay Bridge. It is in a fast-growing part of the city, where such a park must sooner or later be greatly appreciated.

The house is a Regency Cottage, evidently of the 1830's. (See The Ancestral Roof by McCrae and Adamson for parallels.) It seem originally to have had two important rooms at the front and two smaller ones behind. A wide central hall led through to the kitchen wing, built earlier but altered later.

The main house is set high to accommodate basement bedrooms, and there seems to have been no upstairs at first. The present lower room that is such a distinctive feature of the facade was built very much later, in the Italian taste. Presumably the graceful stairway that leads up to it was built at the same time. The fireplaces in the main rooms must date from the 60's or the 70's.

NO VERANDARS

The house would look much more in Regency self if it still had its verandahs and shutters.

There is a ghost, one of Gen. Ponton's wives reputedly having died in the dairy.

As a playground, the whole property west of the highway surrounding the house, is a children's paradise, with its fences, mature hedges and lilac thickets and terraces and porch and sheds and barns.

Regarding museum use: the County Museum proper would be a fine space for its displays, but the barnyard would be a good place for an agricultural museum. The present barn is mostly new, but it would be easy to bring in another.

As a historical tea - room, it would be further down the Regency period, the house would have far more charm than the famous Marie Dressler house at Cobourg, and would nicely complement the bay - shore park across the way.

Next Sunday at 2 p.m. the CPAC will meet at the CPR station to tour the waterfront parks and possible route of a bay - shore drive. Naturally, any interested person is welcome on these tours.

Four Arrivals At Hospital Leap Year Day

Belleville had its full share of Leap Year babies on Saturday with four new arrivals at Belleville General Hospital having February 29th as their birthday.

The first February 29th arrival was a baby girl born to Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Milton, of 3 Grove Street.

This, of course, means that the four babies will not celebrate their first birthdays until February 29th, 1968.

The 20th anniversary of the Women's Missionary Council of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada was observed in Trenton. Above are Mrs. Lee Mallory, vice-president; Mrs. Wilfred Yarrow, president and Mrs. Roland Faul, secretary-treasurer, of the Women's Missionary Council at Bethel Temple, Trenton.

Other members of the family present were: Mr. and Mrs. Donald C. Angus and Gary of Scarborough; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hill of Oshawa and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Adams and family of Stirling.

Many bouquets, cards and gifts were received by Mrs. Adams, whose hobby is quilting. Mrs. Adams maintains a keen interest in the contemporary scene and was particularly pleased with letters from Opposition leader, the Hon. J. G. Diefenbaker, and Rodney Webb, M.P. for Hastings and Frontenac. Mrs. Adams makes no secret of her political affiliations and is a "Tory" from away back.

Born in Healey Falls, Mrs. Adams is the former Jean MacArthur. She married in Campbellford where her husband carried on his trade of harness-maker for many years. Mr. Adams died in 1962.

A member of the Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Adams was an active church worker until a few years ago when her health forced her to take life easier. She was particularly active in the Wentworth church when she lived in that community.

Mrs. Adams has two children, Mrs. Angus, and H. J. Adams; six grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Women Mark Anniversary Of Council

TRENTON — Joining with thousands of women in Pentecostal Assemblies across Canada, 20 women at Bethel Temple, Herman and Heber Streets, Trenton, Sunday, marked the 20th anniversary of the Women's Missionary Council. Mrs. Ronald Reid, wife of the pastor, spoke at the morning service, which was conducted by the W.M.C. members and a display of handiwork was on exhibit at this service.

Women of the church group sew new children's clothing, which is sent to missionaries; mend used clothing, which is sent to the used clothing depot in town; collect stamps, (proceeds from the sale of these are used for missionary work); and donate towards such projects as the Bethel Home for Girls, in Toronto.

The local women also collect each Sunday's Sunday school papers at the church and these are sent in sequence to the churches in the West Indian Federation for use in the Sunday school there. Money realized from Penny Jar saving is sent to missionaries in Quebec province and the women here quilt for the Bible College in Peterborough.

Mrs. Wilfred Yarrow is the president of the Bethel W.M.C. this year, while Mrs. Lee Mallory is vice-president and Mrs. Roland Faul is secretary-treasurer. The local group was formed in 1946.

India Allowed to Set Up Posts in Disputed Zone

CP from Reuters-AP

COLOMBO — Chinese Communist Premier Chou En-lai has agreed to allow India to set up posts in a disputed zone between Chinese and Indian forces in the Ladakh border area, it was reported in this Ceylonese capital Sunday.

The Colombo Times said the "compromise proposal" was made during talks between Chou and Ceylonese Prime Minister Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike Saturday following cabled instructions from Peking.

Chou and his party returned to China Sunday following visits to Burma and Pakistan and a four-day stay in Ceylon.

While there was no official confirmation of The Times report, diplomatic observers said that if it was true, it was an important concession on China's part.

China has insisted the disputed border area, where fighting broke out in 1962, is Chinese territory and has refused to allow Indian troops to enter the region.

WANT EQUAL NUMBER

Proposals growing from an earlier Colombo conference on the border dispute recommended that both sides should have an equal number of posts in the area.

The communique said Chou had expressed readiness "to continue to seek direct negotiations with India on the basis of the Colombo proposals for a peaceful settlement of the Sino-Indian boundary question."

The Sino-Ceylon communique also declared support for the "establishment of nuclear-free zones in various parts of the world" and said Chou commended Ceylon's ban on the entry of nuclear-capable ships and aircraft.

Mrs. Bandaranaike reaffirmed Ceylon's view that Formosa is an integral part of mainland China.

She also restated her stand that Communist China should have a seat in the United Nations.

The toughest language in the communique was a statement of firm opposition to so-called colonialism "in all its forms and manifestations" and Mrs. Bandaranaike's statement that an African-Asian conference would "contribute to the cause of opposing imperialism and colonialism."

Russian Visits Our North

Soviet Union Today

An international symposium on the problems of Canadian Arctic was held in Montreal last September, Sponsored by McGill University and the Arctic Institute of North America, it was attended by a foremost Soviet glaciologist, Professor Pyotr Shumsky, D.Sc. (Geography) and a bonoris causa Doctor of McGill University, Alex Under. Today's correspondent Pavel Antonov met with Pyotr Shumsky on his return to Moscow and asked him to say a few words about the work of the symposium and his impressions of Canada and of meetings with Canadian scientists, public leaders and ordinary people. (His report follows):

The invitation to Soviet scientists to take part in the symposium on Canadian Arctic was made in the Summer of 1963. We accepted it with pleasure.

The Soviet delegation contributed a paper on the activities of the Natural Conditions of Soviet Arctic on the Method of Reclamation. It is Natural Resources." The paper dealt with the principles of reclamation work, the specific features of the organization of work in Soviet Arctic, and methods of development of transport there; I also spoke of the fruitful co-operation between Soviet and Canadian scientists in the exchange of weather data and forecasts.

The paper was listened to with great attention. In addition to the general information about USSR this is explained, I think, also by the fact that Soviet Arctic has been more thoroughly explored than its Canadian counterpart. The Canadian North, which occupies approximately half of the country's territory, is inhabited by only 40,000 out of a population of 18 million. The Soviet Union, about a million people live in the high Arctic alone. More than five million of them inhabit the forest areas of the Soviet North comparable to the Northern Sea Route. The Northern Route is a vital waterway which is of prime importance not only for domestic, but also for foreign trade transportation, particularly as the passage between East and West Canada has no route similar to it. This is partly explained by the more rigorous natural conditions and partly by the lower degree of reclamation.

In Soviet Arctic, the mining of materials, fishing and timbering is conducted much more intensively. On the whole, the Soviet North is of much greater economic importance for our country than the Canadian regions are for Canada. To the best of my knowledge, of all the tremendous reserves of the Canadian North, only oil is extracted for local needs and gold is mined in the Yukon, while iron and nickel ore is mined in Labrador. The rich uranium mines, which were discovered in the 1930s, have been almost deserted now.

The large-scale reclamation of the Soviet North was also spoken of by the British scientist Terence Armstrong. He gave me the impression that a lively interest in the Soviet experience of conquering the Arctic is shown and our scientific works are attentively followed in Canada. Armstrong, incidentally, urged publication of Soviet achievements in Canada.

Whereas, however, the practical reclamation of the North in Canada has not been developed sufficiently yet, it should be said about scientific research. The Canadian scientists have attained a high level as regards the profundity of research and the solution of scientific problems. A very favorable impression is made by the excellent combination of very good instruments, equipment and means of transportation. I had an opportunity of personally getting myself practically with all this, of "fingering" everything, as we say in Russia, for I was the first Soviet person to visit Canadian Arctic.

I flew via Edmonton and Fort Smith to Uranium City. There I changed over to a special plane of the northern air company and together with Dr. E. F. Roots, chief of the Polar Continental Shelf Project, we visited various points in northern regions. This expedition has a long-term plan of work and runs extensive research program. It is well equipped with means of transportation, including helicopters, planes and various cross-country snow and amphibious vehicles.

I have especially pleasant recollection of the many meetings I had during my three weeks' stay in Canada. I remember the warm friendly atmosphere in the mess-room at Mould Bay, a weather station in the north of Canada. During the conversation somebody asked suddenly who of the persons present was a Canadian, after all. It turned out that the station chief alone was a Canadian; the rest were a Russian, an American, a Pole, an Englishman, an Irishman and a Scotsman. The American, a meteorologist, invited me to see his "possessions", and gave interesting, detailed explanations. The chief of the station showed us the radar installation tracking radio-sounds launched into the upper strata of the atmosphere. When we parted he asked me to convey friendly greetings to the Soviet scientists.

I have said already that I was the first Soviet man in the high north of Canada. Being a Polar explorer I want to express gratitude to Commodore O. C. S. Robertson, vice-chairman of the Arctic Institute of North America, Dr. E. F. Roots, and also to the Government of Canada, who, realizing the importance of the problems of Arctic studies and of international co-operation experience in this field, did their best to make my trip to the north of Canada feasible and useful to the maximum.

Recalling my trip now, I cannot help thinking that my numerous meetings with Canadians were much warmer that the "cold" Arctic scientific problems that brought me to Canada.

Who's on Trial?

Some of the greatest artists of history have excelled not because of their art, but in their value as critics of society. It is partly because of this, of course, that some of the greatest artists of history have also been some of the poorest. No matter how later generations may appreciate the value of criticism their forebears rejected, each generation of mankind considers itself above criticism. If a critic is popular, in other words, it might be taken as a sign that whatever he criticizes either does not deserve, or does not need, his criticism.

The question arises because a women's committee of the Art Gallery in Toronto has had a painting removed from an Ontario Society of Artists display in the gallery. The painting, consisting of a series of nine cartoon-like panels, is blatant social criticism. The artist, describing his painting, said it shows life in "a particular society." He does not say which society his art reflects but he need not be specific as long as it is Toronto women who demanded the painting's removal from the show.

Society of Artists president McKay Houston commented "we do not agree with their (the gallery's) thinking, but we will go along." Not a very independent attitude perhaps, for a society of artists, but definitely an economically sound one.

So the controversial painting has been removed from the show, and everyone is happy—except perhaps, the artist.

But he doesn't really matter, in the current scheme of things. Like social critics down through history, he will have to wait a hundred years or so before anyone will make a final judgment on his work. And even after all that time, the judgment may be that the work is insignificant.

Safety Checks

Hon. Irwin Haskett, Ontario Minister of Transport, told the annual meeting of East Hastings Progressive Conservatives at Madoc Wednesday that sharper teeth have been put in the law permitting police to compel automobile owners to submit their vehicles for safety checks.

Mr. Haskett said officials of this department "are interested largely" in voluntary checks. The attitude does benefit. Unfortunately reason tells us that persons who will volunteer to have their vehicles inspected in this manner are just the very people who are least likely to have neglected the maintenance of their cars. Compulsion will be necessary if the maximum benefits are to be derived from these checks.

At the same time, it is an imposition to permit police to stop any car, at any time, for a safety check. This might easily cause grave inconvenience to a driver who would have willingly co-operated if approached in a different way.

If comparison is to be applied, it should be done in an orderly fashion, so that the cars checked are not chosen by chance, but all cars are covered at regular intervals, with some regard to the convenience of the owners.

There is one place where the Minister of Transport could make a start in such a program, with obvious benefits to the public. This would be to require that all cars must have passed a safety check before ownership can be transferred. Everybody knows that cars are usually traded when they start to give signs of causing trouble. It is probable, therefore, that the percentage of unsafe cars is higher amongst those traded than it is amongst cars generally. Dealers should not be permitted to sell a car which has not undergone a safety check—and in fairness to the dealers precisely the same regulation should be enforced where private sales are made.

The sun affects profoundly one's whole outlook, temperament, soul if you like. It makes you care less—worry less. You ain't the sun and what things matter? An hour here, a day there, what's the fuss? The sun shines, crickets shrill, the air quivers in the heat, birds and beasts drowse; tomorrow the sun will still be shining; there's nothing to beat, make the most of, no hurry. Laugh, sleep, eat, experience the warmth in every cell, every crevice. You seem to expand, somehow to enlarge your spirit. I feel this the moment I reach Egypt, on my way south, or smell the south of the Mediterranean roads."—Writer Elspeth Huxley.

Why Do Men Leave Home?

The Windsor Star

Much is said of the huge public debts owed by governments, federal, provincial and municipal. Much less is said about the vast amount of private debts which probably have a far more deleterious effect on human happiness and welfare.

A New York firm, with a 40-year experience in tracking missing persons, estimates more than 75,000 husbands in the United States in 1963 skipped out of house and home and their responsibilities. It finds money problems, wife troubles and mother-in - law misery as in equal measure to blame.

Well, wife and mother-in-law difficulties have been with mankind since the days of the first man race. But money trouble, in this age of easy credit, is an increasing one. The same firm's expert says men go into debt first in a small way, and finally get to the point where most or all their wages are going in installment payments. Then, in desperation, they merely leave home — and their debts.

This is understandable even if undesirable. It suggests private debts cause much greater misery to mankind than do public debts. After all, a government usually is able to borrow it s money to pay off old debts!

New Table Of Measures

Memphis Commercial Appeal

Charles A Stuck, author and lecturer of Jonesboro, Ark., writes:

"You recently mentioned a 'piggin' of milk. How much is a piggin? I want to know expression, but I want to know more about it.

"In payment for your trouble, I submit a standard of measurement that might come in handy.

"The basis of all measurement is the smidgin, a quantity that approaches zero in size. Then it goes like this:

3 smidgins equal one tinch.
4 tinches equal one little bit.
4 little bits equal one middle amount.
3 middle amounts equal one right smart.
3 right smarts equal one whole heap.

"There is still a big sized quantity, although it finds little use in the household. Four whole heaps equal one heck of a night. This is useful in computing large amounts, acres or tonnages. This system can be used to measure anything from onions to real estate.

"I hope this helps."

Onecupmanship

The Printed Word

Some economy - minded guests in the Chateau Laurier learned a while back that a jug of ice water is best charged for whereas ice by the lump is a minimum of 50 cents.

The hotel seems to be getting back at the guests who wants to save, because a recent delivery of ice water was accompanied by only one glass.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 2nd 1944.

Since their organization Belleville Kinsmen have been carrying on a magnificent work in Belleville and especially since the beginning of the war. So tireless have been their efforts that their name is a household word for patriotic and philanthropic work. They have raised large amounts of money for these purposes and the results are seen in a steady expansion of their work.

Back in peace days they launched the eye clinic which continues in service of humanity. On this they expended upwards of three hundred dollars during the past year.

One of the outstanding examples of Kinsmen efficiency work effective handling of a great public service is the Kinsmen Fag Fund. This is known in the Belleville and Belleville and district boys in the Canadian forces and to the relatives and friends and this people at large. Five hundred and fifty names are on the "fag" list and these men and boys are in receipt of regular shipments of cigarettes. Hundreds upon hundreds of letters of appreciation of these gifts are the treasured possession of the club, for these boys speak from the heart. During the year 1943, 908,600 cigarettes were sent out at a cost of $3,022.68, while from the beginning of the fund in September 1941, there have been sent out to the far corners of the earth wherever Belleville boys, whose names on the fund lists, may be in service in the navy, the army and the air force, the grand total of 1,683,600 cigarettes costing the club $5,607.20.

The year's financial account of the Kinsmen is the big one. This is the Belleville-Britain Fund on which was dispersed $7,000 last year. This work is one of course which is deeply appreciated by the people of Britain for what it is achieving for the young of the British Isles.

March 2nd, 1934.

Owing to the exceedingly cold weather, more fuel has been burned in this city estimate of the amount of ashes collected by the garbage collectors in the winter would be twenty-five to thirty per cent above that in a normal winter. The garbage is often are forced to work many hours over time to keep up with their work.

During the month of February three city building permits were issued at the office of the city engineer at an estimated cost of $1,650. The permits covered repairs and alterations to stores and houses.

Mrs. George S. Kerr of Benjamin St., is spending a few days with relatives in Rochester, N.Y.

Mr. Bruce Latimer was home from the College of Pharmacy, Toronto, to spend the weekend.

Crowds of skiers and snowshoers from this city and throughout the district turned to the vicinity of Oak Lake into a miniature Lake Placid on Sunday. The hills about the district glazed with firm snow afforded wonderful recreational facilities. Jones' wood section was also a favored spot.

In a bowling match last evening the Hardware team defeated the Wanderers, the score being 2943 to 2714. The following composed the teams: Hardware—Stratton, Harris, Naphan, Whalen, Anderson. Wanderers — Hill, Lynch, Phillips, Walsh, Yerex.

Prof. Haines of Albert College addressed the members of the Rotary Club at their weekly luncheon meeting today.

Mr. James Douglas of Fort Stewart, town of Carlow township is spending a few days in town.

50 YEARS AGO

March 2nd, 1914

Miss E. J. Guest, M.A., of the Belleville High School addressed the members of the Women's Institute at Redneerville last evening. The chair was occupied by the president, Mrs. Alex. Anderson. Mr. John Hair furnished several enjoyable selections on the gramophone.

Sergt. William Black of the 38th Battery, left today for Ottawa where he will take course in physical training.

That's right — Peggy S. Deacase babies are natural copycats. That's the way they learn. And this poor infant already has been taught to antisatisfy its appetite with sweet stuff like a 16-ounce bottle of cola before every meal, and one at bedtime. He says he isn't hungry and that food doesn't taste good.

What I'm concerned about is my two-year-old grandson who sees his father with the cola. He is given some, too, and then doesn't want to eat either.

I say there are enough calories in the cola drinks to fill them up so they can't eat.

The child is thin and my daughter worries about him. She doesn't give the child this cola drink, but the father does and explains that "I can't bear to hear him cry."

They took the baby to a doctor and problem was diagnosed as rickets. So I said, "It's about time you get some tonic in that child and threw the cola out." What advice would you give?— C. W. W.

About the same advice that you have given in vain, I guess!

Any of these soft drinks are too sweet. That means they contain sugar. Sugar has a lot of calories. But it contains nothing which is used to build the body. It provides only "fuel." (Or it will be converted into fat.)

I have nothing against soft drinks, but before meals isn't the time to drink them, or any more than you would give a child ice cream and cake before dinner and then expect him to eat.

If your son-in-law wants to continue drinking cola, I don't suppose there is anything you can do about it. He's old enough to decide what he wants to do, right or wrong.

But teaching the baby to do so is something else. Your grandson has some rights. He is entitled to be taught to eat properly. Instead he is being taught the wrong things about eating.

That's right — I say it. Because

Looked Little Like Spring On Sunday

Well, anyway it looked a little like spring.

Yesterday (Sunday) was March 1st and according to the old cliche "if March comes in like a lion it goes out like a lamb" or maybe it's the other way around.

Sunday's weather was neither a lamb nor a lion with dull leaden skies covering the area for most of the day.

The temperature however did get up as high as 40 degrees with just a hint of spring in the air.

Gordon Cooper is a fisherman who does more than dream and talk about big fish. He catches 'em.

Yesterday the latest addition to his record was on display at the Cooper household at 7 West Street—a lake trout weighing in at 13 lbs. 6 ozs., three feet long with a 17-inch girth.

The catch was made at Spring Lake—a hard-to-reach drop of water in the McArthur's Mills area of Mayo township.

Gord was ice-fishing with his wife and friend Bill May, when the big trout struck in three feet of water.

"I'd a suspicion it was in there," recounted Gord. "I had already landed two smaller trout and when he didn't bite I decided to change lures."

Dropped to snag the three-foot monster catch was a 1½-inch minnow.

"I'd only dropped it down when he hit. After that I fought him for darn near half an hour."

The battle ended when Bill May, alerted by Gord's shouts, hurried to the spot and handed him a home-made gaff hook. For the umpteenth time the trout was reeled toward the hole in the ice.

HIT FISH WITH GAFF

As he appeared, Gord struck with the gaff.

"I hooked him under the chin. Otherwise I'd not have landed him," he said.

It's not the first big 'un on his record—he increases the possibility of such a catch by being an enthusiastic fisherman, who fishes most of his spare time away.

His last big fish was a 42-pound muskie caught in local waters and entered in a province-wide newspaper contest. He lost the contest—by a half pound—but took second prize.

EXPEL EX-STRONGMAN

DAMASCUS (AP)—Ali Saleh Saadi, onetime strongman of Iraq, was expelled Monday from the Baath socialist party that rules Syria. A brief communique issued by a party congress here said Saadi, once the party's vice-premier, had deviated from Baath principles and rebelled against its authority.

men got clear of the ship in one nine in the other. Eighteen, including the captain, stayed on the stern.

An RCAF Argus aircraft on a routine flight spotted the Amphialos' stern section about 10:30 a.m. Sunday. She radioed the Royal Canadian Navy Athabaskan, on exercises about 10 miles away.

CLUNG TO RAILS

Flt. Lt. Laurie Friesen of Yorkton, Sask., captain of the Argus, said "there were men clinging to the rails . . . they began waving frantically."

Cmdr. Peter R. Hinton of Victoria, the destroyer escort's commanding officer, said at the same time the message was received a lookout spotted "a ship with a strange silhouette."

"We picked up eight men from the first lifeboat," Cmdr. Hinton said. The men, too weak to climb up scramble nets hung over Athabaskan's side, were lifted bodily by sailors. Pantaleon was one of the eight.

Nine men were picked up from the second lifeboat.

Cmdr. Hinton moved his ship closer to the stern section which was drifting toward him at about 4½ knots. One of the 18 men on the stern jumped overboard into the oil - covered-water but was rescued by a naval diver, Seaman Donald Patterson, 21, of Halifax.

SHOT LINE TO WRECK

An attempt to float two life-rafts from the Athabaskan to the wreck was foiled by the waves, but a line shot from the Athabaskan was used to haul a rubber raft alongside the wreck. The men slid into it on a rope and were pulled to the Athabaskan and hauled aboard.

The two sections of the ship had drifted about 35 miles apart and the 300-foot bow section was believed to have sunk.

R. H. Masters, agent for the Amphialos, said a tug would probably be sent out to tow the stern section to port. It still contained some of the ship's oil cargo.

The Amphialos, built in 1949 at Norfolk, Va., as the Bulkstaf, was Greek-owned. She was the third ship to come to grief in the northwest Atlantic since December.

The French freighter Douala, battered by a severe storm, sank south of Newfoundland just before Christmas. Seventeen men were lost. Two weeks ago the British freighter Ambassador was crippled 600 miles southeast of here and 14 men were lost.

Yacht Owner Backed Out at Last Minute

LONDON (AP) — The owners of a missing yacht said in a television broadcast Sunday that the craft had been used to smuggle abroad £1,000,000 ($3,000,000) loot from Britain's great train robbery. He said he had backed out at the last moment and jumped ashore.

Edward Anderson, 31-year-old owner of the yacht Christine, was interviewed on news broadcasts.

The Christine sailed from Ramsgate Jan. 3 and has not been heard of since. Some time later Anderson returned to England from Ireland and told police a friend, Dennis Bassett, had taken the yacht out.

Anderson said Bassett had told him there was £1,000,000 from the train robbery in the bags put aboard the boat.

Bassett's body was found on the shore near a Belgian resort Feb. 12. Police said they were unable to rule out foul play.

Thirty armed and masked men held up a mail train last Aug 8 and stole mail bags containing an estimated £7,000,000. The trial of 20 persons in connection with Britain's biggest train robbery began Jan. 20.

AGREED TO TRIP

Anderson said he had agreed to take a couple of parcels across the English Channel for a friend. "I was waiting at the quayside (when,) the parcels arrived—in the form of three suitcases and a fairly heavy bag, with two men. . . .

"They went below decks and I gave them a drink. I began to get a little apprehensive, knowing who one of the people was," Anderson did not identify the man further.

Anderson said he told the men he wanted to see the parcels to make certain they didn't contain drugs.

"This person said to me, 'well, you know what it's all about, Eddie—you know who I am, you don't have to look inside the suitcases to see what's there.' Eventually, he did open one of the suitcases and counted out £5,000 ($15,000) and said, 'This is yours when you get us and the parcels across.' I became terribly frightened, and decided just a few seconds later not to make the trip."

Gold and White Spring Salad

by Mary Moore

Several years ago we spent domestic hours in my kitchen making 50-serving batches of food. The object was to have a permanent recipe file of quantity recipes for wedding and banquet occasions. These were printed and made into a four-page bulletin, thousands of which we have sent out to our enquiring readers over the years.

One of the items in it is a Golden Spring Salad to serve 50. Strangely I have never given the recipe for that for a family amount in this column.

Because jellied salads are so much in demand, I made it to serve at a guest dinner and chilled it in my 4-cup ring mould. I think our jellied salad enthusiasts will thank me for it. It has a professional appearance and a gourmet flavor.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

GOLD AND WHITE SPRING SALAD (serves 10).

1 cup canned crushed pineapple water (see below), 1 pkg. lemon jelly powder, ½ teaspoon salt; ½ cup finely grated carrot; 1½ tablespoons plain gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, 1 cup mayonnaise (not salad dressing), ¾ cup evaporated milk, ½ tablespoon salt, 1 tablespoon finely chopped green onion, ½ cup finely chopped celery, ½ cup finely chopped, partially pared cucumber (on ¼" shredder.)

Pineapple Layer: Drain pineapple thoroughly. Measure juice. Make it up to 1¼ cups by adding water. Heat this to below boiling point, remove from heat, add jelly powder and stir until dissolved, then salt and chill until partially congealed. Add drained pineapple and grated carrot. Pour into 4-cup mould to half-fill. (I used my ring mould). Chill until softly set. It should not be quite firm when you add

Cucumber Layer: Soak gelatine in water 5 minutes, then dissolve by stirring over hot water. To the mayonnaise add the salt, celery, onion, cucumber, evaporated milk. Mix. Now stir in gelatine liquid. When pineapple layer is softly set spoon this cucumber layer over evenly. It filled my 4-cup ring mould (6½" in diameter) to the brim. Chill until firmly set.

To turn out, have ready a large serving plate. Dip mould in hot (not boiling) water and count to ten. Invert serving plate over mould, now turn over quickly to turn jelly out on plate.

Note:—I filled the centre of this jelly ring with a salad mixture of torn spinach leaves, thinly sliced cucumber and drained canned bean sprouts, moistened with Roquefort dressing.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

COURTESIES DUE THE GUEST SPEAKER

Life can be pretty perilous on the lecture circuit.

Look what happened to a friend of mine. She happens to be a physical fitness expert and often is asked to speak in schools and before women's group on relaxation and exercise and how to keep generally toned up without really trying.

Besides being so savvy on her subject, she has a pixie-ish sense of humor and usually is a great drawing card. However, sometimes a lecture does get short - circuited, and one time she found herself playing to a "crowd" of five people. Obviously, once she had accepted the invitation to appear, the chairman who had invited her kept the whole thing a closely guarded secret. At any rate, not only did the bulk of the membership fail to show up, but the public didn't get word of the whole thing until it was over and the local paper reported on the program the next day.

Well, she gave a good accounting of herself anyway. But the group who invited her certainly didn't extend the sort of courtesy that should be accorded to anyone invited to give up time and devote talent at a specific request.

Although this sort of mishap occurs very rarely, it still might be well to review the sort of preparations a group should make to welcome a guest speaker to their rostrum.

RULES TO REMEMBER

First of all, when someone agrees to speak at a meeting, she assumes there will be an audience, and the chairman should make every effort to make sure the membership is alerted. Notices should be sent to all members and, if the public is to be included, an announcement may be sent to the local paper giving details of what is to be discussed. When someone is invited to appear on behalf of a group, then courtesy demands that every member makes a special effort to turn out.

If the speaker is from out of town, the chairman or her delegate should find out when and where she'll be arriving and have her met. Before the lecturer is conducted to the platform, it's polite for the chairman to introduce her to the officers of the group so she won't feel she's completely among strangers.

If there are to be illustrations or a demonstration, someone should be ready to lend a hand, if needed. When there's a guest speaker, it's also wise to cut the business portion of the meeting to the nub so the speaker — and the audience — won't have to be kept in anticipation any longer than necessary.

If a question-and-answer period is to follow the lecture, it's wise, courteous and stimulating to have a few questioners appointed is the audience. Nothing is more disconcerting to a lecturer than to ask if there are any questions and draw a blank. If a few in the group are ready to start the ball rolling, more questions automatically follow.

When the program is over, it's flattering to offer the speaker congratulations and to compliment her on her talk. The chairman, of course, should send her a thank-you note on behalf of the group as soon as possible. It's this sort of courtesy that makes life on the lecture circuit more satisfactory and worthwhile.

Two Couples Given Shower By Congregation

FRANKFORD — The congregation of Frankford Full Gospel Tabernacle met in the church parsonage on Thursday, February 27th to honor Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wagar (nee Connie Wood- and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Post (nee Gail Walker).

The recreation room was decorated with pink streamers and a large white wedding bell and colored balloons for the occasion.

The activities began with Mrs. Fred Spring in charge. A Bible partner game and book game were enjoyed. A vocal duet was sung by Mrs. Elsie Sine and Mrs. Keith Heim. Mrs. Gordon Smith and Miss Beverley Wannamaker played two accordion duets and a number of choruses were sung. Mrs. Mary Patrick read a poem.

Rev. Fred Spring called the honored guests and Mr. Keith Heim and Mr. Lonnie Reilly presented "The Wagons" with an electric toaster and a pole lamp, and "The Posts" with two lovely lamps. They all responded with thanks.

A time of fellowship was enjoyed, and refreshments were served.

Changing Religion Must Be Matter of Conviction

DEAR DORIS — We are desperately in need of help. Can you please tell me who is supposed to change religion, the boy or girl? My boy friend and I are deeply in love and don't want to break it up. He thinks I should change or else we should both stay in our own religion. I think it is up to him to change. — IN NEED OF HELP.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR IN NEED — It doesn't go by rules. It's far better if both partners embrace the same faith, but this needs to be at least partly the result of a conviction, to start with. I suggest you each study the other's beliefs so that you know as much as possible about what you are considering. Your minister and priest can help you with this.

Film Council Plans Festival

Plans were made for the forthcoming Film Festival being held at the Public Library, March 17-18 and March 24-25th at a meeting held recently by the Belleville and District Film Council. A committee was appointed to arrange a program for the festival. Mrs. R. B. Hamilton is to be chairman, assisted by Miss Olive Delaney, Mrs. J. T. Lewis, Mr. H. Rynk and Mr. Skillings.

During the past few weeks Mr. H. Oconnore and Mr. J. M. MacKinnon have provided an operators' course for candidates interested in learning how to operate the projections rented by the library. Those who were successful in passing this course will be presented with their operators' cards at the Film Festival.

Miss Olive Delaney referred to the festival last year as being most successful and encouraging. The attendance was exceptional and it seems to be firmly established as an annual event, much looked forward to by those interested.

Chinatown May Disappear In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chinatown is home to people and not just a neon dragon winking at passing tourists from a chop suey joint.

This is Faye Leung's way of emphasizing the effect on people of present plans for redevelopment of Vancouver's Chinatown.

She fears the area, which has been home to 14,000 of the 20,000 Chinese living in Greater Vancouver, won't survive redevelopment as it's being carried out.

"You can't move the Chinese people out and still have a Chinatown," says Mrs. Leung. "To preserve our district we must have residents to keep our businesses alive — the butcher, grocer, baker and other merchants.

"Everyone recognizes Chinatown as a tourist attraction and wants to preserve it as such, but there aren't enough tourists to keep merchants in business all year, and without them there is no Chinatown."

Mrs. Leung, a real estate woman, member of the Board of Trade, the mayor's consultative committee, and executive director of the Chinese Benevolent Association and the Chinatown Development Association, has made the preservation of the area her main interest during the last six years.

Vancouver, she says, should take note of what happened in Seattle, Wash., and Portland, Ore., which also have fairly large Chinese populations.

NOTHING LEFT

"Under a redevelopment plan the residents were moved out of the Chinese area. Now they want them back but it's too late —there's nothing left to come back to."

More than 700 residents of Vancouver's Chinatown have already been moved from the substandard homes that make up the greater part of the residential area.

Another 1,000 are to follow soon and it is this group that the Chinatown Development Association is concerned about.

"We want to give them the opportunity of living in homes adjacent to the Chinatown area but the city wants to move them into apartment houses," Mrs. Leung says.

An association counter - plan has been approved by city council but approval is needed as well from the provincial and federal governments.

"We don't need financial support for this home ownership plan—we have arranged for the mortgages—but we do need the land. We want single units suitable for in-laws and families. They will be completely modern inside with an Oriental flavor outside.

"The roofs will not be pagoda in the traditional sense — just slightly up-tilted at the eaves. There will be courtyards for privacy just as there are in China and there will be cherry and bamboo growing in the gardens and along the boulevards."

Suspicious Soprano Better Mind Her Own Business

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have a strong suspicion there is a little hanky-panky going on in our church choir. I wouldn't mind except it is ruining what used to be a very fine choral group.

The choir master is a bachelor 32 years of age. He has been writing special arrangements for this alto whose voice is thin and unimpressive. The parts she has been singing should be done by a soprano. I am not saying this because I happen to be a soprano. Two tenors and a baritone have said the same thing.

The alto is a divorced woman who is at least five years older than the choir master. They do not go anywhere together publicly but I have seen his car parked outside her home on three occasions. She looks at him with cow-eyes when she sings her solos. It's sickening.

What do you think about such monkey-shines in a church group? Should it be tolerated? I'd like to know whether I should speak to our clergyman. — A MORAL PERSON.

DEAR PERSON — Cut out the detective work and keep your eyes on the hymn book, Sister.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am so humiliated I don't know what to do. Last night was our 20th wedding anniversary. We had 40 guests in for a catered dinner. My husband got so plastered that when the guests began to leave he went to the front closet, put on his coat and hat and started to go home with his mother and dad.

Franklin is not what you would call a drinking man. The last time, he was intoxicated was seven years ago when he had too much wine.

Our friends are not heavy drinkers. A few of the men got to feeling good but Franklin was the only one noticeably under the influence. To be the only drunk person at a party is bad enough, but when one is the host it is indefensible.

Franklin's mother was horrified and phoned at 7:30 this morning to see how he was. Well, he is still in bed and it is noon. His mother is worried that he may become an alcoholic. May we hear from you? — A POUND OF PREVENTION.

DEAR POUND — I don't think Franklin's mother has much to worry about.

From your description of the shambles, I'd be willing to bet Franklin won't touch a drop for a long time.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I quit high school to take a job when I was 17. I know it was foolish, but that $60 a week looked like a million dollars to me. My dad died when I was 12 and mom has had a rough time bringing up four kids alone.

My "million dollar job" ended after four months when the shop closed. I've been out of work for almost two years. My name is registered at 21 places. Everyone says "We'll call you" but nobody has called. The only jobs available for a girl who doesn't have a high school diploma is housework — and I hate it.

I would like to go back to high school and graduate but I'm 19 years old now and I'm afraid I'll look like a freak to the kids who are 14 and 15. I'd just die if they made fun of me. Please tell me what to do. — ANOTHER ANN.

DEAR ANN — I can't think of a better way to invest one year. Go, Girl. You'll never regret it. There are night school courses and correspondence courses, but returning full time is best.

Today the demand is for skilled people. A high school diploma is essential if you are even to get a foot in the door — any place.

C.G.I.T. Group Entertains at "India Night"

On Wednesday evening the Fairfield Canadian Girls in Training were hostess to 100 girls of the C.G.I.T. groups of Belleville and Canniffon for an "India Night" in Bridge St. United Church.

As their respective study this year, the C.G.I.T. are studying India and Fairfield chose as their guest speaker, Miss Sarojini Benjamen, who spoke to them of Girl's and Children's Work for the Baptist Churches in Ontario and Quebec. Miss Benjamen comes from southeastern India and took part of her education in California. She was beautifully attired in a beige and golden sari and impressed the girls with her grace and beauty.

The meeting opened with words of welcome and games and songs were led by Mrs. R. G. Nicholls of Fairfield. Miss Benjamen was introduced and presented with a garland of flowers — an Indian symbol of welcome — by honored guest. Fairfield girls presented an Indian dance and song.

Sarojini spoke to the girls about life in India and the impact of the Christian gospel on Indians. A panel of three girls from St. Andrew's Presbyterian, Holloway Street and Centre St. United churches asked questions which Sarojini answered.

WORSHIP SERVICE

All joined in a worship service in the chapel led by Miss L. Wilkes of Holloway United. Mrs. Kay Pryce of Bridge St. Ave. Baptist, and Mrs. G. R. Harrison of Eastminster United C.G.I.T. groups.

A special friendship ceremony was part of the chapel service and each girl received a silken bracelet made in India. The offering was taken up by girls from Canniffon and Fairfield girls formed the choir.

Tea and banana-coconut bread made by Indian recipe were served as refreshments and the evening closed with taps.

GIRL GUIDE and BROWNIE NEWS

CAMPBELLFORD — The mother and daughter banquet of the Brownies was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Saturday evening, with approximately 130 present.

HEAD TABLE GUESTS

Mrs. E. Swift, District Commissioner for Campbellford, introduced the head table, including Mrs. J. Connor, Mrs. Morley Petherick, representing the St. John United Church; Mrs. C. Whitthum, Mrs. F. Cargin, Mrs. Paul Kaltwasser, District Commissioner in Hastings; Mrs. C. Newman, Director of Trent River Division; Mrs. W. Mechetuk, Mrs. C. Lochhead, Mrs. F. McEvoy, representing the W.I.; Mrs. J. Mrs. F. Cargin, who has worked for some years with the Brownie program is now retiring and was presented with a gift from the Brownies by Mrs. J. Connor.

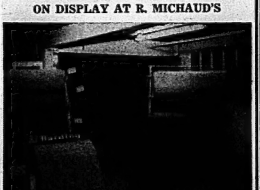
Appreciation to the leaders on behalf of the mothers was expressed by Mrs. William Mechesney.

MOTHERS' AUXILIARY REPORT

A report of the Mothers' Auxiliary was given by Mrs. Ward Ellis. Although few in number Mrs. Ellis stated they had given $150 payment for a bus trip to Toronto for Brownies, had purchased Guide uniforms and belts, and also two complete Guide leader uniforms and had a balance on hand of $132.30. These funds had been raised by means of a rummage sale and other activities.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker, Mrs. Neelands of Hastings, was introduced by Mrs. C. Newman and spoke in general terms of Brownie training and methods of financing. Mrs. J. Gillespie expressed appreciation to Mrs. Neelands. Pamela Connor presented her with a gift.



Each Brownie pack presented a skit and each contributed to the bursary fund. This money is used to finance a Guide who had won by merit the privilege of travelling with other Guides, on a planned trip, on occasion of Jamboree.

Carves Career With Pocket Knife

By ANDY TURNBULL

ALUMINUM STAR

With a pocket knife and chunk of wood, Jacob (Jake) Berkhuizen is one of the most important employees of the Aluminum Star Co., on College Street. Aluminum Star's products are all cast aluminum, but the most intricate, (and profitable) products are cast only after Jake has made the pattern — from wood.

Jake became a pattern-maker by accident. He grew up in Holland, with dreams of becoming a cabinetmaker, but his first job was as an apprentice to a printer. He served his four-year apprenticeship, then came to Canada to work as a factory laborer about 1954. He got his first Canadian job at Aluminum Star.

He'd been there for about a year-and-a-half when an order came in for a Province of Ontario crest — the first of a long series of custom work handled by the firm. About the same time, the firm's regular pattern-maker was laid up by an off-the-job accident. Jake and his brother, John, made the pattern for the crest, and Jake has been making patterns ever since. John left Aluminum Star about two years ago, and is now a draftsman at Detoro Stellite. There are two other employees in Aluminum Star's pattern shop now but Jakes does all the custom work.

MAKING FEDERAL CREST

Working in basswood, usually with hand tools, Jake spends three weeks and more on a pattern for a large crest. He's been working five weeks now, for instance, on a pattern for a Federal government crest, and he expects to be working on the same crest for another three weeks. This crest is taking longer than usual, because there is no order for it, and Jake spends part of his time on more urgent work. He is making the pattern for the crest because the firm has no pattern for the "standardized" version of the crest — and the Federal government is a consistent customer.

On most jobs, Jake's first task is to make a drawing of the required crest, then transfer the drawing to the wood from which the crest will be carved. The rough pattern is then cut out on a jigsaw, including some cuts through parts of the crest which will later be glued together. The large lion in the Federal crest, for example, is cut in three pieces to save work. Where the same motif recurs several times in the same crest — as the lions and fleur-de-lis on the shield in the Federal crest — Jake carves only one which serves as a pattern from which the others are cast. The castings are then glued to the pattern, so the final version can be cast in one piece.

MOSTLY HAND WORK

Jake uses a few power tools in his work. An oversize jigsaw is useful, he finds, to rough out the pattern, and a handheld rotary file helps with the rough carving. He also uses the file to hollow out the back of a pattern from which many reproductions will be made — an operation which may save up to half the material used, and half the weight, in the finished casting. His most important single tool is a jackknife — sharpened part way up the back of the blade as well as on the front, supplemented by a selection of chisels.

Married and the father of a son and daughter, both preschool age, Jake lives in a house built mostly by himself, on North Park Street. He has some woodworking machines at home, and he has started a woodcarving for himself, but the machines and the carving are tucked away in a corner now, gathering dust. Jake likes woodcarving, but right now he gets all he wants during his working hours.

Castings from the patterns are done with a specially treated sand. The pattern is placed in the bottom of a box, and the sand is packed over it. A top is put on the box, then the box is flipped over and the bottom is removed. When the pattern is removed, the impression left in the sand is filled with molten aluminum. The rough-cast product is then cleaned, polished, painted and shipped.

Employment is down to 15 men now, at Dontar Chemicals Canada Creosoting Division in Trenton. Last layoff, of six men, was just over a week ago. This is the low point of employment for the year according to superintendent, Eric Mantle, and no more layoffs are expected. Some orders are being shipped from stock now, and production will resume about April. Employment with the firm has followed the same yearly pattern since operations began in Trenton, according to company officials.

RED CROSS BLOOD CLINIC

An all-time record for afternoon donors to blood clinics in Belleville was set Thursday, when 180 people turned out. Most of them came from Vagden Mills, Mead Johnson, International Hardware, Canada Cement, Corby's, Ontario Hydro, the C.N.R., The Ontario Intelligencer, Stephens-Adamson, Deacon Brothers, Union Carbide, Deloro Stellite, International Precision Casting, McFarlane-Gendron and Wilson Concrete Products. Northern Electric employees were among the 150 who turned out to the evening clinic. Total collection was more than 300 bottles of blood—not a record but the goal of the clinic. Because of the rush in the afternoon some of the donors were off work more than an hour, but they didn't really mind. The afternoon donors were making their donation on company time. Normal time spent in such clinics, according to Archie Lewis of Northern Electric, blood clinic chairman of the local Red Cross branch, is between a half-hour and an hour per donor.

Now you can see for yourself where we make most of our changes. Way down deep. Every part you can see (and every part you can't see) has been changed again and again and again. As a matter of fact, there are only six parts left from the original VW.

But we never change the VW without a reason. And the only reason is to make it even better.

When we do make a change, we try to make the new part fit older models, too.

So you'll find that many VW parts are interchangeable from one year to the next.

Which is why it's actually easier to get parts for a VW than for many domestic cars. And why VW service is as good as it is. The same principle holds good for the beetle shape.

We made the rear window bigger one year so you could see other people better.

And made the tail lights bigger so other people could see you better.

But nothing drastic. Any Volkswagen hood still fits any VW ever made. So does any fender.

And, in case you hadn't noticed, every VW still looks like every other VW.

Which may turn out to be the nicest thing of all about the car. It doesn't go in one year and out the other.

Gordon Now on Threshold Of Full Rehabilitation

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — A little under nine months ago many opposition MPs, and not a few government supporters, wouldn't have given a plugged nickle for Walter Gordon's political future.

But now the finance minister may be on the threshold of full rehabilitation. A great deal depends on how he handles himself in his second budget, even if it hasn't got tax-cut sweeteners and other provisions with special appeal to business and the public.

A number of Ontario Liberals, bent on reviving the Gordon influence in the Liberal party, say all he has to do is produce a good, safe budget without serious political targets at which the Opposition can take aim.

The fact that Mr. Gordon is about to bring down another budget is regarded as something of an acievement after the sound and fury generated by his first one, June 13, 1963.

He became embroiled in a major parliamentary battle over his use of non-government experts in its preparations. He also cancelled one of its major provisions and modified another.

There were loud cries for Mr. Gordon's scalp from the Opposition and even some privately from the Liberal camp.

Until then Walter Gordon had been the darling of the Ontario Liberals particularly and of quite a number of the younger Liberals from other provinces.

—"There has been no meeting of the mind" in resolving the dispute with Panama, Johnson said. But he said the United States realizes that the 1903 treaty governing the status of the Panama canal zone must be modified from time to time "and perhaps would require adjustment in "... 1964 or 1965."

Announcing development of the experimental A-11 jet, Johnson said the craft "has been tested in sustained flight at more than 2,000 miles per hour and at altitudes in excess of 70,000 feet."

He added that details of the plane's performance "will remain strictly classified."

Johnson said several A-11 aircraft now are being flight-tested.

Development of the plane was made possibly in part, Johnson said, by the mastery of techniques for using titanium which can resist the high temperatures created by travel at more than three times the speed of sound.

Johnson said work on the A-11 entailed "major advances in aircraft technology of great significance to both military and commercial application" — particularly in efforts to develop a commercial supersonic airliner.

Could Not Catch Handle Of Ripcord

STE. ADELE, Que. (CP) — About 50 searchers combed the hills near this Laurentian Mountains resort today for a parachutist who disappeared during a para-ski race Sunday.

Officials of the Canadian Ski Patrol said Trevor Finch, 22, of Montreal drifted off target during the competition and landed between one and two miles from the site of the race.

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — An expert parachutist fell 3,000 feet to his death Sunday, groping desperately all the way down for the handle of his ripcord, which trailed uselessly behind him.

"He kept reaching back, trying to get hold of his cord," said flyer Jack Judge, who watched the death dive of Richard Welsh of Lansing, an experienced chutist who once earned his living skydiving.

Welsh, 35, father of two small boys, was dead when found in the back yard of a Delhi Township residence.

Judge said that Welsh's rig lacked a pocket for his ripcord handle, called a "D-ring."

"The D-ring was supposed to be in a rig pocket, but he had no pocket, so he held the handle in his mouth.

"He got on the wheel and when he let go he yelled 'Yeow!' He was always yelling like that, always clowning.

"But this time when he yelled, the D-ring flew out of his mouth and over his shoulder.

"He went into a flat spin to his right," said Judge. "I watched him all the way until I saw him bounce."

In spite of its short life (2 years and 1 month) we've already found 141 ways to improve the VW 1500.

Not that you'd notice it. On the surface, you'd have to look carefully to spot the improvements.

This year we made the parking lights bigger to make the lighting brighter. And we put a handle on the front trunk to make the lifting lighter.

Underneath it's a different story. A lot has happened. Since our debut. For 1964 we developed an optional engine. It has much extra power for a few extra dollars. Yet you can still get around 35 miles to a gallon of gas (which everybody likes).

Before the VW 1500 made its appearance, spare parts for it were already in dealer's hands. And since most of these parts fit any 1500 (regardless of its year), servicing is simple and economical.

True, the 1500 is less than 3 years old. But our Volkswagen mechanics have already had 10 years' experience. The important mechanical principles of the 1500 TS are the same as the beetle (right down to the air cooled rear engine and independent torsion bar suspension).

So you see, while there are now two Volkswagens, underneath it all, things haven't really changed, except for the better.

"Chartered coaches are the trend in group travel" claims Mr. Trayne. "They allow my colleagues to prepare much of the business agenda en route. Saves time and money", he said. Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

John Lewis, Belleville's youthful national weightlifting champion, takes his place in Canada's exalted athletic company tonight.

The 21-year-old is being honored with three other outstanding Canadian athletes at the third annual awards dinner of the Central Ontario Branch of the AAU of C in Toronto.

The modest, almost shy youngster, will be presented with the Tom Longboat Trophy for 1963's most outstanding athlete in Canada, by Howard Rodnie, superintendent of Indian Affairs, Southern Ontario.

Weller will receive the Norton Crowe Medal for the most outstanding athlete in Canada in sports governed by the AAU.

Crothers receives two awards. The Major J. W. Davis Trophy for the most outstanding Canadian amateur track, field, marathon or harrier athlete, and the Dr. Fred Tees Shield for the most outstanding track and field athlete enrolled in a Canadian university during the 1962-63 school year.

Miss McCredie also gets two awards. The Velma Springstead Rose Bowl to the most outstanding woman athlete of the year in Canada, and the F. N. A. Rowell Trophy for the most outstanding athlete in Canada in field events.

The young Belleville champion has come a long way since six years ago when he decided to pass up hockey and other sports for weightlifting. He took to the sport like a duck to water and in January, 1963, became the first Canadian to break junior world records.

On his 20th birthday, January 18, 1963, he broke his own junior world record for press and a month later was selected as a member of Canada's three-man weightlifting team for the Pan-American Games.

Lewis, now a light heavyweight, set a Canadian open record in the Pan American trials. In April he went to Sao Paulo, Brazil, where he won a bronze medal for Canada, finishing third against two world-record holders.

In June last year Lewis won a place on Canada's entry in world weightlifting championships slated for Stockholm, Sweden, in a brilliant duel with the ultimate champion, Conford White. Lewis set a national record of 945, total, bettering his Sao Paulo mark of 924.

But the trip to the world tourney never materialized. Lewis was packed and ready to go when he received word from officials that no government expense money was available for the national weightlifting team.

He achieved further honors in the North American Weightlifting Tournament held at RCAF Trenton last October. Pitted against the best of the Americas, Lewis was the only Canadian to set a new record. The Americans took home 14.

The outstanding ability of the youngster was recognized in Montreal in October of 1963 where he and his lifetime coach, Ken Carr-Braint, were given special honors.

Lewis who set six Canadian records during the year, was named "Best Canadian Weightlifter of 1963" while his coach was selected as the outstanding mentor of the province of Ontario.

The presentations were made at a national joint weightlifting meet and coaches' clinic held in Montreal. Here Lewis broke his own Canadian press record twice, 310 and 317½. He holds the Canadian light-heavyweight total record of 960.

Lewis still trains hard and, I am told, is improving all the time. He is young and possessed of two valuable sports assets, desire and the will to win. He is quietly confident and clean living, (he doesn't drink or smoke), with excellent coaching brings him closer every day to his ambition of becoming a world champion.

King of the Hill

Harry DeRuhlie, bowling close to a record high for the tournament, captured the "King of the Hill" title on Saturday, taking the crown away from Bud Pelican.

DeRuhlie stormed through the qualifying round with a terrific 1471 five-game total, just a few pins short of the record, before beating Pelican in the challenge match.

The new "King" barely missed the pot of gold in his second game. He started with a blow then rolled seven strikes in a row, broke the string with a spare and-came back with two more strikes for a 355 single. In his fifth game he left a corner pin after four strikes and once again came back with three more strikes, good for a 341 single. His other games were 234, 202 and 229.

Pelican was second with 1361, followed by Leo Labelle with 1303, Hon Saylor with 1286, then Jim Begley and Leo St. Louis, each with 1247.

Boston Bruins are en route to their best season since 1959-60.

But, unfortunately, they'll still wind up out of the National Hockey League playoffs.

The last-place Bruins shaded Detroit 2-1 and downed Toronto 5-3 in weekend games to record their 13th and 16th victories of the campaign—two more than last season and one better than the two previous years.

Boston, however, was doomed to finish out of the post-season playoffs when Detroit tied New York 2-2 Sunday night, registering a precious point that mathematically eliminates the Bruins. The fourth-place Wings now lead Boston by 10 points and the Bruins have only eight games left.

Fifth-place New York is 10 points behind with nine games remaining and their playoff chances now are relegated to the "slim" category.

HAWKS SHARE FIRST

Chicago Black Hawks, meanwhile, regained a share of first place with Montreal by beating the Canadiens 4-3 in a crucial Sunday night showdown in Chicago. The Canadiens had grabbed the top spot Saturday night by blanking New York 4-0 while Toronto whipped the Black Hawks 4-1.

Kenny Wharram scored three times against the Canadiens, breaking up a 3-3 stalemate at 17:43 of the third period after the Canadiens had fought from behind twice to tie.

Stan Mikita scored Chicago's other goal and assisted on Wharram's three tallies to take a six-point lead in the individual scoring race. He has 80 points, six better than teammate Bobby Hull and one ahead of Montreal's Jean Beliveau.

Wharram gave the Hawks a 2-1 second-period lead but the Habs came back on tallies by Gilles Tremblay and Henri Richard at the start of the second. Mikita then scored but Ralph Backstrom tied it again at 1:27 of the finale.

WHARRAM GETS WINNER

The Canadiens seemed headed for a precious tie when Wharram scored his 36th of the season, banking in a passout from Ab McDonald.

Wharram also tallied Saturday night but in a losing cause. The Leafs came back on goals by Allan Stanley, Billy Harris, Don McKenney and Bob Pulford to win with ease.

The Leafs then rested goalie Johnny Bower Sunday night and the Bruins put five pucks behind Don Simmons as Murray Oliver, Forbes Kennedy, Dean Prentice, Gary Dornbooser and Wayne Rivers clicked.

The Bruins opened up a 3-0 lead and Toronto never got closer than two goals away. Pulford, Red Kelly and McKenney scored for the Leafs.

Oliver scored at 9:40 of the final period Saturday night to give the Bruins a 2-1 over Detroit. Norm Ullman has given the Wings a 1-0 lead in the first but Boston rookie Don Schock tied it with his first NHL goal in the second period.

DUFF SCORES TWO

The Wings rallied Sunday night on Parker MacDonald's goal with less than five minutes remaining to tie the Rangers 2-2. Dick Duff, acquired from Toronto in a trade, scored twice for New York and Doug Barkley got the other Detroit marker.

New York Goalie Jacques Plante had a comparatively easy time in the Ranger net at Montreal Saturday, but he still went down to defeat at the hands of his former teammates. The barrages of 40 or more shots, Plante was faced with only 31 drives.

The Leafs surrendered two goals to Bobby Rousseau and singles to Beliveau and Backstrom as Charlie Hodge posted his seventh shutout of the season with 20 saves.

Hodge and Chicago netminder Glenn Hall now are tied in the Vezina Trophy race with 146 goals against. Hodge, however, has nine games left to Hall's seven.

'Bell Boys' Take Seven Firsts, Two Thirds

By GEORGE CARVER

The mat Trojans of Moira Secondary School easily won the second annual COSSA wrestling championships from a field of thirteen schools here Saturday.

Turning in brilliant performances, phys-ed director Dave Bell's young athletes won seven firsts and two thirds out of twelve weight classes for a team total of 107 points.

Rated early tournament strong contenders, Moira's "Bell Boys" proved true champions with a remarkable seven-title performance. What is probably a record in secondary schools wrestling archives, climaxed a year of intensive training under outstanding coaching.

Whitby's Anderson High School, 1963 champions, was a disappointing third with 60 points. Campbellford High School finished second, well behind the new champions, with a points total of 82.

In the order of finish came Tumbarton (37); Port Hope (30) Trenton (27); BCVIs (26); McLaughlin (25); Peterborough Kennar (22); Minden (18); Peterborough CI (17); Lindsay (8) and Whitby Henry Street (4).

Dan Piperni finished third in the 115 pound division with Willard Brant taking the same position in the 141 pound class.

Other individual champions were Puttick of Dunbarton (155 pounds class); Joss of Campbellford (141); Allison of Port Hope (168); Curl of Anderson (183) and Rivett of McLaughlin in the unlimited class.

Besides Joss' 141 pounds championship, Campbellford High School garnered three seconds, two thirds and two fourths.

Gummer finished second in the 136; Joss was runner-up in the 148's, with Curtis beaten in the 183-pounds final. Curran took third in the 157, Stickwood bringing likewise in the unlimiteds. Fourth place ribbons went to Scott (106) and Oddie (123).

Anderson "High" failed to live up to advance notices, a short-handed team winning but a first and two seconds. Behind Curl's 183 pounds title were Szyrezak and Gaubtier, runners-up in the 123 and 157 pounds classes respectively.

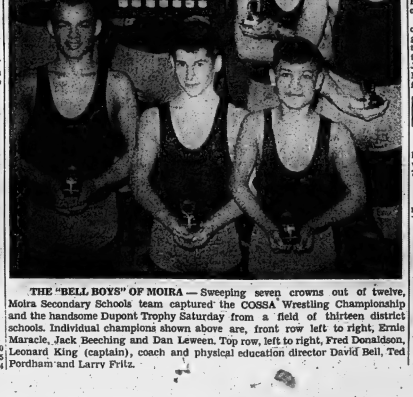
K. Marsch finished behind Moira's Jack Beeching in the 106 class with Henry the runner-up to Dunbarton's Puttick in the 115 division. Potts took the fourth-place honors in the 136 pound class.



Trenton' High School placed four awards winners with 2 seconds, a 3rd and a 4th. B. Willman was second in the 98 pounds with Waits bowing to McLaughlin's Rivett in the unlimited class. Ferguson was third in the 130's with Leuy fourth in the 157 pound roundup.

Madoc High School rounded out the Quinte district. The centre Hastings athletes took home one third and one fourth place ribbons. Eaton finished third in the 183 pound class with Robinson fourth in the 148's.

Ninety COSSA matmen took part in the all-day championships. The bouts got under way at 10 a.m., finishing approximately twelve hours later.

Class champions received individual miniature trophies with second, third and fourth-"placers" given ribbons. Presentations were made by officials of the various schools.

The championships were excellently arranged and handled by the host school under the supervision of convener David Bell.

Maroons Defeat Germans

FUSSEN, Germany (CP) — Winnipeg Maroons scored their second lopsided exhibition hockey victory of a 12-game European tour Sunday, defeating the German national champions from Fussen 8-2.

In the first game, played Friday in Augsburg, Maroons blasted Fussen 10-1 before a standing crowd of 8,000 in an outdoor arena.

This time 7,000 stood outdoors in 35-degree weather in an arena built on the side of a mountain.

The game was tied 2-2 after the first period, but Maroons scored six times without answer in the last two.

Only three penalties were called in the clean but spirited game, two to Maroons.

The defending Western Canadian senior champions wind up their tour in Geneva March 16 following an international tournament.

Bulldogs, Blades Swap Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Des Moines Oak Leafs have been struggling for quite some time to climb out of the cellar in the International Hockey League. This weekend they finally made it.

The Oak Leafs parlayed a 9-2 win over Muskegon Zephyrs Saturday, and a 5-3 triumph over Chatham Maroons Sunday into sole possession of sixth place, four points up on the Maroons. The 2 victories likewise moved them within two points of the slumping Zephyrs.

The third-place Port Huron Flags carved out an 8-5 win over the league-leading Port Wayne Komets Saturday only to lose 5-3 in Fort Wayne Sunday.

In the only other action, Windsor Bulldogs and Toledo Blades swapped a pair of 3-2 overtime wins.

Richardsons Favored By Nine Rinks

Not Ontario

By MARVEN MOSS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Saskatchewan's fabulous Richardsons are the pick of their fellow-competitors to win the Canadian curling championship for the fifth time.

"It's the Richardsons against the field" said British Columbia's Lyall Dagg, 34, on the eve of the start of play.

Colored pennants and lights were strung across the streets. Motorists stopped their cars unsolicited to offer a lift to anyone struggling with a suitcase.

Play gets under way at 3 p.m. EST today at the 3,000 - seat Charlottetown Forum in the centre of this city of 18,000 on an island that calls itself the Garden of the Gulf.

A poll of the 11 skips showed the Richardson family rink from Regina, headed by easy-going Sid, a prohibitive favorite to retain the title won last year, the year before that and in 1959 and 1960. In the same years the rink led by the 32 - year - old building supplies company owner won the world title in Scotland.

GOES TO CALGARY

This year's world classic is set for Calgary later this month and the rink that emerges on top here Friday will represent Canada.

Speaking of Richardson's rink, Dagg said:

"Sure there are two or three rinks here that can beat him—but no every day."

Nine of Richardson's 10 rival skips rate him as the entry to beat. The other, Ontario's Bob Ness, 42, remarked:

"He's just one of 10 we have to lick."

Northern Ontario's Jack Polyblank, 37, acknowledged Richardson's top ranking but said:

"We can beat him. I know we can."

Newfoundland's Dave Pedley, 32, a native of Saskatoon and an employee of the federal income tax department, said he expected at least one rink to beat Saskatchewan "because there are a lot of fine rinks in this thing."

"But you have to go along with Ernie to take it all."

Along with Pedley, Richardson and three other skips felt it would take nine wins to wind up on top. The others said an 8-2 record might do it but there would probably be a playoff at that level.

Delegates meanwhile awarded Saskatoon the 1965 championship, beating out bids from Edmonton and Kelowna, B.C. The deliberations took place in closed session. A bid for the 1967 event was made by Toronto and Mayor Philip Givens flew to Charlottetown to promote it.

PROMISES PRIORITY

He said Toronto would give the bonspiel "No. 1 priority" in the city's centennial celebrations. A spokesman said later the Toronto submission was received "favorably." No decision is to be made until 1965.

Richardson's Regina rink features his brother Garnet, 30, nicknamed Sonny, as second with cousins Arnie, 35, as third and Wes, 33, as lead. Last year Garnet was sidelined by an injury and missed the championship.

He said "any of six rinks could take it" and let it go at that.

New Brunswick's Harold Mabey is the oldest of the competitors at 50. He started curling a full seven years before the youngest competitor was born. That's Rich Palmer, 21, the Ontario lead and a student at Waterloo University.

While Mabey is skip of his team, his 24-year-old son Hap is last out of the hack, his dad playing up front while handling the broom.

With 11 entries, one team draws a bye each round. Quebec gets the first one today and Northern Ontario gets the second in the second round starting at 7 p.m. EST.

The day draw has Saskatchewan vs. Manitoba, Alberta vs. British Columbia, Ontario vs. New Brunswick, Northern Ontario vs. Newfoundland and Nova Scotia vs. Prince Edward Island.

At night, it's New Brunswick vs. Newfoundland, Nova Scotia vs. Alberta, Manitoba vs. Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan vs. Quebec and Ontario vs. British Columbia.

Petra Burka Finishes Third

Dutch Girl Wins Skating Crown

DORTMUND (CP - AP) — Sjoukje Dijkstra, the 22-year-old Olympic champion from The Netherlands, skated with near perfection Saturday to win her third consecutive women's world figure skating championship — just as everyone expected.

Regine Heitzer of Austria finished second, also as expected, but her margin over young Petra Burka of Toronto, who finished third, was sliced to a mere four points as the Canadian skater put on a brilliant freeskating display while the Austrian fell twice.

The order of finish was the same as it had been three weeks earlier in Innsbruck, Austria at the Winter Olympics.

Miss Dijkstra, a beautiful blonde who does her training in England, drew the first - place votes of all nine judges in Saturday's decisive freeskating, compulsory figures.

She had a perfect nine ordinals—based on the placings of the judges—and a whopping point total of 2,365.7.

Miss Burka, a 17-year-old Amsterdam-born skater now living in Toronto and holder of the Canadian women's title since late in January, was second only to Miss Dijkstra in freeskating.

But the Canadian had been third after the compulsory school figures, which count for 60 per cent of the total marks, and she couldn't quite catch the Austrian for the second time.

Miss Heitzer finished with 21 ordinals and 2,220.0 points; Miss Burka had 24 ordinals and 2,216.0 points.

The other two Canadian entries finished 10th and 11th, with Shirra Kenworthy of Vancouver placing ahead of four-time Canadian champion Wendy Griner of Toronto.

Miss Kenworthy had 102 ordinals and 2,048.7 points while Miss Griner, who lost her confidence after Miss Burka took the Canadian title from her this year, had 95 ordinals and 2,052.9 points. In spite of the higher point total, the judges placed Miss Griner behind Miss Kenworthy in the complicated scoring system.

Win COSSA Basketball Title

OSD Girls 'B' Champions

Displaying excellent court form, the Orillia School for the Deaf team won the COSSA girls' senior "B" basketball championship in Cobourg on Saturday.

Coach Betty Lalonde's girls defeated Whitby Henry Street Collegiate 37-23 in the finals after disposing of Bowmanville Collegiate 48-36 in the semi-finals.

The OSD senior took a 9-3 first quarter lead in the championship game and were never headed.

Fast, accurate passing featured their play throughout the tournament, especially in the finals. They held an 18-10 lead at half time.

Whitby cut the margin to a 24-18 count at the end of the third quarter but OSD came back to outscore them 13-5 in the final quarter to win 37-23.

The individual star for the seniors was Angela Hagen who accounted for an overall total of 43 points. She scored 23 in the semi-finals match. Next was the team captain Marlene Munn who netted a total of 26 points. Janice Bazzard was good for 15 points.

RETAINS TITLE

TOKYO (AP) — World featherweight champion Sugar Ramos kept his title Sunday with a sixth-round TKO over Japanese challenger Mitsunori Seki. It was the Cuban's second successful defence of his championship since he took the title from Davey Moore in the March 21, 1963 fight that cost Moore his life.

Lose Tourney Title To Smith's Falls

Lightfoots Reach Finals

Belleville Lightfoots fought their way to the final game of the tournament before bowing out of the picture in the annual Golden Triangle Invitational Basketball tournament at Smith's Falls this weekend.

Lightfoots lost the championship game to the host Smith's Falls club by a 71-57 score after two earlier victories.

The Belleville boys defeated Peterborough 63-45 in their opening game and followed up with a 45-35 decision over an Oshawa district team playing under the Bowmanville name in the semi-finals.

In the titular battle, Lightfoots jumped into an early lead and were out from 19-12 after one quarter and 41-33 at half time. Then the roof fell in with Smith's Falls opening up a big lead in the third quarter.

Lightfoots lost three men through fouls in the final period and were unable to battle back against the strong Smith's Falls entry.

Don Smith was the Lightfoot's top scorer in the final, hooping a big 20 points. Doug Rose was next in line with 13 points, followed by Larry Campbell with nine and Gord Smith with eight.

In the win over Bowmanville, Smith, Rose and Campbell dropped in ten points each in a good team effort.

Seniors Go Through Motions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Both Sunday games in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series were meaningless as far as the standings were concerned. But there was definitely no letup among the marksmen as 32 goals were scored.

Jackie Price was the powerhouse of the weekend, counting three goals and six assists to lead Oakville Oaks to a 14-7 routing of Guelph Regals.

In the only other outing, Bob Judge picked up three goals to pace Port Colborne Sailors to a 6-5 win over Welland Burloaks.

Oakville finished the season in fifth place and will miss the playoffs. The Regals, in fourth place, meet the second-place Galt Hornets Tuesday in the first game of a best-of-seven semi-final series.

PLAYOFFS TUESDAY

The Sailors wound up the season in the cellar spot while Welland, in third place, will meet the league-leading Woodstock Athletics in Woodstock Tuesday in the opening game of their best-of-seven series.

Minor Hockey Results

Aces and Comets battled their way into the Juvenile division finals in another busy weekend for Belleville Minor Hockey Association teams.

Pittsburgh Nudging Cleveland

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, who have been having considerable troubles scoring goals the past couple of months, might find it worthwhile to take a closer look at Gerry Ehman of their Rochester Americans farm club in the American Hockey League.

Sunday, Ehman, who toiled regularly for Leafs a few years ago, notched his 29th and 30th goals of the season as Rochester blanked the surging Hershey Bears 4-0.

Saturday the Bears shaded Baltimore Clippers 3-2 in overtime to climb within six points of the idle Aces.

Pittsburgh Hornets were the hottest club over the weekend as a pair of 4-1 victories—over Buffalo Bisons Saturday and Springfield Indians Sunday—moved them within two points of the Western Division leaders, Cleveland Barons.

In other games, Springfield nipped Providence Reds 4-3 Saturday while Sunday the Reds blanked Cleveland 4-0 and Buffalo edged Baltimore 2-1.

Bronco Horvath, another ex-Leaf, and Dick Gamble rounded out the Americans' scoring as goalie Gerry Cheevers registered his second shutout of the season.

West Ham Edges Burnley

Sunderland Ties United

LONDON (AP) — Bobby Charlton and George Best scored goals in the last four minutes and grabbed a 3-3 draw for defending champion Manchester United against Sunderland Saturday in the quarter-finals of the English Soccer Cup—the showpiece competition of the English season.

Swansea, fifth from the bottom of Division II, pulled off the big upset of the round by scoring a 2-1 away victory over Liverpool, second in Division I.

Preston North End, another second-division squad, knocked out fourth - division Oxford United 2-1 and West Ham edged Burnley 3-2 in a clash between two first-division teams.

The Cup, first decided in 1871-72, attracts an original entry of about 800 teams — amateur, pro - amateur and pro teams.

The final takes place at Wembley in May before a sell-out crowd of 100,000 and the crowd would be double if Wembley could house the fans.

Swansea's win at Liverpool took the Welsh team into the semi-finals for only the second time in its history. The last time was in 1962—that was the last time three second-division teams reached the semi-finals.

Burnley led West Ham 1-0 at half time, but West Ham came back to score three goals in 12 minutes.

Blackburn Rovers blasted their way to a 5-0 victory at Bolton and moved into second place followed by Everton.

In the Scottish League's first division, Rangers downed Airdrieonians 4-1 to stay one point ahead of Kilmarnock in the standings. Kilmarnock nipped Queen of South 2-1. Celtic and Hearts remained deadlocked in third place as Celtic downed East Stirling 3-2 and Hearts beat Aberdeen 2-1.

Title May Have Frightened Folk Away From Fine Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Only Agnophilies and insomniacs would settle down by choice to watch, at 10 p.m. on Sunday night, a public affairs program with the title Britain: The Changing Guard.

Because of that heavy title, one fears, a lot of people dialled out a fascinating and amusing description of upper class British life.

The theme of NBC hour-long program was that once the British Empire was governed entirely by a well-born minority, educated in the right schools, but chances are that is going to appear for others.

This, however, was primarily a pat for some great collections of pictures of the British countryside and some delightful shots of prep school students and Eton boys in their tail coats and high hats.

The importance of attending Eton, Oxford or Cambridge was explained, as was the importance of the correct accent.

Dentry, ABC's new Friday night series, has turned out to be a bit despite its late start. Marked resemblance to Maverick is not exactly coincidental. Last week's amusing episode was written by Marion Hargrove, father of the Maverick brothers.

ABC has made a film deal with United Artists, and will acquire old Goldwyn features to use Sunday nights next fall. The network plans to show movies between 9 and 11 p.m., those hours when nothing special is able to survive against Bonanza on NBC and Candid Camera on CBS.

Recommended tonight: Hollywood and the Stars, NBC, 9.30-10 (EST)—a behind-the-scenes look at goings-on during filming of The Night of the Iguana, in Mexico.

AT THE PARK — Steen Oliver as Steve is a hospital for the mentally disturbed has a pivotal role in "The Caretakers". Produced and directed by Hall Bartlett from Dariel Telfer's novel, the picture will open tonight at the Park Theatre through United Artists release.

ELVIS PRESLEY IN "FUN IN ACAPULCO"

There's something enjoyable for all ages in the first of the films in the new Elvis Presley musical, "Fun In Acapulco" in Technicolor, continuing today through Thursday at the Belle Theatre.

This colorful film boasts eleven songs by Elvis, scores of beautiful girls, an intriguing plot, and some really breath-taking scenes of Acapulco. If you can't go to Acapulco, then seeing this movie is the next best thing.

Co-starring with Elvis in the Hal Wallis production and Paramount release, is an exciting international cast headed by Ursula Andress of Switzerland, Elsa Cardenas of Mexico, Paul Lukas of Hungary, Alejandro Rey of Argentina and Larry Domasin of Los Angeles, U.S.A.

Elvis portrays a circus performer who goes to Acapulco in order to forget the fatal accident he feels was his fault. Once in Acapulco he hires on at a fishing boat as a singing entertainer and beach boy. This arrangement furnishes ample time for romance and an opportunity to sing many new songs.

The fast-moving action in this fun-filled picture was directed by Richard Thorpe, the brilliant director who has brought nearly two hundred films to the screen including Elvis's "Jailhouse Rock".

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Elvis Presley in "Fun in Acapulco", Ursula Andress, Elsa Cardenas, Paul Lukas: 2.25; 7.25; 9.30. In Technicolor.

AT THE PARK — "The Caretakers" Robert Stack, Polly Bergen, Joan Crawford, Janis Paige, Diane McBain, 7.33-9.45.

...Hop Rangers, Habs Marlies Leave No Doubts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Marlboros left no doubts over the weekend as to their rights to first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The Marlboros started off by walloping the tail-end Kitchener Rangers 12-0 Saturday. Sunday they came through with an impressive 7-3 triumph over the second-place Montreal Junior Canadiens. The double win left Toronto with a 13-point spread over Montreal.

St. Catharines Black Hawks notched third place, whitewashing Peterborough Petes 6-0, while Niagara Falls Flyers pulled fifth place behind the Hawks as a result of a 7-5 loss to Hamilton Red Wings.

Right-winger Ron Ellis scored his 44th and 45th of the season at the expense of the Rangers. Nick Harbaruk also had a pair while Paul Laurent, Pete Stemkowski, Barry Watson and Wayne Carleton counted the others.

RECORD FOR BOUDRIAS

Yvan Cournoyer, the hard-shooting right winger, fired a pair of goals to extend his total for the season to 61. League scoring leader Andre Boudrias picked up one assist to set a record for assists with 94. The old mark of 93 was established by Brian Cullen of Toronto in 1953-54.

Leo Thiffault added the other Montreal goal.

Minor Hockey Leagues Scores

PICTON (Staff) — The Minor Hockey League games at the arena on Saturday morning provided some exciting hockey, at least until the last game of the Bantam League, when most of the players in the Canadiens and the Rangers, for some reason or another did not show up for the game.

The two coaches had to pick some youngsters from around the rink to fill out their teams. The Canadiens got the better of the pick — they recruited a few of the Bantam all stars and as a result, walloped the Rangers by a 7-0 score. For the most part, however, the games were more equal.

In the Peewee division, the Bobcats edged the Beavers 3-2, the Bisons dropped the Aces 4-2, the Barons defeated the Indians 3-1 and Milford shut-out the Bekra 2-0.

In the Atom League, Wau-poos dropped the Quakers 2-1, the Royals kept up their winning way dropping the Marlboros 4-1 and the Canucks came up with a supersior display as they clobbered the Blades 8-1.

In the Bantam division, it was a shutout for Bruins over Maple Leafs 1-0, the Black Hawks mauled the Marlboros 4-1, Milford edged the Teepees by a close 4-3 score.

Fancy Dress Skating Carnival Much Enjoyed

PICTON (Staff) — It was "Fun night" at the arena as the Second annual Fancy Dress Skating Carnival sponsored by the Picton Kiwanis Club, took place on Saturday night.

Over 100 contestants, dressed in original costumes that showed a lot of ingenuity in design, skated before the six judges. These men had a most difficult time deciding which youngster should receive the prize.

When it was all over, the following were the winners - Aged 2-4 K. Foulds, Nancy Duffy and Caroline Beeler; 5-6 years, Cathy Ingram and Kimberly Boyd; 7-8 years, Judy Dockrill, Elizabeth Pierson, and Debby Lockwood; 9-10, Shelley Lockwood, Charlene Lederman, and Mary Lou Tolley; 11-12 age, Christine Ferguson, Pat Vesterfelt and Pat Love; 13-14, Mona Pierson, Betty Ferguson, and Joan Ryerott. 15 and over, William McMenemy, Sam Hollingsworth and Beryl Fawkes.

One thing happened that drew a lot of attention, one lady, completely disguised, and in a gay ninety dress, came complete with her Beagle hound in a sleigh. The pup was all dressed up complete with doll's bonnet.

At the door, all contestants including the kiddies had to pay a small admission charge. Seeing the dog all dressed up, she too was charged admission, to the delight of the people watching. To this day, the woman remains unidentified.

It was a ral fun night with those watching enjoying the fun as much as those participating.

Eric Pierson was representative of the kiddies who showed a lot of ingenuity in designing a costume for the Picton fancy dress skating carnival.

IN LIKE A LAMB — Lucy the Lion cub appears to be chasing the lamb right out of the picture and that's the way it will be at the end of this month if the old adage about March holds true. March entered lamb-like in Toronto Sunday with temperatures of 35 and under mostly sunny skies. For the record, the two animals got along well when introduced for the picture, but the lion had a 30-pound weight advantage and played too rough. (CP Wirephoto)

RCMP Find Nitro Bomb In Motel

VANCOUVER (CP)—A nitroglycerine bomb—designed for detonation by remote control and found behind a sofa in a suburban motel cabin — was made harmless Monday night by an air force explosives expert.

The bomb was discovered by RCMP during an investigation on which they would give no details.

It contained eight or nine ounces of nitro-glycerine—equal to about 40 sticks of dynamite.

RCAF Sgt. Gordon Headon packed the bomb in 25 pounds of dry ice to freeze a dry cell battery. At a temperature of 70 degrees below zero, he cut the wires leading to the battery.

Sgt. Headon said later the bomb was a radio - frequency type which could be set off by a remote-control device from several miles away or from an airplane.

The bomb was discovered in a cabin occupied by a man and woman. Police refused to reveal their names.

JOHNSON OK

Tobacco Men's Revolt Remains In State Of Flux

Three Auction Centres Still on Closed Lists

TILLSONBURG (CP)—A revolt by Ontario's tobacco growers remained unsettled today, and still unscarred were the objectives they hoped for in forcing three auction centres to close.

Protest meetings and demonstrations in the last three days have repeated the farmers' dissatisfaction with what they called fluctuating tobacco market prices.

Auction centres at Tillsonburg, Delhi and Aylmer were closed Friday by the Ontario flue - cured tobacco growers marketing board in the face of threats of violence from the farmers. A majority of the 4,500 growers have agreed to keep them closed until some solution to their complaints is found.

However, board officials or spokesmen for the protesting farmers have yet to detail what they want changed.

The problem was raised Monday in both the House of Commons and the Ontario legislature. A marketing board delegation met with Agriculture Minister Hays in Ottawa.

There were seven of the main points of farmer dissatisfaction offered by tobacco industry sources Monday:

1. Bids for the same grades of tobacco in recent days have varied from a low of three cents a pound to a high of 60 cents.

2. Farmers want re-establishment of a minimum price for each grade, a system dropped this year by the marketing board in favor of an open-market setup.

3. There is resentment of a report tabled in the Ontario legislature last week by a committee inquiring into the $100,000,000 tobacco industry which recommended the abolition of acreage control over the next five years.

4. Some growers are irritated by a requirement that tobacco be sprayed with the chemical MH-30, used as a protection against sucker plants, should be so labelled for bidders.

5. There is some suggestion that tobacco marketed hastily may be linked with a proposed anti-smoking campaign by the federal government. Cigarette manufacturers who stockpile tobacco 18 months before use are said to be cautious until the outlook for the industry is clearer.

6. Robert Nixon, Liberal member for Brant, raised the issue in the Ontario legislature Monday and claimed farmers have lost confidence in the existing marketing system.

In Ottawa, Board Chairman George Demeyere talked with Mr. Hays, who later said he felt that the farmers and tobacco buyers could solve their differences.

Mr. Demeyere said he intended to stay in Ottawa until a meeting could be arranged with representatives of the buy-

Hoffa Case In Hands Of Jury

The jury of eight men and four women listened intently to the sharply contrasting closing arguments by James Neal, chief prosecutor, and James Haggerty, Hoffa's chief defence lawyer.

The jurors will begin sometime today to weigh them along with five long weeks of supporting evidence. The trial, which began Jan. 20, entered its seventh week Monday. The first week was spent in selecting the jury, which has been locked up each night.

SIX ON TRIAL

Hoffa and five other men are on trial on charges of attempting to corrupt the Nashville jury which heard a conspiracy charge against Hoffa. That jury could not agree and a mistrial resulted.

Both Neal and Haggerty devoted a major portion of their closing arguments before the jury to Edward Grady Partan, a Baton Rouge, La., Teamsters official who became the principal government witness.

Partin was the key government witness to link Hoffa with alleged efforts to fix the 1962 jury. He claimed he got his information during the Nashville trial, when he said he had Hoffa's confidence while living almost daily reports to the U.S. justice department.

Partin said that he once served a reformatory term for burglary and in several cases —including a 26-count intelli-

Voices Echo About Danger To Queen in Planned Visit

MONTREAL (CP) — In the week since it separatist Marcel Chaput told a Toronto audience Queen Elizabeth's life would be endangered if she visited Quebec as planned this fall, some voices have been raised in the province questioning the wisdom of going ahead with the visit.

Two Montreal newspapers, Le Devoir and La Presse, have said editorially the visit is unnecessary, risky providing trouble from militant separatists and ought to be cancelled.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Arctic air covers most of Northern Ontario and is beginning to advance into southern Ontario this morning. In moist warm air which covered southern Ontario during the night extensive fog has developed and it is expected to dissipate slowly this morning. Cooler drier air will spread over all but the southwest corner of the province this afternoon.

tiste Society, said in an interview Monday "it is still too early to say what is the wiser course of action but it seems at present there is a possible risk of trouble if the visit is held." He said the society, a French-Canadian nationalist organization, has adopted no official attitude.

Gerard Pelletier, editor - in - chief of La Presse, said, also in an interview, "the visit has a character of urgency and necessity and is clearly an act of imprudence.

"It would create an unnecessary risk of stirring up trouble and exposing the Queen to insult and embarrassment."

Mr. Chaput said in Toronto Feb. 28 that the Queen's life will be endangered if she visits Quebec in October as planned.

"Some of my people are ready to let her know—and brutally—that she is no longer welcome in French-Canada."

However, Prime Minister Pearson has said in the House of Commons there is no question of cancelling the visit and spokesmen in Quebec City, the only place in the province the Queen will actually visit, have expressed confidence she will get a friendly reception.

Volcano Erases Village

SANTIAGO (AP)—An Andean volcano was reported today to have erupted and triggered avalanches that destroyed the little town of Conaripe and "threatened a 25-mile area of southern Chile containing 20,000 persons.

News reports from the area said at least 25 persons had been killed after the fiery eruption of the 8,325-foot Villarrica volcano early Monday but police said only seven deaths had been confirmed.

"Nothing is left of Conaripe," a civilian pilot said after flying over the mountain valley about 500 miles south of Santiago Monday. "There is only mud and ash where the town was."

Other reports said 80 per cent of the town's buildings were destroyed.

Police at Temuco, 90 miles northwest of the volcano, said 1,000 persons are missing and we do not know what their exact fate has been."

A radio report said a group of about 130 persons were huddled on a patch of high ground near the site of the destroyed town. They were believed safe for the time being but in urgent need of help.

Police patrols were dispatched but were delayed because heavy rains since Friday have washed out roads and bridges.

It was feared the missing included tourists, who flock to fishing and yachting resorts in the area of beautiful mountain lakes and pine forests at this season of the year, the end of the southern hemisphere's summer. But most tourists frequent the larger towns of Valdivia and Puerto, reported outside the danger area.

Note Not Considered Important

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP)—The text of a tattered note found near the bullet-riddled bodies of three Pennsylvania hunters in 1953 may be completed today when Thomas Miller takes the stand at the royal commission into the Coffin murder case.

Quebec Provincial Police witnesses testified Monday the note hadn't been contained inside and They believed it was a message left by one hunting party to another. The search that preceded the discovery of the bodies.

Miller is a middle-aged Gaspe resident who helped find the three torn bodies near a forest ranger's cabin in the Gaspe area. Examination later led to the conclusion the men had been shot.

Epilepsy League Book Gives Fits To Counsel At Ruby's Murder Trial

Belli Enraged as Pamphlet Undermines Defence Strategy

DALLAS (AP)—Judge Joe B. Brown, presiding at the murder trial of Jack Ruby, became ill and was sent home today by his doctor. However, another judge took his place.

Judge Brown said from his home: "I've got an awfully bad cold and the doctor told me to stay in bed." The judge said Judge J. Frank Wilson, another judge of a court dealing in criminal cases, probably would take Brown's place.

There was no indication how long Judge Brown, 55, would be away from the case, which today was still in the jury selection stage after two weeks and two days.

A roaring dispute over a fact sheet on epilepsy" and charges of efforts to "contaminate" prospective jurors delayed jury selection Monday.

Eight men and two women have been accepted, leaving two more to be found.

Ruby is on trial for the Nov. 24 shooting of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of president Kennedy, in Dallas. District Attorney Henry M. Wade has said he will demand death in the electric chair for Ruby.

Ruby's lawyers will plead that he suffers from psychomotor epilepsy and was temporarily insane when he killed Oswald.

Thus, a pamphlet issued by the National Epilepsy League and distributed Monday outside the courtroom, brought cries of "grossest conspiracy to obstruct justice" and "trying to contaminate prospective jurors" from Ruby's chief counsel, Melvin Belli.

ASKED MISTRIAL

He demanded a mistrial and said he would use "all my ingenuity" to get three persons jailed today.

The uproar began when the pamphlets with a covering letter appeared in the courtroom. They had been given to reporters.

Belli insisted the pamphlets were meant not for reporters primarily, but for prospective jurors. Police took no copies of the literature reached any jury candidates.

On the paragraph in the pamphlet read:

"You don't have to worry too much about a patient in a psychomotor seizure. You will read in novels and see in the movies all kinds of dramatization, spiced up stories about what

Columbia Day In Commons

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—This is Columbia day in the Commons.

External Affairs Minister Martin was expected to lead off the debate on the 1961 Canada-U.S. treaty and the 1964 amending protocol to develop power and flood control on the big river.

It will be the first real business of the new session.

The way was cleared for it Monday night when the House approved the session-opening throne speech after an eight-day debate.

There was no recorded vote. The Liberals turned out in force but there was no move by any of the opposition parties to test the government's support again.

Mr. Martin today will advance the government resolution to send the Columbia River treaty and protocol to the 35-member external affairs committee of the Commons.

BUSINESS SET

There was no advance indication of how long this might take. The Commons then will take this business—the order being already set by the government:

A government motion to set up a special committee on Parliamentary procedure.

Another motion to set up a defence committee.

Still another to revive the special committee on drugs.

The bill on redistribution.

A bill creating an extra ex-chequer court judge to be a divorce commissioner for Quebec and Newfoundland.

Legislation on the Canada Pension Plan.

CONTROL OF CBC?

In Monday's opening, Prime Minister Pearson said there may be a special committee on broadcasting.

The forecast came when Clifford Smallwood, an Alberta Conservative, asked whether Mr. Pearson would consider legislation to make the CBC responsible to a Commons committee so Parliament would have more control over CBC programming.

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Smallwood (Battle River-Camrose) would probably have a chance "before long" to give a committee his views.

Mr. Smallwood called for the removal of the CBC Sunday night English network program Quest. He said one episode Feb.

Govt. Silent On Arms

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The government has obtained nuclear weapons for the armed forces but still has laryngitis when it comes to any firm voice in their use.

Though the eight - squadron RCAF air division in Europe is part of NATO's inter-allied nuclear strike force, air force headquarters here says no RCAF personnel are on the staff of NATO's military deputy for nuclear affairs.

This means that no Canadian will have any direct hand in the military planning of strategic and tactical use of the nuclear strike force, which also includes the British Bomber Command and three American missile-armed submarines. The force was established at the NATO ministerial meeting here last May.

Defence department officials said Canada will not participate in selection of nuclear targets for NATO forces at the Omaha, Neb., headquarters of U.S. Strategic Air Command.

And Prime Minister Pearson previously rejected Canadian participation in any NATO scheme nuclear strike force manned by crews from various member countries of the alliance.

The RCAF is not completely divorced, of course from NATO's supreme headquarters, Allied powers in Europe, and its nuclear policies.

Air Marshal W. R. MacBrien is deputy chief of staff for operations at supreme headquarters and RCAF officers are members of various specialist staffs, including those concerned with development and implementation of nuclear policy.

But no Canadian officer is a member of the staff of the deputy responsible to Lt.-Gen. Lemnitzer, supreme Allied commander in Europe, for nuclear policy. Canada and Britain will have the 4th most powerful nuclear strike force in the world—after those of the U.S., Russia and Britain but ahead of those of France and West Germany.

Fate of Yacht May Hold Key To Loot From Train Robbery

LONDON (CP)—The names Christine and Cheddington are the keys to the mystery police have been told, holds the secret of a fabulous fortune from Britain's great train robbery.

What was the fate of the five-ton yacht Christine which sailed from Ramsgate just after midnight Jan. 2, taking at least one man to his death?

Did she carry bags full of loot taken Aug. 8 when a Glasgow London mail train was robbed of more than £2,600,000 at Cheddington?

Yes, says 32-year-old Edward Anderson, Christine's owner, a handsome, devil-may-care character who once was chauffeur to actress Elizabeth Taylor.

Some 50 persons now are on trial at Aylesbury in connection with the train robbery—the trial is in its fifth week—but as far as is known only £322,000 of the loot has been recovered.

Police apparently are not satisfied the Christine was carrying the loot. She mysteriously vanished on a voyage that started searches by air, on the bottom of the sea and in several countries.

Captains of freighters known to have been in the Christine's vicinity off the southeast coast of England have been reporting from African, Indian and Mediterranean ports.

One man who could solve the riddle—Dennis Bassett, 22, Anderson's friend and former crewmember—is forever silent. His body in a lifejacket was found on a beach near Ostend, Belgium, Feb. 12.

Police have hinted that their enquiries into the death of Bassett — an inquest has been opened and adjourned—may reveal new information on the mystery. Bassett's cardigan and lifejacket were found 1:27 p.m. the day after the yacht sailed.

The whole puzzle took a dramatic turn Sunday when Anderson, a garage manager by bankruptcy, said on television he had sold his full story to Scotland Yard because he was "dead scared."

"If I hadn't jumped ship the night the Christine sailed I'd probably have ended up in the sea with Danny Bassett," said Anderson.

Anderson said he had contracted for £5,000 to take two men to a channel rendezvous with another vessel but panicked when he recognized one of the men as wanted for the train robbery. He also saw a suitcase stuffed with £5 notes.

"What I told Tinny Bassett about the money he said there was a million quid (pounds) in it. Main job on board," said Anderson.

Small Nations Work Out Solution

Cyprus Expected to Approve Peace Force

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Cyprus was expected to give its approval today to a new small-nation proposal authorizing UN Secretary-General U Thant to send international peace force to the Mediterranean island.

The compromise formula, worked out by five of the six elected members of the UN Security Council, was presented to the 11-nation council Monday by Brazilian delegate Carlos Alfredo Bernardes.

The resolution also called for Thant to name a mediator to help solve the constitutional crisis that has brought Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots nearly to civil war.

Diplomatic sources expressed belief that the resolution would be accepted by Cyprus, Turkey, Greece and Britain.

Acceptance by Cyprus was regarded as the key to the plan's success. It faced a possible Soviet veto unless it met the approval of Archbishop Makarios, the Greek-Cypriot president of Cyprus.

Neither the Cypriot nor the Soviet delegation made comment on the resolution. But sources close to the Greek-Cypriots said they believed Makarios would go along.

The main obstacle had not been the proposed international force, but finding a way to meet conflicting demands of Cyprus and Turkey on how to refer to a 1960 treaty guaranteeing the Cypriot constitution.

The treaty gave Britain, Turkey and Greece the right to intervene to preserve the constitution, which grants the Turkish-Cypriot minority veto rights that Makarios wants to do away with. Cyprus wanted all reference to this treaty omitted. Instead it insisted on a Security Council guarantee for the territorial integrity of the island republic as protection against invasion by Turkey.

The five - nation resolution tried to meet both positions partway. Its preamble referred to the positions taken by the parties in relation to the treaties" and it quoted from the UN Charter which says all members shall refrain from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity of any state.

The formula for the international force is similar in that sought by Britain and the United States from the start. The secretary - general would work out with the parties concerned the composition of the force. He would appoint its commander and the commander would report to him. Thant would report to the Security Council but the council would not control the force.

No decision has been taken as to which countries would make up the force. Diplomatic sources believe Commonwealth members and some Mediterranean countries would most likely be participants.

Despite prospects for agreement in the UN, there was no relaxation of tension on Cyprus or in Athens.

In Nicosia, the Cypriot capital, Greek-Cypriots seized two Turks as hostages. A spokesman for the Greek-Cypriot government said the two were taken in retaliation for four Greek-Cypriots reported seized by the Turks early this month. Turkish - Cypriots claim 200 members of their community are missing and presumed taken hostage.

In Athens, the Greek capital, about 2,000 students demonstrated against U.S. and British policy toward Cyprus.

Nationalization Of CPR Is Recommended

OTTAWA (CP) — Nationalization of the Canadian Pacific Railway was recommended to the federal cabinet today in the annual submission of the National Farmers' Union.

"The CPR was built with public funds and public land and has ever used to guarantee investors in the company of a return on their money, said a brief by the organization.

Thus, in the name of forming a truly national transport policy, the CPR should be handed over to the CNR and the scale of compensation to shareholders should bear in mind that "the CPR has been able to use its favored position to acquire assets in other industries."

The brief dealt in some detail with the shipping, communications, hotel, mining, petroleum and other businesses of the huge CPR operation in contending the recent findings of the royal commission's report that has priority in the current session of parliament.

The NFU opposes the commission opinion that non-rail assets and operations of the CPR should not be used in assessing its income since this would distort its competitive position in rail operations.

SAY 'RIDICULOUS'

"We submit that this is a ridiculous proposition," said the brief, arguing that by the same token a shipper could be unable to use his hog operation to help with grain or hay.

Transportation is a main feature of the submission by the NFU, which claims membership in the major western provinces and Ontario. It seeks a national transport policy based on providing low freight rates that merely stressing economy and efficiency.

But it also pressed for revisions to farm credit—some of these are planned—to make it easier for one thing for young farmers to get started. It asked for investigation of farm machinery credit sales to check on how many have government-guaranteed loans and what farmers actually are paying in interest.

It also sought federal backstopping for provincial crop insurance plans in cases of disaster—like parts of the Maritimes—and retention of existing dairy subsidies.

"... It no longer appears reasonable that Canada desist indefinitely from giving recognition to the government of mainland China," it said.

Stiffer License System for Car Dealers Urged

TORONTO (CP)—A stiffer licensing system for used-car dealers was recommended Monday by the Ontario legislature's select committee on, consumer credit.

An interim report of the committee was tabled in the legislature by Chairman Harry Price (PC—Toronto St. David)9

"We have heard evidence which suggests that there are palpable abuses in the financing of used cars," the report says.

A brief last fall from the Federation of Automobile Independent Dealers charged that anyone with $25 for a registration fee could sell used cars. It asserted that this resulted in flyby-night operators selling the public.

The committee states:

"... It no longer appears reasonable that Canada desist indefinitely from giving recognition to the government of mainland China," it said.

"... It is licensing authority should ... require as a condition of granting a license evidence of financial stability and good reputation and should make the continuance of this confidence dependent on proper conduct of business."

The report finds that intensive advertising campaigns aimed at consumers lead to imprudent use of credit.

Requests for Grants Filed By Council for Budget Time

Service Station Operators Get Closing Bylaw

TRENTON — Twenty of the town's 23 service station operators got what they wanted in the way of a closing by-law at Trenton council last night, but whether it's a by-law that will please all of the people all of the time . . . or even some of the people most of the time . . . was questioned by Councillor Burtt.

According to the terms of the by-law, most operators will stay open from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. six days a week. With a weekly changeover, four designated operators in wide-spread areas of the town, will be open from Sunday to the following Saturday from 7 a.m. to 11.45 p.m.

Councillor Burtt is afraid that one or more of the four operators will literally "drawn out of town" to service centres on the 401.

The operators handling second which four stations will be open from week to week' during the summer will have a sign on his station door with this information. The operators have been asked to name a spokesman for their group who will check opening hours with other details with the town office.

Engineers Will Be Asked To Co-operate

TRENTON—The Board of Transport Commissioners at Ottawa told Trenton council in a letter read at council meeting last night that it can' give outand-and approval to a by-law for the terms of which train engineers would be prohibited from blowing the train whistles within the borders of the corporation. The board did suggest however, that a by-law, forbidding the blowing of whistles near protected crossings could be passed. Trenton has 29 crossings, six of them are protected by warning signals.

Councillor Ross Burtt suggested that some engineers just "built in" blowing it, as it is was worth" as a joke.

Councillor Edward Todd said he would be to some there useless to forbid engineers to blow near the Dundas St. and King St. crossings, because the company only go on up to the Joseph St. crossing, unless an unprotected and blow twice as hard. (Councillor Burtt, whose objection to the blowing of whistles has been well publicized, lives on Joseph St.)

A by-law, prohibiting the blowing of whistles near protected crossings, will be prepared, Meanwhile, C.N. and C.P.R. engineers will be asked to "co-operate" with council's wishes in the matter.

Council Demurs At Selling Lots To Realtor

TRENTON — Three members of Trenton council, Councillors Ross Burtt, Edward Todd and Duncan McDonald and Mayor James McDonald got a regular council session underway at 8:30 p.m. last night after a meeting in the mayor's office with Judge J. C. Anderson, the town solicitor and Trenton Police Commission. No details of the earlier meeting were revealed.

Local realtor R. E. Whitley came before council to ask that two Crown-owned lots on Sidney Elizabeth Street, sold for $1 apiece by by-law to the Quinte Disabled Persons' Club, be sold to him. Mr. Whitley proposes to build a house for a member of the club, Cecil Paul on one of the lots. Mr. Paul would like to buy the house, when it is completed.

Since four other Rosses be established persons were built on Ramsay Street and rented to club members, council isn't sure a club member can buy a similar house under similar circumstance, while admitting that "Mr. Paul deserves all kinds of credit" for his attitude towards his handicap.

Price for the two lots in question, if deeds were ever prepared, have been lost and certainly weren't registered as the property of the club. Nevertheless, the town has acknowledged the ownership of the two lots by collecting taxes from the club for the past five years.

Since last night Whitley says "there's no great rush" about the matter, town solicitor Roderick Campbell will investigate the matter of the missing deeds and also whether or not the town can permit Mr. Paul to buy his house.

Councillor Todd demurred about making any hasty decision on the issue as he said "truthfully" he had been approached by a member of the club with a request that the land not be sold to Mr. Whitley. Councillor Todd said that he'd like to check with other club members to see what their attitudes are concerning the sale of the lots to Mr. Whitley.

Purchase of 'Y' Building For Use as Police Station Again Deferred by Council

City council again yesterday deferred discussion on a city by-law authorizing purchase of the downtown YMCA building proposed as headquarters for the city police department.

Cost of the purchase together with renovation necessary would under the terms of the by-law be limited to $155,000. The by-law was on yesterday's council agenda for first and second reading.

But Alderman William Jarvah said he wanted more time to consider the matter, particularly to peruse the many pages of an architect's report covering renovations necessary for the "Y" building to fit it as a police headquarters.

The vote to table the by-law and defer discussion was carried 9-6 on a recorded vote.

AGAINST RAZING

The proposal is to transfer police headquarters to the "Y" building and to raze the present police building on the market square to provide additional parking space.

But it seems the city Community Planning Association would like to see the present police building saved from the wrecker's hammer.

A letter to council from Roger C. Creig of the Community Planning Association noted that members of the Association had expressed interest in the city market square as a centre of human activity, a magnet for tourists and shoppers and not merely a parking lot.

Mr. Creig noted that the building now occupied by police appeared to be a very worthy and useful building and was Belleville's town hall in its prosperous early days.

USES PROPOSED

"This building forms a visual focus of the Square," he wrote. "If it were put to suitable use instead of being torn down when the police move out, it would form a focus of human activity too."

He said the building's essentially good design would be better appreciated if its cupola and awnings were restored and the concrete block wing removed.

The letter regarding the old building was referred to the parks board for consideration.

Alderman Don Williams who flew to Florida with Mr. Elliott on Feb. 22, told members of city council last night that the city Alderman's condition was improving, but that it would be at least a month before he could leave hospital and come home.

More Officers, Equipment for Police Force

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Police Commissioner Eric Silk said Monday a 500-man increase in the force and new equipment will provide 24-hour traffic patrols on highway 401 and the Queen Elizabeth Way for the first time this summer.

He said the motorcycle patrol will be increased to 80 machines from 60 by late May or early June when the heavy summer traffic begins.

Patrolling strength will get a boost with the addition of 60 or 70 new cruisers, he said, and cars will begin a system of cruising six- or eight-mile traffic beats.

J. Louis Needham, assistant commissioner in charge of traffic, said more radar would be used to catch speeders and breath analyser sets would be used to test impaired drivers. The motorcycle corps will patrol the QEW, highway 401 and high 400 in the Barrie area.

Panama Canal Dispute May Be Settled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Panama appeared today to be moving toward a settlement of their bitter dispute over the Panama Canal.

Panama's President Roberto Chiari announced Monday night that he believed President Johnson had opened the way for a solution of the dispute.

Almost immediately a five-member mediation team of the Organization of American States went into a midnight session here with Panama's OAS Ambassador Miguel J. Moreno.

Afterward, negotiators said the two countries were "moving fast and courageously" toward a settlement.

Johnson launched his new effort to break the deadlocked dispute Saturday. He told his press conference the United States realizes the 1903 Panama Canal treaty "perhaps would require adjustment."

RCAF Flyers Second-Rate Is Contention

TORONTO (CP) — The aerospace council of the International Association of Machinists (CLC) said Monday the RCAF is flying second-rate aircraft not designed to withstand the rigors of the Canadian climate.

The council, in a brief to suburban Etobicoke council, said the department of national defence has placed Canada in its most vulnerable position since 1939 through the last five years' "irresponsible foreign purchases."

The council urged Etobicoke to support a brief it submitted to the federal government Feb. 12 in connection with the airplane engine industry in Etobicoke.

The aerospace council said in its brief that even if a Canadian-built aircraft cost twice as much as one built in the United States it would still be more practical to buy the Canadian machine.

The brief said the federal government gets back almost 65 per cent in various forms of taxes for every dollar spent on Canadian aircraft. Not a cent is returned on aircraft purchased in the U.S., the brief said.

Argosy Buys Acre and Half East of No. 37

Sale of approximately one and a half acres of city-owned land south of Adam Street by Argosy Carriers Ltd. of Toronto was approved yesterday by city council. Sale price of the land on the new access road leading from Highway 37 to the Hillcrest industrial area is $1,500.

Alderman Frank C. Murray said sale of the one and a half acres would not in any way affect future development of the land in the area.

Salvation Army Correctional Director Is Visitor to City

The social aspect of local crime and delinquency came in for scrutiny in Belleville today, visiting the area this morning was Lt.-Colonel J. Clinton Eacott, director of the Salvation Army's correctional services.

The formality of the title covers a multitude of activities keyed, however, to individual personalities — personalities in trouble.

Colonel Eacott, working out of Toronto, is responsible for the Salvation Army's program which centres on prisons and persons aloul of the law.

Working in co-operation with local police authorities, the service extends its aid — always with an eye to rehabilitation — to lawbreakers of any age or degree.

The nature of its work makes it a silent service that rarely is picked out by the public spotlight.

RESULTS IMPRESSIVE

However, when the number of its individual cases are totalled the result is impressive.

Take for instance the local statistics shown Colonel Eacott this morning by his local "agent" — envoy Bram Humphreys.

Envoy Humphreys in the past year has driven 4,000 miles on trouble-shooting calls.

More than 400 personal interviews have taken place in Hastings County jail; 114 families were visited; and 865 telephone calls made on behalf of prisoners.

In local courts the "Sally Ann" uniform has been present countless times, and nearly 200 persons awaiting court appearance were interviewed by the envoy.

The envoy also has spoken on behalf of more than 60 prisoners before the courts.

Meantime, the religious aspect of the Salvation Army's endeavors were not overlooked.

Transit Commission Has Year's Deficit of $43,923

The Belleville Transit Commission had a deficit of $43,923.12 for the year 1963, according to the auditor's report submitted to council yesterday.

The deficit for the year was made up of $26,688.12 in operating loss and $17,235 in debenture charges.

The city had budgeted for a deficit of $49,152.

A breakdown of operating statistics show the system carried a total of 766,268 passengers during the year as compared with 765,471 in 1962 and 694,906 in 1961.

City buses travelled a total of 324,041 miles over five routes and carried an average of 2.36 passengers per mile.

Operating cost per mile was 43 cents with revenue 34.8 cents per mile. Operating cost per mile was 8.2 cents.

December was the big month for bus passengers with 74,368 riders being carried. In contrast July was the low month with 52,536 riders.

Angus MacInnis Of CCF Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Angus MacInnis, 79, one of the founders of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation and longtime member of the House of Commons, died Monday. He had been ill for some time.

Mr. MacInnis, an expert on international relations, served in the Commons from 1930 until 1958.

Mr. MacInnis was closely associated with the late J. S. Woodsworth, founder of the CCF party which now has merged with labor to become the New Democratic Party.

With only a public school education he became a prominent trade unionist and for three years was business agent for a local of the Street Railwaymen's Association.

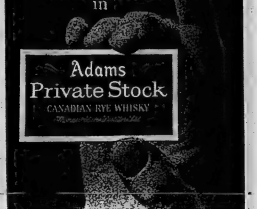
Witnesses Hear Head of Bible, Tract Society

Mr. Eugene D. Rosam, Jr., head of the Canadian branch of the Watch Tower Bible and Tract Society, visited Belleville over the past weekend. The climax of his visit came Sunday afternoon when Mr. Rosam spoke to 105 persons assembled in the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses on the subject "How Firm is Your Faith?"

After referring to outstanding examples of faithful men of Bible times, Mr. Rosam said that Christian faith is still under assault in our day and cited modern examples of the unbreakable faith of Jehovah's Witnesses in Nazi Germany during Hitler's regime and even now in communist-controlled and other dictatorial regime and even now in communist-controlled and other dictatorial lands.

Mr. Rosam urged his audience to recognize that Christian warfare is not against men or human governments but "against the wicked spirit forces in the heavenly places" (Ephesians 6:12) "Our fight is not to overturn governments" said Mr. Rosam, "but as Second Corinthians 10:5 says, 'We are overturning reasonings and every lofty thing raised up against the knowledge of God.' This means that every Christian must make it his business to study the Bible to get accurate knowledge of God both to defend and advance his Christian faith".

At 37 years of age, Mr. Rosam has been in the full-time ministry for twenty years and now directs the activity of 40,000 Jehovah's Witnesses in 886 congregations from coast to coast in Canada. These congregations have realized a 5.9% gregations have realized a 5.9% to date this year.



Ribs Broken, Arm Fractured In Accident

A Frankford district woman received broken ribs and a fractured arm, when police say her car crashed in heavy fog on the Stockdale Road last night.

"Mr. Hoffa stands before you with a clean record and a clean past," said Haggerty. "I ask you to compare Mr. Hoffa and his past with Mr. Partin and his past."

"The government does not contest Mr. Partin has led a perfect life," Neal told the jury. "The reason the government tells you to believe Mr. Partin is because it checked and found all he said was happening actually happened, and what he said would happen did happen."

"Picture in your mind," he told the jurors. "Mr. Partin is in a lonely jail . . . His position is hopeless.

"But in his cunning and criminal mind comes a thought: 'Perhaps the justice department will restore my life if I can deliver the life of James R. Hoffa.' Thus, a foul, filthy plot was born."

Other on trial with Hoffa are Ewing King of Nashville, former Teamsters president there; Larry Campbell, Detroit Teamsters business agent; his uncle, Thomas Parks of Nashville; and businessman Nicholas J. Tweel of Huntington, W.Va., and Allen Dorfman of Chicago.

HURLS SILVER

"Here," he said, while the jurors gaped. "Take your 30 pieces of silver and share them. You've earned them."

Schiffer obviously was referring to Judas' betrayal of Christ for 30 pieces of silver. Throughout the trial, Schiffer has declared that Partin testified against Hoffa to "buy his peace with the government."

Reporters were allowed to count the dimes, nickels and quarters, which totalled $2.45. There were only 20 pieces.

Eight Sticks Of Dynamite Found in Plains

QUEBEC (CP)—Eight sticks of dynamite wrapped in two Union Jacks were found Monday at the foot of a flagpole on the Plains of Abraham. One of the flags had been taken down from the pole.

The dynamite sticks were tied together with a wick which police said had been lighted but went out before it burned to the end.

Police were tipped off about the bomb by anonymous telephone calls and dismantled the apparatus.

The flagpole is located in the vicinity where a monument to General James Wolfe was toppled and smashed last spring.

Twice-a-Year Car Inspection Is Considered

TORONTO (CP) — Twice-a-year compulsory inspection of motor vehicles is being considered by the provincial government.

Transport Minister Irwin Haskett said Monday the idea is not being put into effect for the present because of its cost.

But, he said, "the subject will be kept under continuous review as new information becomes available."

Mr. Haskett told the legislature it would cost about $15,000,000 to set up a system for compulsory inspection of every motor vehicle twice a year at government testing areas.

The department would go ahead with it if it was sure that compulsory inspection would result in a sizable reduction in auto accidents, Mr. Haskett said.

Mr. Haskett said the department's program of voluntary inspection will be expanded. About 14,000 voluntary checks were made at department safety lanes last year.

Plane Flew Into Vertical Rock At 250 MPH

INNSBRUCK (Reuters) — A British military expert on the crash of a British airliner Saturday in which 83 persons died found no indication of technical failure in the plane, a joint Austrian-British inquiry commission announced today.

A spokesman for the commission told a press conference the final report on the crash may not be completed for several months.

He said the British Eagle Airways Britannia airliner smashed into a vertical rock face about 8,600 feet up Glungezer Mountain at between 185 and 250 miles an hour.

Detailed study of instruments found at the scene showed the plane must have been flying on instrument because of weather conditions at the moment of impact.

Alpine searchers continued to recover bodies from the scene of the crash.

Fifteen bodies were recovered by Monday night and an airline spokesman said it was hoped all would be brought down by tomorrow. Within the next two or three days."

Wrong Way Back?

Plans to re-impose tolls on the Welland Canal system are "a backward step," according to Ontario Premier Robarts. The tolls were first imposed, over Ontario's objections, in 1959, and removed two days before the 1962 federal election. They will be re-imposed for the 1964 lake-shipping season. The amounts involved — two cents a gross registered ton of vessel, two cents a ton for bulk cargo and five cents a ton for packaged cargo—would yield less than the canal's operating cost.

Tolls on Canadian canals were avoided in the early days of Canada, because the waterways provided the only practical means of transportation—and without the waterways, Canada could not have developed as it is now. Today, however, domestic railways and truck lines compete with domestic and foreign shipping for the Canadian transport dollar. The manufactured goods carried to Port Arthur by a Panamanian ship might as well be carried by Canadian railways and trucks. Unless there has changed circumstances, is it not fair to demand that shipping interests pay their own way?

The costs of operating the canals must be met, whether by tolls or from the federal budget. And if the costs are met from the federal budget, that means that they are spread among all Canadians—and consumer costs may reach from federal subsidy of the ships, through free canal service—but those consumer benefits to the few must be passed on to all, through tax requirements.

From the standpoint of Ontario and the prairies—all of whom gain from free canal service—the policy is therefore, not as much as it might appear.

From the standpoint of the Maritimes and from Quebec—all of which lose harbor fees and and transshipping money—the idea of helping subsidize the operations through which they lose the money must appear ridiculous.

Ships provide one of the cheapest and most efficient forms of transport in the world today. Surely, with all the benefits inherent in the nature of the business, there is no need for the federal government to add its own special grace. Not unless the government plans to lay free trackage for the railroads and stop charging truckers for the use of the roads.

A Sensible Request

The Ontario convention of the New Democratic Party will be asked to pass a resolution requesting that religion be ignored as a factor in selecting new parents for children up for adoption.

It seems almost incredible that, in this day and age, such a resolution should be necessary.

The best way to deal with the arguments of those who take a contrary view is to reduce their case to absurdity, which is easily achieved.

Let us suppose that there was a country in which there were four different religious groups, numerically equal.

Let us suppose, what the advocates of the retention of religion as a factor in adoption would almost certainly maintain, that religion has a powerful influence on the manners and morals of these people.

Now any person knows that a large proportion of children up for adoption are in the position not because of calamitous circumstances over which their parents had no control, but because of the shiftlessness, indifference or callous behaviour of these parents, that is because of their parents' manners and morals.

It follows that the largest group of children up for adoption would have to be placed with precisely those people who, because of their religion, were least likely to make good foster-parents.

The absurdity of this policy is obvious. Yet the only answer to this argument is to contend that there are good and bad people in all religions. If this be so, why should a warm-hearted, emotionally stable couple be denied the right to a child, too young to have a religious thought of its own, simply because the child's parents embraced a different faith from the would-be foster-parents?

Medicine is all the fashion in these days, and very naturally. It is the amusement of the idle and unemployed, who do not know what to do with their time in taking care of themselves. If by ill-luck they had happened to be born immortal, they would have been the most miserable of men; a life they could not lose would be of no value to them. Such men must have doctors to threaten and flatter them, to give them the only pleasure they can enjoy, the pleasure of not being dead.—Jean Jacques Rousseau.

Modernizing Railway Poses Pressing Problems for Ottawa

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — In all the foofrah over the Canada Pension Plan and electoral redistribution of Parliamentary seats and what a handle it may be in getting them through the Commons, little has been heard of another measure that could raise just as much political dust.

It is the business of what will amount to the modernizing of the railways.

Two years now it has been in the legislative works, but that is not going to make it that much easier to get it on the rails. Doesn't really matter all that much that both the Liberal Administration and the Conservative Opposition are for it, in principle, anyway — for sure as diesel power has shunted the old steam engine into the railway museum, some of the Honorable Members, in plain self-defence, are going to have to attempt derailing the legislation.

Precise terms of the Government's bill for modernization of the railways haven't been fully spelled out yet. Cabinet leaks have made it pretty plain that it will be based on recommendations of the MacPherson Royal Commission.

And in simple language, the MacPherson Commission urged that the railways be modernized by letting them operate more like ordinary competitive enterprises and not the prisoners of so much Federal regulation.

CLOSE TO HOME

Cut them loose from red tape restrictions of government control, and, said the commission, take them out from under the multiplicity of Federal agency boards.

Getting down to the hard economic railway facts, this would mean the abandonment of unproductive branch lines and uneconomic passenger services.

Sounds like only good common business sense.

Except that the railroad is more fundamental than transport to the economy, touches directly the prosperity and even welfare of so many people, and is so politically close to home to almost all MPs.

Let the Canadian National drop a train, close a station or lay off a half dozen men, and some MP is up on his feet in the Commons, tearing strips at CNR president Donald Gordon. The annual battle in the Commons Railway Committee between Donald and such Parliamentary flamethrowers as the NDP's Douglas Fisher of Port Arthur and the Creditiste Deputy Gilles Grégoire of Lapointe, is one of the most popular events of each session alike by tourists and Hill veterans.

So far, by sheer dint of heavyweight physical strength and bull-moose-powered voice, the head of the Gordon clan has shouted them down. But inevitably, the time must come when even the most hide-bound larynx of his no longer will overwhelm them.

Meanwhile, delegation after delegation makes its way to the capital to see the Transport Minister about regional rail problems, and routinely are soothed with soft words and even softer promises of "consideration."

The only man in Hill history who really got action for his cause was a railway delegation was that old diplomatic smoothie, former Transport Minister George Hees.

THE RAILWAY WAR

He was dropping a train that had chuffed between the Capital and a string of towns and villages 125 miles up the Ottawa Valley for as long as anyone cared to remember.

Didn't matter that, in recent years, almost nobody had ridden the old rattler down on the diplomatic Hees descended an indignent delegation from the Valley towns, lately protesting that to drop the old train would doom them, inflicting frightful economic misery and suffering on all the inhabitants along the line.

Solicitously, he listened to, their anguished cries of certain disaster and depression. Sympathetically he hung on their every word.

But Hees did they know that crafty old "George Boy," as friends and admirers knew him, had ambushed them and was set to demolish their pleas and arguments, stick as a whistle.

For he had carefully set, without malice but with forethought, the time of their interview with him.

He let them ramble on, taking understandingly at

"He never should have hired that efficiency expert to find out who was expendable."

Let French Teach French

Toronto Star

Is the only possible kind of French teacher in our elementary schools an English-speaking schoolma'am who has had a year at Teachers' College qualifying her to teach arithmetic, hygiene and other usual subjects?

That seems to be the general assumption of Ontario education al circles. A person whose mother tongue is French, who can merely read, speak and understand French (and has learned to speak English) won't do. Why not? He hasn't had a year at Teachers' College to certify that he can teach arithmetic.

This is nonsense. Yet the "shortage of French teachers" — that is of certified teachers with a working knowledge of French — is blamed for the slow introduction of oral French into grade school. Only next year, for example, is Scarboro starting it in Grade 1. Toronto started last fall; only by 1966-67 will French instruction be down to Grade 5.

We don't say that ordinary elementary school teachers with Grade 13 in French can't be good teachers of conversational French in elementary classes. But the chances are that they may be less effective than educated French-speaking persons in actuating the ears and tutoring the tongues of youngsters to French sounds and meanings. This is, after all, the main purpose of having French taught in elementary grades.

The Ontario Curriculum insists is by fathering a cram summer course in London (Ont.) for ordinary teachers to qualify them for French teaching. Scarboro board is running a three-month after-school course (to the end of March) for its teachers, to get enough French classes next September. But this sort of source of supply is inadequate.

The Department of Education should take the whole matter in hand. At the risk of raising the hackles of the teachers' unions, it should certify as French specialists for elementary schools, French-speaking people who aren't professional teachers but who of course know the language and can demonstrate an aptitudes with children.

Instead of there being summer courses only for English-speaking certified teachers to cram some French into them, there should be also summer courses for able French-speaking people (housewives among them), to cram in some teaching methods. The methods can be learned faster than the language. Maybe that is the key to start French in Grade 3 and lower, as should be done.

In the centres of some Canadian cities the land price was already sky high, and where heavy taxation has tended to drive land prices to subsidia, land values have actually declined. To Your Good Health

High Blood Pressure Can Cause Enlarged Heart

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My father is 80 and was told he has an enlarged heart, which was discovered after taking a TB chest X-ray.

Can anything be done for this? Three years ago he was told he could continue work, but he is worried. — M. B.

If he's working at 80, he's a rather well-preserved man. There are varied causes of enlarged heart, common one being high blood pressure, rheumatic or congenital heart disease, and faulty nutrition.

The enlargement cannot as a rule be corrected. However, if the underlying cause is successfully treated, and the heart is doing its job, there is then no cause to worry about the enlargement. For more detailed explanations, read my booklet, "How To Take Care Of Your Heart." (To receive a copy, send 25 cents in coin and an unstamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 188, Dundas, Ill.

Dear Dr. Molner: Are there any qualified hypnotists in this vicinity? I am sure there are unqualified to handle this curious and sometimes very dangerous technique, then my advice is that you go to nobody except a psychiatrist (or in some cases a dentist, or even a skilled physician) who knows what he is doing, and is capable of detecting the subtle signs of danger in doing the relatively simple procedure of "hypnotizing."

The best warning I've heard was from a Boston expert who said that hypnosis is like a knife. Anybody can learn to cut — or hypnotize. But you want it done only by a surgeon if you are going to have any cutting done on you. I do not condemn hypnosis, but I do insist that it be employed only by genuine experts, and not by people who should take the whole matter in hand. At the risk of raising the hackles of the teachers' unions, it should certify as French specialists for elementary schools, French-speaking people who aren't professional teachers but who of course know the language and can demonstrate an aptitudes with children.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it necessary for noncancerous tumors of the breast to be removed? Is there any way of determining whether tumors are cancerous without removing the breast? In such cases are biopsies performed? — L. J. M.

Some non-cancerous tumors do not cause, either painful or annoying or disfiguring, and consequently are removed. The whole breast need not be removed to find out whether the tumor, or lump, is cancerous. Tissue can be removed and immediately tested. If it is not cancerous, that's that. This is a "biopsy." It is performed when a case is regarded as doubtful or suspicious. Tumors, suspected of being cancerous, are aspirated. Removal of the fluid contents by syringe and needle verifies the diagnosis and may avoid surgical removal.

Shingles can be a painful disease! To receive a copy of my pamphlet, "The Facts About Shingles," write to Molner enclosing a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 15 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Earns Right To Be Blunt

Ottawa Journal

In the Quebec Legislative Assembly last week, Premier Lesage met separatism head on. He said:

"It would be a disaster."

That took courage.

Let us who live outside Quebec not gloat at the idea that Quebec's own Premier has put the separatists in their place. A leader of an elected government cannot put a part of his electorate in its place. He can only, refute its beliefs — and lose its votes.

Let us who live outside Quebec rather remember this proof that Mr. Lesage is one Canadian government leader with the gumption to tell his own people a home truth. A man who speaks bluntly Mr. Lesage speaks thus to those of us who live beyond the borders of his province, if we have the good grace to consider the possibility that what he is telling us may be a boon truth too.

Two Juveniles Charged After Homes Damaged

City police have charged two juveniles with malicious damage to homes being constructed in King George Square.

The pair will appear in court later this week.

Police in the past month homes being built in the new subdivision under the winter works program have been discovered damaged.

The most serious incident occurred February 21 when an estimated $500 damage was done to windows and wallboard of the first house started on the square.

Podium Will Be Placed in Council Room

Spokesmen for delegates appearing before city council are to have the convenience of a podium at which to stand while addressing the city fathers.

The matter was brought up at yesterday's meeting of council when it was suggested that something to hold paper might be appreciated by delegation spokesmen while they were speaking to council.

Several of the aldermen thought it was a good idea although Alderman Jack Deacon in lighter vein said "there isn't anybody here who would have use for anything like that."

This, coming after discussion of an hour and a quarter on the proposed city public works have brought a chuckle from council members.

Officers Taken By Germans Not Mistreated

Captured by the Germans during World War 11, Dale King described the ritual in a German prison camp as a "life of boredom" as he addressed the Belleville Rotary Club dinner on Monday.

Mr. King, principal of the Point Anne Public School, spoke to the club on the "Great Escape" of which a film had been made. The film was shown here recently by Mr. King.

A flying officer in the Royal Canadian Air Force, Mr. King was shot down over Germany and was taken captive along with 1,500 other Canadian, American, Polish and British officers.

Relating experiences during his three-year stay in the camp Mr. King said he had never seen an officer mistreated by the Germans. All the men in the camp were officers of some sort and were treated as such by the Germans.

Many attempts had been made to escape the camp but only two attempts were successful in getting under the wire.

DESCRIBES CAMP

Mr. King described the camp with its small huts and goon boxes surrounded by a double barbed wire fence. Escape attempts were possible only under the fence, he said.

Goon boxes were described as lookout towers, overlooking the camp and were equipped with search lights and machine guns.

Mr. King said the Germans were referred to as "goons". Whether they were friendly or not they were still called goons.

The prisoners made friends with some of the Germans and in this way the possibility of escaping was made easier.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian F. Burrows and thanked on behalf of the club by Rotarian A. Stalker.

Guests and visiting Rotarians were introduced by Rotarian A. Stalker.

Industrial Commissioners Are Appointed by Council

Belleville's new Industrial Commission got its formal okay from city council yesterday, as members heard an organization summary from Mayor Arthur R. Ellis and approved appointment of directors to head the commission.

Directors of the Industrial Commission will be: Mayor Ellis, Alderman Frank C. Munray, with J. C. Houston, president of the Chamber of Commerce; T. N. Davidson, Ernest Kidd, H. M. Pedersen and J. J. Trudeau.

These men will be assisted by a advisory committee of approximately 25 members, chosen from the city at large, while plans are to hire a full time industrial commissioner. Budget for the first year's operations will be about $19,000, it was stated.

WILL BE INCORPORATED

The Commission will be incorporated under the laws of the province and will be empowered to take all proper steps to secure new industries for the city and to assist and encourage existing industries, and generally give publicity to the advantage of Belleville for business and manufacturing purposes.

Mayor Ellis submitted that formation of the commission would put Belleville in a very favorable position to actively solicit the location of new industries and would be the first step toward balancing the city's assessment.

In past years the manager of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce had acted in the dual role as industrial commissioner.

However, it was felt that a full time industrial commissioner was needed to achieve the desired results.

MUCH SPADE WORK

Mayor Ellis said a great deal of work had gone into investigation and planning for the new industrial commission set-up.

He said the commission would operate entirely apart from city council and would have power to acquire and sell land; with its directors and executive committee being in position to deal directly with industry and take action without referring matters back to council.

Mounties' Plan For Office Here Stalled

Further move toward the construction of a proposed RCMP headquarters building in the Flana Square area of East Belleville seems to be effectively stalled.

Saturday federal government authorities intimated there would be no further move until a full report on the matter was received, while last night city council passed a parks board recommendation asking that the city lots not be sold until the present board has had an opportunity to complete its survey of park facilities.

The three lots in question were deeded to the city by the sub-divider for park purposes but last year the parks board indicated it did not wish the lots for this purpose.

Then the RCMP offered to buy the lots as a site for construction of a combined residence and police headquarters.

But home owners in the area entered strong objection saying they did not want such a building in a residential area.

A BAS BRAHMS

MINEHEAD, England (Reuters) — Banners proclaiming "vive Brahms" were torn down Monday by 1,000 screaming Beatles fans in this quiet seaside town. The fans plunged into a five-foot ditch and rushed a fence and 40 policemen to see the Beatles, Britain's top popsinging group, arrive at the theatre for a film-making visit.

New Public Works Barn Still Bone of Contention Among Council Members

First talked of many years ago but with hopes that it might eventually be constructed this year, Belleville's proposed new public works barn is still a bone of contention by members of city council.

One faction of council approves of a new works barn on city-owned property east of the city sewage plant with an overall cost of $175,000.

Other members of council feel that the Houston Lumber Company property in Foster Ward should be purchased for city public works use.

Yesterday council argued the matter for well over an hour but failed to arrive at any clear cut decision.

Council did agree however to go ahead with its application to the Ontario Municipal Board to spend up to $175,000 for a new works barn.

WANT PROPERTY EXPLORED

Yesterday's discussion was touched off by a recommendation from Alderman Enos Davis and Donald Jose, who asked that the Houston property be thoroughly explored as to its suitability for public works use.

The recommendation asked that construction of a public barn on present city-owned property be not proceeded with until the Houston property was investigated.

Other members of council felt, however, that the motion was both premature and redundant, it being pointed out that a committee had already been appointed to investigate the Houston property but the report was not yet before council.

It was claimed that a recommendation of two weeks ago held up any further action on the works building project and till the report was received by council.

COULD SAVE MONEY

Alderman David said facilities at the Houston property would serve the public works department for from five to ten years and also save the city up to $100,000.

He said the property could be acquired by the city at a "give away price."

Alderman Donald Jose asked for the matter in order to ask questions regarding the committee report (which had not yet been placed before the council,) but he was ruled out of order.

"I am a little chagrined—that intelligent people would go into this thing around so," said Mayor Ellis.

"I ask Mayor Ellis to withdraw that remark," interjected Ald. Jose.

Mayor Ellis then read the committee's report on the Houston property. The report indicated that many of the buildings on the property would be useless for the works department and that costly renovations would be needed for others.

He said the committee had been told the purchase price would be $85,000, although later this price had been dropped to $60,000.

COST REASONABLE CLAIM

But neither Alderman Jose nor Alderman David was quite satisfied. While not questioning the integrity of the committee members, Ald. David felt that the entire council should see the property.

Alderman Jack Ellis said the cost of the Houston property was now reasonable and he felt that the city could save from $50,000 to $75,000 if it could be purchased at the rumored price.

"As representative of city taxpayers I cannot vote to spend $175,000 when we can get the Houston property to do the same thing," he said.

On question from Ald. Jose council was told by City Clerk Adam Stalker that 70 objections against proceeding with the city-owned site on the present city-owned site had been filed.

Alderman Frank Murray admitted that he was confused and also was getting "a bit tired" of long-winded discussions, which were getting nowhere.

QUESTIONED FIGURES

"Let's put the whole matter before the Ontario Municipal Board and let them decide," he urged.

Alderman Ben Corke said he too was getting tired of the discussions and suggested that Belleville citizens were also getting tired of having the city "carry on" and make do with substandard facilities.

He claimed that only 20 per cent of the buildings on the Houston property were worth saving.

"Surely for once we can go ahead and have a proper building for our works department," he said.

Alderman Jose questioned the special committee's price quotations for work which was claimed needed at the Hourton property to fit it for works department use.

He questioned a suggested item of $40,000 for site preparation and also an item of $10,000 for renovations to present office space.

COST QUESTIONED

He also questioned the $65,000 cost figure of the property, and said rumor was to the effect it could be purchased not yet before $40,000 or $45, 000.

In the end council voted 11-4 to continue with its application to the Ontario Municipal Board to spend up to $175,000 for a public works building.

In all probability the OMB will hold a hearing on the matter and if approval is given the way will be opened for another special discussion in council on whether a new building will be erected or whether further consideration should be given to the Houston property.

Belleville Presbyterial U.C.W. Hold Annual Meet at Napanee

The second annual meeting of United Church Women Belleville Presbyterial convened in Trinity United Church, Napanee, Wednesday and Thursday of last week. Mrs. R. H. Smithrim, Trenton, presided over all the sessions.

Mrs. K. Lipsey, president of the U.C.W. of Trinity Church and the minister, Rev. Ian Mackenzie, each extended a cordial welcome to the 'over 400' delegates.

Mrs. William Aylesworth, church organist, presided at the console and Mrs. F. B. Mills, member of Trinity Church choir, led the hymn singing. During the evening worship service led by Mrs. Robert Elliott of Selby, Mrs. Everson Price was soloist.

Other worship and Bible study periods were conducted by Mrs. Bryce Lord of Bethesda Belleville Bridge Street U.C.W. and Mrs. R. Brown of Morven U.C.W.

PANEL DISCUSSION

Rev. Alistair Haig, principal of Albert College, Belleville, and Mr. Alan Beasley, U.C. Brampton, with their wives held a panel discussion on the theme "Every Life". Members of this panel are to be commended for the high standard of spiritual values they endeavored to bring to their audiences. They dealt with Christianity in the family. Their frank interpretations always led to God's will and pointed the way to individual, the family, the community and even the world.

Mr. Beasley intimated many families in the church as well as outside it, are not standing up under the strain of every day involvements of worry and care and the leaders of the church must be trained and ready to help keep families together by Christian counseling. The church must be informed and give leadership.

Mrs. Beatty said, "All society is undergoing a change. The standards of values are changing with increasing wealth. We accept prosperity as a right. Material success as real progress — The accepted thing becomes the right thing. We need to do some soul searching and learn what God's plan is for us. Spiritual values are undergoing transition — Our faith must be made to stir our complacency. Let us have the courage to search for the Truth wherever it may lead us."

Mrs. Haig stated that "We are all involved in relationship — Marriage breaks down because we expect it to do what it never was meant to do. Marriage was not meant to cater to mother, father or the child. Many home live aimlessly with no purpose. The home must revolve around something great, powerful, basic and when Christ is made the centre of the home He makes all the difference. Prayer is an area that all too few families indulge in. "Mrs. Haig said "If we would but surrender to God our desires, our aspirations, we would find that God in Christ is the great cohesive in the home."

Rev. Alistair Haig, in finalizing the discussion, stated, "The deepest need of every human being is the need for love. Love is basic to health and wholesomeness. In the English language our one word 'love' has an amazing range of meanings but the Greeks had three words for love: (1) Eros — a very possessive, extremely selfish love — the love of desire and aspiration it is needful but not enough. (2) Philia — a good honest love, which is essential in a family relationship — a fathe. and son love where ideas may be shared — friendship love cementing the home together. (3) Agape. One cannot have this love until one is in divine relationship with God. No matter what sin is committed there is still love — not love of the sin but love for the sinner. This is what is needed in the home. To have it we have to be in right relationship with God. Agape love loves to the uttermost."

NEW CURRICULUM

On Thursday afternoon the Rev. Harry Seeley of Kingston outlined the new curriculum of the United Church. He said the new curriculum is something you work on instead of something you talk about. The books are to be studied — They are tools to be used — not to be read and filed away in a library. He exhibited a number of these study books and pamphlets. Mr. Seeley referred the new curriculum to the "Three M's". (1) Message which is the good news of God's redeeming love and salvation for His children as revealed in Jesus Christ who is conceived by the Holy Spirit, born of the virgin Mary, suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead and buried, the third day He rose from the dead, He ascended into heaven, and sitteth on the right hand of God the Father Almighty, from thence He shall come to judge the quick and the dead. (2) Method — He dealt with the way these study books are to be used in the Church School, the Kindergarten and Adult Christian Education groups. (3) Materials. He claims unless one has good material effective work cannot be done. Mr. Seeley challenged the U.C.W. to make sure every congregation has an active Christian Education Committee.

CHAIRMAN'S GREETINGS

The Reverend Maurice McLeod of Marmora brought greetings from the Belleville Presbytery of which he is chairman. Mrs. W. D. Weatherhead, Sharbot Lake, president of U.C.W. Conference, brought greetings from that body.

Mrs. Weatherhead also made an appeal for full time church workers, as well as referring to the aim and purpose of the organization "to unite all women . . . in the total mission of the church." Every congregation is supposed to be the body of Christ in the world. Then we should have a driving desire to fulfill the needs of the Church and the world. We should be a promoting organization. Christian service and understanding of the meaning of her responsibility. We should be promoting a deepening of our spiritual life. Mrs. Lee of the Church in Canada and overseas. Mrs. Weatherhead said "Let us be busy with fund-raising, offering projects, when we receive the sincere love of God in our hearts, then we shall not be withhold the gifts of our money."

Following the treasurer's report given by Mrs. C. W. Smith, Belleville, Mrs. H. A. Coulter, chairman of finance, presented the 1964 allocation of $33,551.-

Mrs. Keith Bray, Ivanhoe, Christian Stewardship and reported that it had received a letter from the Board of Women of the United Church of Canada, inquiring that it be made known throughout the Presbyterial that short term missionaries are required for overseas mission stations. This is a thrilling adventure for dedicated High School teachers or graduate nurses.

Mrs. Secretaries' reports were in mimeographed form and were available for each U.C.W. represented.

INTRODUCE LITERATURE

The literature was introduced in a unique dialogue form by Mrs. Kenneth Weaver, Mrs. C. W. Sine and Mrs. R. Duffin all of the Stirling area. A supposed library where an ardent reader invited a new-comer to stop in with her while she exchanged her books. Result — another "informed" U.C.W. member. There was a splendid display of literature in care of these ladies. Also there were numerous posters hanging in view to give information and guidance on the affairs of United Church Women.

Mrs. Clarence Holmes, Belleville, chairman of the Nominating Committee presented the new slate of officers and the Reverend Ian Johnston installed the 1964 Executive and pronounced the Benediction.

'A Revolution in French Canada' Topic at Canadian Club

Speaking on an intricate and complex subject, Mr. Norbert Prefontaine, Executive Director of the Canadian Centenary Council addressed the Canadian Club of Belleville and District at the regular meeting held in Queen Elizabeth School last evening.

Mr. Prefontaine, who was introduced by the Club president, Mrs. J. H. Forrester spoke on the topic "A Revolution in French Canada" but preferred to define it as a reconnaissance of a quiet unspoken revolution of the French speaking Canadian.

He opened his remarks by saying that one cannot fully understand the aspirations of the French speaking Canadian unless he himself has not yet said what he does want. "This is not a simple problem" the speaker said, "part of the answer lies with Canada as a whole, the rest is up to Quebec itself and with the individual himself."

Mr. Prefontaine, who taught English and history and tutored in English (French and mathematics in Montreal) went on to explain that the spirit of the confederation of 1867 was important to them, then the letter itself. According to the Canadian Bureau of Statistics one third of the population of Canada is British, one third is French and the other third a number of nationalities with English being the predominant one, only English even though their cultural tradition is not. French speaking Canadians are moving from coast to coast and the speaker dealt in particular with the percentage in each province from east to west.

REASONS FOR UNREST

The main reasons for unrest are social and economic problems. The two main ethnic groups tend to forget the third group in a fully Canadian as they are. Mr. Prefontaine dealt with the current happenings in Quebec, explaining these as a "coming of age" so to speak, with the matters in social, cultural and religious beliefs being assessed and experimented, or as a re-examining of traditional patterns and a possibility for the individual to really express himself. Quebec wants to control her own destiny. The majority of the electorate are French and more control in the steel or electrical industry which provides their bread and butter than wondering about the heads of government. Their social patterns are changing rapidly.

People of all areas are coming together to compare notes, and there is an emergence of the French speaking Protestant voice.

The speaker also noted the relationship of the Quebec French with the other French speaking Canadians across Canada. All are affected by the political patterns and the political trends in Quebec. One of the main factors in demand here is the complete revision of the constitution of the British North America Act, with the shrill voices of the separatists always make the headlines, but the demands of the speaker felt, were not the overall views of French speaking Canada. If French speaking minorities are given special privileges then other minority groups will expect the same. He also stated that separatism in British Columbia was just as intense as Quebec, but for different reasons.

RULE OF MAJORITY

"Canada," the speaker explained, "should become bicultural or bilingual unless the majority wants it. Unity in diversity is necessary rather than unity in conformity." One of the surest, sure spots in the battle to the English and French speaking Canadian is the civil service problem. Soon now one must be bilingual. Mr. Prefontaine also dealt with the proper position of Canada in Ottawa and in comparison described the difference between a house and a home.

The speaker emphatically declared that important factor is not to billingualize all Canadians but those who need or want it should have the opportunity.

French speaking Canada has a lot to learn—and a lot to give. These should be a human quality beyond the language, otherwise it is mere theory. What French Canada wants is a full fledged recognition of the English and French speaking Canadian is the civil service problem. Soon now one must be bilingual. Mr. Prefontaine also dealt with the proper position of Canada in Ottawa and in comparison described the difference between a house and a home.

QUOTES LETTER

The speaker concluded by quoting a letter from a Californian Santa Claus which appeared in the editorial column of the Ottawa Citizen. This seemed to be the spirit of the people and that is what is needed, doing their own work on their farm and living quietly. Mrs. Way is a life member of Bowerman's W. A.

Mr. and Mrs. Way have seven children, 17 grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren. Their eldest son, Mr. Selden Way of Rochester, N.Y., was unable to be with them but he telephoned his parents during the evening.

Shaky Romance Is Killed By a Toothpick Incident

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — The title of my story could be, "The Romance that was killed by a Toothpick."

I was becoming seriously interested in a gentleman whose object was matrimony. I found him attractive, intelligent, considerate and excellent company. We had a great deal in common and I began to look forward to our evenings together.

Last night we were having dinner in a fine restaurant. After the dessert he reached into his vest pocket and took out a toothpick. For almost five minutes he sat there cleaning his teeth. I nearly became nauseated. My feelings of affection and admiration for him died then and there.

Am I wrong or is it the height of bad manners to use a toothpick at the table? Shouldn't the gentleman have excused himself?

Please print my letter. It may help others — for whom it is not too late. — PAST TENSE.

DEAR TENSE — A romance that could be felled by a toothpick wasn't much to begin with.

Talk about throwing out the baby with the bath water, you're the living end, Petunia.

A man who is "attractive, intelligent, considerate, excellent company and interested in matrimony" certainly sounds worth a little patience and tactful instruction. One well-phrased sentence might have salvaged the situation.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A neighbor who visits me often is crazy about our small child. Whenever I correct the boy the neighbor makes some little remark such as "We'll get even with her for that." Or, "My but mommy gets mean, doesn't she?" Sometimes the neighbor just laughs at me and encourages the child to laugh at me, too.

I am not mean to my son, but I believe in discipline. I'm afraid the neighbor is undermining me in small but important ways. My husband says I must be imagining things but he doesn't like the neighbor either. The facts as outlined by you certainly makes the poor woman look foolish. I am especially alert to this sort of things when people write to me about a relative's problem and request that it be published verbatim.

If your sister wants my advice she can send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers in care of this paper. I will be happy to help her if I can.

Steamed Ginger Pudding With Foamy Ginger Sauce

by Mary Moore

A request for a Steamed Ginger Pudding came and it intrigued me so much I made it for a guest dinner and added a delicious sauce that brought it up to company fare. I'm grateful to Edith S. for the idea.

TUESDAY Guests

Dinner Menu

Barbecued Spareribs; Baked Jacket Potatoes; Broccoli with Cheese Sauce; Gold and White Spring Salad (see Monday); Apple Crumb; Pouring Cream; Tea.

STEAMED GINGER PUDDING WITH FOAMY GINGER SAUCE (serves 6-

¼ cup butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 small eggs, 1½ cups sifted cake or all-purpose flour, 2¼ teaspoons baking powder, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon powdered ginger, ¼ to ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ¾ cup milk.

Cream together the butter and sugar until very light and fluffy. Beat an eggs very well. Sift together the sifted flour, baking powder, salt and spices. Fold in alternately with the milk in 3 additions.

Turn into buttered mould, preferably with lid. (Note: You need a mould of over 4-cup capacity to allow for expansion. A 3-lb. shortening can will do because it will have a snugly fitting lid. If your pudding mould is not fitted with a lid tie it down snugly with thick buttered paper.) Lower into the pot or steamer with lid, having boiling water come halfway up sides. Steam 1½ or 2 hours. Serve hot turned out on serving plate with

Foamy Ginger Sauce;

¼ cup milk, ½ cup cream (or use 1 cup milk and no cream), yolks 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons sugar, 2 tablespoons sherry wine (optional), ½ teaspoon vanilla, ¼ teaspoon salt, whites 2 eggs, 1-3 cup chopped candied ginger.

Scald milk and cream in top of double boiler. Beat yolks with sugar until very light. Scald some hot milk into yolks, then return yolk-mixture to double boiler and stir until slightly thickened. Remove from heat. Add sherry, if used, vanilla and salt. Beat egg whites until stiff and gently fold egg mixture into them until blended. Fold in chopped ginger. This sauce was a terrific success and could be used on other steamed puddings, such as steamed carrot pudding or baked cottage pudding. Or you may omit the candied ginger when you will have Foamy Sauce which may be used on steamed plum pudding.

I hope you will try this unusual mid-winter pudding, which is quite economical too.

Physical Defects Not Essential When Adopting

DEAR DORIS — Could you please tell me something about adoption. My husband and I have been married for five years and have tried to have a baby without success. We are both in good health. . . .

We are now thinking of adoption, but have been told by many people that to be able to adopt we must have some physical fault that prevents pregnancy, which apparently is not the case with us. Is this true?

We can afford a baby quite easily. I am worried about going to the adoption agency in case they turn us down for this very reason, i.s., that we have no physical defect. — WANTING .

DORIS CLARK

DEAR WANTING — It just isn't so. But it does happen astonishingly often that once your application is in, you proceed to have a baby of your own! Sometimes you are asked to wait a little longer for nature to take a hand.

For peace of mind, make an appointment right now with the worker at your local child care agency. These questions are being asked and answered every day.

DEAR DORIS — My girl friend and I belong to an organization in which we must know the Creed and tell what it means. My girl friend doesn't belong to this church and therefore thinks she should not learn the Creed. Should she or shouldn't she? WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING — Either she learns it or leaves. Is she afraid it will contaminate her to know a little about the church which allows her, a non-member, the privilege of belonging to one of its groups?

DEAR DORIS — My parents don't seem to understand me very well. But worst of all they don't trust me; that is, they don't believe what I say most of the time.

Because of this we have fights, and go without speaking for weeks. What should I do? Please try to help me. — MISBELIEVED.

DEAR MISBELIEVED — You and a million or so others. Every day we see evidence that the happiest, most poised adults, the ones who make the best marriages, are those who can talk to their parents, about anything and everything, and have done so since they were kneehigh to a grasshopper.

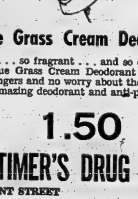
Yet the mothers and dads of said million or so — or many, many more — go on putting up a wall between their eager young people and themselves. They seem to dare their unwilling hopefuls to batter it down. And not with any help from them!

All I can say is, since it is left to you to change things, try first to examine your own trustworthiness. Then make an effort to break the hostile silence with a gesture of friendliness. Resolve to say nothing — absolutely nothing — calculated to sting.

DEAR DORIS — When people get married, does it mean that the husband must always be discourteous to his wife — be disgruntled — make home atmosphere unpleasant — use all his smiles and kindness in words and thoughtfulness for their friends — be openly critical of anything the wife says or does — never, and I mean never, remember a special occasion such as a wedding anniversary, birthday or Christmas?

This describes my husband and, for over 20 years, I loved him so much that I was able to overlook all these things. But a recent hush-hush tete-a-tete in our own home between him and my best friend has given my love such a jolt that every day my better judgment tells me to leave him.

Do you think that he can possibly have even a regard for me let alone love? — LONELY WIFE.



DEAR WIFE — What a perfect blow-by-blow description of the deliberate destruction of a marriage! I cannot feel that your disgruntled swain is in love with anyone but himself.

Obviously your love-conquers-all attitude never got through to his better side. Whether you give him up or not is up to you; but I have it on good authority that even a worm will turn!

Confidential to LOVE TEARS — Then shed a tear, but give him up. When you look the facts straight in the face you'll see that you've lost him anyway.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: Maybe I'm getting old, but sometimes I don't get a person's name correctly when I'm introduced, especially when I meet a group of people for the first time. Some hostesses make introductions so fast that it's difficult to pinpoint which name goes with what face. When this happens, is it permissible to ask her to repeat names you don't catch? I find it embarrassing to have to grope for a name only five minutes after I've been introduced to a person. How is this sort of situation tactfully handled? — Mrs. H. V., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Answer: Whenever you're introduced to new people; try repeating the names as the hostess goes along. As she mentions names, say "How do you do Mr. Smith, Miss Smith, Miss Jones," etc. If there are just a few people, and you miss one or two names, indicate this to the hostess as she'll repeat those you slipped up on.

When the.e's a larger group and the hostess isn't trying to make rapid-fire introductions o she can get back to the door to meet other new arrivals, a guest often has to make do with whatever names he can salvage! Later, when speaking with a fellow guest whose name you didn't catch in the hubbub, it's permissible to ask him to repeat his name. As a matter of fact, it's usually better to introduce yourself at the same time, in the event the other person is in the same boat you aren't remember your name either.

Legion L. A. Enjoys Bowling

In the grade 2 to 6 class Heather MacDonald whose topic was "An Outstanding Scientist" was the winner with several going to Brenda Jones and third to Peggy Allen.

Not in the contest but appealing at the start of the program were three grade 1 pupils from St. Carthagh's, Elizabeth Ann Le Jeune, Leona Courneyea and Debbie Latendie.

Book Teaches Waitresses How to Serve the Public, Explains Dishes' Names

By FRANK SULLIVAN

HALIFAX (CP)—Unless you are a regular restaurant patron or an expert in culinary art, you may be puzzled when the menu lists duchess potatoes or meat au jus.

Perhaps you asked your waitress about the words chateaubriand, compote, a la carte or table d'hote.

Jean Roda, supervisor of, accommodations and facilities for the Nova Scotia government, has written a book that teaches waitresses the answers to these questions and many more. It's part of the government's effort to maintain standards of the restaurant and hotel business.

She based the book on courses she gives for dining room and restaurant staffs in Nova Scotia. Complimentary copies have been sent to government departments in other Canadian provinces, and orders for the book, plus two manuals for its use as a course of instruction, are coming in from many parts of Canada and the United States.

The three units sell for $1 each and are being bought by tourist bursaus, restaurants, hotels and schools for training waitresses.

DESERVE MORE CREDIT

"I realized the importance of waitresses as public relations personnel," Miss Roda says, explaining why she wrote the book. "This important job is not given the credit it deserves.

"At the present time there are no training facilities for waitresses here. An operator must do his own training or try to get experienced girls, whose previous training may not be good."

A well-organized manual on techniques of serving and dealing with the public, the book, entitled Every Customer Is My Guest, includes discussion of salesmanship, courtesy, efficiency, grooming and sanitation. The multitude of names associated with various dishes are explained.

And if your waitress didn't know when you asked, here are some of the answers:

Duchess potatoes are pureed and spiced, shaped by squeezing through a pastry tube, browned and served with pimiento.

Meat au jus means it's served in its own gravy.

Compote is fruit preserved in syrup.

Table d'hote means the price includes the complete dinner, and a la carte means you pay for each item you order.

HELPS BUILDERS

Miss Roda's job keeps her busy traveling around the province visiting hotels and restaurants or attending courses or conventions in other parts of Canada and the United tates.

Her duties include giving advice to prospective builders of public accommodation on such things as interior decoration, landscaping, heating and sound conditioning.

Born in St. Peter's on Cape Breton Island and educated in New Glasgow, Miss Roda came to Halifax in '56 and joined the accommodation and inspection staff, an operation that employs women inspectors instead of the usual men.

She has taken summer school courses at Cornell and Michigan State universities and has attended executive development courses given by the American Hotel Association.

Every Customer Is My Guest is her first attempt at writing a book.

"I'd also like to do a book on hotel housekeeping and another on management of small food service operation, if I ever find the time."

Will Be Miracle if Picton Tax Rate Is Not Increased

PICTON — It will be a miracle if the mill rate does not go up in Picton. A last night's council meeting some of the committees had their budgets in; others were not ready.

Herbert J. Colliver, the town's representative on the Prince Edward Collegiate Board informed council that he did not have his budget figures ready due to what he described as "the complexity of provincial grants." He gave figures, which he made certain the council understood were by no means the final figures, and told council that the budget for the high school will be up about $10,000 which figures out to about two mills on the tax rate.

"I don't think we will lose many teachers this year at the high school," Mr. Colliver reported. He promised to have the budget figures ready in about ten days' time, which will be in plenty time for the annual budget meeting.

Mr. W. W. Evans presented the 1964 budget for Picton public schools. The budget for the coming year will be $202,362 which Picton's levy would be $100,777.

Geraldine McAlpine, secretary-treasurer of Picton Separate school board, presented council with its budget for the coming year in the amount of $22,801. Picton's share comes to $8,902.

WILL HAVE TO BUILD

Mr. Evans' report further stated that the enrolment population in Picton Public Schools to be 856. As soon as the maximum capacity of 900 is reached, the people of Picton will be faced with the building of a new six-room school. The suggestion of the board was that property out on Talbot Street would be acceptable.

Fire Chief J. Nelson Bell in after more money for his volunteer fireman, this time an increase of $150 per year. The Fire Committee recommended that the Fire Chief be given $900 per year as car allowance.

Councillors Robert Walmsley, Andrew Jarvis, and Deputy - Reeve Don Thompson were appointed as a committee to meet with the P.U.C. to see if the price of $100 per year rental for the 97 hydrants cannot be reduced to $50 per unit. Councillor Jarvis reported that "some of the hydrants are at least 60 years old, many over 40 years. I feel we have paid more than our share".

Parking Area Outlined at Council Meet

PICTON (Staff) — A blue print of the proposed parking area behind the stores on Main St., was shown by Deputy Reeve Don Thompson at last night's regular session. The plan calls for spaces to park 68 cars plus a 20' roadway immediately behind the stores for loading and unloading. This is plus the spaces for about 45 cars behind the Royal Hotel and beside the temporary building of the Bank of Nova Scotia. There was no estimate of cost.

A letter from D. E. Taylor of the Prince Edward Historical Society was read at last night's meeting. In this letter, Mr. Taylor stated that the society is very strongly opposed to the Shire Hall renovations and additions to the Registry office being considered as a Centennial project.

Don Thompson told council that Clerk Tom Walker of County Council had visited Picton, and was given verbal assurance that the project, as proposed after recent county council meeting would receive approval.

In asking for the support Reeve Barney Hepburn said, "I want to see why the society should point out Picton Council. I feel that they should go to County Council with their complaint. I further feel that if the other municipalities go along with the county, that we should too." When he asked for a show of hands, it was unanimous that Picton go along with the county.

Charles Barber Is Appointed As Councillor

PICTON (Staff) — At the regular monthly meeting of the Picton town council last night, Charles A. Barber, owner of a ladies'-ready-to-wear store in Picton, was named councillor to replace Councillor George Morden for the balance of a two-year term. The term expires at the end of this year. Councillor Morden resigned to accept a position as one of the four county assessment officers.

The tender of McKee Motors, Inc., in the amount of $7,547, was accepted for the supplying of a new dump truck for the town. The 27,000 pounds vehicle will be used also as a snow plow. The lowest tender, that of McKee Motors, was just $11 lower than the second tender. So for this, the town is getting a heavier unit.

Former town assessor Len. J. Trim advised council by letter that he could not accept the position of tax collector for the town at an annual salary of $600.

Town treasurer Wilfred McArthur was appointed tax collector at the $600 per year. Mr. McArthur said he was not, as yet, "out of the unemployment throat," but told council that the tax collector's job could not be considered as a full-time employment and was only worth the $600 per year.

Town treasurer McArthur will receive a $500 hike in annual pay if the recommendation of the Finance Committee is accepted at budget time. "This is not more than adequate recompense for the wonderful job he is doing," said councillor Andrew Jarvis.

WOULD CONSIDER OFFERS

It was also suggested that the offices of town clerk, now held by Mr. Harold McLoughlin and that of town treasurer, held by Mr. McArthur, be combined as one. It was explained that the salary for the job would not be too much more than the two jobs now pay. Only stickler is that neither of the men want the job.

The extension of parking meters on east and west portions of Main Street will be considered at a later date. Deputy Reeve Don Thompson told council that a check had been made of the meters at the west end of Main Street and the collection amounted to only a handful of pennies. It was thought by the Parking and Traffic Committee that spending $4,500 for additional meters was not good judgment at this time.

His Worship Mayor Harvey J. McFarland left a hospital bed in Kingston to attend this meeting of council. After about an hour he begged to be excused, as he has to be back in hospital early Tuesday morning.

William Lane appeared on behalf of John Clare asking the blessings of council to a proposal of Mr. Clare that council rezone a residential area on Bridge Street East, so that a 10-12 unit motel be erected.

Council suggested that Mr. Clare present his plans and specifications to the Planning Board, after which the council would give its every consideration.

Council passed a by-law prohibiting the erection of poles, posts, etc., on town property.

"Better take down the street lights," quipped Councillor Randy Clapp.

OVERTIME HEAVY

Council was told in the finance report that there was too much overtime being paid to the employees of the streets and property department.

Fred Juby, town foreman, took objection to this, as he said "this is a direct reflection on me, as I O.K. all of the overtime. There was less overtime this year than last year. There also was no overtime that was not absolutely necessary," he added.

Acting Mayor Reeve Barney Hepburn backed up Mr. Juby when he said," when a contractor is laying black top, they might start at 6 a.m. and be still going at 9 p.m. and we must have staff on hand to check the contractor. On top of this, it would be penny-wise and pound - foolish to take a man off a necessary piece of machinery that he knows how to operate and let an inexperienced man run it rather than pay some overtime."

"I don't think that Finance Chairman Reeve Bird put the proper amount of consideration into this report. I am sorry he is not present tonight—I for one, do not think we are paying out too much overtime," he added. Councillor Bird is temporarily confined to hospital.

A recommendation of the streets and sewer committee that the county be allowed to connect a sewer line to the town sewer from the County Home was accepted. The county is hiring an engineer to make an engineering survey to determine the adequacy of the present sewer line. He will start on this job this week.

A consulting engineer will be hired to survey the area on Bridge St. East with a view to extending the sanitary sewers in that area. This would, of course, benefit the proposed motel site on Bridge St. East.

The streets and property committee will meet with the finance committee to plan ways and means of financing urgent projects essential to the public welfare and convenience. This would include the town garage, and the Main St. West extension of sewers.

Assessors Will Need to Carry Tape Measure

PICTON (Staff) — The County Assessors will have to carry a tape measure with them when they are out making calls, if a plan submitted to town council is approved.

County council submitted a form to be filled out by the assessors telling not only the type, and sex of any dog owned, but the color, short or long hair — and — the length of the tail.

RAILWAY PIONEER

The opening of the Stockton to Darlington line in 1825 and the Liverpool to Manchester run in 1830 launched a century of railway development.

Lives Threatened Say Co-Chairmen Of Commission

VICTORIA (CP) — The co-chairmen of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism said Monday their lives have been threatened in anonymous telephone calls.

A. Davidson Dunton and Andre Laurendeau told a press conference the calls have come from both French and English-speaking extremists.

Asked how many calls they had received, the two men smiled and replied: "Not many."

Mr. Dunton said he had received "more than one call indicating the possibility of physical violence" unless he took a particular course in commission hearings.

The co-chairmen were here for an informal luncheon meeting with Premier Bennett at which they planned to ask him for co-operation in their attempts to determine what French and other language programs are being offered in B.C. schools.

If You Smoke And Can't Quit Stop Worrying

VANCOUVER (CP) — If you really can't give up smoking it's better to stop worrying and live dangerously.

That's the opinion of Dr. Benjamin Pelstone, professor of radiology at the University of Cincinnati medical school. He told an interviewer Monday the tobacco scare could result in "a whole generation of psycho - neurotics scared of cancer of the lung."

"People who can't stop smoking call me up and tell me: 'I think I have cancer.' "If you smoke, it doesn't mean you're going to get it. Obviously it won't do you any good but not all those who smoke will get it.

"For those who can't quit, they should remember there's some danger in everything you do and maybe living dangerously, like smoking, isn't altogether bad.

Some snippets from the debate:

Hugh John Flemming (PC—Victoria-Carleton), former premier of New Brunswick, said the government "should have look and investigate" before joining the province in a 50-50 cost-sharing agreement of the $100,000,000-plus power project at Mactaquac on the Saint John River, upstream from Fredericton.

He said the project would destroy the "most beautiful river valley" likely would ruin salmon stocks, flood churches and cemeteries and drastically change the appearance of the Nashwaak valley.

Robert Prittie (NDP—Burnaby-Richmond), calling for a central passenger facility in the Red Ensign for Canada's official flag, suggested a "white flag" be a compromise. He said it would keep the Union Jack and the Maple Leaf background, on which would be a large green maple leaf surrounded by three royal blue fleurs-de-lis.

Barry Mather (NDP — New Westminster) said the flag falling limit that exempts American fishermen — allows them to fish within the 12-mile limit. "May do more harm than good to the industry and the fishermen." He made an example of government backsliding.

Marcel Prud'homme, newly-elected Liberal MP for Monteal St. Denis, appealed to Canadians to ignore the extremist, emotional statements of politicians and Creditistes. He said the country needs calm approach to serious problems and fewer sensational television speeches and press conferences.

Epilepsy

psychomotor epileptics do: Murders, criminal activities, etc. . . That is nonsense."

When he read this, Belli ran down the corridor toward the judge's chambers.

In the office, Belli confronted Maurice A. Mellford, medical director of the National Epilepsy League. Medford contended he had brought the 200 pamphlets from Chicago to inform reporters about epilepsy.

Mellford disclosed he had telephoned the district attorney's office last Friday and told them he was coming. Belli replied:

"We ask a mistrial all down the line!"

Judge Brown told Mellford "you have a right to put out anything you want to. My only contention is that you should not do it in this courthouse." Mellford apologized.

Belli obtained subpoenas for Mellford and two employees of a Dallas public relations firm who had assisted him.

In court, Belli moved for a mistrial and Brown refused.

"None of the prospective jurors received any of these pamphlets," Brown said.

ment. Mr. Hebert said Coffin was railroaded to appease United States bodies putting pressure on Quebec.

The book asked whether Coffin would have been hanged if the hole had been entered as evidence. Mr. Hebert regarded it as possibly a key piece of evidence since the date "13-52"—the month missing—might have given Coffin an alibi.

The prosecutor was able to prove he had gone to Montreal June 12, 1953, Mr. Hebert said.

Entered as evidence at the royal commission, the note is addressed to a Mr. Wilfrid and reads:

"No . . . Lindsay at Ca . . . in Murray . . . Gee . . .

LEFT PARTY

QPP Deputy Inspector Jules Prudette, 47, who was in the Gaspe detachment in 1953, testified that Wilfrid Carter was a well-known Gaspe resident and had led one of the search parties.

He believed the note was addressed to Carter and read:

Missing were Eugene Lindsay, 47, his son Richard, 17, and a friend, Frederick Clear, 20, all of Hollidaysburg, Pa. Coffin was convicted of the shooting of Richard Lindsay.

Francois Gravel, lawyer for Coffin's family, asked what right Insp. Prudette had to decide what was evidence and wasn't.

NOT HIS DECISION

Insp. Prudette said he hadn't made the decisions. The note had been turned over to Sgt. Henri Doyon, in charge of the detachment. Doyon was dismissed from the QPP in 1961.

St. Georges Farard, 32, who was in Gaspe in 1953, testified that two Canadian whisky bottles — one partly empty — had been found on the scene.

Raymond Daoust, one of Mr. Hebert's lawyers, corrected Cpl. Farard—saying that the brand wasn't made in Canada in 1953, only in the United States.

Pierre - Elliott Trudeau, another Montreal lawyer representing Mr. Hebert, asked why fingerprints hadn't been taken from the bottles.

Cpl. Faford replied that police weren't even aware when the bodies were found the cottage had been committed.

Examination of the bodies later led to the discovery that the men had been shot.

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist University students have started a John F. Kennedy memorial scholarship fund for children of policemen and firemen killed on duty. About $30,000 is already in the fund. President Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas Nov. 22. Lee Harvey Oswald, the alleged assassin, was also charged with slaying Dallas policeman J. D. Tippit the same afternoon.

ers, perhaps in a few days. Ontario Agriculture Minister W.A. Stewart said in the legislature he would not comment on the situation because of the current talks in Ottawa.

About 900 farmers gathered at a protest meeting in Aylmer Monday night and unanimously approved a resolution to keep the three tobacco plants closed until some solution to their problem is found.

No violence has been reported at any of the three centres.

One industry source said a majority of farmers favor a return to the system of grading all tobacco and establishing a minimum price for each grade.

In 1962-63 floor prices were set for each grade of tobacco ranging from minimums of 61¼ cents a pound for top grades to a low of 37½ cents a pound.

The federal government provides a price support level of 90 per cent of the pound in force effect if the average price of the crop falls below the definite level, except for the lower grades of tobacco.

Another source said the 1963 tobacco crop in Ontario contained a higher than normal percentage of green tobacco which has the effect of lowering the readily absorb. Ontario government officials have said that the actual quality of the lower grades of tobacco that are affected by the price support.

It is believed the farmers do not want to return to the pre-1962 days when the government purchased tobacco from individual farmers. Under the Farm Products Marketing Act of 1957 tobacco must be sold through auctions at Tillsonburg, Aylmer and Delhi.

The three centres operate on an auction system in which prices start high and drop until a buyer is found. Until this year's auction there was a guaranteed minimum price below which the tobacco could not be sold.

The marketing board dropped the floor price system this year and decided to use an open market setup in which buyers may bid as low as they wish.

At the Aylmer meeting, Ivan Tait of Aylmer, a former director of the board, said the report of the tobacco inquiry committee presented in the legislature was a complete repudiation of scientific marketing. He labelled the report brutal.

Tait said every major recommendation is already a part of the drastic changes in growing and marketing procedure forced on tobacco farmers by the provincial government and the board this past season," he said.

A complaint of the Port Hope group was that farmers from their area were becoming dissatisfied with paying cartage costs to the auction centres.

Spokesman Mr. Milgrims, vice-chairman of the marketing board, said in Delhi that closing of the exchanges might convince the government something was radically wrong under the present auctioning system.

Plane Missing

HALIFAX (CP)—Two RCAF planes from Greenwood, N.S., began a search today for a light aircraft missing on a flight to the Magdalen Islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

The RCAF said an Albatross and a Dakota were in the area of the Magdalens and the weather was reported good.

Missing is a Piper Cub piloted by D. Campbell who left Shediac, N.B., Monday and was reported to have turned back after finding he was unable to land on the Magdalens because of fog. The plane was believed owned by Hicks and Lawrence Air Services of Tillsonburg, Ont.

Two other aircraft that left Alberton, P.E.I., early Monday for the Magdalens turned up safely after being reported overdue.

Newfoundlanders Reap

A Fur Harvest From the Sea

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

"Blanch men we be of the frozen sea, we sealers of Newfoundland."

They're probably just as stalwart today as when his old sealing poem was written but there are a lot fewer "sprits to the ice" this spring than in 1897, when 400 vessels and 13,000 men took part in the hunt.

The four Newfoundland and four Nova Scotia ships now being outfitted for the annual seal hunt off Canada's East Coast will carry fewer than 500 men, most of them Newfoundlanders.

The Sir John Crosby, at 2,000 tons the largest ship of the Canadian fleet, will make her second voyage to the ice. Owned by Crosbie Shipping Company of St. John's, Nfld., she will carry a sealing crew of 100. Lea Windsor will be master.

The youngest ship of the fleet, she can stow 90,000 pelts as her passenger load.

Like the rest of Newfoundland fleet, she will head for the "front" — the southeastern edge of the vast Arctic icefield drifting down the island's northeast coast from somewhere on the front opens March 10.

FORMER NAVY TUG

Algerine, a former U.S. Navy tug now owned by Job Bros. & Company Brothers of St. John's, is a veteran of many springs at the front. She will be skippered by Capt. Job Kean and with luck her 80-man crew will load to capacity with 10,000 pelts.

The Kyle, last coal - burning steamship owned in Newfoundland, will also have a 100 men ring Brothers of St. John's, is a veteran of many springs at the front. She will be skippered by Capt. Job Kean and with luck her 80-man crew will load to capacity with 10,000 pelts.

The Kyle, last coal - burning steamship owned in Newfoundland, will also have a 100 men from Carbonear on Conception Bay under Capt. Guy Earle, her owners; the Viking of Lloyd Tait of Aylmer, a former director of the board, said the report of the tobacco inquiry committee presented in the legislature was a complete repudiation of scientific marketing. He labelled the report brutal.

SEALERS GO TO THE ICE

Eight sealing vessels — four from Newfoundland and four from Nova Scotia — soon will head up the northeastern coast of Newfoundland for the annual hunt.

The crews, made up mostly of Newfoundlanders, operate on the "Front" — the southern edge of the vast Arctic icefield, on which the seals migrate. Map shows migration routes.

The older seals are apt to give trouble, especially the hoods. The seal has an air sack above his nose which is inflated at the first sign of danger. Blow from a gaff will only bounce off. Hoods have been known to bite gaffs in two.

The sealing ships carry gunners to deal with the hoods and old harps. Favorite weapon is a .303 rifle but until a few years ago muzzle-loaders still were used.

Concern for the seal herds has been expressed in recent years by various authorities. The International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries, of which Canada is a member, is considering whether a limit should be placed on kills.

don't think there is any danger. I am sure most of the people will welcome the Queen."

Raymond Dube, editor - in-chief of the Quebec City daily newspaper Le Soleil, said he sees no reason for cancelling the visit.

It is obviously a little more risky than under normal circumstances," he said, "but I am convinced that the majority of the people want to see it visit us and will have a warm reception in store for her."

The Queen is to visit both Charlottetown and Quebec City next October in celebration of the 1864 conferences that led to Confederation. Present plans do not call for her to visit any other place in Quebec.

QUESTION MOTIVE

Le Devoir, in an editorial by Paul Sauriol, said the visit "may have a political bearing," since certain people would be considering on a warm welcome to prove Quebec is loyal to the crown and to Confederation.

"In a certain sense one can speak of provocation, since it is a superfluous and useless celebration," the best thing would be to cancel an event that threatens to do more harm than good."

La Presse, in an editorial by Vincent Prince, said Mr. Chaput must have exaggerated when saying the Queen's life could be endangered "but no police control can stop terrorists and big suits."

The separatist, particularly militant ones, the visit would constitute an affront. "Why permit in a spirit of provocation of certain elements of our population at a time when Quebec is asked to remain calm and moderate?"

The central council of the University Social Democratic Association adopted a resolution Monday saying the Queen would run "serious risks" in visiting "the State of Quebec. The students of the University of Montreal would prefer to see her remain in her own kingdom, the United Kingdom."

INCREASING RAPIDLY

By 1963, there were 11,000 stores in Britain operating partly or wholly on self-serving lines, compared with 500 in 1950.

Overseas Volunteers Must Adapt Selves to Situations

By RUSSELL ELMAN

ENMORE, British Guiana (CP)—When 25-year - old Rod Geary, a 1963 University of Toronto graduate, volunteered to do community work on a sugar estate here no one tipped him about having to dance with the mother of the bride at a wedding of East Indians.

Nor was Jill Schallenberg, another young Toronto - grad, told that her YWCA job in Georgetown might land her a ballerina's role in British Guiana's first full - scale musical comedy.

But they, like other Canadian University Service Overseas volunteers in the Caribbean, soon learned that to make the best of their assignments they must adapt themselves to all kinds of situations.

"After all, I'm here to understand how people live and work," said Rod, a native of Welland, Ont., whose home now is Cookville, Ont.

Most CUSO volunteers are teachers or engaged in youth or community work. Normally CUSO pays their fares and the sponsoring organization — Government or private—in the country pays a salary comparable to that earned by local people doing the same job. The volunteers in British Guiana are given a small allowance.

NEW CHALLENGE

Haney, a former newsreporter with The Canadian Press in Toronto, doesn't find much direct application for his studies in economics and political science on the 14,000-acre Enmore sugar estate which provides a living for several thousand families.

"The work is all new to me," he says. "I came prepared to do anything."

Working alongside an East Indian welfare officer, his basic directives are to work with the boys, and establish a youth club program and youth leadership training course.

One thing he had to learn from the start was how to play cricket, the national sport in this self-governing British colony. Another was how to make posters to encourage use of the community centre and sports ground.

"The main problem really is to stimulate interest and get people to come out to the centre," he says.

HAS BUSY DAY

In a society where white people normally enjoy high living standards, the CUSO volunteer lives in a sparsely - furnished room, formerly a kitchen, in the community centre. He takes his meals at the home of the Indian welfare officer. His only luxury is a motor scooter, since most CUSO volunteers have to make do with bicycles.

Haney's day starts at 7:30 a.m. with a light snack. The morning is spent on the estate, perhaps visiting homes in an effort to encourage use of the centre. At noon he has lunch, called breakfast here, of goat curry, rice and egg plant. The afternoon's work is at the centre and with the boys' club.

His plans for the remaining months of his stay at Enmore include setting up an arts and handicrafts course for children and organizing a drama group. From this estate, he'll move to another one by the Bookers company in Berbice for six months, and then return to Enmore to see how things have turned out.

THEATRE INCLUDED

In Georgetown 25-year - old Jill Schallenberg, a Toronto physical education graduate, finds her YWCA job is far wider in scope than she expected. It includes giving classes in English and math to unemployed women, organizing programs for the YWCA and conducting regular afternoon classes in physical education.

In the evenings one is likely to find her at the Theatre Guild of British Guiana, one of the most active amateur theatre groups in the Caribbean. Jill was one of the principal dancers in Miss Phoebe, a musical set in the days of slavery.

"By entering the drama group, I have got to know much about British Guiana and more people that much more quickly," she says.

Most volunteers feel they get more out of their assignments than they give.

"It's certainly good for them," echoes a Guianese official. "But it's also good for us."

FOR THE RECORD! — This picture may make a bit of local social history one day. At first glance it looks like a railroad diesel engine hauling a mobile trailer on a downtown city street. It's partly true, since the railroad still use Belleville's Pinnacle Street as a connecting link. But there's no race involved. The cars and train are travelling in opposite directions. Some day soon those tracks are to be removed and contemporary studies like this one may well find a spot in historical whimsy.

Bulletins From Birdland

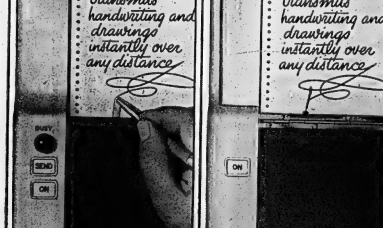
By WINIFRED E. WILSON

EXPANDING

Great things are happening in the bird world. In the last 15 to twenty years there has been a fanning out from the old territories — not a change, but the addition of more districts. Similarly, there has been this expanding in North America's bird societies.

The showy cardinal, resident wherever found, was one of the first birds to be noticed spreading. More than twenty years ago Taverner wrote of it "crossing the Canadian border commonly along the western end of Lake Erie, occurring as scattered individuals and in isolated communities there and in adjoining localities". Soon afterwards cardinals became quite common in the Toronto district. Since their first appearances in Montreal, January 1956, they seem to have become established in that area as some are recorded every year.

MOCKINGBIRD'S MOVE.



Much excitement has been caused by the mockingbird's movements. In 1957 one was seen on Mount Royal. After that they were identified (and in some instances their nests photographed) at Tadoussac, in the Eastern Townships, at Como, and then at Hudson and Pointe d'Urfe on the Island of Montreal.

From the south also has come the Carolina wren. One was discovered at Chambly, about twenty miles east of Montreal, in 1957 and again (probably the same bird) in 1958. The diminutive northern warbler is not supposed to come farther north than southern New York and southern Ontario; yet for the last few summers it has been found in southern Quebec. More yellow-billed cuckoos are crossing the border into Canada than was customary.

Other birds, heretofore found only in the west, have been spreading out eastward. The ruffous-sided towhee of B.C. and Alberta has, since 1957, been spotted a number of times in the Montreal area, and within a few miles of Ste. Agathe, in the Laurentians. In the last five years the Oregon junco from our three most westerly provinces has been identified in several localities in the Province of Quebec. The black-billed magpie, seldom farther east than Manitoba, was seen in the Laurentians in the spring of 1960, and the western meadowlark had by 1957 reached Quebec City.

The same spreading out is going on in bird societies. More and more are being formed throughout N.A., and the number of members is also constantly increasing in these nature groups. Many people are now bird conscious and vitally interested in bird protection. Numerous students of ornithology are being turned out. And if we look over a list of council members in a bird society we will find names of physicians, judges, bank managers, and Ph. D's. Yes, both bird territories and bird watching societies are expanding.

Boy Scouts Organizing Centenary Regatta in N.B.

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Fitness, competition and history will combine June 6 and 7 when boy scouts from across Canada and abroad take to the Northumberland Strait in sailboats.

The occasion will be the fourth annual national sailing regatta sponsored by the Boy Scouts of Canada, scheduled for Charlottetown Aug. 9-15.

The regatta will take place almost 100 years to the day after a steamship called Government Steamer Queen Victoria tied up in Charlottetown Harbor and made history.

It was on Sept. 1, 1864, that the steamer arrived from Quebec City, then the capital of the United Canadas. Aboard were Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir George - Etienne Cartier and many other Fathers of Confederation.

Historians report that Prince Edward Island's provincial secretary, W. H. Pope, "mustering all the dignity he could," was rowed out to the steamer to welcome the delegates to the Charlottetown conference that set the stage for Confederation three years later.

13-FOOT BOATS

About 150 "delegates" — from each province and the rest from the United States, the West Indies and other countries — are expected to compete in the 1964 regatta.

It is among the long list of special events planned for the summer in P.E.I. to mark the centennial of the Charlottetown and Quebec City conference that led to union of the two Canadas and the Maritimes.

The scouts will race in 13-foot-long glass-fibre craft, exchanging boats after each eight-mile heat on Northumberland Strait between the Island and New Brunswick.

The defending champion crew is Chris Cotton and Gerry Rowland of Hudson, a Montreal suburb, who won the R. C. Stevenson Trophy last August at Pointe Claire, another Montreal suburb.

Hundreds of scouts go into sailing every summer and regional eliminations are required to select provincial representatives. Sailing forms an integral part of the scouts' new program stressing physical and psychological fitness.

Legality of Bilingual Road Signs in Ontario May Need a Court Decision

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bilingualism or Unilingualism? This was the question raised by discussions in three provincial legislatures Monday.

Quebec Cultural Affairs Minister Georges Lapalme said he doesn't believe Quebec can ever become a unilingual French province in practice.

"On the level of theory, or on the level of law, it will be up to other generations than mine to decide," he said.

He said it is difficult to be bilingual and not mix English with French.

ASKS BETTER STANDARDS

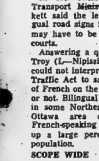
In Nova Scotia, William F. MacKinnon (PC — Antigonish) suggested the government make money available for special incentives for teachers to improve their standards in French, especially spoken French.

This would be an appropriate project to mark the 100th anniversary of the establishment of the free school system in Nova Scotia in 1864. He said it is "not only in the national interest but in our own interest to be able to communicate with our brothers in French Canada."

In the Ontario Legislature Transport Minister Irwin Haskett said the legality of bilingual road signs in the province may have to be decided in the courts.

Answering a question by Leo Troy (L—Nipissing), he said he could not interpret the Highway Traffic Act to say whether use of French on the signs was legal or not. Bilingual signs are used in some Northern Ontario and Ottawa area centres where French-speaking persons make up a large percentage of the population.

SCOPE WIDE



Discussion in other legislatures ranged over a variety of matters.

Nova Scotia — A resolution seeking a federal inquiry into divorce laws with an aim to make insanity and desertion grounds for divorce was turned down by a substantial majority in a voice vote. The measure was proposed by Liberal Opposition Leader Peter M. Nicholson.

Manitoba — The Progressive Conservative government defeated 34 to 19 a motion of censure by Liberal Opposition Leader Gil Molgat charging the government with contempt of the legislature in divulging information to the press before advising members. He referred to newspaper articles which gave details of government plans to increase social allowance payments and of plans for a provincial arts centre.

Alberta — Opposition Leader Mike Maccagno said Alberta's $414,489,844 budget for 1964-65 was pounderous and dull and an indication the Social Credit government was getting "cozy, smug and self-satisfied." He attacked it for making no mention of northern development.

British Columbia — Attorney-general Robert Bonner said Charles Heathman, central figure in the sex-slaying of a 10-year-old Vernon, B.C., newsboy, has been located in Canada but outside of British Columbia and is under "continued observation." Heathman, twice convicted of capital murder but later acquitted after winning a new trial, ignored terms of his parole from a mental hospital and disappeared sometime last month.

"Pardon, Sir!"

Gen. McArthur In Hospital For Check-Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Douglas Macarthur, hero of two world wars, has entered the U.S. army's Walter Reed Hospital for "observation and evaluation of abdominal complaints."

There was no immediate word on the seriousness of his condition but it apparently was not necessarily of acute nature because Macarthur walked from the military plane that bore him here and later walked up a slight incline at the hospital entrance.

Informed sources said the general would be treated for jaundice—a yellowing of the skin that can be associated with various ailments, including hepatitis.

Before Macarthur arrived, a spokesman at the hospital said it is conceivable that the general would undergo various diagnostic and other tests.

Hospital officials said Monday there would be no announcement before today concerning his condition.

East African Leaders Must Rely on Outside Aid

By ROD CURRIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Now that the panic is over, East African leaders are gradually coming to grips with the unpleasant fact that they must rely on outside help to keep the peace.

Britain's Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys, who flew to East Africa during the week-end, is charged with the delicate task of helping find some scheme politically acceptable to prime ministers Kenyatta of Kenya and Obote of Uganda and President Nyerere of Tanganyika.

So far, the three Africans seem undecided on what form of assistance they can accept gracefully to offset any repetition of the mutinies among their own armed forces that recently almost toppled their governments.

It was a grave embarrassment, so soon after independence from Britain, for them to have to call in British troops to restore order. Now they are seeking the most painless way of guaranteeing security in a region that China's Chou En-Lai recently described as ripe for revolution.

MUST BE CAREFUL

Britain is anxious to help, but there is a limit to how far she can go in accepting responsibility without seeming to be helping keep a government in power by force.

Sandys, before leaving London, answered all questions with a curt "no comment." But it is believed he took with him the outline of a plan for some form of Commonwealth "fire brigade," a mobile force ready to go to any trouble spot.

The prerequisite, of course, is that any such force would have to be acceptable to the African countries. It would be a force drawn from all Commonwealth countries or one restricted to African countries alone.

The second would seem to be more acceptable to the Africans but it is also would leave open the possibility of inviting more developed member countries to give technical assistance in training.

Prime Minister Douglas-Home has hinted at something along these lines in suggesting that Britain might consider stationing military missions in East Africa. Such training teams would operate in a capacity similar to British military instructors now in Ghana.

The plan East African leaders like most of all is one under which the Organization of African Unity would create an all-African force. But recent discussions on this at a conference in Laos were disappointing.

Few Canadians Responding To Challenge

- - Turner

MONTREAL (CP) — John Turner, Liberal member of Parliament for Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George, said Monday too few moderate and reasonable Canadians have responded to the challenges confronting Canadian unity.

He told the Canadian Club of Montreal that too few English-speaking Quebecers have tried to understand the renaissance of French Canada, although French-speaking Canadian leaders have not defended their case too well or too precisely.

"It would help the cause of reconciliation," Mr. Turner said, "if the French-speaking Canadians would cease treating the English-speaking minority in Quebec as a monolithic bloc —as usurpers holding the province in penury and tutelage on behalf of the rest of Canada."

His riding is largely English-speaking.

"We are not all tycoons. We are not all executives. We do not all live in baronial mansions. We are not all Anglo-Saxons. The English-speaking minority in this province runs the full range of economic interests and social and ethnic background.

'IS OUT LAND'

"This land is our land. We too are Quebecers. We are not aliens on this soil. We too have a stake in this province. We have contributed to its greatness. We too love Quebec."

Mr. Turner said the "quiet revolution" going on in Quebec has been a nuisance to many of Quebec's nearly 1,000,000 English-speaking persons. He defined the new climate in Quebec as a drive for a new order in the province "of such depth and momentum that a certain amount of instability and even anarchy was unavoidable."

Unless French-speaking Canadians are encouraged to take a more active part in Quebec's economic development, "more and more of them would be attracted by the emotionalism of separatism."

The role of English-speaking Quebecers was to explain to the rest of Canada "the overwhelming moderateness, temper of French Canada and the legitimate nature of its aspirations."

Two Countries Standing Pat As Parley Opens

BANGKOK (AP) — Indonesia and Malaysia stood pat today on conflicting demands as their representatives gathered in Bangkok for another conference with the Philippines on the Malaysia crisis.

Indonesian Foreign Minister Subandrio said in advance the government insists a political settlement must be discussed along with plans for a cease-fire along the border between Indonesian and Malayan Borneo.

Malaysian Deputy Prime Minister Tun Abdul Razak, who headed a 14-man delegation from Kuala Lumpur, said the cease-fire must be made effective before conditions take up political problems.

Ministers of the three nations, with Thai Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman as chairman of the meditators, are meeting for the second time in a month to try to agree on a basis for settlement of the crisis.

The Philippines and Indonesia want a summit parley of Indonesian President Sukarno, Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaysia and President Diosdado Macapagal of the Philippines but Razak repeated Malaysia's stand that there can be no summit meeting "until the cease-fire is settled."

TICKET SALES BOOM

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York world's fair announced Monday "the biggest one day office in history" with an advance sale of $35,219,602 on 28,024,290 tickets. The fair's figures were based on reports up to Saturday, the day it stopped selling $2 tickets for $1.35. The advance sale was equal to the total amount paid for first year admissions to the 1939-40 New York fair and three times the paid admissions at the Seattle fair in 1962.

Minister Gives Up Plan to Hand Out Book

NEW YORK (CP)—A young Canadian minister said Monday he has given up a plan to distribute copies of the banned novel Penny Hill at services in his Presbyterian church next Sunday.

Rev. William Glenesk, 37-year-old native of Toronto, said he changed his mind after asking the advice of a friend in the district attorney's office.

But he plans to continue his protest against the banning of the book, declared obscene last week by the appellate division of the New York State Supreme Court. The court ordered the publishers not to distribute it.

Glenesk, a former teacher of "moral dilemmas in classic and contemporary religion," at New York University's school of education and now pastor of Spence Memorial Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn, said he asked advice from Edward Silver of the district attorney's office, a fellow Biblical scholar.

As a result, he decided against distributing the book at worship Sundays a service, but made plans to preach a sermon on the ban and to display books that have been banned at one time or another — including Ulysses, the Bible and Lady Chatterley's Lover.

Glenesk said he does not consider Fanny Hill obscene, but in any event considers it immoral for anyone to "preside over my right to read or buy a book."

Hamilton Man Ordered to Pay Wife Alimony

NEW YORK (CP) — Marvin Frank of Hamilton, Ont., has been ordered by the New York State Supreme Court to pay temporary alimony to a former jazz singer he married in 1960, it was learned Monday.

Judge Joseph Brust ruled that the Hamilton man must pay Velma Frank, who uses the professional name of Kai Eden, $100 a week, plus counsel fees of $1,000.

Mrs. Frank's lawyer, Frank Catara, originally had requested temporary alimony of $300 a week plus counsel fees of $5,000.

Catara claims that Frank has refused to give any financial help to his client since he walked out of their New York apartment last Labor Day weekend.

In her original suit, Mrs. Frank claimed she met Frank while she was performing in a Hamilton night spot and that they were married in New York Oct. 11, 1960.

The case is scheduled to come up in court March 13 when a trial date will be set in connection with a separation suit.

Young Demoresville Family Loses Home, All Contents

Sam Sallans, the 25-year-old father, said he rushed his teenage wife and their two children to safety after melting tar dripped on his forehead. He awoke to find their home burning down.

Mr. Sallans a heavy-equipment operator currently unemployed, bought the two-storey frame house only last fall and moved his family from Northport.

"The fire must have started about 3.30 a.m," he said. "I woke up with tar dripping on me — melting by the flames above."

The Sallans were sleeping in a downstairs room "because it was warmer." Fire is believed to have started in an unfinished room on the second floor. There was no heater in the room, but power lines entered the home at that spot.

"We managed to save only a few clothes" said Mr. Sallans. "It's partially covered by insurance."

Heavy fog delayed the arrival of a fire truck — sent from Picton army camp, after Picton town firemen had been called.

Indian Doll and Intricate Sled Among Exhibits at The Canadian Toy Fair

MONTREAL (CP)—An Indian doll named after what is recorded as the origin of Canada's name and a sled with controls worthy of an outboard motorboat are among new toys on view at the Canadian Toy Fair.

The fair, organized by the 145-member Canadian Playthings Manufacturers Incorporated, gives store buyers from Canada and elsewhere a week to see just about every toy being produced in Canada.

The fair, which opened Monday, also gives the curious a preview of toys which will be featured in stores during the coming summer, fall and Christmas seasons.

"Kanata" was said to be the first Indian word heard by explorer Jacques Cartier when Iroquois guided him up the St. Lawrence River to a point they called "Kanata," which was the Indian term for village and believed to be the origin of the country's name.

THREE COSTUMES

There will be three traditional Indian costumes for the doll expressing different Indian groups from across Canada as well as five modern outfits.

The sled has a front like a toboggan, sides like a sleigh, a rudder to control speed and steering and braking like a boat. Its frame and seat are wood and the bottom is aluminum. Another new snow-ride is a fibreglass toboggan.

The fair continues the trend towards realistic dolls with fashionable clothes and models that talk and cry. One doll can be burped after she takes her bottle.

The plush toy field features a new series of Canadian wildlife including black, grizzly and polar bears, beaver, fox, walrus, buffalo, skunk, hare and bighorn sheep.

The toy industry is expecting sales of more than $150,000,000 at the retail level this year, including exports of $1,000,000, most of them to Australia.

OTTAWA (CP)—Northern Affairs Minister Laing has ordered manufacturers to leave Ookpik alone.

Ookpik is Eskimo for Arctic owl and also the name of a fuzzy, furry toy bird that has been adopted by the government as an international trade symbol for Canada.

Mr. Laing, replying in the Commons to George Chatterton (PC — Esquimalt - Saanich), said the name and model is being copyrighted.

The Fort Chimo Eskimo Co-Operative, which developed the Ookpik is in the process of licensing commercial manufacturers to make the little bird.

"I certainly hope there will be no attempt to defeat their initiative and ingenuity by unfair competition from unauthorized manufacturers," he added.

SY WITHDRAWN

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The fourth wife of writer-producer Sy Bartlett, 51, divorced him Monday, testifying he was "entirely withdrawn and seldom at home." Cerul Bartlett, 28, also said her husband showed little love and affection. She waived alimony and received $15,000 in a property settlement. The couple married April 3, 1963, in Las Vegas, Nev., and separated Dec. 15.

Says Accused Admitted to Setting Fire

ST. THOMAS (CP)—A policeman testified Monday at the non-capital murder trial of Kenneth E. Witherow that the accused admitted setting a fire in which Frank Welch, 63, died Nov. 3, 1963.

Provincial police constable Joseph Vertolli told the court he posed as a fellow prisoner and talked with Witherow, 23, in Elgin County jail.

Witherow is charged with starting the fire in an apartment building at nearby West Lorne in which Welch was trapped and died.

Const. Vertolli said he told Witherow that he was awaited for armed robbery and the haul was $3,500.

"I'm in for manslaughter," he quoted Witherow as saying. "A man died in a fire that I set, but I didn't mean to hurt him."

Const. Vertolli said Witherow told him where the fire had happened.

The witness told the court that the jail governor and other provincial police officers were the only persons who knew his true identity.

Donald Campbell of West Lorne, who owned the building, testified that Welch was known to be forgetful and at times had left the gas burner on and the water running.

Mr. Campbell said Welch sometimes barred the rear entrance of the building with a stick.

Charlotte Votes Against Offer Of Loeb Family

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton said Monday night she has received a threatening letter signed by the FLQ—the Quebec Liberation Front.

Extra police were on duty as city council met. "I'd hate like fury to have City Hall blown up on account of me," she said.

Mayor Whitton did not disclose any details of the letter but she wouldn't tell reporters what type of threat was involved. She said the letter had been turned over to police.

Mayor Whitton cast the only dissenting ballot later when city council voted 20 to one to accept a donation of $450,000 for a medical research centre.

Her action probably means that the money, offered by the Loeb Foundation, will go to Carleton University.

The foundation stipulated that city council accept the money unanimously or it would make an outright contribution of it to Carleton.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"The heiress for today's game—for Belleville, Sweden will pitch—Tuttle will catch."

"Them were the days that Was" softball-wise.

That was back in 1936 when Hitler had quit housepainting, shed his corporal's stripes and was rounding up a team for the biggest world series ever played.

The Hasty Pess hadn't mobilized. You could buy a suit from Revel Wilbur for $18.50; board was seven dollars a week; eggs a dime a dozen, steak 25 cents a pound and a flagon of firewater at comparable prices except Saturday nights and Sundays.

Coleman Fists was the Yankee Stadium of softball. There was no box-office but a gang of rib-nudging chaps who had taken Reg Hardwick took care that no freeloaders got box seats gratis. They were only a dime—and you had your choice.

The passing of the late Clarence Tuttle brings to mind, the halcyon days of that period. The city problem child and the best softball team in its history bolstered by a fiery crew from Point Anne and other foreign parts.

The leather-lunged buffs from Ox Point took back seats from no one. They had a couple of gal rooters who, safe behind their femininity took on all male comers argument-wise and never quarrelled over verbal losses.

Softball in the city and district has had its ups and downs through the years, but I doubt if it had better representatives than the famous Percivals team that won the Ontario championship in 1936.

I'm speaking of the senior and intermediate grades. Softballers' benchmarks will never forget the starry hurlers of 1937 who behind the iron-man hurling of Bobby Hunter ably abetted by Bobby Green swept an all-Ontario championship.

That was the year manager Doc McMevin broke all fledge-hopping records when he piloted his "wingless aircraft" through Algonquin Park merely touching air and disdaining the valleys.

Pitchers and catchers have come and gone during the past three decades. There will be argument as to who was the better in both departments but battery-wise our choice is the Bawden-Tuttle combination.

Clarence was one of the best, if not the best, receivers in the business. He handled his pitchers expertly, and had a leadership quality that was no small factor in the Percival's march to the-title.

But he had a team in front of him.

It went through to the OASA intermediate "A"-finals after winning group and playdown honors.

And few fans of that day will forget the "sudden death" game played against Guelph in Oshawa when the Percivals drew 2-1 going into the ninth scored two runs in their bottom of the frame to win the championship.

Bawden who also was the ace hurler of the Belleville CORL squad, fanned a five-hitter for the victory, although he is very whiffed one and walked seven.

Harold Bawden held down first base in that game with Herbie Henn at second and Shad Ethier at third. Carmen Cook was at short with Harold Reid in left field, Freddy St. Louis, centre and Ray Kiser right. Clarence Tuttle was behind the plate and came up with another sterling performance.

Other members of the champion squad were Cy Barriage, shortstop and outfield; Sonny Tuttle, Connie Harris, Bill Whalen, Vic Hanna, with Doug Adam the mascot.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

You hear a lot of hockey players say the doctors don't even bother to freeze the cuts when they stitch them up when they're cut in a game. They say it doesn't hurt. Well, somebody's pulling somebody's leg.

"Boy, you got a good one," Bill Gadsby said when I came from the first aid room recently. "It's right tight to the lip and you've got eight stitches," he said as he looked it over. "You really hurt, don't you.

I told him anyone that says it didn't hurt was a liar. Because it had me curled up pretty good. There's a certain amount of numbness at the time but it still hurts.

I should tap on wood when I say it -- I'm not superstitious -- I've been lucky of late. I've been hit on the head and knocked out but the puck hit me flat, or I'd have been sliced for a few stitches.

The eight stitches were a present from Bobby Hull of Chicago. He sent word by the usher he was sorry. I poke checked the puck away from him as he was coming in. When I turned back for the puck, I was a little closer to it because he uses a longer stick.

It was rolling a little. I tipped it over the stick. He came up after the rising puck and with our speed and crossing one another, his stick caught me in the mouth.

Just a week earlier Tim Horton of Toronto was trying to shoot the puck into our end. I was going after it. I braced my stick to keep from being hit on the follow through. I felt my stick hit something, knew it was flesh.

When I turned around and saw him writhing on the ice, I thought 'Oh my God, I got the man in the eye'. I could even hate an individual but I wouldn't want to do a thing like that to him. There's a code and I've seven stitches but his eye wasn't touched.

Because hockey is my livelihood, the same as for everybody on the ice, I'll try my best to knock them on the ice to prevent them from scoring. But at no time would I deliberately injure anyone. I don't believe there is a guy in the league that would.

WILL TRY AGAIN

LONDON (AP) — Donald Campbell said Monday he has patched up a quarrel with his backer and intends to make another bid for the world land speed record next April or May. At a press conference, Campbell shook hands and exchanged smiles with Sir Alfred Owen, head of the organization which backed Campbell's world speed attempt in Australia last year. The attempt was washed out by heavy rain.

But Odds Favor Canadiens

Hawks Need Flag To Top Rest

MONTREAL (CP)—It's going to be the best year for a Chicago Black Hawks team in National Hockey League history, but the tribe from the Windy City may still scratch the closing distinction of being the only team that has never won the NHL pennant.

The Hawks set a team record of 33 victories with Sunday's 4-3 win over Montreal and are nearing the club mark of 81 points in one season, a milestone they reached last season when they scored 32 victories, the previous high. The Hawks have 77 points to date, four short of their record with seven games to play.

The remainder of the 70-game schedule, however, still favors the Canadiens in their battle with the Hawks for the NHL title.

Both teams have 77 points, but Montreal has played only 61 games and the Hawks have played 63. Furthermore, Canada has play five of their six games at home while the Hawks are on the road for three of their seven remaining contests.

WINGS CHASING LEAFS

Although Toronto seems out of the first place picture, 13 points behind with 10 games to play, they still a reasonable amount of doubt surrounding third place. The Leafs now are tied with Detroit and Boston for fourth place Detroit, five points behind with nine games to go.

And, in turn, Detroit is being followed by playoff-hungry New York, still hopeful of closing a 10-point gap in their last nine games.

The parade doesn't end there. Boston ran still a stretche in Rangers by erasing the seven-point difference in their last eight games.

Stan Mikita has opened up a six-point lead in the NHL individual scoring race with 71 points are three better than his best previous output and within reach of tying a team mark.

PICKS UP FIVE POINTS

He scored one goal and assisted on another Sunday for a total of 34 goals and 46 assists. Teammate Bobby Hull is tied with 74 points on 37 goals, a league high, and 37 assists. Montreal's Jean Beliveau has 68 points.

Glen Hall, the cool goaltender for the Hawks, still holds a slight edge in the Vezina Trophy race, awarded to the regular netminder on the team that allows the fewest goals.

The Hawks have given up 146, the same number as Montreal. Hall, the Canadiens have played two games less than Chicago and Charlie Hodge will continue to make up the difference somewhere along the line to keep pace.

Vic Hadfield of New York has taken over the leadership in penalties from Mikita. The Ranger has 142 minutes to Mikita's 138. Chicago is the most penalized team with 1,052 minutes—50 minutes short of a record they already own and appear destined to break.

Emerson Rejects Pro Offer

CARACAS (AP)—Roy Emerson, the Australian tennis ace, said today he has rejected a lucrative pro offer and plans to continue as an amateur through 1964.

The 27 - year - old Australian and French champion, who was barred from Davis Cup play by his home association last Friday for violating a travel ban, said he received a new three-year contract calling for more money from an Australian cigarette firm.

He works as a sales and public relations representative for the company.

The lean Queenslander, winner of his two singles matches in the 3-2 Davis Cup loss to the United States last December, said he turned down a pro offer of $50,000 for 30 months.

Emerson and Ken Fletcher, the third-ranked Aussie, both were barred from the Australian Davis Cup team by the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia because they ignored a ruling about playing overseas prior to March 31.

Clay, Liston Probe Is Postponed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A planned, running start this week on a Senate investigation of an unusual promotional deal between heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay and ex-champ Sonny Liston has run into a roadblock.

Senator Philip A. Hart (Dem. Mich.) announced Monday he will have to delay the hearings until after the Senate finishes its forthcoming debate on the civil rights bill. Now the Clay-Liston hearings probably won't begin for several weeks or months.

Hart said the investigation will be one of the first orders of business" for his anti-trust and monopoly subcommittee after the civil rights fight has been settled.

The boxing hearings will be held against the background of proposed legislation designed to place big time professional boxing under tough federal policing by a national boxing commissioner.

The official would have broad powers to check into agreements between the camps of rival boxers and between boxers and "hidden" managers and to combat underworld infiltration of boxing.

The legislation was suggested several years ago by the late Sen. Estes Kefauver (Dem. Tenn.) and the idea was revived after Clay dethroned Liston a week ago.

Hart said his interest is in a Liston-Clay deal disclosed by Garland (Billy) Cherry, attorney for Liston's Intercontinental Promotions, Inc.

Under the deal, as explained by Intercontinental's past Clay $50,000 bankroll but with Liston for the right to promote Clay's next fight and the right to name his challenger, the date and the date of the contest.

May Take O.M.H.A. To Court

LONDON (CP)—The Ontario Minor Hockey Association has been threatened with court action if the suspensions of the London Tecumseh peewee hockey team, its manager, Mrs. Gordon Stronach, wife of the London mayor, and coach Emerson Taylor are not lifted "forthwith."

The demand is contained in a letter by Cameron J. Killoran, lawyer for the London Minor Hockey Association, acting for club, to the OMHA. He requests a meeting with the OMHA in London no later than Saturday.

The club, coach and manager were suspended last week by the OMHA which claims the Tecumseh team used 13-year-old Dale Irvine of the Huron Heights branch of the OMHA, without permission at a hockey tournament in Quebec this winter.

Mr. Killoran said that if the meeting is not arranged or the suspensions lifted he will seek a court order restraining enforcement of the suspensions.

No Friday Television For N.F.L.

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Football League says there will be no national television of its Friday night games. And all is sweetness and light today in its undeclared and unofficial dispute with college and high school leaders.

"We are very pleased by the decision by the NFL," said Asa Bushnell, head of the National Collegiate Athletic Association television committee after the statement by NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle Monday. "It moves Friday right in the high schools and the few colleges that play on Friday night."

The NFL had put a "premature" label on published reports that it had signed national telecasts of five Friday night pro games but didn't get around to a contract. A statement on it until Wednesday Those reports had brought considerable fire from the high school leaders of various high school groups.

Rozelle's prepared statement said "the NFL can now say with certainty that no Friday night national telecasts will be carried."

Muirhead's Three Goals Includes Winner

Juniors Shade Peterborough

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

PETERBOROUGH — Stu Muirhead's third goal of the night, coming with just three minutes left to play, gave the Belleville "B's" an all important 5-4 victory over Peterborough Monarchs here last night in the first game of their OHA Eastern Junior "B" group semi-finals.

The win puts Belleville in a commanding position since the series had been ordered shortened to a 2-of-3 series earlier yesterday and the second game is slated for Belleville ice on Friday night.

Neither club agreed with the OHA order to shorten the series prior to last night's tilt and the Peterborough brass was even less happy following the game.

Monarchs will have the final heat gave the battling "B's" a well-deserved victory.

It was 2-2 after one period and 3-3 going into the final period. Belleville moved ahead 4-3 at 12:43 on Carmen Cook's goal after Bill Lang had stole the puck along the boards. Jim Fringe also had an assist.

Monaen goalie Steve Rexe injured a knee in the play and left in favor of sub Randy Reid. His mates tied the count at four on a goal by Bob Kiser in the Belleville nets.

Muirhead's winner came on assists by Lang and Jim Rutherford, who had assists on all Muirhead's goals and scored three himself, got the first later in the Petes' end and slid it back to Muirhead. The latter's low shot slipped under Reid's pads and that's the way it ended, despite an all-out attempt by Peterborough for the final 86 seconds.

Rutherford opened the scoring, assisted by Grant Hagerman, with the losers shy a man at 11:13 of the opening first frame. Norm Bean sunk a low back-hander to make it 1-1 before the period ended.

Muirhead followed Rutherford in and cashed his rebound behind Reid at 3:30 of the second stanza to make Muirhead's goal and Rowland got a spearing major at 15:05.

Bill Stabler gave Peterborough his only lead at 7:17 of the second period to have Muirhead knot the score again, 3-3 on a power play marker with Hagerman and Rutherford at 9:03.

Neither goalie stood out although Kiser, playing in the big start, seemed a little cooler as the game progressed. Both teams messed up a number of good chances with poor shooting and lack of finish.

Referees McFadden and Les Williams missed more penalties than they called, giving the winners nine minor to Peterborough's five. Ted Rowland and Paul Lang split the only fight, at the final whistle, good for majors, while Rowland also drew an automatic misconduct since it was his second five-minute sentence. He collected 26 minutes in all.

National Organization

Track Officials To Merge

OTTAWA (CP)—Representatives of most major running and harness racing tracks in Canada buried old rivalries Monday with a decision to band together into one national organization.

The decision was made behind closed doors on opening day of the two - day second national conference on racing. Delegates came from 22 harness racing, 12 thoroughbred tracks, veterinarians and chemists employed by the tracks, horsemen, and the federal agriculture department which supervises parimutuel betting on Canadian tracks.

A meeting is to be held within the next month to decide on a name for the organization, its first officers and a site for its headquarters.

One purpose behind the new organization is to present a combined front in representations to both federal and provincial governments.

The group also has agreed to an exchange of information on operations and ease of running their tracks, to act as one in cases of strikes by drivers and to take united action in banning "some undesirables" from all tracks.

The meeting will discuss off-track betting and the present Canadian law which sets no time limit on the time a winning ticket can be cashed.

Jury May Have Goofed On Decision

OTTAWA (CP)—Officials said Monday that they may have erred in disqualifying Bob Calldine of Vancouver on his second run of the slalom race in the Canadian figure skating championships which ended at Camp Fortune, Que., Sunday.

Calldine spent the best time in his two runs Saturday in the competition but was disqualified when a gatekeeper said one of his skis was outside a gate on his final descent.

A British Columbia team protest was rejected the same day by a jury of meet officials.

Monday the jury was shown a film of Calldine's second run which appeared to show that the British Columbia skier's antecedent didn't straddle the gate.

"In my opinion, it would appear that the jury should reconsider its decision," said jury chairman Bob Hart of Ottawa after watching three reruns of the film.

Prairie Rinks Beaten

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—A Ontario crushed New Brunswick 15-9 in the other first-round matches. The remaining second-round fixtures saw Nova Scotia jolt Alberta 13-9 and New Brunswick outscore Newfoundland 8-6 extra end.

ICE WAS HEAVY

Outside temperatures of 35 degrees produced the difficult first-round conditions. Skip Bob Mann of Hanover, Ont., called the ice "the heaviest I've ever encountered" and Marvin Richardson, the Saskatchewan third, remarked:

"That's the hardest I ever threw to get a rock into the house."

"Mops and rubber boots, that's what we need out there," was Dagg's comment on the surface at the 2,000-seat Charlottetown Forum.

The back-hanging finishes of the two B.C. matches were the high spots of opening-day play. Dagg drew to the four-foot circle and Alberta skip Ron Northcott sailed through with a perfect takeout attempt to decide the opener. Then the B.C. skip came through with a perfect takeout to draw back to the 4-foot circle that would have sent the Ontario match into a extra end.

Alberta was victimized for a big five by Nova Scotia in the seventh end of the top session Monday, on the way to its second-round defeat.

A lilted bagpipe band and two scarlet-clad Mounties ushered in the rinks in a colors splashed opening ceremony this cradle of Confederation.

Dick Topping of Vancouver, president of the Dominion Curling Association, threw the first ceremonial stone. Despite the sweeping efforts of Lieutenant-Governor Errick Willis of Manitoba, the shot was light and had to be kicked into the house.

Lightfoots Win Squeaker

Hanging on by the narrowest of margins, Belleville Lightfoots shaded Trenton RCAF Flyers 65-64 at the air station last night to grab a 2-0 lead in their best-of-five Bay of Quinte Basketball league titular series.

Third game of the set is also scheduled for the RCAF court, next Monday night at eight o'clock.

Flyers, well behind early in the rough and rugged affair, closed the gap to a single point several times in the second half when they outscored the visitors by ten points.

The losers had control of the ball, down the single potse, with about ten seconds left. Lightfoots checked the ball away, however, and controlled play for the final seconds to preserve the decision.

Lightfoots were forced to play without scoring champ Doug Rose, out with a twisted knee and another regular, Gord Smith. They also lost Larry Campbell and Gary Duggan on fouls in the second half, helping to pave the way to the eight finish.

Larry Campbell was top point man for Belleville, with 22 points, 16 of them in the first half. Don Smith hit for 17, Warren Whitley 12 and Ian Hoskins 10.

Wilf Borden hooped 19, Arlen Burleigh 18 and Ernie Clarke 16 for the Flyers. Borden got 16 of his points and Clarke 14 of his in the second-half comeback bid.

Rudolph Wins Weird Round, Title

By BOB THOMAS

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—"This has been some day," said Mason Rudolph, pocketing the $7,500 first-place money in the Greater New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

"We almost didn't start, almost didn't finish and almost everything happened in between," said the bespectacled pro from Tennessee, who came close to blowing a four-stroke lead in the wrapup of the $50,000 tournament Monday.

Rudolph scrambled for a final three-over-par 74. It gave him a 72-hole total of 283, one stroke in front of Jack Nicklaus, Puerto Rican, Juan (Chi Chi) Rodriguez and unknown Glenn Stuart, a Michigan club pro.

The final round was nearly rained out and it was only two hours after the scheduled starting time that the greens dried off enough to permit play.

BO WAS LATE

Defending champion Bo Winlager, favored to close the delay, showed up three minutes late and was disqualified. He was not disqualified. He was out of contention, however, with a 54-hole total of 220, 12 strokes behind Rudolph.

Rudolph started out with a five on the par-four second hole and landed in six fairway bunkers during the round. Turning to the 16th hole, Rudolph was two strokes over par.

"The next thing I knew," said Rudolph, "the lead got kind of crowded. Almost anything could happen, and it almost did."

Rodriguez pulled into a deadlock with Rudolph but blew it on No. 12 when he missed a three-footer for a birdie.

Stuart, 29, a club pro at Grand Rapids, Mich., who plays only the winter tour, had a chance to win on the final green. But he left a 12-foot birdie putt 2½ feet short and then missed again, finishing with a 68.

APPEARED TO WILT

Rudolph appeared to be willing under pressure again. Only last fall he blew a four-stroke lead in the Portland Open and then lost in a playoff to George Knudson of Toronto. The Tennessee belter went over par on No. 13 and No. 14.

Then he missed a nine-foot putt on 16, but it taught him a lesson.

"I was determined not to leave another putt short," he said.

He sank a 28-footer for a birdie on No. 17. All he had to do to win was take a five on No. 18, a par four. He hooked his drive into a tree, but recovered for his five.

Three Canadians were among the money-winners. Al Balding of Toronto finished at 285 for $1,700. Al Johnston of Montreal shot a 291, good for $700, and Jerry Magee collected $562.50 for his 293.

Russia May Send Soccer Club

Top British Teams Here?

TORONTO (CP)—Soccer fans here next month may see an exhibition game between Liverpool of the English First Division and either Manchester United or the Scottish League's Heart of Midlothian team.

Ontario Football Association officials have not confirmed an opponent, but said the Liverpool club has promised to come.

The Hearts will be in New York for an international tournament. Manchester United might stop over on its return from a tour of the Orient.

In another development, Bob Hall, chief negotiator of the Variety Club of Ontario, said one of Russia's top soccer teams may play a series of games in Canada this season if proper financial arrangements can be made.

Hall, who has been negotiating with Russian soccer officials in an attempt to bring a team here for an exhibition game, said: "I've a cable from the Russians which says they are willing to come to Canada for a five- or six-game exhibition series providing we lay on first class travel and hotel."

The cost of a cross-Canada tour would be in excess of $30,000, according to Hall. A Soviet embassy official in Ottawa, Vladimir Semenov, told a delegation from the Variety Club that "we'd be glad to have one of our teams play in Canada."

Bill Simpson, secretary of the Ontario Soccer Association, said we'd be interested in having a Russian team here" but it could come only through the approval of the Canadian Soccer Football Association.

AUSTRALIAN ENTRIES

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—Two of Australia's leading pacers, Smoke Cloud and Smoke Up, will compete at Roosevelt Raceway, track officials announced Monday. The Australian pacers will leave Melbourne after the inter-dominion final March 7.

Slump Not Bothering Pros

Palmer Playing Possum?

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Golfs touring professionals aren't driving much comfort out of Arnold Palmer's mild winter slump.

"This fellow has entirely too much ability and too much desire to be held down for long," Bill Casper Jr. said today. "He may have to subordinate some of his outside interests, but I'm convinced he'll be winning golf tournaments for years to come."

"He's more or less playing what you call possum right now," added Gary Player.

"When the big ones come up, Arnie will be ready. You can't win - win - win all the time. Palmer will be there when it counts. How can you bet against him in the masters?"

Palmer, the sport's all-time leading money winner who set a record winning mark of $128,230 last year, has caused some concern to sweep through Arnie's Army because of his failure to win a tournament so far this year. He has been out of the money twice in seven starts.

NOT TOO WORRIED

Palmer, whose score of 289 Monday gave him a 10th-place finish in the New Orleans Open won by Mason Rudolph, acknowledges he is having his troubles, but says he isn't greatly worried.

"I just don't have the feel," he said. "I can't seem to get my mind on it. But I'll get cracking. I'm going to take a couple of weeks off after the Pensacola tournament next week and really work on my game."

"I really don't think he wants to play well at this time," said Jay Hebert. "Arnie told me at San Francisco that he'd like to pace himself and reach his peak about the time of the Masters and the Open. It's traditional that the guy who is hot on the winter tour fades out in the summer. Arnie wants to be ripe for the big ones."

Napanee Ousts Trenton Juniors

Walt Gerow's Wings swept the three-of-five semi-final in consecutive games, squalling Picton's performance against Gananoque.

Picton and Napanee will now clash in a best-of-seven series for the group championship and the right to advance down the playdown trail.

The finals, of which no dates have been announced at this time, is expected to be a close, thrilling series Napanee nosed Picton out by a single point in the loop's regular-season pennant race.

Sport Snapshots

By BRUCE LEVETT

VANCOUVER (CP)—A man of philosophy—was born in London, among the Chiltern Hills of England, son of a ship's engineer.

"You could hardly find a background farther from horse-racing."

After he got into the sport, he "walked horses for a couple of years and watched trainers."

He worked with his own trainer for awhile, "but that makes it difficult to decide who's boss," so he let the trainer go and took over his own string of animals.

Last year, "for the first time we made money. He had six winners at Exhibition Park here and two at Sandown. Two other horses, leased to another trainer, came in winners.

At present his greatest hope centres around his brood mare At Will, by Bold Venture, sire of 2 Kentucky Derby Winners. She's being bred to the renowned stud Tail Chief II.

Ambition?

"Some day the Queen's Plate —there's no harm in shooting at it."

EX COACH CHARGED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Wayne Robinson, former coach of British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference, has been charged with failing to file a 1962 income tax return. Trial has been set for March 13. Robinson pleaded not guilty to the charge last week. Robinson, dismissed as coach in September, 1961, is director of an educational scholarship plan.

FORM NEW LEAGUE

HOUSTON (AP)—The formation of a new professional football league, the North American Football League, was announced Monday. All the teams are from U.S. cities. The league will operate just below the level of the two major U.S. professional leagues, signing players cut by the American and National league teams. Four cities have been awarded franchises—San Antonio, Tex., Minneapolis, Memphis, Tenn., and Seattle, Wash.

Will Name Board of Directors

Driving Club Reorganized

The driving division of the Quinte Driving and Riding Club will operate under a new system of management this year.

A board of ten directors will guide the decisions of the division, it was decided at a well-attended meeting held in Club Canara last night.

Sale of debentures at $50 each will get under way immediately under the supervision of a special committee composed of pro-tem president Doug Hedger, Jack Jeffrey and Ron Isaacs.

Directors will be named from those purchasing debentures at a meeting scheduled within two weeks time. It was reported a large number of members and supporters will support the club to this extent.

It was the general consensus that a board of ten men would be a more efficient method of operation than that which regulated the club in the past.

Lengthy discussion followed the suggestion to ask $50 per debenture. Some of the opinion $25 would be sufficient as the number is not restricted to one per member.

Regardless of the number of debentures purchased by any one person, members will be entitled to only one vote.

The decision to charge $50 per debenture was carried by a small margin.

A meeting of debenture holders will be held March 15 where directors will be named.

The regular membership tickets at $2.00 will be available for those not wishing to take out debentures. They will be entitled to vote at general meetings.

It was suggested that a new form of book-keeping be installed under the supervision of a chartered accountant. Difficulty had been met in an attempted audit of last year's records.

George Rutledge tendered his resignation as meet announcer due to pressure of business. George Herrington of Toronto was suggested as a replacement but decision was referred to the new board of directors.

Matinee races, the first of which was scheduled for March 7th, were postponed due to uncertainty of track conditions. It was suggested they be held later in the season when conditions would be more conducive to good racing.

During the summer the board of directors will meet every two weeks while regular meetings will take place monthly.

Committees are working hard on the "Horsemen's Ball" scheduled for the Club Canara on April 17th. Tickets are already on sale.

The first race meet of the club's sixteen-meet summer program is scheduled for May 23rd.

SPORT BRIEFS

TRINIDAD WINS

PORT OF SPAIN (AP)—Trinidad beat Jamaica by 142 runs Monday in their regional cricket series.

HILL WINS TITLE

Bluenose "Two" Bound for Cocos

HALIFAX (CP) — "Captain, sir, the barometer is falling and the wind is beginning to freshen from the east. A blow. Our first test, running under foresail, jumbo and jib, with water cascading down behind us . . ."

So writes James Johnson, a 23-year-old sailor from Nova Scotia's Guysborough County, who kept an account of the first part of Bluenose II's voyage from Lunenburg, N.S., to Cocos Island in the Pacific.

The 143-foot vessel, replica of the famed Nova Scotia racing-fishing schooner whose image appears on the Canadian dime, left Lunenburg Jan. 12.

Chartered for a treasure - hunting expedition on Cocos, she called at Bermuda, Jamaica and Costa Rica en route.

The first test came Jan. 14. Capt. Ellsworth Coggins of Dartmouth, N.S., made this entry in his log:

"4 a.t. 41:06, Long. 63:04. At 1430 we took in the jib. At 1500 we took in the jumbo. Gale force winds, rough following seas.

"On the northern edge of the Gulf Stream. Wind increasing and falling. Battened everything down."

TAKES SEAS NICELY

Johnson picks up the story in his letter to an official of the Halifax brewing firm that built the Bluenose II:

"Two days have passed and still the wind blows. We stand double watches. A double-reef in the foresail with the wind gale force out of the west. Hove to on starboard tack.

The third day passed with little respite, then the sun appeared and the wind died down.

When the lights of Bermuda loomed over the southern horizon, Johnson writes, it meant "the first unbroken sleep in 114 hours."

After leaving Bermuda, there was more rough weather — "trade wind clouds over the port quarter; with them the winds which carry us to Jamaica."

On the morning of Jan. 25 Bluenose II passed Haiti, resting place of the original Bluenose which went down there in 1946.

Capt. Angus Walters, 82, skipper of the first Bluenose, sailed in the replica as far as Bermuda.

The vessel, built at Lunenberg, is to return to Nova Scotia following a three-week stay at Cocos.

At Puntarenas, Costa Rica, six soldiers came aboard — to guard the Bluenose II against plunderers if it should find treasure and also to look out for the interests of Costa Rica which owns Cocos.

Works Whip Police For Puck Title

Public Works wound up an undefeated season in league and playoffs by sweeping the Interdepartmental Hockey finals over the Police Department last night.

The Works boys copped a 6-1 decision over the Police in last night's tilt and swept the final series in three successive games. The only blot on the Works' record this season was a single tie.

In a brief presentation ceremonies following the game, team captain Gord Green accepted the Marvin Reide Trophy, presented by its donor. Mr. Reide also presented each member of the Works' team with an individual trophy.

The Public Works team is coached by Gary Reid and managed by Bob Cook.

NEW ECONOMIC VIEW

QUEBEC (CP)—Savoir - faire has replaced laissez-faire in the British economy, Sir Henry Lintott, United Kingdom high commissioner to Canada, said Monday. "The state now must take many more responsibilities in guiding the economy," he said in an address to Quebec's French - language Chambre de Commerce.

CLAIM NEAR MISS

LONDON (Reuters)—A U.S. Air Force spokesman denied Tuesday that two American jet planes "interfered" with a British European Airways Viscount passenger plane. The spokesman commented on a report by an airline official that the plane was nearly in collision with two U.S. jet fighters as it was coming in to land at Stornoway airport in Scotland. A BEA official said the jets had flown "dangerously close" to the Viscount, which was carrying 42 passengers.

Commissioner of Prisons Draws Word Picture of New Medium Security Institution

CAMPBELLFORD — "It has been said that there is only one approach — that you must punish. Now, over a period of time, touch the prisoner's conscience, get to the heart of the man you want to reform, you cannot reform him". This is what A. J. MacLeod, Q.C., Commissioner of Penitentiaries for Canada, told his audience here on Saturday night.

Mr. MacLeod spoke to about 250 persons at the Masonic Temple, as main speaker at the Rural and Urban banquet held each year by the Campbellford Rotary Club.

Commissioner of Penitentiaries since 1960, Mr. MacLeod has served under seven Federal justice ministers during his long service in the justice department in Ottawa. He drew a word picture of what the people of the area might expect when the new six-million dollar medium security institution goes into operation in the summer of 1965.

NO PRISONERS ALIKE

While no two prisoners are alike, the speaker said that all had one thing in common in that "they need mending".

He said the 7,000 penitentiary inmates in Canada represented a cross section of social levels, almost every trade and profession, almost every ethnic group and almost every age group. He said that while none might be completely cured, there were certain characteristics most had in common.

Seventy per cent of ten inmates are born in Canada. Eight out of ten are under forty years of age. Eight out of ten say they are Christians. Eight out of ten lived in cities or towns when arrested. Eight out of ten used alcohol moderately, and few to excess. Eight out of ten have been gainfully employed for more than five years. Eight out of ten have been perfectly connected and four out of ten have served previous terms of imprisonment in a penitentiary.

"Seven out of ten have not attended school beyond Grade 8 and the average educational level is Grade 5. Six out of ten are single. Six out of ten were unemployed when arrested.

WRONG IN HOMES

Almost invariably there is something wrong in the homes of the inmates. In many cases prisoners were the product of broken homes and in other cases in homes where no loved passed from parent to child. Emotional disturbance and frustration were common in the homes of most.

Persons raised in such homes develop no incentive in form strong character, but usually become weak, easily led and demonstrate feelings of resentment, hostility, fear, aggressiveness, anxiety or guilt. "This results in delinquency in youth and criminality in manhood" Mr. MacLeod said.

To help prisoners achieve emotional maturity they could be returned into a free society, the penal service had embarked on a program of trying to make up many of the deficiencies in the maximum security that eventually led him to the penitentiary.

Part of this training depends on discipline — not merely the type of discipline necessary in any penal institution, but self discipline to develop self control, self reliance and self respect. These are qualities most prisoners lack, but most possess in sufficient quantity for them to live in peace in a free society.

Good food, well prepared and in sufficient quantity for the prisoner's need is a must in the re - training program, and clothing is also important, the speaker said. Dull, drab ill-fitting clothing is now giving way to clothing that is attractive and suitable for the activities they are to follow. Work will also be made at the new penitentiary for prisoners to change their clothing after work each day and facilities will be provided for the polishing of shoes and the pressing of trousers, adding the man an incentive to look neat.

NO PHYSICAL RESTRAINTS

About half of the penitentiary population of Canada can be housed safely in medium security prisons, where less emphasis is required regarding the movement and guarding of inmates, leaving more time for a training program. About twenty per cent can be housed in minimum security institutions with no physical restraints.

Prison labor has been used to help in the building and repairing of the prisoners, with daily pay ranging from twenty-five cents to fifty-five cents, leaving it to the inmate himself through his own efforts, to qualify for the higher pay rates. In addition, each inmate can shorten his sentence by up to three days per month through application and effort in relation to the training program.

Because of the large number of young inmates, the penitentiary services hope to increase vocational training in its institutions. Not all can profit from vocational training because some lack necessary mental capacity, some lack initiative and others are just not interested, while some are beyond the age to learn. Of these, they could be accepted as apprentices for further training under union rules and regulations. Sometimes are too short for some to learn a trade.

"Graduates of vocational training courses in penal institutions have made successful lives on the 'outside'", Mr. MacLeod said. During the past ten years more than 2,000 trainees have graduated from such courses in federal penitentiaries and have been released. Only eleven per cent were subsequently sentenced again to a penitentiary term. The average among those released without training is 45 per cent.

The whole field of recreational facilities which will be available to inmates at the new institution is built about the seven miles south of Campbellford, and said recreational activities will be provided for.

Academic education will also be provided for prisoners many of whom have a low level of education and do not readily understand what they read in newspapers. They are usually unable to write a satisfactory

RELIGIOUS PROGRAM

"About forty per cent of the inmates attend church within the institution voluntarily — about the same percentage as those in free society," the speaker said. A second religious program is provided.

Mr. MacLeod stressed the need for back-up services to understand that they can help by providing services and talents to the inmates' recreational program, and said the institution will encourage visits by theatre groups and service organizations.

He also stressed the point that prisoners housed in the new institution will be the non-violent type. They will not be able to engage in escape attempts. Any who for some reason did escape would not be dangerous to those living in the area. "Any prisoners who escape are unlikely to stay in the area, but distance between himself and the prison that he is not likely to stay long in the area", he said, and added that those living close to penal institutions have no fear as much danger from prisoner violence, such as might be expected in the case of a maximum security institution than those living at a distance from it.

WORKERS REQUIRED

About 170 persons will be required to administrate the new prison, but only a few of these will be recruited from other areas, and some will be drawn from the district. However, many of the employees will come from the communities in the prison, he said. He said the personnel who are brought into the area in an administrative capacity will be first class, responsible citizens who will be an asset to the community.

Mr. MacLeod showed a scale model of the penitentiary, saying that it was a modern and advanced and efficient institution of its type in the world. He said caution should be taken to avoid the mistakes made in designing penitentiaries in the United Kingdom to the point where the new prison will be a model for other countries in the world, and will be second to none.

He said that the only approach to self-improvement is through his heart, and the way to the human heart is through the sense of beauty. "By beauty," he said, "he meant not only the beauty of environment, but those ideals of character, of conduct, of human relationships and manifestations of beauty. "It is because those ideals are confused in the mind of the prisoner, or forgotten, or have never existed or perhaps never can exist, that we find him where he is.

Hold up to the prisoner in the way he will understand and stand it the vision of the benefit to come from the well-ordered life and the joy of frankness and fairness, and above all, fill his heart with courage, and not be afraid to face those living in a distance from it.

Bad Roads Blamed for $1,200 Crash

CAMPBELLFORD — High winds and snow-covered roads were blamed for an accident on Highway 30, about nine miles south of Campbellford Saturday when a pole just ashed the cab of a tractor-trailer transport.

The truck, driven by Robert Turnbull of Campbellford, and owned by Valley View stock farms of Campbellford, was travelling north after delivering a load of cattle in the Toronto, U.S.A. area. John McMurray, riding as a passenger, had driven the truck from Syracuse to a point just south of the accident when Mr. Turnbull took over the wheel. Both escaped with only a shaking up in what police termed "an almost miraculous escape."

Winds blew the empty trailer sideways, causing the truck to skid into a ditch where the cab slammed against a tree. The trailer jack-knifed, pulled the cab away from the tree, and hauled it backwards down a steep incline, and the truck, still in one piece, came to rest on its wheels in a farmer's field.

Several other near accidents were caused when cars, trying to slow down to view the wrecked truck, skidded sideways on the snow-covered road. Other stretches of the highway were bare and dry.

Damage to the tractor was estimated at more than $1,200.

People Put Notes on Blooming Tree

It's a place where people leave messages for each other.

The tree's real blossoms, so they say, bud in the spring. But the notes—lovelorn, poetic, comic and coldly practical — festoon its branches year round.

"Richie, every day I wait for you at 12:30. Please come one of these days. I love you. Marge."

Then there's the no - nonsense type:

The bulletin:

"I'm being held prisoner under track 32. Help."

The plea:

"Light waves acknowledge you and everyone . . ." (this one's typed out on a blue index card and covered with cellophane).

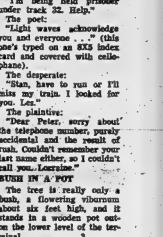
The desperate:

"Stan, have to run or I'll miss my train. I looked for you. Les."

The plaintive:

"Dear Peter, sorry about the telephone number, purely accidental and the result of rush. Couldn't remember your last name either, so I couldn't call you...Lorraine."

RUSH IN A POT



The tree is really only a bush, a four-foot-long viburnum about six feet high, and it stands in a wooden pot outside the lowest level of the terminal.

Harry Binestone, president of the five-store chain and an amateur arborist, got the idea after he opened the Grand Central branch two years ago. People who killed time by browsing in the main store met friends there and wanted the clerks to take messages for it if a friend missed a rendezvous.

"Now it's an employment agency, lovelorn column, poste's bulletin board and what all," he said. "We like the idea. Too many people rush through here, bumping into each other, shoving and pushing.

"What we'd like to see is that poet who's on the tree get some of his stuff into a book so we could sell it here. It's not bad stuff, really."

Seafood Now Being Tested As Possible Weapon Against Coronary Heart Disease

By ED WALTERS

HALIFAX (CP) Seafood is being tested here as a possible weapon in the war against coronary heart disease, and preliminary reports show some promise on two counts.

Dr. C. M. Harlow, director of laboratories at Camp Hill Veterans Hospital, is involved in an experiment to assess the effect on blood cholesterol of a diet free of meat and most dairy products but high in fish.

He says most of the 41 men and women volunteers have lost weight and show reduction in blood-cholesterol levels since going on the seafood diet.

Whether the lower level of cholesterol in the blood is related to a reduction in the danger of heart disease is not definitely established. But it is widely believed that proper weight control is a factor.

Cholesterol is a fat-like substance present in all animal foods. When it collects on the inside walls of the arteries and eventually clogs them, it can force the heart to pump harder and may lead to coronary heart attacks.

LOW IN CHOLESTEROL

Fish is low in cholesterol and it was decided to run a medically controlled study to determine the effect of a diet in which seafood is substituted for meat.

"The majority of tests show reduction in blood - cholesterol levels and body weight," Dr. Harlow said in an interview. "Indeed, many of the volunteers plan to continue their high fish diet in daily menus.

"However, we are not advocating that people stop eating meat."

The volunteers, all active individuals in the 30-to-59 age bracket, come from the ranks of the Halifax police and fire departments, the RCMP, business organizations and the nursing profession.

They went on a fish and shellfish diet for eight weeks, eliminating all meats, certain dairy products and egg yolk.

Dr. Harlow, a PhD and MD graduate of McGill University, said the idea for the experiment came from a project in South Africa in which fish oil was used to replace certain meats in diets.

It is being financed mainly by grants from the department of veterans affairs and the National Research Council.

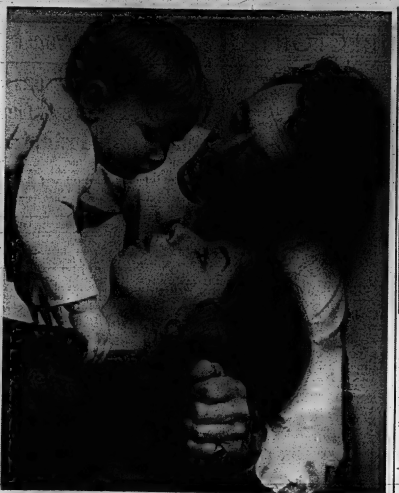
Nova Scotia was a logical area for such an experiment because of the plentiful supply of seafood.

NO PROOF YET

Dr. Harlow emphasized that it may be 10 to 15 years before it is proved whether cholesterol in the diet affects the incidence of heart disease. He said there is evidence in some countries where much fish was eaten the death rate from certain heart diseases is lower.

The Japanese, who eat an average of 90.6 pounds of fish a year, had a death rate of 49.7 per 100,000. Canadians, who consume an average of 13.1 pounds, had a rate of 238.2 the same year.

In 1959 the Canadian death rate from this cause was 234.9. Norwegians, whose fish consumption is 47.2 pounds, had a death rate of 192.8.



Dr. Harlow said a person's weight may or may not have a connection with his blood-cholesterol and many with high levels. The same applied to thin persons.

In Canada the average cholesterol level in a normally healthy person is taken to be between 150 and 250 units, he said, but there is some suspicion among doctors that 250 is too high.

Dr. Harlow said the results of the eight-week experiment will be made known in a few months when he publishes a paper on his findings.

Prevents Theft of Records By New Automatic Sellers

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP)—Profit - conscious Claude Crocker has spent $200,000 developing a machine that dispenses phonograph records mainly because he wanted to dispense with the services of a clerk in his record department.

Three years ago it seemed Mr. Crocker had gone as far as one could go in streamlining the operations of his music store. Every department had been gradually converted to self-service operation — all but the record counter where constant supervision was needed to prevent pilferage of popular 45 r.p.m. records.

Now he has not only licked the problem but is president of a new company turning out vending machines to handle the 45 records which, because of their size, are a favorite target of shoplifters.

"I looked into the possibility of getting a machine but found there wasn't one available," he says. "Two had been developed in the U.S. but they failed because of malfunctioning."

Mr. Crocker's solution was to form Record King Sales Ltd. and hire two Vancouver engineers to design a functional machine from scratch.

Two years later engineers Carl Stevenson and Earl Bismeyer had turned out three prototypes and Mr. Crocker's dream was a step closer. Each machine can hold 3,000 records in three price categories up to $1.50.

Production of the units was started six months ago by Monarch Masters Ltd. of Toronto, a major producer of coin-operated laundry equipment.

10 UNITS A DAY

Record King has about $200,000 invested in development cost and establishment of distribution offices in the U.S. and Eastern Canada.

Sixty units have been produced, most sold or leased in the U.S., and production has been stepped up to 10 units a day.

The company is negotiating a distribution deal with RCA Victor and several machines have been installed in Montreal stores as part of RCA's test.

"RCA put one machine through 3,500 cycles and it functioned seven times, six because it had been improperly loaded," Mr. Crocker says. "RCA took the machine could revolutionize the record industry. The record companies are pushing production because of pilferage and many stores won't stock 45 records any more." Mr. Crocker says the vending machines retail at $1.450 and adds there is a 40-per-cent profit on 45 r.p.m. records when sold with the machine.

He estimates there are 800,000 potential locations for the machine in North America alone and that Japan (from which he has orders for 150) and Europe also have great potential.

The only machine in British Columbia is in Mr. Crocker's store. "It's been there for four months now, selling about 100 records a day, and we haven't had to call a serviceman yet."

'Hollywood and the Stars' Show on Film-Making Boring

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Hollywood and The Stars started out in September dedicated to laughs and nostalgia by showing bits from silent movies. It has steadily broadened its horizons.

It revealed Monday night what really went on during the days in Mexico when Ava, Dickie and Liz were concerned with making the movie, Night of the Iguana.

Someone on the scene compared the sober goings-on to a boy scout picnic. This was a wild exaggeration.

We did see Miss Gardner wake sitting and sitting. Miss Taylor was glimpsed reading a newspaper and standing around at a party. Burton was shown having his makeup applied, acting and standing around with Miss Taylor — looking, alas, bored.

By that time so was I.

Infrequent Oil Changes Weaken Engine

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Some motorists believe that regular oil changes are absolutely unnecessary, that they serve only to fatten the oil refiner's profits. Anyone who preaches this is actually promoting business for the engine repair and car sales people. . . and obviously has no idea of the vital roles played by engine oil.

Engine oil serves to cool, cushion, clean, lubricate and seal. It also collects dirt, grit, acids and other contaminants which enter or are formed in the engine. The filter can only trap so many harmful elements — the remainder mix with the oil. When this happens, and nothing is done about it, wear, corrosive action, poor economy and sub-par engine performance are gradually result. Eventually, serious repairs may be needed. Obviously, the one way to prevent harmful contaminants from being circulated through the engine is to keep the oil clean. So far, no one has come up with a better answer than frequent oil and filter changes.

G. U. writes: "I've heard that front end alignment does no good if you don't have new front tires installed, too."

That's wrong. Unless tires are badly worn, cupped or out of round, they need not be replaced to correct alignment.

The ball joints connect upper and lower suspension arms to the steering knuckle and permit up and down wheel play plus the turning movement needed to steer the wheel.

M. H. writes: "Is the steam which may be seen coming from the exhaust the result of some water in the gas or moisture - laden air which forms part of the fuel mixture?"

This was explained — but apparently not clearly — several weeks ago. The steam is the result of water normally produced during the combustion process.

L. B. asks: "I just passed my driver's license exam in an automatic transmission car. Am I also authorized to drive a conventional clutch-shift car?"

Where you live, yes — you are properly licensed to drive a stick shift model even if you don't know how!

Income Tax Explained

By C. A. MILLER

When a husband and wife have separated in the taxation year, they are often at a loss as to what exemptions they are allowed to claim.

The exemptions allowable depend on whether the separation was by written agreement, court order or other legal proceedings. For the husband, it will also depend on his wife's income, if any, before the separation. If the wife had no income and was supported by the husband before separation, he can claim $1,000 for her.

If he was ordered by the courts to make payments to her after the separation, then he should claim the greater of $1,000 exemption or the total of the separation payments. He cannot claim both. If his wife became employed after separation, what she earned has no bearing on the husband's return.

In the case of the wife receiving separation payments which the courts had ordered, she must report them as income on her return. If her husband pays her any amount in excess of what the court has ordered, such excess need not be shown on her return. Likewise the husband cannot deduct the excess on his return.

If there were children and the custody of them was given to the wife, then she is allowed to claim the equivalent to married one child and any other child can only be claimed for the applicable deduction for such a child.

Separations by mutual consent without legal action have no special provisions. For income tax purposes, the same procedure applies as if they were living together.

For personal replies pertaining to income tax problems, please enclose a self-addressed five cent stamped envelope and 25c in coin for question you wished answered.

Question: My wife left me and went back to her parents. She sued me for support and I have to pay her $100 a month. Do I claim exemption for her or deduct the payments I make?

Answer: This is deemed to be a legal separation. You will deduct the amount you paid her in the year.

Question: My wife and I were both employed. We decided to separate and live apart. I give her extra cash and buy some of her clothes. What is my exemption?

Answer: $1,000 as it is presumed she earns more than $1,250 in the year.

Nehru Waging Battle to Regain Health

The pilot of the world's second largest nation had a mild stroke Jan. 6. His activities are rationed lest he have a relapse. He is 74.

But he is performing all the functions of a prime minister except ceremonials and greeting visitors, says his devoted daughter, Mrs. Indira Gandhi.

Nehru regularly attended and occasionally speaks briefly in Parliament. He also takes part in cabinet meetings and conferences of Congress party leaders.

His daughter says he reads important official telegrams and state papers and the daily newspapers. He is in touch with top developments through his ministers.

SUPERVISION RELAXED

But he does not exercise the detailed supervision he did for 16 years.

Nehru's foreign ministry portfolio is largely in the hands of his closest confidant and possible successor, Lal Bahadur Shastri.

Detailed diplomatic work is left to foreign service officers. The doctors want him to be able to put down his work and rest the instant he feels tired," says one source familiar with his routine.

The prime minister is not making speeches, travelling or putting in appearances at many conventions as he used to.

"All that has been eliminated," Mrs. Gandhi said. "But he does anything connected with work."

Expect Borneo War To Flare Up As Parley Fails

Bangkok Meet Founders On Conditions of Truce

BANGKOK (Reuters)—Peace talks among Malaysia, Indonesia and the Philippines have broken down in this capital of Thailand because of failure to reach agreement on cease-fire conditions in Malaysian Borneo, Philippines Foreign Secretary Salvador Lopez announced today.

Indonesian guerrillas had been battling Malaysian and British security forces on the Indonesian - Malaysian frontier in Borneo until an uneasy cease-fire was arranged by U.S. Attorney-General Robert Kennedy during a trouble-shooting mission to Southeast Asia in January.

There have been several alleged breaches of the cease-fire since then.

Today's breakdown was expected here to lead to a worsening of the already tottering cease-fire, which Malaysia has accused Indonesia of violating 15 times.

In all, nearly 200 persons were believed to have been killed in the jungle fighting, which now is a year old.

The presence of the Indonesian guerrillas in Malaysian Borneo had been the main point of argument during the tripartite ministerial talks.

Malaysia, which called the talks after the cease-fire began to collapse, insists the guerrillas must leave and alleges that Indonesia has instead been reinforcing them.

Indonesia, which has pledged the destruction of the Malaysian Federation on the grounds that it is a "colonialist stooge" for Britain, says the guerrillas will stay until a political settlement of the Malaysia dispute is reached.

The Philippines is involved because of its claim to sovereignty over part of Malaysian Borneo.

Two hours after the conference resumed today the Philippines foreign secretary told reporters the talks had been "terminated indefinitely."

"We did our best, but the positions remained unchanged," he said.

Meanwhile, Malaysian sources claimed that Indonesia threatened to send Russian military aid to reinforce its Borneo frontiers if it had to withdraw guerrillas from Malaysian Borneo.

The sources said they learned of the Indonesian threat through Filipino officials.

Last week Malaysia closed its airspace over its Borneo territories and warned it would shoot down any aircraft attempting to supply guerrilla forces.

Tell Robarts He Should Visit Area

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts and Agriculture Minister Stewart should visit Ontario's "little" tobacco centres after growers demonstrated against fluctuating market prices. The auctions remain closed today.

Mr. Stewart later denied Mr. Spence's contention that a similar dispute was settled when former premier Leslie Frost visited the tobacco area personally. The minister said he had merely attended a nomination meeting and the strife was settled at a Queen's Park meeting.

Meanwhile, a delegation from the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board was in Ottawa in an attempt to settle the current strife. They hoped to meet with tobacco buyers sometime this week.

No reports of demonstrations were received Tuesday from the auction centres at Aylmer, Delhi and Tillsonburg.

EXCHANGE HOT WORDS

The debate in the Ontario legislature saw Mr. Stewart and New Democratic Party Leader Donald C. MacDonald exchange angry words as the NDP leader blamed the crisis on the Progressive Conservative government.

He said the government, through the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Board, had rendered the tobacco board powerless in its dealings with the buyers. He blamed the problem on government's fluctuating policy on price controls.

"It's just a case of big daddy cracking the whip and saying 'Obey or we'll dissolve you,'" Mr. MacDonald said.

He also charged that cigarette companies, by offering as low as six cents a pound, had been making a mockery of the whole business" of auctioneering.

Wilson Says Speech by Kennedy Made Mr. K Turn Back on Chinese

BRIDGEPORT, Conn. (AP)—British Labor Party Leader Harold Wilson said Tuesday Soviet Premier Khrushchev did not expect Communist Chinese demands for nuclear knowledge when he read the late president John F. Kennedy's June 10, 1963, speech, apparently was the deciding factor in the world from fear.

This was a "turning point," Wilson said in a speech at Bridgeport University.

In Moscow at the time, diplomatic sources said, authorities were convinced Kennedy's sincerity and understanding.

"He was at the parting of the ways. He could only repair his fences with the Chinese by a total break with the West or by talk with the West, perhaps even by abolishing the fulfillment of their nuclear weapons. He decided to withdraw his objections to the test ban treaty. . . ."

Wilson said in Washington earlier Tuesday that if his party wins control in the next election he will stick to Britain's current policy of trading with Communist China and recognizing Communist China.

UN Peace Force Is Assured

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United Nations Security Council voted unanimously today to have UN Secretary-General U Thant set up a Cyprus peace force and to name a mediator to seek peace in the island republic.

The Soviet Union cleared the way for the solid vote when it announced it would support the plan despite strong reservations on the provisions for the creation and control of the force.

There also had been some doubt about France's vote, but French delegate Roger Seydoux went along with the others.

Just before the vote the secretary-general told the 11-nation council he was confident he would be able to form the force and that he would get the full co-operation of Cyprus, Britain, Turkey and Greece in the UN peace efforts.

The Soviet position was disclosed by Ambassador Nikolai T. Fedorenko at the opening of the council session.

MAJOR OBJECTIONS

Fedorenko objected to a provision that the secretary-general would decide on the composition of the proposed force in consultation with Cyprus, Britain, Greece and Turkey. This, he said, would circumvent the Security Council. He also objected to a provision making the commander of the force accountable to the secretary-general and not the council.

He asked for a separate vote on this whole section of the resolution and stated that he would abstain on it. He declared, however, that in view of the fact that the resolution was acceptable to Cyprus he would vote for the proposal as a whole.

In the course of his speech, Fedorenko protested against the presence of the Chinese Nationalist delegate, Ambassador Liu Chieh, in the chair as council president. He called it a "ridiculous situation."

Liu replied that he did not want to provoke a debate on that but was sure of the acceptance of the issue before the council. There was no further discussion.

The resolution was worked out in the course of the six permanent council members, all except Czechoslovakia—and was studied word by word, apparently to overcame reservations by Turkey on one hand and the Cyprus government on the other.

Rough Waters Ahead

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — The Columbia River power and flood control treaty was launched in the Commons Tuesday with a 95-minute speech by External Affairs Minister Martin. There were immediate indications of rough waters downstream.

New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas said his party will do everything in its power to block the treaty's ratification. The Canadian - American treaty, he declared, is "thoroughly bad."

Conservative and Social Credit spokesmen indicated they would back the treaty.

Mr. Douglas and Mr. Martin agreed on only one aspect of this complicated matter—that it was one of the most important issues to come before any recent session of Parliament. From

Will Pay for Some Nationalized Firms
Castro Says Trade Price of Compensation

HAVANA (Reuters) — Premier Fidel Castro said early today he is ready to pay compensation to countries whose properties in Cuba had been nationalized if they pursued a "correct trade policy" toward Cuba.

Castro told Cuban and world reporters at a reception given by the Moroccan charge d'affaires that British subjects had a policy and that Cuba therefore is willing to pay indemnifications for property of the British Oil Company sequestrated after the Cuban revolution.

Castro said the Cuban government is willing to compensate British businesses which had been nationalized, but it could not compensate American firms because the U.S. government "does not follow a friendly trade policy towards CUba."

Last week, Castro said in an interview with Reuters that he was willing to open negotiations with Shell on compensation for the company's nationalized properties. Shell since has said that it is ready to hold such discussions.

(The Royal Bank of Canada and the Bank of Nova Scotia, the only Canadian banks in Cuba, were nationalized in late 1960. External Affairs Minister Martin was asked about various expropriations in the Canadian Commons last July and declined to give a list, value or any compensation made.

("The Canadian government has recorded all Canadian claims brought to its attention, but feels it would not be proper to publish those claims without the permission of the parties concerned," Martin said.)

Surrounded by reporters and guests in the garden of the Moroccan mission, Castro said in reply to questions: "We are ready to trade with any European country and we have sufficient reserves to pay right away.

"England is pursuing a correct trade policy toward Cuba and that is why we are ready to pay indemnifications for their nationalized property, such as Shell. This is our idea, and we are also willing to pay indemnifications to other countries which follow a correct trade policy.

"But we cannot, unfortunately, do this for the United States because they do not follow a friendly trade policy towards us.

During his two-hour informal press conference, the Cuban premier also made these points:

U.S.-Cuban relations had reached "the same situation" since President Johnson came to power. They had neither deteriorated nor improved.

Castro said he regards the incident of the Cuban fishermen seized for violation of U.S. territorial waters and his subsequent decision to shut off the water supply to the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo as closed. He reiterated Cuba's willingness to resume the water supply, but said the United States would first have to indicate that it wanted the water turned on

U.S. Students Thought Sodom and Gomorrah Lovers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A test on the Bible was sprung on five classes of college-bound 11th and 12th graders in a public school.

Some thought Sodom and Gomorrah were married couples; that the gospels were written by Matthew, Mark, Luther and John; that Eve was created from an apple; and that the stories by which Jesus taught were called parodies.

Eighty to 90 per cent of the students could not complete such familiar quotations as: "Many are called, but few are chosen;" "A soft answer turneth away (wrath);" "They shall beat their swords into (plowshares);" "Pride goeth before a (fall);" and, "The love of money is the root of all (evil)."

All this happened in Newton, Mass., and English teacher Thayer S. Warshaw decided to do something about it. He arranged for two of his classes to study the Bible—not as a religious book, or even as literature, but as a source book for the humanities.

Teaching about the Bible in American public schools can be a tricky business, particularly since the U.S. Supreme Court decision on school prayer.

But Warshaw, reporting his experience in the February issue of The English Journal, believes it is essential:

"The Bible is indeed a religious book, but it is also a part of our secular cultural heritage. . . .

"A knowledge of the Bible is essential to the pupil's understanding of allusions in literature, in music, and in the fine arts; in news media, in entertainment, and in cultural conversation.

"Is he to study mythology and Shakespeare, and not the Bible? Is it important for him to learn what it means when a man is called an Adonis or a Romeo, yet unimportant for him to be able to tell a Jonah from a Judas?"

Spending Up Despite Efforts To Apply Brakes

Steepest Increase In Post-War Period

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—Government spending has shot upwards again despite Finance Minister Walter Gordon's apparent efforts to apply the brakes.

He tabled in the Commons Tuesday the main spending estimates for the 1964-65 fiscal year totalling $7,585,513,508. This is a one-year rise of 6.6 per cent or $470,000,000, making it one of the steepest year-to-year increases in the post-war period.

And there is more to come. Mr. Gordon is expected to bring in supplementary estimates later in the year covering these outlays, among others:

An $87,000,000 boost in payments to the provinces; possibly $100,000,000 in railway subsidies stemming from legislation based on the MacPherson royal commission on transportation; about $35,000,000 for winter works, and—if it is renewed—about $30,000,000 for winter house-building.

His next move is to raise the money to pay for it all. How much will come from taxes, and how much he will have to borrow, will be revealed in his budget address now expected either late this month or in mid-April.

SAYS TAXES TOO HIGH

Mr. Gordon already has said that taxes are too high. He said in a recent speech that there will be no major tax changes this year. The question now is whether a rising economy—if it keeps on rising—will give him enough additional revenues at present tax rates to make any sizable cut in the federal deficit.

His forecast deficit for the current fiscal year ending March 31 was $625,000,000. But the Canadian Tax Foundation, an independent study group, estimated last week that unexpected revenue increases and spending cuts could erase $100,000,000 from that figure.

Mr. Douglas and Mr. Martin agreed on only one aspect of this complicated matter—that it was one of the most important issues to come before any recent session of Parliament.

Hellyer Wrestles Arms Cost

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister Hellyer's initial efforts to cut the armed forces' housekeeping costs to free more funds for purchase of new weapons and equipment seem to have been frustrated.

But, informants say, the minister has only begun to fight.

Mr. Hellyer has swung a trade concession from the treasury board, the cabinet committee which decides on all federal expenditures. The concession: any savings the defence department makes in housekeeping costs can be spent on new weapons and equipment.

Informants said Tuesday such savings aren't likely to be large, at least not immediately, but that the plan provides an incentive for the services to climb operations and maintenance costs.

The $6446 million budget, presented to Parliament Tuesday, amounts to $1,525,000,000 or $109,000,000 less than that of the current fiscal year which ends March 31.

More than half this reduction—$56,000,000—is due to a slash in the equipment account. This is the exact opposite to the policy Mr. Hellyer was aiming at. Defence expenditures in recent months has been saying that the aim was to raise spending on new weapons and equipment to 20 to 25 per cent of the defence budget. The percentage in 1962-63 was 18 per cent and it has fallen to 13.4 per cent.

The appropriations for operations and maintenance were also cut, but by a smaller amount: $30,000,000. Spkeep in 1964-65 is $1,125,000,000 compared with $204,000,000 for new equipment.

The first step in Mr. Hellyer's expected 10-year budget: A $7,000,000 expenditure for new transport planes, likely to be American Lockheed Hercules, security blanket for the country.

Last year's $10 increase to $75 monthly in the old age pension brings the total to $882,000,000 today

Planes and Helicopters by Dozens Assemble for Assault on Seals

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP)—A massive assault on the seal herds in the Gulf of St. Lawrence is being mustered on the Magdalen Islands.

The big buildup of planes, which carry land-based hunters to the ice and transport seal pelts back to shore, had the appearance of a "Klondike rush," the Charlottetown Guardian said.

Light planes and helicopters by the dozens — from as far away as Montreal — are converging on the Quebec-held islands 90 miles south of here to take part in the annual seal hunt opening Thursday.

Nobody seems to know how many planes will be on hand, but reports from pilots flying through here place the total at between 100 and 150, compared to 25 last season.

About 20 planes have gone through here, transport department officials said, but added they have no way of knowing how many others have flown directly to the Magdalens from other points.

Bob Warnock of Wakefield, Que., pilot of a plane that headed for the Magdalens Tuesday, wondered where 150 planes would find seals, and at the same time was concerned about the possibility of accidents.

He flew in the seal hunt last year. He estimated there was a 50-per-cent accident rate among the planes. These ranged from three destroyed planes—no pilot lost his life in a crash on the ice—to bent undercarriages.

The hunt, probably running to about 100,000 seals, was located 15 miles west of the Magdalens Tuesday. Scouting planes were reported approaching them.

"I think it's going to be a real circus out there," said Warnock. He figures with 50 planes in the race for the seals, the successful pilot would have to be in the air before daylight to get a place at the herd.

The planes ferry several hunters to the seal herd, then fly back and forth between the hunters and the Magdalens ferry-boats.

Large planes occasionally team up with a small plane. The large plane picks a heavy ice pan for a landing base and from there ferries pelts to land, depending on the small planes to bring the pelts from the hunters to the assembly point.

The length of the season depends mainly on ice conditions, although it officially closes April 30. The pelts are worth $6 to $12.

Defends Policy of Board On Teaching of Oral French

The Belleville Public School Board is justified in its present policy to "make haste slowly" with respect to the place and use of Oral French as part of an integrated program for schools. This was the feeling expressed last night by L. A. Kells, Belleville public schools administrator, in spoke to members of the Harry J. Clarke-Bayview Home and School Association, as he spoke of Oral French as a subject of instruction for public schools.

At the present time in Belleville conversational French is being taught on a volunteer "after school" basis at a number of public schools. The school board, however, has no direct connection with the course other than to make schools available for the after 4 o'clock lessons.

Mr. Kells told his listeners that Ontario Department of Education regulations do permit the introduction of French for Grades VII and VIII in public schools.

NO OBSERVABLE PATTERN

Under the regulations French was being taught in certain centres such as at Scarborough, London, Windsor and at Sudbury, but a study of programs in these schools yielded no observable pattern.

At London pupils in advancement class in Grade 5 have received Oral French instruction for four periods a week, and the Department is continuing to extend permits for experimentation beyond Grades 7 and 8.

He said, however, that school boards should carefully assess requests for the introduction of French lessons in public school.

MANY PROBLEMS

Claims that "everyone is doing it," that "some day my child might need it" and that Oral French should help my child in high school, should be carefully considered.

These, and others, are the problems that a responsible board of school trustees must consider, Mr. Kells said.

Trustees are elected "to ensure that every school under its charge is conducted in accordance with the schools' act and the regulations.

"It is likely that individual trustees will be influenced in some measure by background, friends, reading and by public opinion, but the board acting as a corporation has a responsibility to set its policies and defend them."

Must Report Deaths

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Dymond of Ontario said Thursday that future deaths of babies and mothers in maternity boarding homes will have to be reported to a coroner.

He introduced an amendment to the Maternity Boarding Houses Act, under which children up to three years and their mothers are boarded either in private or agency-run homes.

Deaths now have to be reported to a medical officer of health. The health department issues licences to any homes charging fees.

Says Queen Safe in Quebec But Would Not Be Welcome

MONTREAL (CP) — Vincent Tureot, Montreal journalist and commentator, said Tuesday night that the Queen would not visit Canada this year because she would not be welcome in Quebec.

Mr. Turcot, who resigned last week as assistant editor and managing editor of the Montreal French-language newspaper Le Devoir, made the remark on the CBC program Viewpoint.

He said centenary celebrations of the 1864 Charlottetown and Quebec City conferences which led to Confederation will be viewed with sorrow by thousands of Canadians."

He claimed that Confederation symbolized failure or stifling nothing to many Canadians and questioned the wisdom of inviting the Queen in what might be a national mess.

Mr. Turcot said he did not feel the Queen's life of her scheduled October visit is carefully because Quebecers are no more massing than Londoners, Torontonians or Parisians."

However, he said, she is "not welcome" and faces the possibility prospect of stirred-up crowds and finding herself alone with government officials.

Rough

there on, there were sharp differences in the debate, which resumes today.

This briefly said Mr. Martin, "... will stand in history as a truly great accomplishment."

Mr. Douglas: "Conceived in avarice and born in apathy."

The long-awaited treaty, with its many bargaining complexities, reached the Commons during the afternoon when Mr. Martin rose to begin reading a bulky summary of its history, its purposes, and its future. Interrupted by the private members' hour and dinner hour, he didn't finish his marathon address until 8:25 p.m.

Under the treaty and the protocol, a three-dam storage system will be built in B.C., with the provinces sharing half the extra power the U.S. can generate from that control.

There are provisions for the 30-year sale in advance to the U.S. of that power block with payments by the U.S. amounting to $501,000,000 by 1973. This would pay for the three B.C. Hydro dams and have $53,000,000 to start installing Canadian generating capacity on the Columbia.

Mr. Douglas said "many Yankee traders" took inexperienced Canadians to the camp on the treaty and what Canada did was "largely to satisfy the vanity of a provincial premier".

W. A. C. Bennett of B.C.

PRAISES PACT

"There is no shadow of doubt or hesitation in my mind when I say that I believe they (the treaty itself and the subsequent protocol) represent a high point in the combination of legal, technical and economic sciences for the advantage of the people of both Canada and the United States," said Mr. Martin.

There had been a "very great amount of misunderstandings and misinformation about the entire project. The critics had had their say—few agreed with each other—and now the hoped the hour would be theirs to weight behind the new plans for developing the tremendous power potential of the huge river.

So far as the 17-member NDP group was concerned, the plea fell on deaf ears.

The treaty is a "great betrayal" to British Columbia in particular and Canada in general said Mr. Douglas.

PAYS TRIBUTE

Mr. Martin had paid a glowing tribute to the work done under the previous government. The object of the recent negotiations was to make a good treaty even better.

Prime Minister Pearson, asked by dentist Joseph Slogan of Springfield to publicly endorse fluoridation of water supplies, said no useful purpose would be served by any statement by him.

Trade Minister Sharp said Canada is prevented by an international agreement from importing Communist China to the 1967 world's fair in Montreal. The agreement governs world trade.

Mr. Sharp also announced sale of 16,300,000 bushels feed barley to Communist China. The sale, reported earlier in Winnipeg, is worth about $18,500,000. Defence Minister Hellyer said collections of arms and ammunition at some points in Canada were the result of independent action by military authorities checking existing security arrangements.

UN Peace

Sources said the Cyprus government, controlled by the Greek-Cypriots, had informed Secretary-General U Thant that the plan was acceptable.

IS SATISFACTORY

The Turkish foreign office spokesman said in Ankara Tuesday the resolution "adheres to the Turkish position" and therefore was satisfactory.

The crux of the conflict was Turkey's call a resolution would reaffirm the 1960 independence treaty of Cyprus—which provided for Greek or Turkish intervention under certain circumstances—or supersede it.

The resolution met Turkey's demand for inclusion of a mention of the treaty and Cyprus' demand for a call to safeguard its territorial integrity.

France, another council member with a veto, also had reservations about the peace plan, asserting that "secrecy gets at the effects and not the causes" of the strife.

The council resolution—sponsored by Brazil, Bolivia, the Ivory Coast, Norway and Moroccan—puts a three-month time limit on the UN force. During this time, the mediator will seek to bring together the feuding Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots.

The peace - keeping force would be composed of some 6,500 UN men, drawn from Commonwealth and non-aligned countries and built around a British contingent.

BRITAIN HAS $,900

Britain has more than 5,000 men on peace-keeping duty in its former colony in the Mediterranean, but the Cyprus government has indicated it would like to see this number reduced.

Diplomatic sources said U Thant has made some sound beginnings among a number of delegations on whether they would be able to contribute to a force.

They said the countries approached include Canada, Sweden, Finland, Ireland, the Netherlands, Brazil, the Republic of Ireland, India and Yugoslavia.

Thant was asked specifically about Canada's position at a press luncheon Tuesday. He said he had not had a reply from the Canadian delegation.

The participating countries would pay the cost of their units.

In Athens, 2,000 Greeks burned an effigy of President Johnson in front of the U.S. Embassy Tuesday. Thousands of others poured through the streets shouting denunciations of the United States and Britain for allegedly taking Turkey's side in the dispute.

Tell Robarts

acreage controls for tobacco was a confirmation of the government's policy now being implemented, he said.

OPENS ATTACK

Mr. MacDonald opened his attack following Mr. Stewart's presentation of his department's estimates, during which no reference was made to the industry's marketing issue.

At one point the NDP leader said: "When the honorable minister got up to present his estimates he was so panty-waist about the subject he didn't touch it."

The minister sat impatiently through Mr. MacDonald's 45-minute address, then opened his reply with: "You have reached a new low of vindictiveness."

He said acreage controls were only interfered with because of the little man who complained he couldn't exist if he had to abide by the restrictions.

STATES POSITION

"We were looking after the interests of the small producers and that this man will continue to look after," the minister said.

Robert Nixon (L — Brant) asked why the tobacco board delegation had gone to Ottawa when the whole marketing scheme is based on provincial legislation.

"I haven't any more idea than you why they went to Ottawa," Mr. Stewart replied. He said he was prepared to set up meetings if the delegation did come to Toronto.

Murray Gault (L — Huron-Bruce) said the amount of tobacco last unsold presents a "very grave" situation.

With 63,000,000 pounds of the 1963 crop of 182,000,000 pounds as yet unsold, tobacco farmers are already beginning to prepare for this year's crop.

Kiwanis Club Workshop For Physically Handicapped Showing Excellent Progress

Society Plans Many Events In Coming Year

In keeping with the current moves to an awakening of civic pride and Canadian awareness, the local Horticultural Society has embarked on a rather ambitious 1964 program.

The motto for the present term is "Beautify Belleville," and in this spirit many suggestions have already been made. Plans are underway for a continuance of the planting of ten more flowering crabs on Zwick's Island, a centennial project commenced a year ago. If possible any assistance which may be extended to the plans of the C.P.A.C. the Park's Board and the centennial projects of the Chamber of Commerce has been offered.

As an incentive and inspiration to those interested in such items, a floral emblem is to be chosen for the city, and if possible, used in street decorations and plantings.

Heading a series of what should prove to be informative meetings, the March meeting brings a speaker from the Research Branch of the Central Experimental Farms at Ottawa. Speaking on the planting and handling of seeds, he brings to us a wide wealth of experience and knowledge.

Later in the season the Society plans to make available to the members and others, Colorado, Blue Spruce seedlings at a very nominal fee. Citizens interested in attending a flower show should keep in mind a June date for the first of an annual event.

It is to be hoped that many citizens of the city and surrounding area will consider joining this year. It is that every organization that returns half of the membership fee in the form of a premium. With an increased enrolment, the executive can do more for the members, the members in turn can give added assistance to other organizations working towards a united goal — a more beautiful Belleville.

For the past number of years the Kiwanis Club of Belleville has been primarily concerned with service work and club projects, but, on December 2, 1963, new doors were opened by the club—the doors to happiness—for a number of physically handicapped people in the Quinte area.

Great progress has been made to date by the Kiwanis Club Workshop, whose directors were selected from the Kiwanis Club membership under the chairmanship of T. N. Davidson, of the Northern Electric Company.

Public relations director, Frank Murray, manager of radio station CJBQ, addressed the club at their regular dinner meeting in the Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday at which time he stressed to the members how important it was that each and everyone give his fullest co-operation to this project.

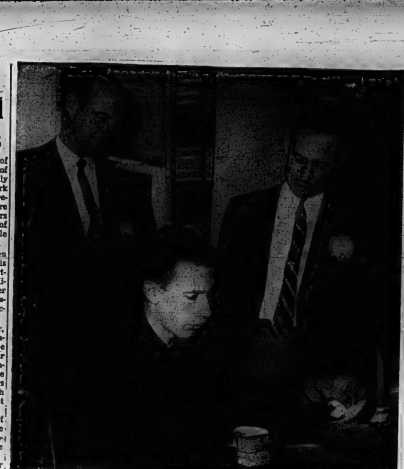
He said that the directors of the workshop could not achieve their goals unless help was received from all members of the club.

At present there are four physically handicapped persons employed in the workshop and are turning out work for three local industries. The employees are presently working on assembling sock labels for Vaydon Mills Limited and preparing sample sckages for the distribution to hospitals and doctors' offices.

The workshop employees are paid 75 cents per hour on a weekly basis and it is their wish to become solely indepondent. When the workshop was first started they were given a working capital of $700 by the Kiwanis Club.

About two weeks ago, Mr. Murray said that his radio station earried a special news bulletin, compiled by Wayne Rodgers, about the Kiwanis Workshop, and that he received a cheque in the mail the following day in the amount of $500 from an anonymous donor, who had heard the broadcast. This in turn gives the workshop a capital of $1,200. The shop's main objective now is to repay the Kiwanis Club the $700.

URGED TO ASSIST



Members were urged by Mr. Murray to solicit industry throughout the Quinte area in an attempt to secure further employment for these unfortunate people. He said as many jobs were received by the workshop, they would be able to employ more handicapped people.

The workshop is supervised by Alexander Fedirka. On Tuesday three other handicapped persons, R. E. Maxwell, Donald Wynne and John Baldwin, along with Mr. Fedirka, were seen preparing the sample packages and sock labels. The shop is located on the main floor of the Kiwanis Centre.

The speaker was introduced to the club by the workshop committee chairman, T. N. Davidson, and thanked by Kiwanian D. Finkle.

Also at Tuesday's meeting under the direction of president Robert Freestone, several members were presented with perfect attendance awards. Those receiving recognition were: P. Burton, Ron Keel, Lofne McDougall and M. Sweeney, one year awards; F. Bellstedt, B. Bradley, B. Finkle R. Freestone and K. Pinder, two year awards; L. McKee and M. Moffatt, three year awards; G. Hume, N. Macfie and D. Stork, four year awards; R. Graham, D. Kuntze, J. Crawford and G. Wishart, five year awards; R. Dulmage an eight year award and D. Braton a 14 year award. The awards were presented by Kiwanian M. Moffatt.

Kiwanian K. Pinder was introduced by Kiwanian K. Pinder.

51 Applications Received by County Council

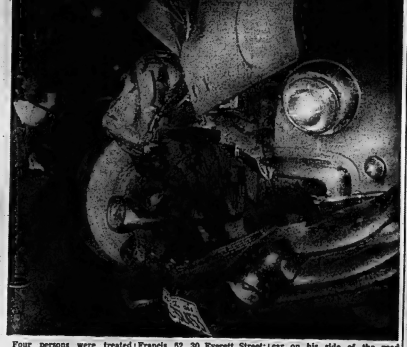
Hastings county council is going to have a wide choice when it gets around to appointing a construction safety inspector.

Fifty-one applications for the position have been received by clerk treasurer Carl Bateman and these were opened yesterday by a special committee of council.

Next week the county finance committee will further screen the applications and make a recommendation to the April session of council.

Baker Pictured As Politician By Probers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bobby Baker was pictured to Senate investigator Tuesday as "a politician, not a business man."



Another witness said the former Senate side and his associates were able to borrow $2,784,338 over a five-year period.

Counsel for the Senate rules committee investigating Baker's outside business activities capped the day's hearing by indicating the four-month-old inquiry is nearing an end.

The testimony about Baker's borrowing capacity came from Laurin H. Drennan Jr., a committee staff investigator. Drennan said Baker himself apparently received $1,703,538 of the $2,784,339 borrowed from 22 banks or other lending institutions from Jan. 1, 1959, through Nov. 1, 1963.

Diego Bordas, a former Dominican Republic functionary now in the import-export business in New York, testified he has known Baker since 1951 but "I saw him as a politician, not a business man."

Four Hurt as Cars Collide in Fog

Four persons were treated for minor injuries after a head-on crash in heavy fog on West Bridge Street last night.

Taken to Belleville General Hospital with various cuts and bruises were Tom DeCote, 42, 51 St. Paul Street; Stanley Francis, 52, 20 Everett Street; Harvey Earl Young, 38, 54 Sidney Street and Lawrence McEvoy, 53, 79 Prince of Wales Drive.

Police say Young told them he was driving west on Bridge Street, when he spotted another car on his side of the road through the fog. He braked, lost control of the automobile and it plowed into an oncoming car driven by Lawrence McEvoy.

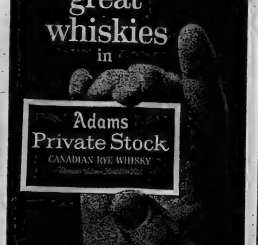
Damage to the McEvoy car was $1,200 and $400 to Young's automobile.

Coffin Case Probers Drank Daily Is Claim

QUEBEC (CP) — A former Quebec Provincial Police constable has contradicted earlier testimony by three men still on the force and said his superiors drank nearly every day during the trial of Wilbert Coffin in 1954.

Louis Synett, 38, then a traffic officer and now a hotel clerk in Gaspe, testified Tuesday that he sometimes was sent to get liquor for Captains J. A. Matte and Raoul Sirois.

Capt. Matte, now a chief inspector of the QPP, is mentioned in Jacques Hebert's book "Jaccuse les Assassins de Coffin." (I accuse Coffin's assassins).



The book helped to cause creation of the Quebec royal commission at which Mr. Synett testified Tuesday. He was to take the stand again today.

The witness, questioned by Raymond Daoust of Montreal, Mr. Hebert's lawyer, said that in the cabin in Perce at which the QPP were staying, there was a picture of Coffin with a makeshift noose around it.

Beneath was the caption: "Our next hanging."

Coffin was hanged Feb. 10, 1956, for shooting Richard Lindsay, 17, of Hollidaysburg, Pa. The bodies of Lindsay, his father Eugene, 47, and a friend, Frederick Claar, were found torn by bears in the Gaspe woods in 1953.

They Are Second-Class

The president of the Canadian Polish Congress says that the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism may leave members of Canada's ethnic groups as second-class citizens.

This is not the first time this statement has been made. This, though, does nothing to make it less irritating. It is nonsense. The royal commission will not make these people second-class citizens. These people choose, of their own free will, to be second class citizens and will remain so as long as they over-stress membership in ethnic groups. This is just as true of Englishmen who seek out their own kind as it is of Poles, Dutch, Germans, Italians and others, and as it would be of French immigrants had they not the sense, in most cases, to merge with the French-speaking segments of the Canadian people.

The division of Canada into French and English sectors is not a matter of blood but of language. Descendants of Wolfe's soldiers are completely French-Canadian in language and culture, just as so-called English-Canadians include many of German, Ukrainian and even French origin.

Canada has rejected the "melting-pot" concept popular in the U.S. We have chosen, wisely, to enjoy the variety which the existence of different customs, imported by people from different lands makes possible.

But while there is a great difference between this readiness to welcome the different and the attitude of the leaders of ethnic groups, who want their language and their culture to be accorded equal treatment with the two languages and the two cultures which are Canadian.

For that there be no doubt about it—the culture of the French-speaking Canadian is not the culture of France, any more than the culture of the English-speaking Canadian is the culture of England. In both cases the roots of the Canadian cultures are in the same soil, that of Canada, but the grafts have been different. The resulting products are unique.

For Polish Canadians to claim for their culture and their language equal treatment with that of French-speaking Canadians, whose ancestors were born Canadians for generations, is absurd—as absurd as it is for them to claim equality with the culture of English-speaking Canadians, who came from dozens of lands, adopted a common tongue and pushed the nation from ocean to ocean.

He who would Balkinize the nation for the sake of his ethnic origin is not in danger of being made a second-class citizen; he has made himself that by his own actions.

Sauce for the Goose---

Donald C. MacDonald, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, has suggested that brewers and distillers should match each advertising dollar with a dollar contribution to combat alcoholic addiction.

The chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, G. Harry Sheppard said he had never heard a similar suggestion before.

Do not jump to the conclusion that this observation implied criticism. Ontario liquor laws being what they are we have no right to expect such a reasonable reaction. Mr. Sheppard, alas, seemed interested. He said he would take the suggestion under consideration.

While he is doing so, other government experts might consider:

Requiring automobile manufacturers to match advertising dollars with contributions towards accident prevention.

Levying a similar impost on fuel dealers for fire prevention.

Making lawyers finance an unsatisfied judgments fund.

Early Warning

"Yankees After Our Mines."

That is a headline in The Toronto World.

"Wants the Government to Step in and Restrict their Privileges" says a subhead.

The Toronto World? Yes, there was such a newspaper.

The issue in question was printed on Monday morning, Dec. 12, 1898.

It was discovered by Carman Bamber, R.R. 1, Foxboro, as he cleared out an old house in his home neighborhood.

The discovery that the threat of an American takeover of our economy was recognized 66 years ago—and that nothing effective was done about it—somewhat dampens one's hopes that anything worthwhile will come out of the current concern about the same subject.

Human Guinea Pigs

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

A minor legal action which has been commenced in the Brooklyn Supreme Court, in metropolitan New York, is likely to be of interest to hospitals, anywhere in North America where cells are used by medical schools and medical research organizations. It may help to clear the names of patients who are being used by medical students seeking extra credits for their work—persons who need human guinea pigs.

The form of the legal action is not exciting. All that has happened is that William A. Hyman, a director of the hospital, and a member of the hospital board's legal committee has gone before a judge to ask for a court order compelling the hospital to show him the hospital records for 19 patients. An attorney for the hospital has opposed the application, and asked for a delay in the hearing.

Hyman explained to the Judge that he wants to see the records because he has reason to think that at the Jewish Chronic Hospital in Brooklyn in the course of a cancer research project, cancer cells were injected into unsuspecting patients, without the 19 patients being informed that they were being used for an experiment of this kind.

The attorney for the hospital, opposing the court order application, told the court that the experiment had been conducted, but that the patients had given oral consent.

After the court hearing, and evidence was given that in the Sloan-Kettering Cancer Centre issued a statement saying that, "New and important information on the immune reactions of patients who do not have cancer" had been obtained by the research work done at the Jewish Chronic Hospital. The point at issue in the action taken to seek a look at the medical records of the patients, which the hospital seeks to keep secret, is simply whether the 19 patients understood that they were being used for the research experiment, and whether they had consented to have cancer cells injected in them. There was no suggestion that the experiments themselves were not useful, nor valid, nor in a good cause.

One can imagine many things which might have happened to justify the hospital's argument that all the patients had given "oral consent."

If a Chicago man in a white coat walks into a hospital room, and says to the sick man in the bed: "You don't mind if I just give you a little pin-prick in the thigh do you?", and the sick man says, "I guess not," he could be taken as oral consent. The sick man might still not have much idea of what he had consented to.

Whatever the result of the legal action started by William A. Hyman, there has already been some strengthening in the right of patients to know whether they are being used as guinea-pigs. Without waiting for a judge's ruling on the application for production of records, the hospital has announced that the cancer research experiments will be continued only with the written consent of the patients who are used.

Noise Causes Heart Attacks

German Features

Effects of noise as well as the possibilities of checking it are the great and growing interest to doctors and researchers. This subject was recently discussed at great length at various conventions. At a doctors' meeting in Stuttgart, Professor Lehmann, chairman of the Max-Planck - Institute for Work Physiology made a sensational statement: according to the latest physiological research results, the increasing amount of noise must, in the long run, endanger the growing number of heart attacks. When noise exceeds a certain volume, its tone—loud or unit for nerve-excitation) of the so-called "red vascular system" rises. This increase can easily be observed in the vessel structure of the skin and mucous membranes. This lowers the circulation of the entire body and results in a tremendous risk of heart beat volume. This continual psychic and veget a t i v e stress causes not only circulatory troubles that in turn l e a d to heart attacks.

At a Frankfurt convention, doctors, scientists and technologists discussed the problems created by noise. The Max-Planck institute of several schools of technology (Berlin, Aachen, Braunschweig, Darmstadt and Batelle Institute in Frankfurt) have been occupied with fathoming the physical phenomena of machine noise with the newest scientific means and methods. The researchers h o p e to find new ways of combatting and decreasing noise.

The Frankfurt convention organized by the "Association of German Machine B u i l d i n g Firms" came up with scanty results. Fighting noise is extremely difficult especially when hammers and hammering machines must be used. It does help, however, to place these machines in rooms with muffled walls or to enclose the machines in muffling materials. But both methods are limited to a small field of application. One of the main problems in combatting noise is that machines must produce faster and faster. Rationalization and f i g h t i n g noise are two direct opposites.

One of the students was bold enough to protest that Churchill was, after all, a colonialist. "I think you are one of those crossgrained fellows who always see the worst part of things," replied Castro.

So don't be surprised if Fidel Castro ends his next t i r a d e against Washington with the staccato phrases — "we shall fight on the beaches. . . ."

Just recently Dr. Castro was holding forth to some students in a Havana book shop. He announced that he was currently reading Winston Churchill's war memoirs. "A tremendous man," he commented.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 4th, 1944.

Pedestrians along Front Street were surprised to see a small animal running about the street in an apparent state of excitement. Closer examination revealed the animal to be a muskrat that apparently had come from the vicinity of the Moira River and was unable to find its bearings. Pedestrians gave chase but the animal proved too alert, finally escaping by running down an alleyway towards the river.

"Don't have your bulbs alone and nature will take care of any vagaries of the weather." Such is the advice given by one of Belleville's foremost horticulturists, Mr. A. R. Symons of Sinclair Street, to the many local flower growers who are worried about their bulbs as the result of last spring's weather experienced this season.

"Some days I sit as many as ten hours at the telephone calls from anxious flower lovers asking what to do to protect their bulbs from possible frost danger," stated Mr. Symons. "My only answer is, to leave them alone; nature will see that they go unharmed. It is when people go digging around their shrubs and plants during times of frost danger that the damage is done."

"But the blizzards and the cold blasts and the cold and snow that have characterized the winter have brought inconvenience to some, the cold weather has been more than offset by the fact that sickness throughout the cold months has been nil and the city is fairly healthy with the exception of unusually known among medical men," stated one local doctor today, "that a continued spell reduces colds and pneumonia. I don't know when I have treated a case of pneumonia this winter and as for the usual colds there are simply no."

Police Often Not Trained

Brockville Recorder and Times

The brutality of a police constable, as revealed in a court case in Toronto, illustrates a weakness in our society that leaves law enforcement practices in a bad light.

In a Sarnia case, the court has awarded damages of $88,797 to two men who sued police for false arrest and assault.

In Sarnia, the money awarded is paltry payment for the injury suffered by one of the men. He is blind in one eye, his right arm and leg are paralyzed and he has the mental age of 8 to 10 years as the result of head injuries sustained when struck by a night-stick.

The judge pointed out that while a policeman has a right to use reasonable force, every citizen has the right to resist illegal arrest. The man in question had the right to resist but look what has happened to him.

As a rule most cases of police brutality involve people who are uneducated and belligerent, policemen can be maimed for life, too. And this poses a problem as to the amount of force that can be considered reasonable.

Mr. Justice E. L. Haines seemed to lean in favor of the individual in such circumstances. He said: "They (the police) are the servants of the people, not the masters."

But in the end it boils down to this: Every man on the police men in Ontario are not properly trained for the job. Many don't know their rights, and that can be considered reasonable.

Recognizing Bolsheviks

Manchester Guardian

Only George Orwell could do justice to the news that "livestock" has prohibited a message from Sir Alec Douglas-Home commemorating the 40th anniversary of the opening of diplomatic relations between the United Kingdom and the Soviet Union. By refusing to recognize the Soviet Government on the day taken by Ramsay MacDonald, Stanley Baldwin the first Conservative government came into office, in the teeth of anguished alarm from the Alec Douglas-Homes of the day. In the eyes of respectable society, the Soviet Government consisted of murderers — and worse still, of murderers who welshed on the Tsarist Government's debts. As Orwell points later, the Labor Government fell, partly as a result of the fears and animosities which Bolshevism by had aroused. The suggestion that a Conservative Prime Minister should be capable of seeking over his shoulder at the approach of a general election — would have seemed sure proof of mental disorder.

In fact, of course, the storms raised by Bolshevism's democratic realism soon subsided. When the Conservatives returned to power they had to try to put Soviet Union back in pariah. Not many years later even the United States had to accept the last refuge of moralism in international relations — followed where the British Labor Party had led. Not even the wildest anti-communist now suggests that diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union should be broken off. The only reason is simply habit. Before a government has been recognized, reasons have had to be found for recognizing it. Once the deed is done it is hard to undo. The moral for the present is more obvious. If President de Gaulle manages to break the ice which keeps Communist China out of the United Nations, we may look forward to the day — perhaps less than 40 years hence — when an American President will be running for re-election in the pages of the Peking "People's Daily."

To Your Good Health

Several Factors Which Influence Soft Nails

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What can I do for soft fingernails? They just wont grow and I can manicure them. I have taken gelatin for two years, put different things on my nails, but no results. — Mrs. E. S.

I dare say you know many skin ailments that can occur, and how aggravating they are to correct at times. They aren't a risk very serious but they can be an irritating nuisance.

The nails are really a part of the skin, a protective covering, and can vary in texture.

They can, like skin, give certain indications of the physical condition of a person. This is not, however, ordinarily the case with the people who have brittle or soft nails. The health indications, rather, are in the ridging, the color, and so on.

But to get to your problem. There are several factors which influence soft nails. Lack of sufficient protein is one, and that is why it has become popular to try gelatin.

Gelatin, however, is what we call an "incomplete" protein. It contains some types of protein but lacks others. Vitamin A is another requisite. Some women, trimming their diets too sharply to control weight, are apt to come to the extent that they do not get enough carotene from which the body manufactures Vitamin A. (Yellow vegetables, such as carrots, squash, etc., will help provide carotene.)

So much for diet: Get sufficient protein, and watch out for Vitamin A. Supplements of Vitamin A and B together may be helpful.

But diet isn't the only thing that affects nails. Manual work tends to harden them; lack of moisture makes them dry and have strong nails. So, within limits, do women who do a lot of work with their hands.

External elements can affect the nails, and women are exposed to this: soaps, detergents, caustics, polishes, p o l i s h removers, fungus infections, incidental injuries. Elements can dry out the nails, so you may benefit a good deal by leaving off nail polish and using a lotion when working with detergents and household chemicals.

There is some hereditary influence in the nails, as in skin. You can't do much about that. Now about age — and you didn't say how old you are — but a rate of nail growth declines in the later years.

Finally, and not the least, underactive thyroid can be beneficial to nails as well as dry skin and thin hair and eyebrows.

Don't expect gelatin alone, or any other single thing, to be a answer to soft or brittle nails. Usually a combination of things is involved.

Dear Dr. Molner: Do cold sweaty hands, mean tuberculosis? How does one feel with this disease? How does it take it to be cured? — R. R.

Heavens, no, cold, sweaty hands don't mean tuberculosis. A person with tuberculosis might have hot, feverish hands — or hands just like ours.

A tuberculosis sufferer usually feels just like anybody else, unless the disease has progressed too far.

It used to take several years of treatment in a sanitarium; now it more often is a matter of months, perhaps six or eight for an "average" case. This is still a long time, but results are vastly better.

To Mrs. E. P.: Scabies is an itch which results from a mite which burrows into the skin. Medications containing sulphur remain one of the best means of getting rid of these mites.

Strictly Personal

Lack of True Connections Real Problem

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I receive many letters from wistful and well-intentioned correspondents who want to know "why people can't communicate better with one another."

Whenever I hear this complaint it reminds me of the pertinent fact that William James noticed out a half-century ago as one of his psychological texts.

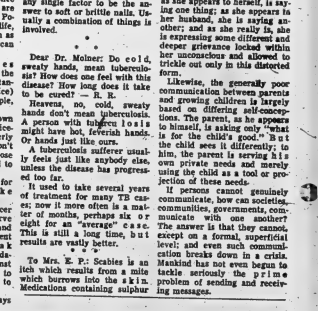
James said that in any dialogue many sources of communication there are six participants: it is not merely a dialogue between Jones and Smith, even. It could be simple, but between three aspects of each personality.

First of all there is Jones as he appears to himself, Jones as he appears to Smith, and Jones as he really is; the supplementary triad, of course, is Smith as he appears to himself, Smith as he appears to Jones, and Smith as he really is.

It is within this multiplicity of identities that the communication gets lost. It is not merely that Jones says one thing, and Smith thinks he means another thing. It is that Jones himself is divided into the man as he appears to himself, and the man he really is. Even before the listener is involved, the communicator himself may be confused, or contradictory, or self-delusive.

We can see the difficulty most clearly in domestic disputes of the kind that happen every day. A wife complains about a certain attitude or activity of her husband — but she is really complaining about something else. Sometimes both of them is really aware of the nature of the true complaint.

Thus, an argument begins on a false basis, and can have no good or true ending. The wife, at the beginning, is not at all saying one thing; as she appears to her husband, she is saying another; and what she is, she is expressing some different and deeper grievance locked within her unconscious, and refused to trickle out only in this distorted form.



Likewise, the generally poor communication between parents and growing children is largely based on differing self-perceptions. The parent, as he appears to himself, is saying "Here's what is for the child's good." But the child sees it differently; to him, the parent is serving his own private needs and merely using the child as a tool or projection of these needs.

If persons cannot genuinely communicate, how can societies, communities, governments, communicate with one another?

The answer is that they cannot, except on a formal, superficial level; and even such communication is rare in a crisis. Mankind has not even begun to tackle seriously the p r i m e problem of sending and receiving messages.

DESERONTO

Ratepayers Demand More Information From Council

DESERONTO — "We should be jealous of our rights in this area," said Deseronto ratepayer Bert Lloyd. "We should demand our rights to information."

Mr. Lloyd was speaking to the Reeve's failure to accept the invitation tendered to him as Finance Committee chairman to address the Association on the financing of the town.

In what appeared to be an attempt by the Reeve to pass the responsibility of reply on to the shoulders of Council the Finance chairman had, at the last council meeting, requested the guidance of his fellow councillors.

Their decision was that the Reeve "should not attend" the Ratepayers' Association.

Mr. Lloyd wondered if the town was "antagonistic to the Association." He pointed out that the council was responsible to the electorate and that the democratic system operated only as long as the people continued to remind the elected of their responsibility.

President Jim McVicker replied that there was no hidden meaning in the request to have the chairman on finance speak to the association.

"We should all work together to better the town," he said. "One way we can do this is to have the town enlighten us as to how things are handled by the council."

The president counered council's argument that all the information necessary could be gained from the auditor's report when published in the newspaper by saying that such reports may be readily understood by men dealing in financial matters but not so well read by the ordinary taxpayer.

Mr. Kells terminated the discussion by moving that the request to council be repeated.

Other matters under discussion at last week's meeting were the disposition of Highway 41, the election of directors, and the development of Deseronto's resources as a centennial project.

WHERE DOES ROAD GO?

Speaking to the disposition of Highway 41 in relation to the proposed bridge across the Bay of Quinte, the president outlined his understanding of the plans at present in effect.

"The problem is," he continued, "where does the highway go after it leaves the bridge on the Deseronto ride. Will it proceed along Highway 2 to Highway 502, and thence to meet Highway 41 at Napanee; will it continue on to 401 and thence to 41; or will it, as it should, travel east in conjunction with Highway 2 into Deseronto and through to Napanee?"

The association moved that futher information be found on this question and that an effort be made to insure that the highway pass through the town of Deseronto.

DISCUSS PLANS

The question of Deseronto's plans for Centennial Year was raised by the Reverend Morris Soutter of St. Mark's Church.

He questioned the town's failure to make plans and wondered if the Ratepayers' Association could in any way offer some direction to the council.

Speaking to this he indicated the need for the council and the town to recognize the tremendous potential in their waterfront and the multiple possibilities that could arise from a concerted effort to make tourism the prime industry of the town.

"Our waterfront facilities, the development of the main street shopping centre, and the building of good year 'round recreational facilities could all be planned together," he said. "We are allowing a million dollar business to float past our doors."

The question of centennial plans was turned over to the new executive of the association to discuss at their meeting.

The elected directors to the executive are: William Kells and Bert Lloyd for East Ward; Lanfear McCullough and Jessie McVicker for Centre Ward; Bill Bigrig and Mrs. G. Martin for West Ward.

McAlpines Sell General Store At Marysville

DESERONTO — It will be business as usual at one of society - east Hastings oldest stores but some of the traditions will be gone.

Just recently Ambrose and Charles McAlpine announced the sale of their business to Mrs. P. Rhode of Belleville.

The McAlpine Store has stood at the Marysville crossing for over one hundred years. And for that length of time it has been served by the McAlpines and their relatives.

No one knows when George Anderson, Scottish settler and merchant, first opened his small but efficient service to the surrounding area.

For over forty years he catered to the needs of the Scottish and Irish settlers, then he sold his business in 1902 to T. J. McAlpine who operated it until his death in 1948.

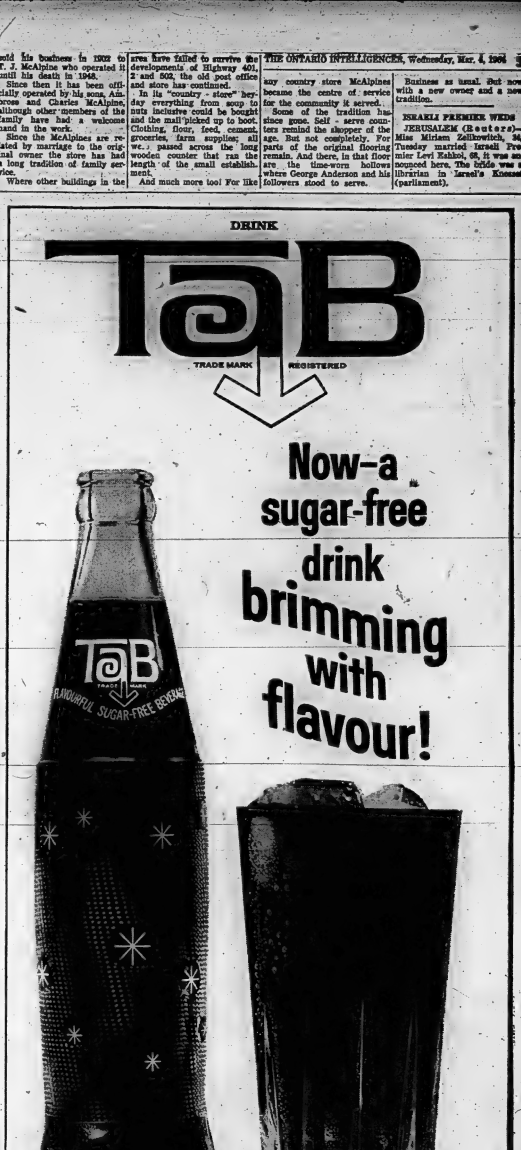
Since then it has been officially operated by his sons, Ambrose and Charles McAlpine, although other members of the family have had a welcome hand in the work.

Since the McAlpines are related by marriage to the original owner the store has had a long tradition of family service.

Where other buildings in the area have failed to survive the developments of Highway 401, 2 and 502, the old post office and store has continued.

In its "country - store" heyday everything from soup to nuts including could be bought and the mail picked up to boot. Clothing, flour, feed, cement, groceries, farm supplies; all we.: passed across the long wooden counter that ran the length of the small establishment.

And much more too! For like many country store McAlpines became the centre of service for the community it served.



Some of the tradition has since gone. Self - serve counters remind the shopper of the age. But not completely. For parts of the original flooring remain. And there, in that floor are the time-worn hollows where George Anderson and his followers stood to serve.

Business as usual. But now with a new owner and a new tradition.

Russians Devise Electronic Hand For Crippled

MOSCOW (AP) — A British delegation was so impressed Tuesday with a Soviet-developed electronic hand for crippled people, that it began negotiating at once for rights to take it to Britain.

Here is how the hand works:

A cathode contact is pressed to the skin near a muscle in the surviving part of the arm which can be moved. A light movement of that muscle generates a tiny current of electricity which is picked up by the cathode.

From there it is transmitted through transistors to a motor which controls a flexible hand.

The motor can run in either direction, on signal given by the muscles, either to open the hand or close it.

A more advanced model is being tested which will move the wrist up or down, or perhaps rotate it.

A tiny battery operates the artificial hand and lower arm. The entire instrument weighs barely more than two pounds.

Good "Hook" Can Earn Big Money

TORONTO (CP)—A good pickpocket can pull in $52,000, tax free, in an average year in Toronto, say two police detectives.

In an article in the first issue of the Ontario Magistrates' Quarterly, pickpocket squad detectives Edwin Barkley and Donald Pogue write that "hooks" in their jurisdiction pick up an average of $1,000 a week.

"There is not a pickpocket in Metropolitan Toronto who does not know the paydays of every factory or business near a bus or streetcar line. . . . He is the most competent criminal the police forces of the country have to deal with."

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canadian university students want a firm decision on federal government implementation of its proposals to provide scholarships and interest-free loans, D. E. Jenkins, national president of the Canadian Union of Students, said in an interview Tuesday he will ask Prime Minister Pearson "to make sure the question is discussed" at the forthcoming federal-provincial conference at Ottawa March 31.

Greek King Still Cause of Serious Concern

ATHENS (Reuters) — A court official said today King Paul of Greece, who has been gravely ill for the last few days, spent a quiet night but was still the cause of serious concern.

Queen Frederika, who recently recovered from pneumonia, spent the night by the side of her husband.

Beside them both was a picture of the Virgin Mary which is credited with miraculous powers. It was rushed to the bedside of the ailing monarch Tuesday by destroyer from the island of Tinos.

He also was threatened by uremic poisoning.

A medical bulletin said today Paul's condition was unchanged "without showing any distinct improvement. He is clear minded and quiet."

TWEED

Legion L. A. Enjoys Bowling

TWEED — A nine bowling tournament for the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Royal Canadian Legion was held on Saturday with seven teams competing.

Mrs. Jack Begley, zone sports officer from Belleville Branch No. 99 was in charge of the arrangements for the event while Mrs. Oscar Thurston, sports officer for Branch No. 428, Tweed was convener for the lunch.

Teams taking part were Bancroft, Madoc, Desoronto 1 and Desoronto 2, Tweed, Coe Hill and Belleville. First place went to Desoronto 1 with a total pin fall of 2515; second to Tweed with 2484 and third to Belleville with 2312. The high single went to Mrs. Jack Rashotte of Belleville who rolled a 245 and Mrs. Rashotte also won the high triple with a 588.

During the afternoon while the bowling was taking place there were four tables of euchre in play at the Legion Hall with Mrs. McKenna of Belleville having the high score.

Following these events, lunch was served at the Legion hall by members of the Tweed Auxiliary and a social evening held.

Registrar Outlines Powers Of College of Surgeons

TORONTO (CP) — The College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario has no power to deal with cases of negligence, malpractice and errors of judgment, says College Registrar Dr. J. C. C. Dawson.

Dr. Dawson said Tuesday the Medical Act of Ontario gives the college—the medical body entrusted with the power to license medical practitioners in Ontario—no authority in these fields.

"It does have the authority to deal with cases of professional misconduct as defined by the act," he added in a letter to the Globe and Mail.

The letter was written as a result of the findings of the Toronto inquest last week into the death of Patricia Morgan.

At the inquest, Dr. Kenneth Brown of Toronto East General Hospital was held responsible by a five-man coroner's jury for leaving a surgical clamp in the body of Miss Morgan, 32, who died last Nov. 4.

Dr. Dawson's letter said that until 1960 the college was empowered to deal with cases of "infamous and disgraceful conduct in a professional aspect," but this was amended in 1960 to include "improper" conduct, and a further amendment was made last year.

As the act stands professional misconduct now is defined in the following ways:

—If a member has been convicted of an indictable offence;

—If his rights or privileges under the Narcotics Control Act (Canada) or the Food and Drug Act (Canada) have been restricted or withdrawn;

—If he has been guilty, in the opinion of the discipline committee or council, of misconduct in a professional respect or of conduct unbecoming a medical practitioner.

Dr. Arthur D. Kelly, executive secretary of the Canadian Medical Association, said in an interview he agreed that Dr. Dawson's interpretation of the act was, strictly speaking, correct.

When asked where an ordinary citizen or a member of the medical profession could take a complaint if he thought some member of the medical profession was not competent, Dr. Kelly replied.

"A member of the public who thought he had been badly dealt with by the profession could look to mediation committees established by the Ontario Medical Association and other provincial committees of the CMA."

Spending

...n the coming fiscal year up $177,000,000 to $822,000,000.

With that subtracted, actual 1964-65 budgetary spending was estimated at $6,795,313,308 compared with $6,307,307,245 at the end of the current fiscal year. The latter figure has since been swelled by $311,900,000 in supplementary estimates.

Biggest cut in the estimates was in the defence department. With a reduction in spending on new weapons and equipment of $56,000,000, the department's over-all estimates fell by $109,000,000 to $1,535,000,000.

That $100,000,000 saving, however, includes a shift from defence to public works in upkeep of the Canadian section of the Alaska Highway, estimated to cost $15,000,000 annually. Hence the real saving is $94,000,000.

But there was no stopping the so-called built-in expenditures —the ones either fixed by law, which the government is free or less powerless to control.

For example, the spiralling cost of hospital insurance means a rise of $35,000,000 to $420,000,000 in Ottawa's share of the joint federal - provincial program. Family allowance payments are up $3,100,000 to $566,000,000.

The cost of paying interest and other charges on the public debt — of which there now is more than $20,000,000,000 outstanding — will rise by nearly $137,000,000 to $1,037,800,00.

Other increases include more than $11,00,000 in research expenditures, a new outlay of $21,900,000 for the 1967 world's fair in Montreal, $28,327,964 extra in public works, an added $10,468,540 for the transport department, a $7,858,525 increase in agriculture, $27,972,326 more in external affairs due to stepped-up foreign aid, and increases of $10,195,963 in justice, $7,067,210 in citizenship and immigration and $9,808,100 in the trade department.

Approached from another angle, the estimates show a rise of $16,685,506 to a whopping $1,711,045,175 in salaries, wages and travelling expenses of the civil service and the armed forces.

The cost of civil service telephones and telegrams alone is up $2,319,031 to $47,891,895.

DEVELOP RAY WEAPON

BOSTON (AP) — A lightweight laser rifle, which shoots a destructive ray instead of bullets, has been developed by Master Optics, Inf., and turned over to the army, it was announced Tuesday. The rifle's ray is not enough to inflict serious bodily harm but could set fire to a soldier's clothes. It could also blind someone at ranges of up to a mile.

Castro

again.

Commenting on the U.S. presidential elections, Castro said jokingly that he was "rooting for" Republican Senator Goldwater because "I believe he will lose if I declare I am his supporter." He added that the program of the Republican Party were "aggressive and foolish and I believe they will lose."

The threat of Venezuelan President Romulo Betancourt to halt trade with Britain, France and Spain if they continued trading with Cuba was "stupid and ridiculous." He said Venezuela sold more to these countries than it bought from them.

Castro said Cuba had not extended an invitation to President de Gaulle, who visits Mexico later this month. But he said the French president would be received "in the friendliest manner" if he should visit Cuba.

PLAN OWN PROJECT

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Roberts told the legislature Tuesday the provincial government will build its own centennial project and will not interfere with Toronto's St. Lawrence Centre for the Arts. The province has not yet decided what its centennial project will be.

Hoffa Jury Will Determine His Career

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) The jury in James R. Hoffa's trial on charges of attempted jury tampering tries again today for a verdict that he says will determine his future as a labor leader.

The four women and eight men deliberated two hours and 35 minutes Tuesday before U.S. District Judge Frank Wilson sent them to bed at 10 p.m.

The jurors are considering six weeks of testimony on government charges that Hoffa, president of the International Teamsters Union, aided and abetted five other men in trying to fix the 1962 jury which tried him on a conspiracy charge in Nashville. The others also are on trial.

The Nashville jury, from which three jurors or prospective jurors were excused on grounds that someone tried to contact them, never was able to agree.

Conviction could mean up to 15 years in prison and $15,000 in fines for Hoffa. For the others, it could mean up to five years and $5,000 each.

CBC Cameraman Not Liked By Charlotte

OTTAWA (CP) — Mayor Charlotte Whitton has asked Prime Minister Pearson for protection against a CBC cameraman.

The request was in the form of a telegram which she sent Tuesday from Uplands Airport, where she spent the morning waiting for a flight to Sydney, Toronto.

The mayor said she was being "molested and persecuted" by TV cameraman Andy Ormsby.

When Mr. Ormsby tried to take pictures of her at the airport the mayor tried to hide her face with papers. The photographer continued shooting and Miss Whitton asked the RCMP constable on duty to order the photographer away. The policeman said that unless she was being physically assaulted there was nothing he could do.

A spokesman in the prime minister's office confirmed that the telegram had been received and said it had been referred to the minister of justice.

Florists Want Money Spent On Flowers

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian florists are fighting a trend of donating to charity money which otherwise might be spent on funeral flowers, John M. Bezemer, secretary - treasurer of the United Florists of Canada, said Tuesday.

He said in an interview many bereaved families encourage friends and relatives to send money to charities rather than buy flowers.

Florists are encouraging undertakers to persuade families to buy flowers, Mr. Bezemer said.

"Flowers are sentiment," he said, "but sending money to charity is not."

Arthur Harris of Barrie was elected president.

OPPOSE QUEEN'S VISIT

MONTREAL (CP) — The Association of Students of the University of Montreal's faculty of arts urged Queen Elizabeth Tuesday to cancel her trip to Quebec, scheduled for next October. An association resolution said the visit would be unwise because of "reasons of security" and the expense involved in such a trip.

Letter Shows Life in Early Days

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — A glimpse of life in Ireland and Canada 123 years ago is provided by a letter in the possession of Mrs. John S. Morgan, 89 - year - old resident of this Eastern Ontario city.

It bears the address: Mr. Morgan's great - great - grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Cromie, to her great-grandparents, who had left Limamullingan, Northern Ireland, in 1827.

It mentioned that butter was selling at 14 cents a pound and potatoes at 20 cents a hundred while pork was priced at 10 cents a pound in Ireland but added that "all other things are cheap."

The father explained that he was unable to determine whether the ship taking the Adamses to Canada had arrived safely. The trip took six weeks and the letter, written, in April, reached its destination in August.

Several months ago Mrs. Morgan wrote a letter to the postmaster of Limamulligan to ask whether there were any descendants of Gilbert Cromie there. She received a letter from Mrs. Frank Blakely, a great-granddaughter, and now is corresponding with her.

WEDDING

VINKLE—McCAMBRIDGE

The Holy Name of Mary Church, Marysville, Ont., was the setting for a recent doubling wedding ceremony, when Mary Ellen McCambridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James McCambridge, became the bride of Joseph Vinkle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Vinkle, Moscow, Ont.

Rev. J. J. O'Neil, Marysville, officiated, before a lovely background of red and white gladioli, while brothers of the bride, Joseph and Patrick were acolytes. Rev. Father Devine was present in the sanctuary.

Wedding music was rendered by the church organist, Miss Anne McAlpine, accompanied by Miss Joan Wringer, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in her full length bridal gown of Chantilly lace and taffeta, fitted bodice, sweetheart neckline and lily-point sleeves. The full graceful bouffant skirt over taffeta, in layers of lace ruffles with life-like rose on front. She wore a pearl crown, encrusted with seed pearls and simulated jewels, with pure silk illusion tulle veil in elbow-length and carried a semi-cascade of red roses, white mums, mingled with ivy.

Miss Charlene McCambridge was maid of honor, while Mrs. Estelle Walsh, Mrs. Dorothy Mulrooney, Kingston, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids. All the attendants were gowned alike, in street length bouffant taffeta, ruby red chiffon velvet, rounded neckline and sleeves. Their ensembles were completed with headpieces of red tiaras, trimmed in crystal and pearls with white veils. They carried crescentshaped bouquets of tinted mums.

The little flower girl, Sharon Vinkle, niece of the bridegroom, was sweet in her gown of red velvet with white floral bandeau. She carried a small basket of baby mums.

Mr. David Huffman, Moscow, Ont., was best man, while Ronald Vinkle, Sharbot Lake, and Ambrose McCambridge ushered the guests.

The reception was held at Tyendinaga township hall.

The bride's table was appointed with white damask linen, centred by a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. The bridal bouquet added a lovely nuptial accent to the setting, also the tall white candles in crystal candelabra.

The bride's mother, gowned in a moss green double knit suit, gold accessories and corsage of bronze roses, received the guests, assisted by the bride groom's mother, wearing turquoise blue sheath dress, matching accessories and corsage of pink roses.

For a wedding trip to the United States, the bride donned a cranberry red boucle suit, black satin crepe, black accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Guests were present from Sudbury, North Bay, Oshawa, St. Catharines, Chalk River, Sharbot Lake and Kingston.

Previous to her marriage the bride was an honored guest at miscellaneous showers at the homes of Mrs. Roseanne Vinkle, Mrs. Mary Buckle and Mrs. Shirley Collins.

Mr. and Mrs. Vinkle are residing in Kingston.

He displayed the kind of elegant nostalgic clothes that the upper - class English woman loves to wear. His models were dated, not named, and the tone of the collection was bounded by the dateline 1919 to 1928.

Coats were narrow and sleeky tailored in speckled tweeds or textured wool. A typical response was a collarless, cream topcoat in loosely woven wool with long narrow sleeves, over a bloused tunic dress in black and white spotted silk tied at the neckline.

Midi dresses were gently bloused above the waist, with an easy-fitting, knee-covering skirt.

Suit blouses echoed the tie-neck to soften the line of firmly tailored jackets - often with slipped-in waists. Coffee and beige were put to clever use in a suit of wool-straw. The coffee-colored, fitted jacket had deep revers.

Creed's evening dresses were cool in color and staturesque in line, with sleeveless, cowl-necked bodices and long skirts of unpressed pleats.

Only One Girl In Big Class Of Engineers

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Gabriella Casonato, 24 - year - old third-year engineering student at the University of Waterloo, would like to feel the elation of building bridges, dams or highways.

"But this type of thinking is not very realistic," she says, "because I'm a female and to the female active engineering work is limited."

Nevertheless, Gabe, as she has been nicknamed, is enjoying her position as the only girl among 1,036 engineering students.

"The rest of the class is wonderful. When I can't make classes they take notes for me and even invite me to their stags. I haven't attended one yet. I don't want to put a damper on their fun. You know what engineers are like.

"Besides, next year I would attend their stag in our final year, just for the fun of it.

"The lecturers and professors here treat me just like another student. I get no special consideration just because I'm a girl, and don't want any."

Dr. Douglas Wright, dean of engineering says he would like to see more girls enter the field.

"In today's society there is a need for female engineers in Canada and I for one would urge any girl who has the academic qualifications to enter the field."

Miss Casonato keeps an eye on the lists of first-year students to see if there are any girls enrolled "but to date I haven't sighted any."

St. Julien Chapter IODE Completes Concert Plans

At the home of Mrs. George Hume the St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. held its regular monthly meeting on Monday evening, March 2nd with a good attendance. The Regent, Mrs. Ralph C. Ellis, was in charge.

Arrangements were completed for the concert to be given by the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra on April 8th at the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School Auditorium. Stephen Choma is conductor of the orchestra and guest artists will be Robert and Hazelanne Reid. Tickets are on sale at Don Thomas' Cigar Store or may be pre-sale Cigar Store or may be purchased.

Mrs. George Hume, world affairs convenor, told of conditions in Carnegie, Venezuela, which she witnessed personally on a recent visit there.

A report on recommendations concerning educational awards was presented on behalf of the Education secretary, Mrs. C. R. Whittemore.

Mrs. Stan Kvarda generously offered her home on Dundas St. W., for a tea to be held in early June. A showing of the paintings of Fernando Albanir, a Spanish artist living in Picton, Ont., will be a feature of the tea.

I.O.D.E. scholarships, bursaries and grants encourage students to continue their education. The Order spends over one third of its million dollars each year towards the education of Canadian youth.

I.O.D.E. War Memorial Scholarships valued at $200 each enable Canadian students to study overseas: D. R. F. Crowther of Campbellford, a graduate of the University of New Brunswick, is the recipient of one of these post-graduate scholarships.

The St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. of Belleville offers annually a $100 bursary to a student who is the son or daughter of a war veteran and is in grade 13 in anyone of four local collegiates. Also a prize of $25 is awarded in each collegiate to the grade 12 student who marks the best progress in English and whose parents are now Canadians.

Sister's Silence Shows Bad Case of Jealousy

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My husband and I have eight children. They are healthy and happy and bright. We thank God for our blessings and although life is not easy, it is rich and full.

ANN LANDERS

My husband has a steady job, works hard and uses his vacation time doing extra work to beef up the income.

On Christmas Eve my mother invited my sister and me and our children to her home for dinner. After the dessert she announced that her Christmas present to us would be the balance of our home, free and clear, (Mother held the mortgage which comes to $8,000.)

I wept openly and so did John. My sister's husband said, "God bless you, mother," leaned over and kissed her warmly. My sister was silent.

The next morning my sister phoned and said, "You can't accept that gift from mother. She is senile and doesn't know what she is saying."

Ann, mother is 75 and bright as a dollar. I would hate for the family to think we are taking advantage of her. Please advise me at once. — JOAN.

DEAR JOAN — That sister of yours sounds strictly from Me-owsville. To present a four-door family flight later, ask your mother's physician to evaluate her mental condition and report to you and your sister — and anyone else in the family you wish to have the information.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am engaged to a young man who is working in one of the city's most distinguished law firms. We plan to be married when I graduate from Barnard in the spring.

Jud writes to me almost every day. He says he loves me madly and is perishing from loneliness. I get quite another report from my cousin who works in the same firm.

My cousin tells me Jud's eyes look like a couple of fried eggs every morning because he runs seven nights a week. Last night when Jud called on the phone I told him what I had heard. He admitted going out "a little" but only with a few "man-hungry clients" who run after him.

I'm confused and don't want to be a fool. I'd like some advice — LADY LOU.

DEAR LADY — Jud should be able to run faster than any man-hungry client.

He doesn't appear to be ready to settle down. Tell him he's off the hook and to consider you the same.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a boy 15 and my girl is 14. We met at a basketball game, as planned, and then I was supposed to walk her to the bowling alley two blocks away, where her parents would pick her up and take her home.

Those two blocks could be walked in five minutes, but we poked along and it took us 15 minutes. Well, her parents got panicky when she wasn't at the bowling alley when they got there. They went from place to place looking for her. It was a big mess and now my girl is grounded for a year.

I realize we were wrong to take so long to get to the bowling alley but don't you think her folks should have stayed there and waited?

Does the girl deserve such harsh punishment? — READY TO LISTEN.

DEAR READY — Sometimes parents impose sentences on their kids when they are upset and angry. If your facts are accurate — and they'd better be, Buster, because I'm going to bat for you — the punishment is too severe.

A whole year to a 14-year-old is like an eternity. I'm making a pitch for leniency. HOW'S 6 WEEKS, FOLKS?

Communion Table Runner Is Dedicated

FRANKFORD — At the worship service in Frankford United Church, on Sunday morning, the minister, Rev. Charles R. Judd, dedicated a beautiful communion table runner in wine colored velvet, with matching pulpit Antependium, each adorned with hand embroidered symbols and trimmed with gold fringes, and damask markers for the Lectern Bible in liturgical red with bronze crosses, a gift to the church by Mr. and Mrs. George Lyons.

The choir, under direction of guest organist, Mrs. Ed Sykes, contributed an appropriate anthem for the occasion, Miss Susan Chase taking the solo part.

The flowers in the chancel were in memory of the late Fred Munn.

Next Sunday morning at 11.15 the Sacrament of Infant Baptism will be observed in this church.

Church Groups

LUTHERAN CHURCH WOMEN

The Holy Trinity Lutheran Church Women met immediately after the mid-week Lenten service recently when 14 ladies were present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mrs. C. Rolof. The 1964 budget and treasurer's report were read by Mrs. K. Brisbet, after which all other committees gave their reports. The Christian Action committee reported that eight ladies visited the County Home for the Aged during the last month. Also that the next project would be the making of layettes for foreign missions. The date lists for nursery supervisors were distributed. The meeting was adjourned with the saying of the missionary benediction in unison.

While Mrs. H. Lindeman and Mrs. St. John Brown prepared lunch, the remainder of the ladies worked on a layette.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS — BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: I love to do the twist and can't resist the rhumba and other Latin-American dances. But my husband only does the two-step and absolutely refuses to try anything more complicated. The other evening we went to a dance with a group of friends and, when my husband's two-step gave out, I got one of the other men in our party to dance with me. Later, my husband said I shouldn't have done this and that he didn't think the other wives took kindly to the idea of dragging their husbands away from the table and onto the dance floor. These are all our best friends, so I know he was exaggerating. However, if I was being impolite in any way, I certainly want to know. What do you think? — Mrs. R. S., New Rochelle, N.Y.

Answer: "Grab your partner" may be the rule at a square dance, but it's against the rule at any other sort of dance. Men still have the privilege of requesting a dance, so, no matter how irresistible the beat is, a lady should always wait until she's asked.

Successful Living

First Love Must Not Preclude All Others

DEAR DORIS — I lost my boy friend through an accident when I was 19 years old. We were very much in love. Since then I have had several offers to go out but have refused as I do not feel that I could ever let myself fall in love again.

I am 31 and just lately a nice fellow in our office has asked me out. I have not accepted as I feel that he may ask me to marry.

I hate the thoughts of being alone and lonely, but I wouldn't want to marry just for the sake of security. I don't seem to know what to do as I wouldn't want a loveless marriage. — AFRAID.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR AFRAID — Take one step at a time. A date doesn't mean a diamond ring. The girl who loved at 19 has changed; and you could find a different kind of happiness now. Don't be afraid of life itself.

DEAR DORIS — I have been going with a man of 40. I'm 31. This is a secret friendship, as my parents have never permitted boy-girl relationships.

We are much in love. He is not well off financially, but I've a love for the land (he's a farmer) and I'd do my best to manage.

He's been married and divorced; takes a few beers. Is always gentlemanly. We make it a point to visit his father and mother every few months. They are grand to me and I can talk heart-to-heart with them in a way I could never do with my own parents. There would be a real war if my folks knew about this.

We can't go on this way much longer. What should I do? Marry and disown my parents or waste my own life? — SECRET PASSION.

DEAR SECRET — At 31 you either take matters in your own hands or prepare to submit to your parents' unreasonable wills for the rest of your life. How can they reconcile their own union with their attitude to you?

(Doris will welcome your comments — as long as you identify yourself. And please enclose a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Oriental Chicken and Pineapple With Curried Rice

by Mary Moore

Today's offerings will be "happy" too (to quote my little niece Mandy who was always trying to "happy" her Dad). I have an Oriental dish for the lovers of Chinese food, accompanied by a new product — curried rice.

The Oriental dish is Chicken and Pineapple — called Por Afam by Indonesians. It calls for cocoanut cream which you make from a fresh cocoanut and which gives the dish its rich characteristic flavor. (You can substitute skim milk though if cocoanuts are unavailable in your community.)

CHICKEN AND PINEAPPLE (serves 6):

Meat from 6 chicken breasts, ¼ teaspoon chili powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 clove garlic, finely chopped, 3 finely chopped young green onions, including tops, 2 tablespoons chopped canned anchovies or anchovy paste (optional), 2 tablespoons cooking oil, ¾ cup drained canned pineapple tidbits, grated rind 1 large lemon, 1½ tablespoons lemon (or lime) juice, milk from 1 raw cocoanut, 2 cups cocoanut cream (see below), 2 teaspoons soy sauce, 1 cup gently sautéed chopped green onions.

Cocoanut Cream: First puncture cocoanut and drain out milk and reserve it. Crack cocoanut, pare brown skin from meat. Put meat through grinder. To ground cocoanut meat add 2 cups boiling water. Let soak 30 minutes then press hard through cloth-lined sieve. You should have 2 cups or more. Discard pulp.

Cut chicken breast meat from bones into bite-size pieces. In a bowl mix chicken with the chili powder, salt, garlic, onion, anchovy paste. Cover and let stand 1 hour. Heat oil in large frying pan and saute chicken mixture and pineapple tidbits until delicately browned. Add lemon juice, rind, reserved cocoanut milk, cocoanut cream and soy sauce and simmer until chicken is tender — about 1 hour.

Curried Rice: (These are the package instructions and this is a delicious new product): Measure 2¼ cups water and 2 teaspoons butter into saucepan and bring to boil. Stir in contents of both bags in package — one contains rice and the other the curry flavoring mixture. Cover and reduce heat as low as possible and simmer 23 to 25 minutes until rice is tender — about 1 hour.

NOTE:

I hope you try the above Oriental dish with curried rice, following each step but if the cocoanut cream preparation discourages you, substitute it with skim milk.

NEAT AND FEMININE

Accessories are much a part of the neat and feminine look for this spring. Correctly chosen accessories can lift a basic costume by adding a distinctive even "custom - made" look. "Custom-made" used to be synonymous with expensive, but not any more. Miracles at manufacturing level now give that carefully thought-out, exquisitely constructed, custom - made look to handbags, jewelry and gloves, plus no noticeable increase in price.

Small handbags have been on fashion's horizon for over two years, but this season they have arrived. Nothing has changed except their size. The classic bag, which used to measure about 14" x 10" is scaled down to about 10" x 8". The designers swear that these miniatures are just as spacious as their larger cousins because of extra width obtained through the addition of side gussets. To test this theory, I loaded one of these tiny new bags with all the necessary glasses, cosmetics, keys, wallet, etc. It really works except that the bag would not shut on my 8" x 10" notebook, which is not part of the average woman's requirements.

UNUSUAL PINS

Unusual pins are "in" this spring, usually of gold-tone metal settings with mountings of semiprecious or fake stones. Some of them have enamel or self etchings. Companion bangles, chain bracelets and chain ropes go well with the new, neat and feminine look.

This new look extends from the crown of the head right down to the shoes. Gone are fussy, overdone hair styles, excessive flower-trimmed hats, overtrimmed gloves, colored matched sets of flower-beaded jewelry, "prissy" flower pins and short-vamped, high-heeled, needle-pointed shoes. In their place are neat, unteased, uncurled heads, chains and low heeled, long vamped slippers.

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

THE PAUSE THAT NOURISHES

"You see soft drink machines in every school, but how often do you see a machine where the student can get a drink of milk?" This was a question posed by Provincial President of the Women's Institutes, Mrs. Trivers, at the Trent Valley Area convention here last fall. "Has any dairy in Belleville experimented with a milk dispenser? If not, has anyone suggested this to a dairy?"

This sounded like a most practical suggestion at the time, but as far as I know nothing was done about it.

In The Ontario Intelligencer we read that in Minnesota the dairy industry is to experiment by putting milk in pop bottles, and making it available to the public through the standard coin operated machines.

The Windsor Star comments:

There is little that is more refreshing than a glass of cold milk (unless it is buttermilk). But it often is not available where one wants a drink, whereas various kinds of pop usually are.

If the Minnesota idea succeeds, and spreads, it could be a real boost to the dairy industry. It's a wonder the notion didn't come into someone's head sooner.

The idea is there, all it needs is some enterprising dairy to give the experiment a try.

THE IDES OF MARCH

March. Not quite winter, but certainly not spring.

The wind was blowing hard, and Killie, the Scottish terrier had heard someone say this would be a good day to fly a kite. In all the six years of his life, Killie had never seen a kite. Perhaps there were none left anymore.

He wandered along the bay shore keeping a sharp lookout for kites, cats, dogs, rabbits, or anything that moved.

A plane too high in the air to be seen or heard was drawing a long white chalk mark against the blue slate of the sky. The ice on the bay showed dark patches where the sun had melted it earlier. It was too early for the song of the frogs.

Absolute stillness seemed to grip the countryside until a long moan from a train in the distance shattered the silence. An ice boat skimmed by, the white sail bellied out in swift and silent motion, the red-coated occupant crouched against the biting wind.

The freight train repeated its long and lonely cry as it hurried along the far shore always relentlessly pursued by its mile of cars. Its reverberations made a trembling of the earth.

The lone plane was now having fun doubling back and making scrolls and loops, the line widening as the plane spewed it out. By following the line to its narrowest point the flash of the plane itself could be seen as the sun reflected on it.

The willow trees shrugged their naked shoulders and huddled down with a shiver.

Killie turned and went home with a disappointed step. If there were any kites he hadn't seen them. But March was a month of promise just the same.

What is an average mother?

Heinz Baby Foods recently undertook a study of Canadian mothers. We're publishing some of the findings because we know you will find them interesting.

The demands of a new baby are heavy and tend to limit a mother's social contact.

Consequently, it is difficult for many mothers to compare themselves with others.

So Heinz Baby Foods has tried to find out for you.

We have talked to many Canadian mothers—in cities and in the country.

We asked them about the kinds of foods they served their babies.

About the number of baby meals they prepare each week.

About the age they introduced babies to cereals, to strained foods, to junior foods.

We are not recommending the findings as an "ideal". Your doctor will make his own recommendations because every baby is different.

However, the findings will give you some indication of what Canadian mothers are actually doing.

They also serve as an interesting basis for comparison with yourself.

The average Canadian mother feeds her baby about 2,250 times during the first two years of its life.

That's about 23 times a week—or a little more than 3 times a day.

On the average, Canadian mothers start their babies on cereal when they are about one month old.

The average mother starts when her baby is between the 5th and 6th week.

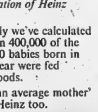
Of all the strained baby foods available, Heinz is preferred by more than 8 out of 10 Canadian mothers.

Between the 8th and 13th month Canadian mothers introduce their babies to junior foods.

Again Heinz is preferred by almost 8 out of 10 Canadian mothers.

We were quite astounded at this preference for Heinz so we asked mothers why.

Their frank answers included:



The even consistency and pleasant taste of Heinz Baby Foods.

Heinz variety (which, by the way is the largest in Canada).

The absolute dependability and national reputation of Heinz Baby Foods.

From the study we've calculated that more than 400,000 of the almost 500,000 babies born in Canada last year were fed Heinz Baby foods.

So if you're 'an average mother' you'll prefer Heinz too.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO WEDNESDAY, MARCH 4, 1964

Belleville Nerve Centre For CNR's Busiest Mainline

All Train Movements on 300 Miles Of Double Track Supervised Here

The CN double track between Toronto and Montreal is the busiest 300 miles of track in Canada. Here an afternoon passenger train pulls into Belleville station — headquarters nerve centre for the Rideau Area.

By ROY PEACOCK

Belleville always has been a railway town and now as headquarters for the Rideau Area it is more than ever an important point for the Canadian National Railways.

The city is the focal point on possibly the busiest section of double track in Canada with more than 40 "crack" passenger trains and fast freights passing through on the average day.

Just how important Belleville is as a railway centre is indicated by the fact that all train movements over the 300 miles of double track, together with 400 miles of branch lines, are supervised by despatchers in the city.

STARTED IN 1856

It is over 100 years—back in 1856 in fact—that the first Grand Trunk train passed through Belleville and since that day it has been very much the railway town.

Eventually it became a divisional point for the CNR and in the heyday of railroading over the 1,500 Belleville workers looked to the railway for their by-monthly pay cheques.

Automobiles and highway transport have siphoned off some of the railway business; peak employment has dropped off. But the reorganization of the CNR made this city headquarters for the Rideau Area. Belleville now holds possibly an even more important part in the CN set-up. The line's employment at Belleville is now just under the 1,000 mark, and since the reorganization a couple or three years ago high ranking personnel for the area have been moved to the city.

Included are passenger and freight sales department men, labor relations and industrial agent, along with day to day operational departments. Area manager is Kenneth E. Hunt, with W. D. Newell as operations manager, and J. A. Lonas, superintendent of transportation.

INDEPENDENT UNIT

The Rideau Area is a completely self-contained unit of CN, and is no longer responsible to Toronto or Montreal head offices.

"It speeds up decisions and cuts red tape to the minimum," noted operations manager W. D. Newell.

Possibly 90 per cent of train movements through Belleville are of the freight category, with activity reaching a peak during the early morning hours.

But throughout the day freights of all kinds— wayfreights, through freights and piggybacks—run east and west through Belleville, sometimes with only minute intervals.

DESPATCHER KEY MAN

Key man in all train movements of course, is the despatcher, whose job it is to keep trains moving and at the same time keep them from running into one another.

It is a challenging job and one which brooks of no mistakes.

Two dispatchers are on duty at all times at Belleville station. One controls train movements east of Belleville, while the other keeps track of trains running between Belleville and Oshawa.

They serve straight eight-hour shifts and regulations call for them to remain always at their desks.

In addition to the "working" dispatchers there is M. C. Mundrey, as chief dispatcher, and his two assistants, W. R. Munroe and J. M. Tobin.

Dispatchers have constant telephonic communication with operators up and down the line. They know to the exact minute at what time which train leaves what station. Daily train sheets are retained for years and quite frequently are brought out to assist in settling court cases.

ALL RECEIVE ORDERS

Each train passing through the station must receive its dispatcher's orders. These are delivered from the dispatcher by a runner during stops, but sometimes they are taken "on the fly" when schedules don't call for trains to stop.

Trains passing through Belleville include train No. 301—the fastest freight in Canada.

There are 9 through freights each way every day, while a dozen other freights originate in Belleville. This means members of running crews for most of the assignments are Belleville residents.

And although the automobile, the bus and the aeroplane have cut drastically into passenger carrying, CN is still very much in the passenger business.

Proof of this is the fact that seven eastbound and eight westbound passenger trains go through Belleville station every day.

700 MILES OF TRACK

The 700 miles of track in the Rideau area extends from Oshawa on the west to Dorval on the east, north along the Ottawa River to Ottawa and Whitney, and south to Picton.

And CN officials say the 300 miles of double track between Toronto and Montreal is the busiest in Canada.

Between the two points go passenger trains, express trains and mail trains, fast freights, wayfreights and through freights.

Boosting freight revenue this winter is the movement of Canadian wheat to the eastern seaboard for transhipment to Russia.

In fact CN didn't have diesel units to handle all the trains necessary.

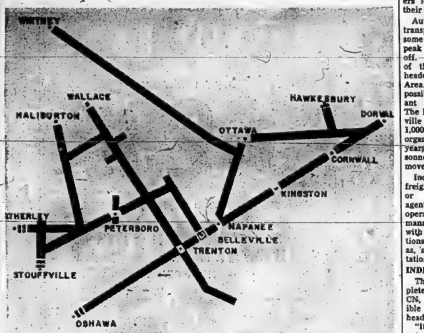
That is why strnagely marked diesels are seen occasionally hauling long freights up and down the main line.

The strange power units are diesels rented from Bessemer to provide added motive power to move the Russian wheat.

CARRY U.S. FREIGHT

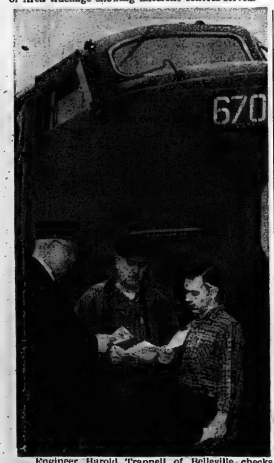
Not only is CN carrying Russian wheat to the seaboard, but the fast service it can provide across Southern Ontario has resulted in the railroad capturing a slice of Northern United States perishable freight.

Hardly a day goes by that blocks of up to 40 American cars loaded with refrigerated meats and vegetables from Chicago do not go through attached to fast CN freights.



The cars are picked up at Port Huron and are rushed through to Montreal for transfer to lines serving the New England States.

Train schedules on certain fast CN freights are timed to co-incide with train arrivals at Fort Huron.



The reason for American freight going over CN lines—good service and faster time, say CN officials.

Hospital Board Is Returned By Acclamation for Year

PICTON (Staff) — The entire six-member Board of Governors of the Prince Edward Memorial Hospital was returned by acclamation for another year, at the annual meeting of the hospital held last night at Shire Hall.

After William E. Cooke, hospital administrator, had given his annual report, the meeting was thrown open for nominations. The nomination was chaired by Robert Walmsley, hospital solicitor.

Before Mr. Walmsley had little more than taken the chair, Jack Hartwick, chairman of the building advisory committee, asked for the floor. When he was given permission to speak, he said, "You have a most excellent board, one that has done a splendid job, they are thoroughly familiar with every aspect of the hospital, and particularly are they aware of the ramifications in the new wing which we will start soon.

"I would like to see the entire board returned for this one year in order that we can get this new wing started, and completed, and I will so move," he concluded.

The move was seconded very quickly by Mrs. Charity Clarke, nominations closed, was moved and seconded even more quickly, and when Mr. Walmsley asked for a show of hands on the motion, every single one of the over fifty attending, raised their hand to make it a unanimous decision.

Mr. Cook told The Ontario Intelligencer after the meeting that he was very pleased with the decision. "They have been a wonderful board," he said.

As building advisory committee chairman, Mr. Hartwick, told the meeting that the tenders will be in by March 11, and that he hoped they would get the new wing under way early in April. He estimated it would take about 15 months to complete.

He told the meeting also, that while he could not be sure of the actual cost until the tenders were all in, he had been given to understand that the new 40-bed addition will cost about $510,000 plus about $23,000 for furnishings.

CAN FINANCE

He further explained that with the Government grants and the interest from the non-expendable bequests, chiefly from William Henry Benson and William A. Bog, that only about $100,000 will have to be raised. "I think we can do this without appealing to the public as this can be financed over a period of a few short years.

"We hope that the organizations around the area will come up with enough to furnish the new wing, which I am confident they will," he added.

The Women's Hospital Auxiliary have been saving all of their money to help with the new wing. The treasurer's report of the W.H.A. showed that since 1959, they have given the hospital $17,500 they have raised by their varied activities.

In his annual report, Mr. Cooke quoted statistics which showed that admissions — adult and children were up by 110; births were up by 72; deaths up 2. Total patient days adult and children increased by 106; total patient days, newborn up 562; average days stay was down .4 per cent; number of patients per day was up 1 per cent and the percentage of occupancy was increased from 88.9 to 89.4, an increase of 5 per cent.

His report further showed that about 96 per cent of the patients admitted were participants in the Ontario Hospital Services or some other insurance scheme, but that only 41 per cent of these were protected with supplementary coverage providing protection above the ward rate level.

HAD TO USE CORRIDORS

Although there was some increase in the occupancy of the Maternity Department during the year, it is noted that the greatest volume of business was processed through the Medical and Surgical Department, which registered a percentage of occupancy of 105%.

This extremely high utilization of accommodation in the one particular department necessitated the temporary transfer of beds from the Maternity Department and the almost continual usage of four and five beds in the corridors, thus causing severely overcrowded conditions and stress and strain on the service and physical hospital facilities, the report showed.

Finally, Mr Cooke thanked the President of the Board of Governs Sam Gentile, and Members of the Board, the Medical Staff, the Hospital Staff and the Women's Auxiliary for their most loyal co-operation during 1963.

Mrs. M. Allan's Rink Winner Of Barber Cup

PICTON (Staff) — A rink skipped by Mrs. Marjorie Allan, with Mrs. Dona Maddox, Mrs. Beryl Fawkes and Mrs. Leila Thurston, won the Barber Trophy, Tuesday afternoon at the Prince Edward Curling Club. The runner-up rink was skipped by Mrs. Teresa Fletcher with Mrs. Hope Boyd, Mrs. Helen Walmsley and Mrs. Coral Gardiner who played in the absence of Mrs. Merelyn Allan.

The top rink of the Monday draw skipped by Mrs. Fletcher played against the top rink of the Thursday draw, skipped by Mrs. Flo Bolster, who played in the absence of Mrs. Carol Duncan, with Mrs. Mary Pollard, Mrs. Marjorie Collier and Mrs. Betty Cork. The winners were Mrs. Fletcher's rink.

The second top rink of the Monday draw skipped by Mrs. Betty Evans, with Mrs. Marjorie Colliver, who played in the absence of Mrs. Evelyn Drew, Mrs. Ruth Murphy and Mrs. Lillian Hicks, played the second top rink of the Thursday draw; the winners were Mrs. Allan's team.

The trophy will be presented to the winning team at the annual mixed meeting.

Picton Takes Juvenile Series From Napanee

PICTON — Two goals by Clive Williams and singles by Paul Jones and Paul Finnegan and some sensational net minding by Ray Marshall was the margin that the Picton Juniors needed to drop the Napanee Juveniles by a 4-1 score at Napanee on Monday night. Picton won the best of five, 3 games to 2.

The win sends Picton into the semi-finals against Bancroft. Watch the Intelligencer for the dates of the games.

Picton took the odd one in a 7-4 distribution of penalties. Leroy Frederick, George Bulgaslewski, Brian Biddle and Clive Williams were given assists on the four goal Picton effort.

These juveniles richly deserve more fan support. Sure they do not have the finesse of the juniors, or the intermediates, but for sheer determination, they are hard to beat. Every minute of every game, these youngsters are out there giving it everything they have.

It is a well known fact that any team, in any sporting endeavor, will give that little bit extra when a crowd is cheering them on. Don't miss these juvenile play-offs.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

The long lane that has no turning, according to an old cliche, apparently has a bend in the road for the Belleville junior puckhandlers.

The Mel Richards-Bob Taylor crew plowed along the first two-thirds of the schedule trail, hot at times, cool at others, dishing up mill-run hockey with flashes of potential and generally playing the man instead of the puck.

They were charged with lack of coach-on-operation and at times it was reported there was some dissension in the ranks. Reportedly some of the cause has been removed and the club (which some outside squads reckoned as stepping stones to the group playoffs has blossomed into a serious contender.

"They can play hockey if they want to," Mel Richards told this reporter some three or four weeks ago, "and I think you'll see them start any day now."

He was right. The B's went to Trenton and shellacked the town crew 10-6, and that seemed to be the turning point. They have come up with performances that bespoke their potential in the last four outings despite a 5-1 setback at the hands of the Peterborough Monsons.

I am told that some wag facetiously remarked that the Trenton rivalries, one of the starriest aggregations of its classification in this part of the world, would make them "sit up on their hockey hind legs and say uncle."

The juveniles had already defeated some of the "C" clubs in the league while pinch-hitting for their junior counterparts and whether this had anything to do with the ultimate result between the city squad and the town youngsters is not known.

Suffice it to say that the Richards youngsters failed to squat "on their hind legs before the onslaught of the juveniles, but rose to their full length and administered a 9-2 shellacking to the boys from west o' here.

Led by Stu Muirhead the juniors loosened a savage attack from the opening whistle and never looked back-wards. Stu, who had been out with an injury, paced his mates with a brilliant performance, scoring five goals and assisting with the other four.

His sparkpling effort rubbed off on his teammates and since that game they have produced the calibre of hockey which previously had been noted for its dormancy.

Even at that they were rated as underdogs in the mixed-up semi-finals series with Peterborough. A sudden switch from a three-of-five to a best-of-three with the first game played in the Petes' igloo didn't bode well for the Bee's chances of reaching the finals against Kingston.

Both teams had been notified that the series had been changed from 3-5 to 2-3. In Peterborough Monday night Manger Mel Richards conferred with Petes officials and suggested they contact the convener regarding a switch back to 3-5.

The Petes said "No. It must be settled now." With the first tilt at home the situation favored the Monsons since the third game if necessary would be played in their backyard. They smiled broadly, "We will play the two-of-three."

But they hadn't reckoned with "what might happen." And what "might happen" did occur. The Petes, thanks again to the sterling work of Stu Muirhead, emerged on the short end of a 5-4 score and today things "ain't so rosy" in Littlockville.

And the guy that left the Peterborough Centre with the last laugh was one Mel Richards, whose broad smile was reflected on the grinning countenances of his proteges.

For the second game of the series is scheduled for Memorial Arena here Friday night—and that could mean the swan song for the Petes.

It should be a ding-dong battle with the Littlockors facing elimination and an inspired Belleville crew ready and "rarin'" to administer the coup-de-grace.

Fans should not pass this one up. It looks like the best hockey jousting of the season and the B's could do with a lot of box-office support.

Wings Eye Third Spot, Nip Leafs 3-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Johnny Bower's brief vacation may end up costing Toronto Maple Leafs $250 a player.

That's the difference in bonus money for teams finishing third and fourth in the National Hockey League standings. The top club gets $1,000 a man, second $750, third $500 and fourth $250.

The Leafs were firmly in third place as of last Saturday with Bower in the nets and hot on the heels of Chicago's Glenn Hall in pursuit of the Vezina Trophy. Toronto was six points ahead of fourth-place Detroit.

But the Leafs changed horses. Coach Punch Imlach decided Bower needed a rest and Don Simmons replaced him.

CATCHING UP

Result: The Leafs have lost two straight and the Wings are only three points behind. And Hall's three-goal Vezina lead now is six.

Detroit reduced the gap Tuesday night with a 3-2 win on home ice over the Leafs in the only NHL game. Two contests are scheduled tonight with Chicago at New York and Boston in Toronto.

And guess what? Imlach indicates Bower will be back in the nets.

Parker MacDonald, a Sydney, N.S., product, was the hero of the piece, banging in Gordie Howe's passout at 14:28 of the third period. It was the same play that gave the Wings a 2-2 tie with New York Sunday with less than five minutes remaining.

ERRORS HELPED

The Wings twice took a one-goal lead only to have defensive miscues enable Toronto to catch up.

Bruce MacGregor put them ahead at 4:55 of the first period but George Armstrong tied it in the 14th minute, capitalizing on teammate Dave Keon's persistence and Larry Jeffrey's sloppy work along the boards.

Floyd Smith put the Wings ahead again four minutes later on a pass from Howe but the Leafs knotted the count when Ron Stewart broke up a Detroit power play and scored at 19:15 of 1da second. Keon again was the mastermind, blocking a point drive and feeding the puck to Stewart.

A ragged third period, caused by balmy 55-degree weather that made the ice surface slow, saw the fired-up Wings outshoot the Leafs 14-7 and send a crowd of 12,786 happily home with MacDonald's winner.

Letter to the Sports Editor

Ontario Intelligencer,
Sports Editor,

On behalf of the "Catholic Women's League" members of Holy Rosary Parish, I would like to extend to you our sincere appreciation and thanks for the splendid reports you are printing of the athletic and scholastic abilities of the many pupils of the Secondary Schools and Colleges of our city.

We know it must be very encouraging to their parents, teachers and to our public in general, to know that so many of our young people have made such good use of those first few years of their lives, which are so important. We also think that they may encourage pupils in lower grades to try just a little harder.

We hope that you continue this splendid work with much success.

Mrs. E. Schrieter,
TV & Radio Convener

Wellington, Stinsons In Finals

Wellington "Dukes" and Stinson Construction, running one-two all season in Prince Edward North Shore Hockey, battled their way into the ultimate series last night by ousting Consecon and Melville.

There were only four penalties in this' tilt, three to the winners.

Consecon jumped into a 2-0 first period lead against Wellington and tng winners got one back in the second and a final one in the third.

Gary Pyke and Al Ralley each had a goal and assist for Wellingtonswith Norm Hodgson netting the other goal. Lavern Harvey and Bob Adams were the Conseeln scorers.

First Canadian To Take Rich Race
'Northern Dancer' Wins Flamingo

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Northern Dancer, Canada's hope for the Kentucky Derby, rests in his stall today awaiting the $100,000 Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park April 4.

"We will run him next in the Florida Derby and after that take him to Kentucky," said Horatio Luro, who trains Northern Dancer for Canadian industrialist E. P. Taylor.

Northern Dancer won the $138,200 Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah Tuesday, beating Mr. Brick by two lengths and such other promising three-year-olds as Quadrangle, Journalist, Roman Brother, Dandy K., Isbkoodah, Alphabet, Roman Column, Bupers and Big Brigade. All carried 122 pounds.

The small but muscular bay, a son of Nearctic out of Natalma by Native Dancer, became the first Canadian horse to win the Flamingo. He was bred at Taylor's Windfields Farm of Toronto.

Northern Dancer, even-money choice with the crowd of 32,064, ran the 1¼ miles in 1:47 4-5, close to the Flamingo and track record of 1:47 set by Bold Ruler in 1957.

The Canadian colt's time compared to the 1:47 3-5 by Hill Rise in his easy six-length victory under 118 pounds in the Santa Anita Derby last Saturday. The victory stamped Hill grise as the California threat for the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky. on May 2.

It was the biggest week-day in Hialeah history and the crowed wagered $2,423,238 on nine races.

Roman Brother, Florida's hope for a third Kentucky Derby—Needles won in 1956 and Carry Back in 1961—was second choice with the Flamingo crowd but finished in a dead heat with Dandy K. for fifth.

"No trouble at all," said Bob Ussery, on Roman Brother. "The other horses just ran faster-than we did."

Willis Shoemaker, who flew in from California to ride Northern Dancer, said his horse tired a little in the last 1-16 of a mile but wasn't quite as seasoned as some of the others.

TAYLOR FOGBOUND

It was Northern Dancer's 11th start. He has never been out of the money. His owner, fogbound in Toronto and unable to see the race, collected first money of $89,830 to push Northern Dancer's total earnings to $180,030. Mrs. Taylor was on hand to receive the Flamingo Cup.

"The only instructions I gave Shoemaker was to be careful on the first turn," Luron said. "We had a cup on the horse's right eye to keep him from running out. After the first turn, Shoemaker was on his own and he rode just the race I knew he would ride.

"I thought the horse was tiring in the last 16th. I was a little worried when I saw the early fractions because they were so fast."

A Kentucky Derby victory wouldn't be the first for Luro. He won with Decidedly in 1962.

If Taylor aims him at the triple crown—the Derby, Preakness and Belmont—it will mark the second time in four years he has tried for it.

In 1960 his highly rated Victoria Park finished third in the Derby and second in the Preakness to Queen's Plate at Toronto, passing up the Belmont for the Queen's Plate at Toronto.

BC Rink Stretches String To Four

Richardsons Roll

By MARVEN MOSS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — British Columbia's Lyall Dagg foursome and the Richardsons of Saskatchewan put their unbeaten records on the line for two more rounds of play in the Canadian Curling Championships today after the 11 competing rinks took the morning off for the annual meeting of the Dominion Curling Association.

Dagg took a narrow lead in the round - robin competition Tuesday by hammering Newfoundland 15-6 and edging the previously unbeaten Northern Ontario entry 10-8 to run his victory string to four. Richardson fell behind by sitting out a third round bye before defeating Prince Edward Island's host quartet 12-6.

Jack Polyblank's Kirkland Lake quartet, 11-9 winners over New Brunswick in the third round, held third place with two victories and a defeat. Prince Edward Island, Ontario, Nova Scotia and Manitoba shared fourth place with 2-2 records followed by Quebec and New Brunswick, 1-3, and Alberta, 1-3. Newfoundland was winless in four starts.

This afternoon, the fifth-round draw sending Saskatchewan against Alberta, B.C. against New Brunswick, Manitoba against Newfoundland, Northern Ontario against Nova Scotia and Quebec against Ontario. Art Burke's Charlottetown rink has the bye.

Barring upsets, the leaders will be even again after tonight's sixth session at 9 p.m. as Dagg's B.C. rink sits it out while the Richardsons go against Ontario, Nova Scotia-New Brunswick, Quebec-Newfoundland, Alberta-P.E.I. and Northern Ontario-Manitoba are the other matches.

Manitoba and Alberta, two of the pre - tournament favorites which startled the gallery by losing both their opening-day matches, repaired their prestige somewhat in Tuesday's play.

First Bruce Hudson's Winnipeggers shoved the Albertans in deeper by downing them 11-8. Ontario, with skip Bob Mann hampered by a case of stomach flu, fell to the Manitobans 11-8 in the fourth round while Ron Northcott's Calgary rink came off the floor to wallop Quebec 15-8.

BURKE DROPS TWO

Art Burke's youthful islanders, who delighted the 2,000-seat Charlottetown Auditorium by winning the first two matches, had tougher sledding Tuesday, dropping a 9-8 heartbreaker to Quebec before running into the formidable Richardsons.

Ontario's Mann was still undefeated in the Hoover rink dumped Nova Scotia 9-5 but Ian Baird's crew came back for a 10-6 win over Newfoundland 12-6.

The 11-round classic ends Friday night.

Whose lead, Barry (Sam) Naimark skipped B.C. in the 1958 championship and to be good to get past Northern Ontario.

The 34-year-old public relations director for a Vancouver paper company overcame the handicap of having less to draw in for shot with his last rock.

Ernie Richardson, running third for the Richardson combine, switched effectively from knocking out to draw curling against the Burke rink after the Easterners piled up a 6-2 margin in the first five ends.

Sets Record For Defencemen

Generals' Orr Nets Three

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Orr, one of the leading prospects for the National Hockey League, is the youngest player in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series but the 15-year-old Oshawa Generals' defenceman left little doubt in anybody's mind Tuesday night as to his potential.

Orr drove home his 28, 29th and 30th goals of the season to lead the Generals to a 8-5 win over Peterborough Petes and set a league record for most goals by a defenceman.

The subject of conversation is, of course, the world heavy-weight championship bout of last week in which Clay won the title from the ex-champ, Liston.

Belleville and area fight fans will have a chance to form their own opinions, starting Friday night, when extensive films of the fight will be shown at the Belle Theatre here.

The complete fight will be shown, from the first round through until Liston failed to answer the bell for the seventh, filmed right at ringside, with slow motion at key points.

The fight films will be shown from Friday, March 6 to Tuesday, March 10, along with another top regular feature. It's a must for local fight fans.

The fight films will be shown on Friday at 3-7-9 p.m., and Saturday 1-3-7-9 p.m.

Clay, Liston Pictures at Belle Theatre

Followers of the fight game have called it "the greatest upset in ring history".

Sonny Liston has called it "a fluke, brought about by my shoulder injury", and the Lip himself, even Cassius Clay, says "it was just the way I said it would be".

OMHA Unperturbed

Lawyer Threatens Action

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Albert Watkins, president of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, said Tuesday a protest from the suspended pee wee team from London, will be treated the same as any other appeal.

He was referring to the suspension of the London Tecumseh pee wee team by the OMHA for playing an ineligible player at a recent tournament in Quebec.

Cameron J. Killoran, the team's lawyer, threatened court action in a letter to the OMHA.

The OMHA claims the Tecumseh played 12 - year - old Dale Irvine of the Huron Heights branch without permission.

The team manager, Mrs. Dorothy Slowach, wife of London's mayor, and Eugene Taylor, the coach, were also suspended by the OMHA.

Killoran said an eight-page letter is en route to the OMHA and "We will go to the Supreme Court of Ontario unless this ridiculous situation is cleared up."

He demands OMHA officials come to London at their own expense for a meeting no later than March 7.

Syracuse Bantams Play Here

Arranges Novel Bowling Tournament

K. 'KING' PINN

Rising to the challenge of an out-of-town friend, Mr. Pinn spurred his Bowling League to take a 900-mile jaunt to meet the challengers in a tournament. To keep enthusiasm high — and expenses low — Pinn chose a Canadian National Group Travel Plan and chartered a private coach for the trip. "The group's really looking forward to 'owning' a roomy air-conditioned GM coach! It's certainly the ideal way for a gang to travel. For example, 40 of my teammates travelling in our 'own' coach, save as much as 33⅓ — you can't beat that!" Pinn and his pals can also charter a sleeping car for long distance group travel. If the team is small — 10 or less — 'King' takes advantage of all the rock-bottom Red Tanger Days — and uses CN's Party Fare Plan for up to 20% discount. 'King' says, "It's become such a habit now, I wouldn't travel to his corner drugstore without consulting my friends at Canadian National."

No Overtime In Playoffs Junior A Loop

TORONTO (CP)—Tie games will not be broken by overtime in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League playoffs, it has been decided by the league's council.

Should tie games occur an extra game will be played and the first team accumulating eight points on the basis of two points for a win and one for a tie will be the winner of the series.

The top six clubs of the eight-team league will figure in the playoffs with the first-place club meeting the fourth-place team, the second and fifth-place teams playing together and the third and sixth-place clubs clashing.

Playoffs start next week.

Bone Of Contention Big Issue

Curlers To Thrash Out Professionalism

By MARVEN MOSS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Professionalism, a perennial bone of contention, loomed as the principal issue at today's annual meeting of the Dominion Curling Association.

Up for discussion at the meeting, held in conjunction with the Dominion Curling Championships, was a proposal described as a compromise between extreme views that have split eastern and western organizations in recent years.

The proposal, drafted by a committee set up by the DCA executive subject to modifications, sets a maximum of $1,000 a rink, or $25 a curler, on prizes. Violators would lose their eligibility for DCA-sanctioned events, including the Canadian championships.

The proposal, reported to have been passed by a 16-to-14 vote of the executive, would represent the first official recognition of remuneration for curlers, to which eastern officials have strenuously expressed all - out opposition.

But it would rule out the popular carspiels—a backbone of curling in Western Canada since four automobiles first were offered to the winners of a bonspiel at Nipawin, Sask., in 1948.

Proposals to outlaw professionalism have come before the DCA in the intervening years but have foundered, partly because of the West's adamant opposition and partly because of enforcement difficulties.

Two years ago, DCA past president Colin Campbell introduced a notice of motion setting prize limits at $600 a rink or $150 a man. But last year's meeting voted to refer it back to the committee which produced the present proposal.

There was speculation that today's meeting would leave the question of professionalism to be decided individually by provincial curling bodies. But all delegates refrained from comment.

Trail 3-1 In Series

RCAF Downs Picton 7-5

By JACK FAWKES

PICTON — The Trenton RCAF Clobbertizers came up with a win in the OHA Intermediate play-downs, dropping the Picton Intermediates by a 7-5 score here last night. Picton leads the best of seven, three to one. The fifth game in the series will be played here, on Tuesday, March 10.

The fly boys jumped into a 4-1 first period lead on goals by Vince Steiner who fired a pair, Doug Spencer and Frank Lewis. Picton's Keith McDonald opened the scoring at the 3-34 mark, but could not buy a goal from then on in the initial period. Picton outshot the visitors 15-12 and the four penalties were even.

Picton bounced right back in the second period, firing three unanswered markers to give them a 4-4 tie going into the last period. Shaker Baker fired a pair with Carl Stacey getting the single. There was only one penalty in the middle 20 minutes, that going to Picton, who outshot the RCAF by an 11-9 margin.

In the last period, Picton was plagued by their inability to get the puck out of their own end, and only some smart work on the part of Tom O'Halloran kept the score from mounting.

Bill McGuire fired the tie breaker at the 6:37 mark with Ralph Plane and Ken Currie helping. They went two up at the 9:19 mark, when Joe St. Pierre stole the puck, waltzed in on O'Halloran and beat him with a hard drive.

Picton's playing coach, Davey Jones, brought Picton one closer when he took a swipe at a puck that was lying in front of the RCAF nets, at the 11:05 mark. Larry Pero, who played a whale of a game both ways, got an assist, along with McDonald.

With Picton putting on a concentrated drive, and Trenton being content to run out the clock in the last half of the period, Frank Lewis picked up the puck from a Picton gasping play, scooted down centre ice, passed to Ken Currie, and posted the return pass to put the visitors two up at the 13:56 mark.

Picton pulled out all the stops, and in spite of some exceptionally close calls, were unable to beat Derril Johnston in the Trenton nets. There were no penalties in the last period, both teams trying to stay on the ice. Trenton outshot Picton in the last frame16-11.

NBC Cameras Spell Out State Visit to Capital

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Last September when the U.S. state department was busy arranging a three-day state visit of Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, NBC was almost as busy preparing a report on the etiquette of a state visit.

The report, Our Man in Washington, was shown Tuesday.

NBC cameras were in state department offices, even when Angier Biddle Duke, in charge of protocol, discussed final details with the Ethiopian ambassador.

Cameras were in the royal train as it drew up to the Washington station platform and a formal reception complete with a 21-gun salute.

Cameras were in the kitchens during preparations for a lavish state department luncheon.

And cameras were also trained on president Kennedy, when he had too much to drink-looking healthy and tanned, as he received the emperor.

It was one of David Brinkley's occasional specials. Perhaps because of the presence of Kennedy, he seemed rather restrained in his comment.

Inter-City Badminton Challenge

Local racquet wielders having proved their supremacy over Kingston rivals at tennis are now determined to make it a double at badminton by issuing a challenge to Kingston clubs to a match to be held at the Belleville Armouries on March 28th.

In recognition of coaching services given the club without charge, the Garrison Badminton Club has presented a "Doug Grant" trophy emblematic of perennial badminton supremacy between the two cities.

An invitation to form an all-star team from all the Kingston clubs has been sent to Johnnie Johnson the outstanding tennis and badminton star of the Limestone city. Members of the Queen's University intercollegiate team will also be invited to assist the Kingston side.

The schedule of matches will include four or more men's singles, eight men's doubles, eight ladies' doubles and eight mixed doubles.

Singles play will be stressed with the objective of stimulating competitive interest among the younger players.

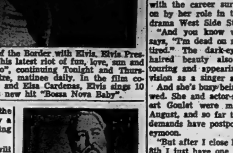
Highest single score was recorded by Frank Alfin, 96 on a rapid fire target.

Harold Howting was presented with a Master crest, the first to be won this year by a member since the new scoring chart was instituted.

The Quinte Marksmen will hold their annual meeting on March 11 in the Recreation Centre, beginning at 7.30.



On March 16, there will be a showing of several movies all relative to hand-gunning and hunting in general. This display will be held in the Orange Hall, Church Street, and an invitation to all members of the hand-gun clubs of the Quinte area is extended.

Minor Hockey

Playoff games were held in the Tyke, Squirt, and Midget sections of the Belleville Minor Hockey Association last night.

TYKE

Flyers and Leafs ousted Rangers and Royals to climb another notch in the Tyke division playoffs.

Flyers edged Rangers 3-2 on a pair of goals by Murray Dales and one by Andy Ricketts. Larry Hughes and Mike Watt fired the Ranger goals.

MIDGET

Hawks whitewashed the Leafs 3-0 in the first game of their series. Paul Ford scored twice for Hawks and Emerson potted the other goal, aided by Steve Holmes. The game was marred by a fight between Holmes and the Leafs' Salisbury, each getting a major with Salisbury also drawing another five-minute penalty for intent to injure. They were the game's only penalties.

SQUIRT

Leafs tipped the Hawks by a 7-1 count, with Dennis Cone and Greg Duffy firing three goals apiece. Peter Ackerman also scored with B. Creelman and Steve Boardman having assists. Jim Richardson was the lone Hawk marksman. This was the first game in the group semi-finals.

Carol Lawrence Working Hard in Many Roles

By DAVE SMITH

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Carol Lawrence is busy these days, frantically trying to keep up with the image she's created on by her role in the musical drama West Side Story.

"And you know what?" she says, "I'm dead on my feet, Sidney."

The dark-eyed, raven-haired beauty also has been touring and appearing on television as a singer and dancer.

And she's busy being a newlywed. She and actor-singer Robert Goulet were married last August, and so far their career demands have postponed a honeymoon.

"But after I close here on the 8th I just have one show to do for television, and then I'm going to rest," she says. "I plan to just relax and read and rain my perspective.

"That's the most important thing in the world to me—perspective. Figuring out what I want, what I'm willing to do for it, and assessing what I'm doing now. I've been reading, thinking, learning new things about life—or just about my work.

Musing over her longer-range plans, she says:

"We're really hard to say which aspect of the business I love the most—dancing, singing or acting.-I started as a dancer, of course, but as I got older (she's all of 29 now), the dancing will probably be the first thing to go. Then, I suppose, the voice. So I guess I'll have to rely on acting to carry me over the long haul.

"But at that, I'm lucky. No performer trains as hard as a dancer. Dancing' teaches you things about other aspects of performing that you simply don't run across any other way. And it keeps you in good physical condition much longer than most people.

"Not too long ago Bob and I were with Harry Belafonte at a Palace Corps camp in Puerto Rico. They had an obstacle course there—ropes to climb, slack ropes to walk across and all that—and they asked me if I'd like to try it. I'll do anything once, so I did. And I passed the whole thing first time. They were amazed! And they said passing the course qualified me for assignment to Perul So you see, I'm pretty good shape, don't you think?"

You couldn't agree more. Her shape is perfect.

"Y" Basketball

Teachers and the CNR registered victories in a pair of "Y" Men's Basketball League games played last night.

Teachers staged a strong second-half rally to whip Pollock's 57-31. CNR won a closer 34-30 decision over Holloway.

Next week's games, CNR vs Pollock's and Holloway vs Teachers, will be played at the BCIVS gym, it was announced this morning.

Teachers held a slim 20-19 lead before opening up the big margin over Pollock's. The losers were missing scoring star Ian Houchin through injuries.

Gord Mutter starred for Teachers with 28 points, backed by Max Woolley's 14-point effort. Dave Bell had six, Wally Uhrynuk five and Paul Breese four.

Don McPherson topped Pollock's with 12 points, followed by Bill Simmons with eight. George Campbell had five, Graham Geddard four and Larry Gerow two.

CNR moved into a 20-18 lead at half time over Holloway in a very close contest. John Guthis sparked the CNR scorers with 22 points. John Krupics had five, Mike Vigrass four, Fred Roberts two and Lionel Bovay one.

For Holloway, Don Wilson was tops with ten points. Rich Clarke and Ron Denyes each hooped six, Ralph McCabe five, Larry Gerow three and Bill Simmons none.

N. B. Finance Minister Has Balanced Budget With No Increase in Taxation

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Finance Minister L. G. DesBrisay brought down New Brunswick's first balanced budget since 1960 Tuesday predicting record spending and revenue with no taxation changes.

Mr. DesBrisay predicted expenditures at $122,250,730 and a revenue of $129,900,561 for the coming fiscal year providing a current account surplus of $349,831.

The Newfoundland house is to open in St. John's today with Premier Smallwood's Liberal government holding 34 seats in the 42-seat house. The Conservatives have seven seats and one seat is held by an independent member.

In other legislature business:

Nova Scotia — A bill was introduced proposing appointment of a minimum wage board to set minimum wage rates in the province as opposed to a universal minimum wage.

The bill, introduced by Labor Minister N. Layton Ferguson, would allow the minimum wage board consisting of from five to seven members to fix minimum wage rates for both men and women in all classes of employment, excluding farm laborers and domestic servants.

CRITICIZE SPOILICY

Quebec — Union Nationale Leader Daniel Johnson said the government's attitude in the field of provincial autonomy is "contradictory from one end to the other."

As long as Quebec accepts money from the federal government, he said, Ottawa will keep making federal-provincial plans.

Ontario — NDP Leader Donald C. MacDonald said a mood approaching civil war was encompassing Ontario's tobacco farming area because cigarette companies are making a mockery out of tobacco auctions.

He said the Conservative government has rendered the Ontario Flue-Cured tobacco Marketing Board powerless in its dealings with tobacco buyers.

Manitoba — The legislature's law amendments committee reserved judgement on a bill to make reports of special hospital research committees inadmissable as evidence in court cases.

Saskatchewan — A bill was introduced amending the Secondary School Education Act eliminating the possibility of double taxation on Roman Catholics operating their own separate schools.

The bill would allow Roman Catholics to set up separate high school districts by majority vote among themselves and separate school supporters would pay taxes only to support the separate high schools.

They would not pay taxes to support public high schools in their area as well.

Alberta — Calgary city officials presented a brief to the government favoring a Canadian Pacific Railway redevelopment scheme for the city.

British Columbia — Premier Bennett said British Columbia leads Alberta in both total and per-capita spending.

"Jest a Second"

"I thought we'd have a lobster tonight for a change."

Labor Opposes Arbitrary Age For Retirement

Congress Says Pensions May Make Many Idle

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress said today that enactment of the Canada Pension Plan and expansion of private pension plans may lead to more older people being cut of work in periods of job scarcity.

The congress made the statement in a brief to a special Senate committee studying the problems of Canada's aged population in which it said that age alone should not be used to determine whether a person should be allowed to continue to work.

More objective tests are required, the congress said, to select those older workers who are capable of continuing in their jobs after age 65 and those who should retire. The congress was opposed to compulsory superannuation of employees whether or not they retired on pension.

However, the congress said success in selecting older workers who should be retired may not necessarily lead to an improvement of job opportunities for older workers. It also would not extend the period of employment for those at work who have reached what was considered normal retirement age under pension plans.

"We are convinced that only when there are enough jobs to go around will there be expanded employment opportunities for the older worker and for the worker who wishes to continue working even though he has become entitled to retirement on pension.

ALARMED AT FUTURE

"When jobs are scarce, there is inevitably the tendency to press younger workers for shorter wage income is their only means of security and to urge older workers to retire for whom pensions are available. The expansion of private pension plans and the enactment of the Canada Pension Plan are bound to strengthen this attitude.

"We submit that if older workers must be made to discriminated against when jobs, the economy must be in a position which will make such workers attractive to employers," the congress said. "We believe that workers should be permitted to work as long as they are fit and willing to do so and that they should not be forced to retire if they wish to and have reached normal retirement age under their pension plan."

SMOKING BOOK COMING

OTTAWA (CP) — A booklet on the smoking habit is expected to be distributed in about four or six weeks to doctors and dentists, Health Minister LaMarsh said Wednesday in the Commons.

Possibility of a Hoax Raised In Disappearance of Aircraft

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — A search for an aircraft that was reported to have encountered difficulty near Oneida Lake early today was stymied, state police said, by failure to discover any trace of the craft. The possibility of a hoax was raised.

The plane was reported to have been flying from Montreal to Dorval with four persons, including a woman giving birth to a child.

State police said the only identification given was a plane

Reasons Given For New Prison

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—The new federal prison for women at Cornwall, Ont., will be a bilingual institution and this was a main reason for a government decision to place it in Cornwall, Ont., Penitentiaries Commissioner A. J. MacLeod said Wednesday.

He was commenting on an announcement by Justice Minister Favreau last week in the Commons that a new medium-security women's prison would be erected in the bilingual community of Cornwall, replacing the present women's prison in Kingston.

"Although there are only about 15 French-speaking women out of 130 in the Kingston prison at the moment, it is logical to expect that a certain proportion of the women entering the new institution in the years to come will be French-speaking," Mr. MacLeod said.

TO HOLD 150 INMATES

The Cornwall institution will be designed for custody of 150 women—one-third from Quebec, one-third from Ontario and the others from the rest of Canada."

The commissioner said the new prison will have a number of bilingual women on its staff of 30 to 75.

None of the staff members at the Kingston women's penitentiary is bilingual.

Narcotic addicts, who make up almost half of Canada's female prisoner population, will be sent to the new federal narcotic treatment centre at Matsqui, B.C., to be opened in 1965, the commissioner said.

The commissioner cited persistent attempts by male and female prisoners at Kingston to exchange letters, photographs and "other contraband goods" as another reason for moving the women's prison to Cornwall.

The women's prison at Kingston is only several hundred feet from the men's prison and women prisoners recently were discovered placing parcels and messages down a sewer opening at a spot where the men were working.

BAD FOR SECURITY

The situation was "extremely detrimental" to the security and discipline of both institutions, a penitentiary commission spokesman said.

The new Cornwall prison will be of "cottage" design, with a number of small dormitories each housing 12 or 15 women.

Senators Defended By Davies

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Senators are not political hacks but intelligent and patriotic citizens active in politics for one of the two major parties, Liberal Senator W. Rupert Davies, 84, said Wednesday.

The president of the Kingston Whig-Standard, describing himself as a newspaper man, said it is unfortunate that editorial writers who know little about the everyday work of the upper chamber too often criticize senators.

"I am certain in my own mind that I am not a political hack," he said in the throne speech debate.

"I think I am a fairly intelligent man and perhaps equally capable as any man elected to the House of Commons of forming opinions on the important matters that come before Parliament."

He said men who have participated actively in politics are most likely to deal intelligently with legislation coming before the Senate.

SHOULD SEE WORK

He wished it were possible for some editors to spend a week watching the senators at work, both in the red chamber and in committees.

Senator Gunnar S. Thorvaldson (Manitoba), in his throne speech, criticized the government for "haste" in pushing the Canada Pension Plan. Detailed, objective study was important and he questioned whether it is in the best interests to bring in the pension plan now.

The former president of the Conservative party called for a "holiday" in the introduction of new social welfare spending. This would enable the economy to return to sound position.

The Senate debate overshadowed proceedings in the Commons, where progress dragged up three hours, leaving only 30 minutes in the abbreviated Wednesday sitting for discussion of government legislation.

Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson and Conservative Leader Real Caouette were in open agreement on the merits of the Canada-United States power treaty.

Both called for speedy ratification of the treaty so that construction of three storage dams could be done this summer in British Columbia.

BERATE NDP

They also berated the New Democratic Party for opposing the treaty. Mr. Thompson called the treaty a "mighty good bargain" for Canada and the U.S. and found it "tragic" that the 17 NDP members were prepared to "sell out" the power to block ratification.

Mr. Caouette said the NDP is fighting the treaty in a desperate bid to retain its last toehold—in Quebec—in federal politics.

(Nine of the 17 NDP members represent B.C. ridings.)

Mr. Thompson echoed repeatedly by H. W. Herridge (NDP, Kootenay West) who shouted interjections from his seat. His remarks could not be heard in the press gallery.

The debate, which continues today, is on a government motion to refer the 1961 treaty and the 1964 protocol to the Commons external affairs committee.

HOFFA CONVICTED — James R. Hoffa, Teamsters' president, talks to newsmen after a jury returned a verdict of guilty in trying to fix the jury which heard Hoffa's conspiracy trial in Nashville in 1962. Others convicted with Hoffa were Ewing Krisp, Larry Campbell and Thomas Parks. (AP Wirephoto)

Guilty of Jury-Tampering Hoffa Says He Will Appeal

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — James R. Hoffa, president of the largest U.S. labor union, stared in grim disbelief Wednesday when he heard himself declared guilty of trying to rig a federal court jury.

It was his first conviction in five trials.

"We will appeal," Hoffa told reporters.

His lawyers said motions for a new trial would be filed with Judge Frank Wilson within four days.

The conviction could mean 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine for Hoffa, head of the international Teamsters Union.

The verdict brought congratulations to the prosecutors from Attorney-General Robert Kennedy—long accused by Hoffa of waging a vendetta against him.

Kennedy, once called a "punk kid" by Hoffa, just smiled when asked in Washington for his reaction to the verdict.

Hoffa told reporters that "despite what you think" he has no intention of relinquishing the presidency of the Teamsters, an independent union with 1,700,000 members including several thousand in Canada.

"I can rest assured of one thing," he said, "that the membership will be behind Hoffa in the fight all the way."

Initial reaction from members of Hoffa's home local in Detroit was unanimously in his favor.

Hoffa, 51, who is scheduled to go on trial April 27 in Chicago on charges of misusing $20,000,000 in union pension funds,

Two Die, Soccer Fans Riot

SUNDERLAND, England (AP)—Two persons died and more than 100 were injured as thousands of football-crazy fans stormed through barriers to see a soccer match Wednesday.

Scores were trampled underfoot as the fans swarmed unchecked into the packed stadium where the local First Division team was playing Manchester United.

Police and soccer officials estimated 70,000 people got into the stadium built to accommodate 62,000 with safety.

The overflow came from among a frenzied crowd of about 50,000 who after being locked out smashed down two 10-foot-high gates and rushed into the ground.

The two persons who died—a 15-year-old girl and a 45-year-old man—were victims of heart attacks outside the ground.

SET UP SHUTTLE

Ambulances kept up a nonstop shuttle service to hospitals.

Some of the injured had limbs broken and ribs cracked in the crush as the gates swayed, then crashed down under the pressure of the crowd.

Once inside the stadium the fans scaled the grandstands and climbed floodlight towers.

Hundreds of police were rushed to the ground but were powerless to stop the near-riot.

The match, to decide who gets into the semi-final of the Football Association Cup, resulted in a 2-2 tie—which means it has to be played all over again.

Ruby Will Be Shown Film Of His Shooting of Oswald

DALLAS (AP) — District Attorney Henry M. Wade today will show the jury in Jack Ruby's murder trial—and Ruby himself—film of the wild moment when Ruby shot Lee Harvey Oswald Sunday, Nov. 24.

The film was recorded by television cameras in the basement of the Dallas police. It seen "live" by many viewers, and in re - runs by countless others. But Ruby will be looking at it for the first time, said his lawyer, Melvin Belli.

Wade is asking the jury of eight men and four women to return a verdict of death in the electric chair for Ruby, charged with murder with malice aforethought in the shooting of Oswald.

Lee Oswald had been accused of assassinating President Kennedy, when Ruby killed him. Ruby's lawyers contend he was temporarily insane.

Wade said he expects to complete the state's case today. Then the defence will have its turn.

Testimony from 14 witnesses on Wednesday developed these main points:

Ruby continued to try to pull the trigger of his .38-calibre pistol after he shot Oswald.

J. R. Revelle, Dallas policeman handcuffed to Oswald when Ruby fired, testified that Ruby cried out, after he shot Oswald, "I hope the son of a bitch dies."

UN Asks Canada To Contribute To Peace Force

Indian General Almost Certain Commander

By CARMAN CUMMING

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Diplomats have been allowed to the task of putting together a new United Nations peace force, this time for the Mediterranean island country of Cyprus.

A 32-year-old Indian general appeared almost certain to command the peace-force, but at least six men were being mentioned for the tougher job of political mediator between the Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots.

Diplomatic sources said Secretary-General U Thant had chosen Lt.-Gen. Prem Singh Gyani to command the force but was withholding an announcement until he receives replies from five countries including Canada he asked to contribute troops.

A UN spokesman said none of the five—Canada, Ireland, Sweden, Brazil and Finland—had given any immediate reply. Britain is to provide the main contingent, but Commonwealth would provide transportation and other logistical support.

The Security Council late Wednesday approved unanimously the resolution authorizing the force, but Russia, Czechoslovakia and France abstained on a separate vote on a section calling on Thant to put it into action.

Thant was reported pleased Western delegates, however, since the general expectation had been that the Soviets would do no better than cast an abstention on the resolution as a whole.

The request for Canadian troops was delivered in a meeting between Thant and Paul Tremblay, the Canadian ambassador.

Tremblay declined to make any comment afterward, but in

Preparations for the Birth Of Queen's Baby Gain Momentum

LONDON (Reuters) — Preparations for the birth of Queen Elizabeth's fourth child gathered momentum today with the Queen's move into Buckingham Palace's Belgian Suite—the family's apartments—and the arrival of the royal midwife.

Although the birth was still officially due in mid - March Britons remembered that Prince Andrew was born in the February, 1960, just four days after the arrival of the midwife Nursing Sister Helen Rose—and were ready for an earlier announcement.

On Wednesday, the Queen visited her cousin Princess Alexandra, whose first child was born Saturday.

Sir ohn Peel, the Queen's surgeon gynaecologist who attended the births of her three children, stood by for a palace summons.

Household arrangements for the new baby were complete with Nanny (nursemaid) Mabel Anderson — who looked after Prince Charles when he was born in charge of the nursery. She was assisted by "understanny" June Waller.

The new arrivals were scheduled to fit into the existing nursery occupied by Prince Andrew —even to the extent of using the same baby carriage the four-year-old prince has outgrown.

A complete layette of 32 delicately handmade garments lay in readiness for the Queen's fourth child.

The layette is white—a color in suitable for either a prince or a princess.

Queen Elizabeth, 38 in April, was reported in excellent health and said early to continue to make the private theatre and driving trips she enjoyed since cancelling her official engagements.

She was reported to have enjoyed her pregnancy because of the rare opportunity it gave her to spend time with her family.

Dr. Peel was regarded as disliking a natural childbirth and favoring anesthesia.

"He will not allow you to suffer any pain and tries to help you as much as possible," said a London nurse who was twice attended by him.

"But," she said, "he does not fuss unduly. He just delivers a great deal of confidence."

The royal midwife, Nurse Rowe, is noted for her calm approach and modesty manner.

She attended the births of all of the Queen's children.

"I love babies," she said. "Especially newborn babies."

Her love is supported by crowded with photographs of the Royal family.

The child will be third in line for the throne if a boy and fourth in line if a girl.

The Royal child will get Princess Alexandra's new son down a step to 14th in the line of succession. But it will not demote the children expected by the Queen's sister, Princess Margaret, and the Duchess of Kent in the spring.

White's Rink Wins First One At Napanee

A rink of Mrs. Ron Benn, lead; Ron Benn, second, Mrs. Heather Wintle, vice skip, with Mac White as skip from the Quinte Curling Club in this city are on their way to compete in the division playoffs of Ross Glover to be held at Thorndale on Monday. If successful in that competition the rink will represent the Dominion at the Dominion finals to be held from March 15-21 in Toronto.

The rink is in Napanee today playing a series of games with rinks from Napanee, Kingston, Iead, Howard Hall, second; Mrs. Shirley Gavin, vice skip, with Ian Gavin as skip from the RCMP rink in Ottawa in the district playoffs. This playoff is a best three series and in the first game this afternoon White and his rink had an easy win of 9-1, the Ottawa rink conceding after seven ends. In the game two ends were blanked and Mr. White always was on top.

The second game will be played this afternoon and if a third is necessary it will be played this evening.

5.14 Per Cent of Population Now 70 Years Old or Over

Prospects Bright For Graduates To Find Jobs

Job - finding prospects are bright for most of the 20 graduates of the Program 5 building maintenance course, which ended last month at Quinte Secondary School, according to Cecil Hiuser, manager of the Belleville Employment Office.

"Our officer really appreciates the response given by local employers," Mr. Hiuser said.

The local office manager said that most of the graduates had secured jobs on their own; others had gone to employment offices at Trenton and Picton, while five building maintenance jobs were pending in the city.

Belleville's population is getting older.

By this we mean that the percentage of persons in the city who have reached 70 years and more has increased by about one-third since 1956.

According to data tabulated by the city assessment department in 1963 there were 1,574 persons in Belleville 70 years and older, or 5.14 per cent of the total population of 30,610.

Back in 1956 when the total population was 28,039, there were 1049 "senior" residents of 70 and over, the percentage being 3.74 of the total population of 28,039.

Conversely the percentage of total population in the 20-59 year-old group declined from 57.18 per cent in 1958 to just under 56 per cent last year.

CITY HAS GROWN

But the figures show the city as a whole has grown — population, assessment and acreage.

The original acreage of Belleville as a village way back in 1834 was 1,200 acres.

By 1959 with the latest annexation of suburban areas in Sidney and Thurlow the land acreage jumped to 5937 with water acreage of 1718, making a total of 7655 acres.

Total assessment in the city has also jumped particularly since World War 2. In the post-war years a house building program commenced and the boom is still continues. Assessment a year ago was about $32,000,000. And with re-assessment taking effect this year has now jumped to just under $100,000,000.

The assessment report shows there were 5685 single family dwellings in the city last year; 853 two family dwellings; 165 three family dwellings and 957 apartment units.

38 CHURCHES

Records also show there are 522 commercial buildings, 40 industria buildings and 880 business establishments.

Belleville is also a city of churches with 38 different churches listed.

There are 13 public schools—and more planned — three secondary schools, five separate schools including Nicholson College, and three "other" schools and colleges.

Unfortunately numbers and adherents are the strongest numerically in the city with 5317 persons in the city proffessing to this faith. There are 7,507 Anglicans, 4,427 Roman Catholics and 1,694 Presbyterians.

Non-denominational Protestants claimed another 2,314 persons. There are 794 Baptists, 108 Pentecostal, 201 Methodists, 225 Brethren, 291 Salvation Army, 228 Lutherans, 133 Christian Scientists.

VISITS ETHIOPIA

ADDIS ABABA (AP)—Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob Malik of the Soviet Union arrived in Ethiopia Wednesday "to make new friends." Ethiopia is unhappy because the Soviet Union agreed to send $30,000,000 in arms to neighboring Somalia. Somalia claims a slice of Ethiopia's frontier and the two nations fought several border skirmishes last month.

HI Y CLUBS' BROOMBALL

At noon hour yesterday in the girls' gym of BCIVS over 100 students witnessed the girls' Hi-Y club 3-0 in a game of broomball. The losers, the Anglicans, a short broom handle, a boy replaced by a girl for charging and last, but definitely stilled, did not slow them down much. The antics of some of the more timid girls may have been the cause of the game turning into a football match in the opening few minutes however as point the referee was carried off the floor destined for the showers.

The proceeds from this successful event will be forwarded to UNICEF.

Senior Citizens Entertain Trenton Club

The regular monthly meeting of the Senior Citizens' Club was held on Wednesday evening, in the Recreation rooms on Pinnacle Street, with the president, Mr. James Brennan, presiding. The meeting opened with "The Queen", followed by the theme song, and birthday greetings to all members who will be celebrating that event during the month of March.

The secretary, Mrs. Robinson, read the minutes of the previous meeting which were adopted as were also the treasurer's report and the reports of the sick and visiting committee, by Mrs. Scales.

The club members voted in favor of renewing membership in the United Senior Citizens Club of Ontario, believing it to be in the interests of the older people of the province.

The club was fortunate to have the honor and privilege to entertain twenty-five members of the Trenton club, who were welcomed by the president, and the immediate past president Charles L. Hyde, who also extended greetings and best wishes to the neighboring club members in their efforts.

Mrs. E. Panter, president of the Trenton club, made a very kindly reply and invited members of the Belleville club to a return visit to the Trenton club on the evening of Thursday, the date of which was very gratefully accepted.

PICTURES SHOWN

The main feature of the evening was a showing of pictures by Mrs. Jack Parrott, exhibiting beautiful scenes of Egypt, Jordan, Jordan, Syria, Greece and Spain, which she and her husband enjoyed taking during their tour of these interesting countries. Her gracious commentary was also much enjoyed which was indicated by the prolonged applause of the audience.

There were several draws made and winners were as follows: Mrs. Mrs. Bassett, draw on hand-knitted sweater, which was donated, was won by Mrs. Lyle Sweet, and a lovely chocolate cake was won by Mrs. E. Panter.

The refreshment committee, under direction of Mrs. Ford, served delicious refreshments, consisting of sandwiches of all and meeting adjourned with "God Be With You 'Til We Meet Again."

Jury Finds Mother of Seven Asphyxiated

KINGSTON (CP) — A coroner's jury ruled Wednesday that Nora Whitehead, 45-year-old mother of seven, was asphyxiated by having a paper bag placed over her head while she was unconscious.

The jury affixed no blame, but said Mrs. Whitehead's loss of consciousness was caused by alcohol and a drug.

There was no immediate indication as to how the bag, or police officials plan in the case.

Acting Crown Attorney E. V. Swain told the jury before it retired: "There was a homicide committed, but it is beyond any your range of duties of this particular occasion . . . you are not to determine guilt."

Mrs. Whitehead's body was found last Nov. 28 [illegible] Lake, a resort area 45 miles north west of Kingston. The body was encased in a plastic sheet and weighted with a 42-pound cement block.

Remnants of a paper bag were found inside the plastic.

Earlier, the jury was told that a woman whose husband had an affair with Mrs. Whitehead had said of her: "I'd like to kill her. I'd like to put a bag over her head."

Mrs. Bessie Bridges testified that the statement was made by Mrs. Kenneth Smallridge, whose husband, an office cleaning employee, had been involved with Mrs. Whitehead for two or three years.

Mrs. Smallridge denied at the inquest having threatened to kill Mrs. Whitehead.

James Brown Is President Of Radio Hams

TRENTON — At a recent meeting in Quinte Hall, Trenton was elected 1964 president of the General Radio Club of Canada for graduation. Vice - president is Harry Roulston of Belleville; secretary, Keith Munro, Asselsburg Township; treasurer, William Ironside, Belleville. Plans for the coming year were made at this meeting.

Robert Royce thanked the club for service rendered at the last Motor Rally which was held in the north section of the area. At the rally, radio communication was established at 15 check points along the 160-mile course. This enabled the rally control at Belleville to keep in touch with each checked in at a check point. Another rally is being planned for this summer and it is hoped to make this the largest such rally ever held in these parts.

Mr. Roulston, net control officer, announced that tests are alternated each Sunday evening; giving each member an opportunity of being the net control. Questionnaires will be mailed to each member, asking for suggestions which are changing the time of the exercise and how members would like to participate in the control.

Gordon Nourse, assistant net control officer, and Emergency co-ordinator for the Belleville set-up, outlined for the members the method and a recent EMO course he had taken at Toronto.

A suggestion was made from the floor that EMO co-ordinator Angus Duffy be asked about setting up a radio network in nuclear radiation fallout detection for the club members. Radio Communications has the largest body of men and the most equipment in eastern Ontario for work of this sort. Seventy-five per cent of the men in the club are monitoring 18 out of 24 hours each day. This makes the club the best and strongest unit in this area, with the exception of army units.

Peterborough and Oshawa have now set up a general radio club, thus giving the club a complete communications service across the province. C.R.S. has more than 200 licenced operators in the Tri-County division.

Town Engineer Gives Report On Convention

TRENTON — Town engineer Eric Aldersey reported to the town council last week on the City Engineers' Association meeting and on Ontario Good Roads Association convention which he attended on February 24, 25 and 26. The combined event was held in Toronto.

Mr. Aldersey took part in the panel discussion, relating to municipal engineering. The members attended a luncheon at which the Minister of Highways spoke briefly on road subsidies. While in Toronto he made a short statement on the province's financial policy before the assembly committee when he said the minister said that he hoped to enable municipalities' dollar to go further.

The afternoon session of the engineers' meeting was devoted to an illustrated commentary by Alex Rutka of the Materials and Research Section of the Department of Highways. Many points were noted and he will prove helpful in matters of good engineering design and purchasing procedure, Mr. Aldersey said in his report.

Mr. Aldersey attended a Goods Roads' session on urban street classification and another session on encroachments. It appears, he said Mr. Aldersey that encroachments are a problem in every municipality and it is an illustrated such matters are very obscure.

Beta Sigma Phi Stages First Fashion Show

TRENTON—The first of this season's spring fashion shows was held last night at the Masonic Temple on Dundas St. West in Trenton. Sponsors of the well-attended event were the members of the Beta Sigma Phi sorority and ticket proceeds are to go to Operation Recovery, the sheltered workshop for the handicapped at Smithfield.

The hall, set up with tea tables, was filled to capacity, and many were forced to stand throughout the show. Mrs. Erle Harrison was convener of the event.

Mrs. Donna O'Neil welcomed the guests and acted as commentator. The show itself started off with the proverbial bang as a bevy of bathing beauties held the spotlight. Following this were the latest in sports' wear, afternoon frocks, evening gowns and a modishly-dressed bridal party.

Background music was provided by Will Long on the Hammond organ.

Lions Club Will Stage Hockey Tourney

TRENTON — The Trenton Lions Club third annual Midget Hockey Tournament will be held in the Trenton Memorial Gardens, March 30 and 31, and April 1, with 160 players from 20 points in Ontario taking part.

Thirty-five games in all will be played. As the Lions expect several thousand people to attend the three-day event, a souvenir program is being prepared and local merchants and groups are being asked to buy advertising in the program. Trenton will be the first city this week to buy half a page of advertising for the town at $25.

WELL RECEIVED

And we thought the social news items dripping to the bygone past. A Trenton resident reports that she and her spouse had barely moved into their new home in east Trenton, and a new neighbor lady arrived at the door with a welcoming smile and a pan of home-baked buns in her hand.

"Welcome to the neighborhood," the benevolent lady is reported to have said, "I know what it's like to move."

WOMEN HONORED

Two Trenton women, Mrs. Doris Wesh and Mrs. Violet Kennedy, president and vice-president of the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club, were singled out for special introductions at last weekend's International B. and P. Night in Windsor, from among the 700 delegates to the event from Ontario and the U.S.A. Delegates spent the weekend at the Prince Edward Hotel, where the various dinners and luncheons were held. Guest speaker at Saturday night's banquet was Miss Virginia Allan, national president of B & P Clubs in the United States.

The first general purpose synthetic rubber to be manufactured on a commercial scale in the United Kingdom was marketed in 1938.

Workman, Severely Burned At Tweed Veneer Plant, Died Of Heart Attack Jury Told TWEED (Staff) — The day Joseph Langevin was fatally burned in a hot-water tank at a veneer plant here, his boss had decided to take him off the job.

And, Eugene Fobes, general manager of Lakewood Forest Products, told a coroner's jury last night he also had a premonition of such a fatal accident at his plant.

Mr. Langevin died January 21st as a Toronto surgeon attempted the first skin graft on his severely burned body. Just 40 days earlier the 58-year-old Langevin was totally immersed in a wood-softening tank containing 170-degree water.

The jury's verdict to coroner Dr. John Stock attributed death to a heart attack directly caused by burns suffered in the accident.

It also recommended that the company replace its present open-tank hot water process for softening logs with steam chambers. Work around the present tank system should also cease when bad weather hinders visibility. The tanks are outside the plant shops and it was unsafe heavily the day of Langevin's accident.)

SECOND VICTIM

Mr. Langevin was the second victim of a number of accidents involving the tanks since 1956. In all there are eight tanks crossed by a catwalk, at the plant.

Mr. Fobes, describing Mr. Langevin as a "very responsible employee" but one who was "getting on in years" said he had decided to transfer him to another part of the plant when he learned of the accident.

"I had just written down on the top of my (office memo) pad to take Joe off those tanks because he was not as agile as he might me," he told the inquest.

Almost immediately after, he was informed of the fatal mishap.

Mr. Fobes also intimated that for days preceding the incident he had been unsatisfactory to just such an incident.

"I dreamt about two weeks before that an accident like that had happened," he told the jury. "Several times after that I had premonitions."

(Mr. Fobes also reminded the inquest his company took over the plant last August. To that time it was operated by Hunter Veneer.)

OPERATION CRITICIZED

The inquest also heard fortified criticism of the open-tank operation from a safety official.

Called earlier in the inquest than Mr. Fobes was Gordon Reeves, district officer of the Forest Products Accident Prevention Association, and its provincial manager, Ernest H. Reeves.

Mr. Reddy recalled regular visits to the plant in recent years and Mr. Reeves also produced a table of accidents involving the open-tank process.

In 1956 there was a similar fatal accident; 1959 and 1960 scaldings; 1960, one scalding; there were two in 1961; one in 1962, and two more (including the Langevin fatality) in 1963.

Mr. Reddy said he made several inspection trips to the plant starting in November 1962 and recommended certain safety measures involving hot water tanks.

After the Langevin incident he made his last trip to the plant in January of this year.

"And where the tanks is essentially the same condition as they were in November 1962?"

asked Crown Attorney John Pringle.

"That's right. Exactly the same."

There are eight tanks involved in the softening process, the inquest learned. All are set at ground level and up to seven feet deep.

Mr. Reddy said on his 1963 visit he pointed out to the then proprietor, Robert Hunter, the need for "proper guarding" about the tanks. Mr. Hunter assured him that plans already were being drafted to replace the tanks with steam cabinets.

GOT ASSURANCE

He said he received the same assurance after a scalding accident at the plant in January 1963.

In May the same year he noted that cement foundations for the cabinet had been installed. However, in July he was told by plant superintendent, Richard White, that the steam cabinets would not be operative "for at least a year."

"In view of that I recommended that the walls of the tanks be extended above a three-foot level," said Mr. Reddy.

In November, on another trip to the plant, he said he again queried Mr. White on installation of the cabinets. "I could not get a definite answer and was asked not the walls of the tanks had not been extended as I suggested."

Mr. Reddy affirmed the inspections made by association officials to the plant.

"In the last five years we have made about 24 visits to the Hunter Veneer operations," he told Mr. Pringle.

On "almost all of these visits" officials have made "definite recommendations for improvement of safety facilities at these hot water tanks." Some still are.

Among these suggestions were:

Additional tanks into which hot water could be emptied while workers were unloading in emergencies.

A hydraulic loader for logs, and, a steel rod running the length of the tanks to which safety harnesses could be attached. ("We were not enthusiastic about it, we don't like the idea of men being attached to their job.")

William Hall, Ontario Department of Labor, supervising engineer, said department officials were instrumental in having a catwalk and safety railing installed on the tank operation "several years ago."

Answering to the company were that the guardrail be placed around a tank when it is being filled with logs and that workers use the catwalk for unloading purposes.

Mr. Hall said the latter is to do away with these pits altogether and put in the steam chests," as in the western plywood mill (the company) can afford to do, but we don't know."

Steam chests are the most emphasized as the solution by Mr. Fobes.

When called to testify Mr. Fobes identified himself as a chemical technologist with experience ranging through Africa and Indonesia.

He agreed with the suggestions raised by Mr. Reddy and Mr. Reeves, for making the tank operation safer.

A three-foot wall he believed was ineffective and impractical, "as the logs could float while costly is "not exactly the worst thing but it is a solution," he admitted.

ASKED TO USE CATWALK

To close down the tanks immediately while awaiting installation of steam cabinets would mean laying off half the mill, he claimed.

Mr. Fobes said it had been impressed on workers that they must use the catwalk but no workers had ever been penalized for disobeying the order.

"It doesn't always fine them, I don't think that would benefit from pay. I don't think that's legal."

Pressed by Dr. Stock on how long it would be before the steam-chamber process would begin, the general manager said the contractor had been much later starting than was anticipated.

The chests would be installed "as fast as we can be used since it — just as fast as we can build it. Because it is more efficient."

Queried by the coroner on the number of scalding accidents at the plant Mr. Fobes replied "this is a common thing around all the veneer mills I have ever been in."

He said the possibilities of such incidents were always present in the minds of operators and he himself had repeatedly cautioned his men personally.

The morning of the Langevin tragedy Mr. Fobes said he had noted the severe weather and made the rounds of the tanks warning all he "encountered to be extremely careful."

Under-foreman, John McNeil, said Langevin had slipped near the tanks earlier that morning and he had warned him to keep away from the pits. When the man fell into the tank he could not at first "for steam."

NOT MANY CHANGES

Mr. McGrath, an employee of 15 years standing, said he was at the plant in 1956 when the first fatality occurred.

"What changes if any have been made since 1956 to protect the employees?" asked Mr. Pringle.

"As far as a guard around the hold — that is about the same", replied Mr. McGrath.

Tweed physician Dr. R. S. Berry estimated Mr Langevin had sustained burns to 65 per-cent of his body. On January 17 the man was transferred from Belleville General Hospital to Toronto where the grafting it was under the first operation that he suffered a cardiac arrest, Dr. Berry revealed.

Toronto pathologist Dr. F. Jaffe also testified. Langevin showed Mr. Langevin had suffered at least one previous heart attack — "I cannot date it exactly in months or years". The official cause of death was coronary thrombosis.

The inquest produced one outwardly embarrassed witness. He was W. H. Hopper, executive member of the Workmen's Compensation Board, present at the inquest proceedings. Mr. Hopper was called when the jury began wondering aloud if any other official reports had been listed reasons for the accident.

Obviously discomfited, Mr. Hopper opened a report file and noted that Mr. Langevin had slipped and fallen backward into the tank while removing the cover from a neighboring tank.

Then, giving the reason for his reluctance, he told the jury all files between the board and companies were privileged.

"I am not trying to deny what you are getting at", he added hastily, "But I would rather not be placed in this position. I am not trying to hide anything".

Arrangements Under Way For Presentation of Color

No Common Ground In Dispute

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — No common ground has been found between Ontario-tobacco growers and buyers in a dispute about price fluctuation, it was reported Wednesday at the end of nine hours of meetings.

The negotiations left the situation up in the air with no plans for further discussions between the two groups.

The representatives of eight buying companies left the afternoon meeting after an hour and told reporters that the whole issue is a matter for the growers to decide.

Later, chairman George Demeyere of the Ontario Flue-Cured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board said the discussions could "find no common ground to agree to either of wild fluctuations and steadily decreasing prices being paid."

The growers' stand is beyond their control," he said of the buying group, "but they gave us no reason nor reply to say if they had enough to buy."

HOPE FOR MEETING

Mr. Demeyere said the growers hope to have another meeting with federal Agriculture Minister Harry Hays — perhaps Thursday—and then en route back home will meet with Ontario Agriculture Minister William Dunlop.

The delegation came to Ottawa after Ontario auctions opened with bids that buyers were offering ridiculously low prices erratically.

"I am not at all satisfied that fluctuations in price could not be stopped by the buyers," said Mr. Demeyere.

"It seems strange that up to Christmas, when a good portion of the crop was sold, these fluctuations were at a minimum and that the situation since has deteriorated to such an extent.

"I don't feel there is any justifiable or fair reason given in the past that grading is a factor. This seems to be the familiar story of buying now common practice.

"Grading hasn't deteriorated that much," he continued.

TIME RUNNING OUT

He said growers are very disturbed because time is growing short and they have made plans they will not put up with the kind of buying now complained about.

The growers have sold about 117,000,000 pounds of the last crop and still have about 63,000,000 pounds to sell.

For the first time, the federal agricultural prices stabilization board set a price support of 47 cents a pounder under the 1963 crop.

But the average price so far has been higher than that—about 51 cents a pound—and the growers would have to sell in the 20-cents range or a bit higher for all the crop to qualify for support prices.

This would be based on the average price obtained per pound and the difference between that market price and the support price is the market average proved to be lower.

It would apply to a majority of the crop grades although not all of them.

"This watch isn't shockproof! My husband fainted when he heard the price."

Further groundwork for the presentation of the new regimental color of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment scheduled for mid-June was laid at a meeting of the activities committee last night.

Lieut.-Colonel Howard D. Graham, DSO, CBE, wartime commanding officer now president of the regiment's Old Boys' Association, chaired the meeting attended by officers past and present.

Mayor Jack Ellis and ex-mayor A. McLean Haig were also present.

The mayor will present the freedom of the city to the regiment in conjunction with the presentation of the color ceremonies.

"Freedom of the city" gives the regiment the right to wear side-arms and carry rifles with fixed bayonets while parading through city streets with drums beating.

The regiment will take advantage of the privilege directly following the Fair Grounds presentations ceremonies when it will march through the city en route to the armories from the rituals.

The mayor said the freedom of the city will be presented in the form of an engraved scroll.

All-out public relations efforts will be made through the media of press, radio and television.

WILL SERIALIZE HISTORY

The history of the regiment will be researched and sent to district daily and weekly newspapers. Special radio programs will be put on by the regiment to have representatives of the regiment appear on television.

No word has been received as to whether His Excellency Governor General Georges Vanier would be here to present the color.

In the event of the impossibility of the Governor-General to officiate a substitute would be will appoint a substitute. This, it was stated, would likely be Lieutenant Governor Earl Rowe of Ontario.

The regiment's corps of colors, standard and escort will see service at the Fair Grounds ceremonies, guides, etc.

While the regimental fund is bearing some of the expense of the ceremonies, the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward, the city of Belleville and the town of Trenton will be asked to help.

Lieut.-Colonel Angus Duffy was appointed to present the regiment's case to the governing bodies of the municipalities.

Special guests lists will be finalized within the next week or so.

Arrangements are well under way for the receptions to be held in the various messes.

Driver Fined For Failure To 'Stop'

Magistrate R. C. Jackson made caustic comment this morning about motorists failing to obey signs, in court here in Madoc County Road junction of old Highway 14.

"Where intersection, opened late last year, already has been the scene of a fatal accident.

"Where's the urgency in regard to that death trap out there," the magistrate asked Crown Attorney Ross Donnelly when a driver was charged with going through the sign. "Everytime I pass and I've been commonly coming through it. Apparently they don't just believe in that sign," he added, magistrate noting there could be more traffic deaths at the spot.

He fined the errant motorist $15 and $3.50 costs.

Motorists on the county road have the right-of-way at the intersection. A coroner's jury inquiring into the fatal accident recently recommended a stop light be installed at the junction.

200 Delegates Will Attend Liberal Meet

Up to 200 delegates from across Central and Eastern Ontario are expected to attend the regional Ontario Liberal Association convention here Saturday.

The estimate was made today by local organizers now putting finishing touches on the event and affirming last minute bookings.

The area bounded by the association's south-central region extends from Kingston to Oshawa and north to Peterborough.

Plans call for a full day of party politics — and include at least two prominent speakers, besides a roster of parliamentary representatives.

Keynote speaker at the afternoon sessions will be Robert Nixon M.L.A. president of the Ontario Liberal Association, and son of the late Harry Nixon.

At night, the meeting will hear from Defence Minister Paul Hellyer.

Special panel discussions also are planned as a feature of the afternoon program. Expected among those taking part are Andrew Thompson, M.L.A. Dovercourt, and members of Parliament Lorne Greene, (Hastings South); Pauline Jewett (Northumberland), Russell Honey (Durham) and Edgar J. Benson (Kingston).

Currently attending a Senior NCO qualifying course at the Royal Canadian School of Military Engineering at Camp Chilliwack, B.C., is Cpl. Arthur Cook, formerly of Belleville.

Charge Quebec Plumbing Group Formed Combine

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's anti - combines commission today named 18 manufacturers and wholesalers of plumbing and heating supplies who, they said, conspired illegally to fix prices and restrict competition in Montreal and other parts of Quebec.

The report by the three-man restrictive trade practices commission, made public by Justice Minister Favreau, called for court action to prevent resumption of "collusive activities." It did not recommend prosecution of the companies.

The commission found that 16 firms, members of the Quebec Plumbing and Heating Council, were parties to an agreement which used discount lists, boycott and other pressures to achieve its aims. The other members were mainly building contractors.

The report for Toronto Reacondale said in the legislature the inquiry would ask:

—How a party unpaid bills were carried over to reduce the total expenditure for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1963.

—How much was spent in the past 5 years by Conservative governments for travelling expenses?

—How many millions of dollars were paid and will be paid by the government in United States exchange due to loan repayment and interest on loans made in the United States?

—How much does Ontario's sinking fund really amount to and how much is in uninvested funds and where are they?

—Should more than $30,000,000 owned by the Ontario Northland Railway be written off as a public loss? Why is the railway operating at a loss and should more money be put into the project without a study of its operating costs?

—Does the government still favor U.S. treasury bills in safe-keeping in New York or any other city and how much do they amount to?

Not Really Dangerous

"It seems hardly possible that any country could prosper if it operated on the principle that people could obtain a higher income by going on pension than by continuing work," says the Fort William Times-Journal.

Yet, it says, this is precisely what will happen for some people if the proposed federal pension plan becomes effective without revision.

It cites the case of a federal civil servant, earning $4,500 a year who, it says, would qualify at 65 for a pension up to 70 per cent of his earnings, or $262.50 a month. The Canada pension plan would provide him with an additional $126 a month, giving him a total of $388.50 a month or $4,662 a year. He would be $162 a year in pocket by retiring.

The Fort William Times-Journal then endeavors to move from the particular to the general, saying that "it must be assumed that at least some workers in business and industry would be in the same position."

Some, maybe, but very few.

What the Times-Journal evidently wants is some revision of the Canada pension plan which would prevent this sort of thing.

But what possible revision can be suggested, with justice to all and without making the plan completely ineffective?

One cannot reduce a civil servant's pension. These jobs are notoriously low-pay, with security being the compensation for this fact. The pension promised civil servants throughout all their working years has been just as much a part of their pay as their salary. To reduce the pension now would be to cheat them.

One cannot reduce the Canada pension because of the civil service pension without also reducing the Canada pension for others who are in equally happy financial circumstances by reason of savings in other forms. Do we really want to get into the messy business of a means test? This really puts a penalty on thrift.

If we pause for a moment, we shall probably conclude such a test unnecessary. The number of people who will receive more in pensions when they retire than they have been receiving in pay while working is so small that it will have little practical effect. If it is desired, it is quite in order to reduce civil service pensions earned in future so that those with pensions larger than salaries will eventually be eliminated —but if this were done it would almost certainly be necessary to increase civil service wage standards to compensate for the reduction in "security."

To any event, the civil servants—and those handful of people in business and industry with comparable pensions—will not be the first people to have more to spend in retirement than while working. This happy result has been achieved in the past by those who have been thrifty enough—or fortunate enough—to acquire a small "nest-egg" for their old age. The only difference has been in the nature of the nest-egg. For pensioners it is doled out, year by year, but a pensioner is "living off his capital" just as surely as the man who retires and then starts spending his life's savings. The similarity is self-evident if these savings are used to purchase an annuity, as they can be. Similarly, an annuity has a cash value, although it may not always be possible to turn it into cash under some pension plans.

Our economy is not going to be ruined by the fact that some few, having lived frugally most of their lives, are now going to be able to enjoy a few luxuries.

Let us not, in the name of sound economics, be so envious of those who have earned their good fortune.

Why Not Follow?

Critics of the Johnson Administration's taxcutting program note that a substantial slice of the personal income tax savings go to upper income bracket citizens who can be expected to save, rather than spend the windfall they will receive.

Government economic experts concede this point. But they hasten to add that it's these very savings that are used to finance the expansion of business and industry. Moreover, with anticipated expansion of borrowing for consumer purchases, they are confident that a full 90 percent of the tax cut will actually be spent by consumers, in one way or another.

This, of course, will provide a very powerful stimulant for the entire U.S. economy.

Here in Canada, Finance Minister Gordon, instead of forecasting the inevitability of higher government spending, might be better advised to study ways and means by which this country could follow the excellent U.S. example.

M.P.'s Big Change in Pay Fails to Alter Absenteeism

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — On the afternoon of last July 29, at page 3736 of Hansard, in reporting the abbreviated debate on amendments to the Senate and House of Commons Act, incorporated in Bill C-61, raising Parliamentarians' pay by $5,000 to $10,000 plus open-ended expenses, Prime Minister Pearson is quoted;

> Members of the House of Commons, to all intents and purposes now have a full-time occupation . . ."

Four days later, after passing the bill by a 200 to 10 vote, they recessed.

On September 30, they returned to their "full-time occupation."

And so how did they do?

On the first two divisions of that freshman session, when newly-rich MPs could be expected to be present sharp in their keenness to earn that $18,000 plus freshly stepped-up pension and other associated fringe benefits, 142 of them didn't bother to vote.

Those were the two divisions of the Commons on the Old Age Pensions increase. The bill had been delayed until after they had enjoyed their two-month summer holiday.

HOW NOW:

The first of those two September divisions opening the pre-Christmas session was to backdate the Old Age Pension increase to April 8, the day, coincidentally, after the Parliamentary pay boost.

But only 201 of the 265 MPs voted. The other and missing 64 were absent, ducked, paired in a vote trade, or just didn't care enough to be in the House.

On the second division — to pay the pension at the rate of $70 — only 196 voted. So that time, 79 weren't there, in what the prime minister has called "the crease of old age pensioners" that was but a negligible fraction of the increase they had voted for themselves.

Well, that was the start of the pre-Christmas Session.

Since the well-paid MPs have been home again, and presumably hearing from the taxpayers about the pre-Christmas action they might be expected to pay to the public business in recognition of their new gilt-edged pay package which, with its tax-free features, is worth a cool $24,000 rather than the modest $18,000.

And now they are back at work in the post-Christmas and pre-Easter Session.

And how are they doing?

Better.

But not much.

In fact, you have to look hard to notice the slight improvement.

THE ARITHMETIC:

In the first two divisions of the new Session — and the first Session there were still 123 who felt the same way and didn't take the trouble to be on the job.

In the last Session in the first vote, 98 were absent — in this Session, 44 were away.

And on the second vote the comparison was: last Session 79 absent, this Session, 79.

On the statistics, the evidence is clear — after a 30-MP improvement on the absentee rate in the first vote, the House was back at the same old attendance stand in the second, with precisely the same number of Honorable Members making Parliament something less than the "full-time occupation" the prime minister has claimed it is.

Deputy NDP Leader Douglas Fisher, who perhaps comes as close as any non-Cabinet MP to making the Commons a full-time job — even although he "moonlights" regularly as a political columnist in a dozen mass circulation papers across the country — is worried about the "image" of Parliament.

"This Parliament," he has written, "is in effect, purely a barrage of criticism, fostered mostly by the men who report Parliament . . . in effect, party leaders' remarks . . . reflect the shaken confidence and reflex action of politicians in this criticism. . . ."

Shaken, perhaps, but not enough to stay on their supposed "full-time" job . . . not all of them, at any rate.

More Lawyers, More Crime?

Stratford Beacon-Herald

A useful rule of thumb for rating a country on its respect for law, is offered by Seymour Martin Lipset, a sociologist in a new book, "The First New Nation."

You can tell whether the people of any given country have respect for law and order, says Mr. Lipset, by counting its lawyers. If there seem to be too many of lawyers, the country must be a nation of scoffers and rulebreakers, and there would be need a lot of lawyers! If the number of lawyers seems to be scant, it is likely that the people are so well-behaved they don't need lawyers.

This is not the theme of Mr. Lipset's book; it is only a thought in passing, so far as he is concerned, but it is a serious scholarly study of the differences between the United States and English-speaking Canada. Mr. Lipset, we note, thinks that the differences are real and deep, and that Canadians are quite different from Americans.

Lawyer-counting comes into the book as one device for showing the differences. Mr. Lipset, who has lived in both Canada and a student, in both Canada and the United States, holds that intensely individualistic "Liberalism" than Canadians, and that individual Americans show their individualism by their growing defiance of law and authority. People who defy the law more, have more need of lawyers, and hence the supply of lawyers extends to expand to fill the need.

The United States, it seems, leads the world in lawyer supply; it has a lawyer for every 868 people. Canada has one lawyer for every 1,630 people. Australia, by the law reform system, are more respectful of the law than Americans, but less respectful than Canadians; and there is one lawyer for every 1,210 Australians. Great Britain makes a still better showing, any of the three before mentioned; the British get along with one lawyer for every 2,222 people.

Finds Profit In a Name

Dallas Times Herald

What's in a name? Well, a car salesman by any other does pretty well for himself, says Londoner Alanson Robertson.

Adam, as enterprising as some of his United States' counterparts, went to court and changed his Christian name to Lord to protect against the hereditary titles of privileged society.

What happened? Lord Robertson found everyone from policemen to headwaiters treating him with deference and respect that Adam Robertson seldom got. His conclusion: the English still love nobility.

Provincial Debt

Peterborough Examiner

It would require 16 months' revenue to pay off our provincial debts of $1,000,000,000. This is a healthier situation than in 1940 when it would have taken 42 months' revenue to discharge our obligations, and we can thank the post-war boom for rescuing us from that dismal position. But this is a boom period Joe, and we should take advantage of this fact to reduce our debts instead of adding to them.

To Your Good Health
Tracheotomy Is Sometimes Required by Croup Patient

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

We may not hear as much about croup as formerly, but it hasn't by any means disappeared. Quite often I get letters, and some other names these days, about "croupy" laryngitis in a child. The entrance to the larynx becomes red and swollen, along with the vocal cords themselves. The swelling partially obstructs the larynx, which is quite small.

That is why the little one has to struggle for breath with the characteristic "croupy" cough and wheezing.

That is also why a child usually outgrows croup by the age of three or four, although in rare instances it may persist later.

But it is an unnerving ailment difficult for the child and distressing for parents trying to help him.

A letter from one reader inquires, "Is it true that many children with croup are rushed to the hospital for an operation?"

Not many, but sometimes, in desperate cases, when the child can't get enough breath, a tracheotomy (make a hole in the windpipe) is necessary.

Some children have repeated "colds" others never have it. The reason for this is not clear.

The cause of croup, when it does attack a child, is infection — a cold, flu virus, streptococcus infection, or diphtheria, but that, of course, is not as common as it once was.

Again for reasons unknown, a child may not have noticeably ill during the day but break into a gagging cough in the early hours in the middle of the night. Drainage in the throat is one likely suspicion. Anyway, when the infection is of a virus type, the croup may appear very suddenly.

First choice in treatment is fresh, cool steam, perhaps with a bit of benzois added to the water. Cold packs on the neck are an old-time remedy which I have seen used successfully. Poultices on the chest can help.

Ipecac, to induce vomiting, is another old remedy. The doctor should be consulted before this dose. Too much can be dangerous.

Antibiotics or sulfa are in order to treat the underlying cause. These will attack some germs, if viruses are involved, the drugs won't affect them but will suppress secondary bacterial infections.

Remember that attacks similar to croup can occur because a child has swallowed a bead, button, small toy or any object that can get caught in the larynx.

Dear Dr. Molner: If someone suffers a heart attack can a person at the scene administer external heart massage and expect it to do any good? — J. S.

Anyone not trained in the right way would doubtless do more harm than good. A person with adequate training would be able to know when to use it and when not to. It is essential first to know whether you are dealing with a heart attack. A recent report disclosed that what were thought to be heart attacks were actually cases of choking on improperly chewed food.

Dear Dr. Molner: About a month ago I had a stroke. As a result my right hand is numb and my speech has been affected. Can this cause a heart attack or can I ever be happy again? — J. H.

A stroke does not cause heart attack. Yes, it can happen again but doesn't necessarily do so. Many stroke victims don't get better. However, if some ability remains, or appears in a short time after a stroke, this tends to get better although it is a slow process and requires that you keep using your muscles to strengthen them.

Acne is one of the most terrible problems of growing up. If you are afflicted with this aggravation, or if you have children who are, write to Dr. Molner in care of The Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 188, Dundee, Ill. for a copy of his helpful and encouraging booklet Acne — The Teen-Age Problem. Please enclose a long, self-addressed, unstamped envelope and 25 cents in coin to cover cost of printing and handling.

Strictly Personal
The Strong Often Need More Advice

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: We seek advice when we feel weak, rather than when we feel strong; and the insolence of strength is often much more in need of counselling than the fluttierings of weakness.

Those censorious persons who are so convinced that current literature is corrupting morality seem never to have considered the much more plausible possibility that current morality is corrupting literature; for it is one of the characteristics of a narrow and rigid mind that it mistakes a symptom for a cause.

A teacher (especially, at the higher levels) is presumably hired for teaching, but rewarded for "research," no matter how pompous or niggling it may be as regards human interest. At Columbia University it is reported that "Teaching continues to be regarded by the professions such as commencement; in reality, it is considered (by professors) a fool's way of mismanaging a career."

When facts are not appreciated, it is inwardly despised; and those who have a pattern of unmitigated love are secretly waiting for contempt to confirm their own low view of themselves.

One of the most tiresome expressions overworked today — and by a peculiar type of woman — is the use of "fun" as an adjective; as in, "We had a fun time at the fun party." Give it a fun rest, would you, please?

Listening to a malicious rumor about someone recently, I was struck by the fact that the caustic remark: "Slander is like a counterfeit money: many people who would not like to pick it circulate it without qualms."

As more and more nations join the United Nations, I shall gradually awaken to the absolute and imperative necessity of learning Russian, chiefly because all its words are as well as its use — but, as is habitual in human history, it's the beginning of wisdom that has come after the fact than before it.

Those super-scientists who erroneously believe that all human emotions can be reduced to a matter of chemistry and physical reactions still are unable to explain why a person cannot tickle himself and laugh.

Children know everything that is going on between grown-ups, even when they seem most oblivious; it is a grievous and absolutely needless mistake for parents to assume that what is not expressed is not felt — and this is precisely what is felt the most intensely.

The spirit and temper of a big city is more revealed in its taxicab drivers: the worse their attitude and the more negligent their attitude, the less honesty and decency one will find in the city.

Jury Fails To Reach Verdict In Murder Case

ST. THOMAS (CP)—After deliberating for more than eight hours, a jury failed to reach a verdict here early today in the non-capital murder trial of Kenneth Edward Witherow, charged with the Nov. 3 death of 63-year-old Frank Welch in an apartment house fire at West Lorne, some 25 miles west of here.

The jury, which went out to consider its verdict shortly before 4 p.m. Wednesday, returned at 12:40 a.m. and said it could not reach a verdict.

Jury Foreman John Millman said the panel could reach a verdict "if we had more time."

"It's been a long time," commented Mr. Justice J. M. King, before whom the eight-day trial was heard, and indicated a new trial may be held before a special session of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Witherow was charged with non-capital murder after Welch died in his West Lorne apartment in one of three fires that hit the village in 24 hours last Nov. 2 and 3.

The jury originally retired at 3:35 p.m. Wednesday and returned at 8:30 with a request to rehear the testimony of two witnesses. They read the court transcript of the evidence by the two witnesses and also asked for an explanation of manslaughter.

They again retired at 10:50 and finally emerged at the summoning of Mr. Justice King at 12:20 a.m. saying they were unable to reach a verdict.

Brighter Employment Trend Seen Due to Open Winter

A comparatively open winter with construction remaining active has resulted in a brighter employment trend throughout February as compared to the same time last year, according to Cecil Hiuser, national employment office manager.

Job seekers at the end of February totalled 2,290 of which 1,721 were male, as compared with 2,512 at the end of February last year.

This is a decrease of 232 or about 9.2 per cent, and is a continuation of a trend, which started in January.

During February there were 319 job placements as compared with 266 a year ago. During January 181 there have been 115 more persons placed in jobs than was the case a year ago. Most of the placements were for continuing jobs.

At the same time jobless benefit recipients at 2,069 were down about 300 or 12 per cent from last year.

DEMAND BETTER

Because of the comparatively open winter many construction jobs continued and carpenters, bricklayers and painters have been in much better demand this year.

But apart from this there has also been a stronger demand for office clerks and sales help.

Mr. Hiuser said there were openings for pressers, sewing machine operators, lathe workers, a baker and for an auto painter, along with a continuing demand for maids and housekeepers.

RECRUITING HELP

The Dupont textile plant at Kingston will be recruiting here for help in Belleville next week and will be holding interviews with the employment office from March 10-12.

Applicants should be between 18 and 35 and have grade 10 education or better. Persons interested should contact the local employment office prior to the interview period.

And there is a future in banking, it seems.

Mr. Hiuser said there are openings for young men as bank clerks. Applicants should have grade 12 or better and be prepared to take transfers when they come along.

Armed Forces Annoyed by Shaky Support

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The armed forces are annoyed by what they consider a shaky support from Defence Minister Hellyer in the Commons over removal of small arms with militia units.

Mr. Hellyer already has signified that he isn't very happy about the way the forces carried out his order to remove the small arms to prevent them falling into the hands of the Quebec liberation army.

The minister said Feb. 26 that his order wasn't applied uniformly and he said Tuesday military authorities at some places took independent action.

He added that he has been giving some thought to integration of the forces as a means of obtaining uniform procedures for carrying out orders.

All of these remarks, plus the minister's apology to Ashbury College for Boys here for the midnight withdrawal of cadet corps rifles from the school, have left the services in a state of pique.

The order for removal of arms in "sensitive areas"—mainly Quebec and adjoining regions of Ontario and New Brunswick—was drafted in the office of Air Chief Marshal Frank Miller, chairman of the chiefs of staff committee.

Informed sources here were left to the discretion of area commanders across Canada. This was because conditions of security varied throughout the country.

Officers said the removal of arms from Ashbury was properly carried out. They added that there is annoyance in the services because Mr. Hellyer for a week did not challenge the opposition's use of words "search" and "raid" as synonyms for removal.

Asked why the navy picked up rifles from a high school at Windsor, Ont., hometown of External Affairs Minister Martin, No. 2 man in the cabinet, an officer replied: "If the defence department wanted the order applied politically instead of militarily, we should have been told."

Residential Assessment In City 60.9 P. C. of Total

Residential assessment in the city of Belleville makes up 60.9 per cent of the total it is shown in the annual report of Assessment Commissioner Leighton G. Thompson.

The report included in the annual report of city manager J. R. Reynolds submitted to city council this week, shows total taxable assessment of $39,853,440, of which $60,971,520 is residential; $27,971,390 commercial, and $11,215,350 manufacturing. Commercial assessment makes up 27.89 per cent of the total, manufacturing 11.25 per cent, "other" 43 per cent, and farm, .08 per cent.

100 MILLION FOR SCHOOLS

Of the total $87,473,410 is assessed for public school purposes, while separate school assessment amounts to $12,400,030.

The above totals are those arrived at as result of the city re-assessment completed last year and to be used for 1964 taxation purposes.

In addition to the above "taxable" assessment there is $21,250,270 worth of tax-exempt property in the city, making a total of $121,903,710.

SOME GRANTS RECEIVED

Grants in lieu of taxes are received by the city on certain exempt properties. These include property utility companies, and properties owned by the Ontario and Federal governments and the Hydro Electric Power Commission. These properties are assessed at $4,737,720.

Other tax exempt properties show churches, charitable institutions, schools and exhibition grounds assessed at $12,052,290, and certain other properties assessed at $5,160,250, completely exempt from taxes.

Prime Minister Gives Answer On Broadcasts

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson said in the Commons Wednesday he is opposed to parliamentary censorship of broadcasts.

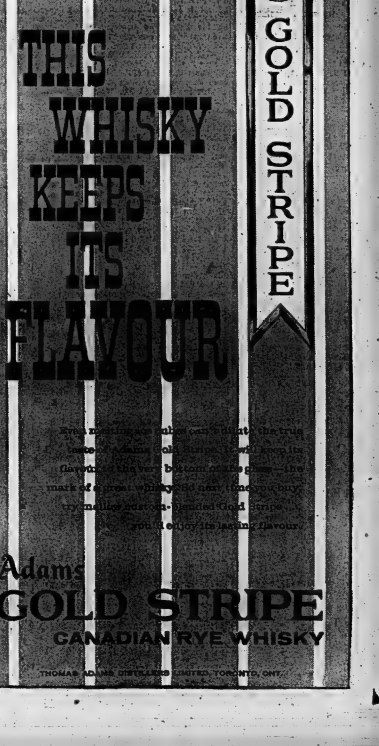
Broadcasts that break the law can be dealt with under existing law, he added.

Mr. Pearson was replying to Robert Prittie (NDP — Burnaby-Richmond) after a flurry of questions about a broadcast Tuesday in the CBC television network series Viewpoint.

Nicholas Mandziuk (PC—Marquette) said the broadcast was made by a former member of Mr. Pearson's staff who said many Canadians were opposed to the Queen's planned visit to Quebec in October.

Mr. Mandziuk described it as "unwarranted, outrageous and and disloyal." He identified the speaker as Yvon Turcot.

(A spokesman for the prime minister said outside the House that Mr. Turcot had never worked on Mr. Pearson's staff.)



Mr. Pearson said he could not accept Mr. Mandziuk's description because he had not seen the broadcast, but would bring the Manitoba MP's remarks to the attention of the CBC.

Mr. Mandziuk then asked if the government would introduce legislation "to prevent a recurrence of such outrageous broadcasts." Mr. Pearson said he could not reply without having the matter looked into.

Mr. Prittie then asked for an assurance the government would not introduce parliamentary censorship of broadcasting.

"I don't believe in that kind of thing," Mr. Pearson said. "When broadcasts break the law they can be dealt with under the law as it stands."

Three Legislatures Talk About Education Problems

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ask Facts

bley had been instructed to seek new information about the peace force and determine whether the force will meet five conditions set down Feb. 19 by Prime Minister Pearson for Canadian participation.

Once that information had been secured, the Canadian government would decide whether to participate.

PROMISES SUBMISSION

Mr. Pearson has promised that any government decision to send troops to Cyprus would be submitted to Parliament for approval. This course was followed when Canada joined similar peace forces in Egypt in 1956 and in the Congo in 1960.

U Thant met at UN headquarters with Mr. Tremblay and representatives of four other countries — Sweden, Finland, Ireland and Brazil — to request troop contributions.

Britain will also be asked to take part in the UN force.

The five conditions for Canadian participate listed by Mr. Pearson last month were as follows:

"First, we would have to be satisfied that the composition and terms of reference of the force were such as to contribute to peace and stability in the area.

"Second, we would not wish the commitment of the force to be of indefinite duration.

WANTS TIME LIMIT

"In addition, we would wish to ensure that the choice of a mediator and the terms of reference would be such as to lead to the expectation that a solution to the dispute in Cyprus might be found within a reasonable time.

"Third, the arrangements would, of course, have to be acceptable to the government of Cyprus in accordance with constitutional procedure.

"Fourth, there should be an association of the force with the United Nations.

"Finally, if a request is made involving the use of substantial numbers of Canadians abroad, we would bring the matter before Parliament before any final decision is taken."

At least some of these conditions have been met in the resolution approved unanimously by the UN Political Committee.

The 1st Battalion of the Royal 22nd Regiment at Camp Valcartier, Que., has been standing by for possible Cyprus duty since the crisis arose in late December.

MONTREAL (CP) — T. C. Douglas, New Democratic Party leader, said Wednesday his party is opposed to sending Canadian troops to Cyprus unless their presence is approved by the countries involved.

"Canada's real role," he told a press conference, "is not to posture as a nuclear power.

"It is, rather, to have highly-trained, mechanized troops to act as keepers of the peace."

Commenting on the removal of weapons from Canadian armories vulnerable to raids by terrorists, Mr. Douglas said the "the whole thing has become a bit of a farce and if it keeps up we'll be getting the boy scouts to protect the army."

He said there was no reason the under - manned armories couldn't be guarded.

"Surely with a half-million unemployed we could hire a few caretakers."

QUESTIONS TAKE TIME

The rest of Wednesday's sitting was taken up by the private members' hour, an hour-long question period, a backlog of 127 written questions and 28 motions for the tabulation of various government documents and letters.

As the sitting began, Resources Minister Laing made two announcements.

A special report has shown that the power potential on northern Manitoba's Nelson River is more than 4,000,000 kilowatts—twice Manitoba's own needs for the next 25 years. Cost studies indicate that the surplus could be exported to Ontario and the north-central U.S. at competitive prices. The federal government is prepared to discuss with Manitoba the next stage in studying the development.

Questions involving the establishment of an education department in Quebec, teaching French in Nova Scotia schools and education financing in Saskatchewan were discussed in three of the provincial legislatures sitting Wednesday.

And the Newfoundland house opened, meaning all 10 legislatures now are in session.

The Quebec legislative assembly rejected two amendments made by the legislative council to the government's bill to create an education department.

The assembly's Liberal majority turned down amendments which would have forbidden the education minister or deputy minister to sit at meetings of the Protestant and Roman Catholic committees of the superior education council, an advisory body being set up with the department.

Premier Duplessis said he opposed the way for the council to maintain records separate from the department was also rejected.

WANTS FRENCH TAUGHT

In Nova Scotia, Liberal House leader Premier Mr. Nicholson suggested French should be made a compulsory subject in provincial schools and that the government should try harder to find qualified French teachers.

Premier Stanfield said considerable effort should be made to get qualified French teachers, although lack of French teachers was not a problem that could be overcome easily.

In Saskatchewan, Alex Cameron (L—Maple Creek) said the Liberal government is considering what now is an excessive financial burden on municipalities for school costs.

The Newfoundland legislature opened with a brief throne speech read by Lieutenant-Governor Fabian O'Dea. It mentioned little new business other than the announcement that a new paper mill may be built near Goose Bay, Labrador.

In addition, the province of Prince Edward Island — ignoring party lines, the legislature voted a resolution which would limit the length of time members can speak in debate.

DEFEAT MOTION

New Brunswick — A heated debate in the legislature over which would limit the length of time members can speak in debate.

DEFEAT MOTION

Premier Robichaud and Opposition to condemn "the irresponsible statements and attitudes" of Labor Minister Starr Webber on the strike situation.

Rodman E. Logan (PC—Saint John-Lancaster County), who first original motion, said Mr. Webber had admitted not knowing what policies were at issue in the strike and the labor department had done nothing about it since Dec. 27. He said the strike involved principles affecting labor, management and the legislature.

Ontario—Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver charged the government with "political dishonesty" for not telling the people of Ontario before the Sept. 25 election that taxes would have to be raised. He was speaking against a bill raising the gasoline tax by two cents a gallon.

Manitoba — Ed Schreyer (NDP — Brokenhead) accused the government of being blind to the fact that almost 40 per cent of the people in the province live in a state of "deprivation, if not poverty."

Alberta — A group of Calgary citizens asked the legislature not to validate an agreement between the Canadian Pacific Railway and the city of Calgary for a downtown redevelopment scheme.

British Columbia — Health Minister Eric Martin introduced a new mental health act providing for the province to withdraw gradually from active operation of mental health facilities.

He said under the act operation of existing provincial facilities would be turned over progressively to "mental health societies."

Magistrate Rules Drinking in Ice Hut Illegal

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP) — Magistrate Russell Pearse Wednesday rejected the idea that it is legal to drink beer in an ice-fishing hut, but reserved judgment on Ernest Spruce, 43, until Mar. 22 and released him without bail.

Police stopped Spruce's car Jan. 22 and charged him with having liquor in a place other than a residence after they found two full bottles and a 12-bottle beer case.

In Milton earlier this week Magistrate K. M. Langdon ruled that it is legal to have liquor in an ice-fishing hut if the owner of the liquor intends to stay overnight.

He dismissed a charge of having liquor in an illegal place laid against a man driving from his hut to his home.

The law allows a person to take beer or liquor from one residence to the other, he been reading to another residence.

But Magistrate Pearse said: "I find a fish hut is not a place

Witness Could Not Recall Conversation on Coffin Case Which Was Used in Book

QUEBEC (CP) — The first week of hearings by a Quebec royal commission into the Coffin murder case ended Wednesday with a Toronto man testifying he couldn't recall a conversation published by Jacques Hebert in the book that sparked the holding of the inquiry.

Mr. Hebert said in the book that he had been told by John Edward Syvret, a former advertising executive that a tattered note that might have saved Wilbert Coffin's life had been found in the area where three American hunters were killed in 1953.

Mr. Hebert said in the book, J'Accuse la Cour Suprême Coffin, (J'Accuse Coffin's Assassins) that Mr. Bellivreau, who also wrote a book on the case, had told him the note was dated "June 13, 1952," and signed by one of the three missing hunters.

This in effect would have given Coffin, jailed for shooting the Americans, an alibi since he was in Montreal June 12, 1952. Coffin was hanged Feb. 10, 1956.

BOOK MENTIONED NOTE

Mr. Bellivreau's book, The Coffin Murder Case, mentioned the note and said photographer Maurice Edwards of Quebec City had taken a picture of it but had not read it. It had been found in place by the police.

Mr. Bellivreau said in the book and repeated Wednesday that Mr. Syvret's story was not his own self, nor a second written by relatives of the slain men and mentioned by Mr. Hebert.

He said he might have discussed the notes with Mr. Syvret in a lengthy conversation in Toronto a year ago but he couldn't recall doing so.

Raymond Daoust, counsel for Mr. Hebert, asked whether the witness still considered the topic "could have been discussed last year." Mr. Bellivreau said he did.

Mr. Justice Roger Brossard, the one-man commission, asked the witness whether he thought he had been misquoted by Mr. Hebert.

"I find it difficult to believe I would have gone beyond what I had in my book," Mr. Bellivreau replied.

The commission resumes hearings in Ste. Therese Mr. Justice Brossard indicated hearings may be held in Toronto.

Mr. Bellivreau probably will take the stand again and there were indications the commission might recall Myrtle Feeney, a Toronto Star reporter.

Mr. Bellivreau, a Toronto Star reporter at the time of the slayings, testified that Mr. Feeney had been the source of character background he had placed in his book about Eugene Lindsay, ex - Hollidaysburg, Pa., one of the hunters who died.

LINDSAY USED FISTS

The Bellivreau book said the characters of the slain men—their friends and enemies—hadn't been mentioned at Coffin's trial. Through Mr. Feeney, he said, he had found that Lindsay had loaned money and often used his fists to get it back at his own interest rates.

Leon Synett, 34, a former Quebec provincial policeman who worked on the Coffin case, was cross - examined by Jean Grenier, counsel to provincial police and civil servants in the case.

Mr. Grenier asked whether Mr. Synett had resigned from the force in 1961 mainly to get his pension funds since his eight-by-twenty house had just burned down.

Mr. Synett denied this and repeated testimony given at Ste. Anne de Beaupre Capt. Raoul Slrois and Col. Leon Lambert of the QPP about matters involved in the Coffin case.

He said this had taken place "perhaps six years ago."

Mr. Grenier asked why Mr. Synett hadn't left the force earlier if this had been bothering him for that length of time.

"I was always looking for a new job," the witness said.

King of Greece Hovers Between Life and Death

ATHENS King Paul of Greece was given holy communion today as he hovered between life and death.

Athens radio announced that a palace priest gave communion to the 62-year-old king, the world's only reigning Orthodox monarch, after a mass in the chapel at Tatoi Palace.

The radio said: "The king is fighting with death, and his wife, Queen Frederika, is at his bedside as he receives the last moral agony."

A palace bulletin said there was "no change" in the condition of the king, who collapsed five days ago with complications following an operation Feb. 21 for a stomach ulcer.

Reports circulated during the night that the 62-year-old monarch had gone into a coma.

At 1 a.m. the chief of the king's political cabinet, Constantine Holdas, issued a special statement denying rumors that the king had died. Holdas said the king's condition was "critical."

All members of the king's family were gathered at the royal summer residence at Tatoi, 18 miles outside Athens. The icon of the Virgin Mary, reported to have miraculous healing powers, lay at the king's bedside.

Medical bulletins have said the king is suffering from blood clots in the right leg and left lung and from a urinary bladder age.

Eskimos Will Benefit in Ookpik Sales

By ROBERT RICE

OTTAWA (CP) The Ookpik is coming — thousands of them.

Born in the land of the Eskimo, the fluffy, pop-eyed owl will be made on a mass-production basis in Toronto and Montreal as the result of an agreement signed Wednesday between two Canadian manufacturers and the Port Chimo Eskimo co-operative.

To get the rights to make Ookpiks, the two manufacturers agreed to pay 10 per cent of their selling price on each Ookpik to the Chimo co-operative.

Government officials say the agreement could mean more than $25,000 in royalties this year for the Eskimos in the co-operative.

The original Ookpik was a realistic creation of furry and goggle-eyed with flat feet. It caught the fancy of businessmen in the Canadian Handicrafts and Fur of Montreal received the right to produce Ookpiks in fur, while Reliable Toy Company of Toronto will make it as a plush toy.

Prices will range from $2 to $12.

The two manufacturers hope to sell at least 100,000 Ookpiks — fewer plush, which Ookpiks with yellow bills and yellow flappers to dainty, lit tle Ookpiks perhaps smaller than a man's thumb.

Northern Affairs Minister Laing said Wednesday some industrialists have many more ideas for using the Ookpik idea — such as TV cartoon series, comic books, games, jewelry, party favors, books, children's clothing, ornaments and other Ookpik knick-knacks.

Noting that the federal government has copyrighted the ookpik design, he warned that unauthorized manufacturers will be severely discouraged."

Johnny Bathie, president of the Fort Chimo Co-operative Association, told reporters through an interpreter at a press conference that the money from Ookpik royalties will likely be used to buy new fishing equipment and boats as well as provide better housing for Fort Chimo residents.

The co-operative is also active in fishing, logging and Eskimo handicrafts.

became president of the Teamsters after his predecessor, Dave Beck, went to prison for income tax fraud.

Hoffa's bond was raised to $75,000 from $10,000 by Wilson. Smaller bonds were required by the three men convicted with him of attempting to bribe the jury that heard Hoffa's 1962 conspiracy trial at Nashville. That trial ended when the jury couldn't agree on a verdict.

FREE ON BOND COUNT

The jury here received the case Tuesday night after six days of testimony and deliberated five hours and 40 minutes. It acquitted Hoffa on one charge, but found:

1. Hoffa, Larry Campbell of Detroit and Thomas E. Parks of Nashville sought to offer $10,000 to the son of a juror in the Nashville trial.

2. Hoffa and Ewing King, former Nashville Teamsters president, tried to influence another juror by offering to help her husband get a promotion on the Tennessee highway patrol.

Campbell, a Teamsters business agent at Detroit, Parks and King face maximum of five years and fines of $5,000.

The jury of eight men and four women acquitted Hoffa and two businessmen on charges they offered "things of value" to a Nashville bar operator if he would try to make contact with members of the 1962 jury.

The businessmen, Nicholas J. Tweel of Huntington, W. Va., and Allen Dorfman of Chicago, were the only defendants to show much reaction to the verdicts. A broad grin spread across Dorfman's face. Tweel smiled for an instant.

Somebody Is Trying to Sell Labrador

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) Note to Joey Smallwood: Somebody is trying to sell Labrador for $150—to Lester B. Pearson.

The Project — started by two Toronto lawyers at Bristol University — caused a sharp intake of breath among officials at Canada House Wednesday.

Rag week at the university was the occasion for John Richardson and William Knight, law students, to report they discovered ancient letters patent from Henry VII granting all lands discovered by John Cabot in 1497 to his heirs and deputies.

And they believe that a later charter from the King to Bristol Corporation allows the lord mayor and aldermen to claim full rights, over the lands.

The students sent a letter to Prime Minister Pearson offering him Labrador — they didn't mention Newfoundland proper — for a modest $150 donation to the Rag's charity, the Royal Commonwealth Society for the Blind.

"Failure to cough up will mean that we will sell Labrador to the United States or Russia," said the students, who are trying to raise a total of £10,000 ($30,000) by various means.

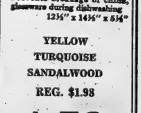
PRICE 'NIGGARDLY'

The first reaction of a Canada House spokesman here was that the letters Smallwood and all Newfoundlanders would be "appalled" at the niggardly price being put on Labrador's 110,000 square miles.

The spokesman also noted that Cabot called it "the Land God gave Cain." Anyway, the Canada House spokesman declared:

"When Canada acquired Newfoundland — which, of course, includes Labrador — in 1949, it was done legally. Any claim from the new independent state of Bristol should be taken up with the original owners, the British government."

The Manchester Guardian says that the students found was a reproduction in a history book of a royal charter to Cabot giving him and his descendants the right to "subdue, occupy and possess" Labrador as the King's lieutenants.



There was no reference to any rights Bristol might have in Labrador. In any case, The Guardian notes, Cabot was not a Bristol man but a Venetian who merely used Bristol as a jumping off place for explorations.

"We have no territorial ambitions," said a Bristol Corporation spokesman.

UN

Ottawa External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons the government is seeking more information from the UN before deciding whether to participate.

DECISION WELCOMED

The decision to create the force was welcomed in the capitals of all countries most affected by the dispute.

Both the Greek-Cypriots and Turkish-Cypriots claimed a victory in their conflicting positions over the relationship of the resolution to the 1960 treaties that brought Cyprus independence from Britain.

President Makarios, leader of the Greek-Cypriots, said "treaties imposed on Cyprus . . . have been put to the test before an international organization and it has become accepted that their termination will be unavoidable."

A Turkish-Cypriot spokesman said the resolution rejected the "Greek-Cypriot attempt to abrogate" the treaties.

The preamble to the resolution was worded carefully so as to give a measure of satisfaction to both sides at the point.

The Turkish-Cypriot minority fears trat any watering down of the treaties will harm their special rights under the constitution and the rights of Turkey to intervene on their behalf.

Turkish Premier Ismet Inonu said the council action was "a big success for the Turks."

Greek Premier George Papandreou said "we are deeply satisfied with the decision."

Treasury Will Meet More Of Expenses

OTTAWA (CP) — Governor-General Vanier soon will take a $25,000 cut in his expense allowance.

But he's likely to become better off financially.

Until now the Governor-General has received each year, in addition to his $48,667 salary, about $100,000 a year from which he drew for some of his staff and other expenses.

It's an open secret in Ottawa that no Governor-General in recent years has been able to make ends meet. In most years they had to chip in some of their own savings.

WILL INCREASE PAYMENT

In an attempt to end this sort of thing, the government has decided to increase its allotment for the "continuing establishment" of Government House by $90,110 to the coming fiscal year starting April 1. The details were in main estimates tabled Tuesday in the Commons.

This will bring to $297,800 the total federal outlay for the Governor-General's staff and residence. That figure includes the $25,000 cut in his allowance to $80,000.

In effect, some of the costs at Rideau Hall now will be met by the federal treasury instead of by the Governor-General.

Also slated in the blue book, for the first time, is a $18,667 allowance to a former prime minister — Louis St. Laurent. This will continue each year until his death.

Provision for the payment to former prime ministers was made last year when MPs increased their own salaries. Opposition Leader Diefenbaker would get it, too, if he ever left the Commons.

Mrs. Swift expressed her appreciation to the Mother's Auxiliary for financial assistance; to the Rotary Club for use of the Rotary Youth Centre, and to Bemersyde Chapter I.O.D.E. for the gift of a flag and carrying poles.

Miss Sylvia Normington proposed the toast to the mothers which was responded to by Mrs. Fred Ames.

Mrs. Sperling proposed the toast to the Queen and Mrs. D. Hughes expressed the appreciation to the ladies of St. Andrew's Church.

GIRL GUIDE PROGRAM

In her address Mrs. Arnott stressed the program of Girl Guides from an international level. She stated that in Quinte area there are 4400 Brownies, Guides, and leaders and in Ontario approximately 100,000 and in Canada 200,000. There are approximately five and one half million over the world with 67 countries participating in the organization. As the motto promises is made by each Guide in her own language "On my honor I will try to do my best" a tremendous influence is exerted throughout the world.

MANY ADVANTAGES

Mrs. Arnott stressed the advantages of each Guide striving through visual aid, reading, contacts with newcomers, travel and camping to reach the possibility of being chosen as an international delegate. Every year there are girls chosen, these girls must have acquired the different badges, camping knowledges and meet the responsibility that they are Canada's representatives. If not accepted any girl would be a better Guide for having tried.

An outline was also given of camps being held in Ontario for Guides and leaders, also the special Ontario arrangement for 26 chosen girls to travel for six weeks in Great Britain.

ILLUSTRATED TALK

Miss Cathy Cook of Belleville was one of the girls who had taken this trip last summer and gave an illustrated talk of her tour.

Mrs. R. Bennett thanked the speakers and presented the bursary which is used to assist in financing trips abroad.

Presentation was also made of 12 badges for various degrees of proficiency.

Two skits were put on by 1st and 2nd Company and the program closed with Taps.

THE UNDERCOVER STORY

This season's silhouette varies so much that there is the need for a variety of slips designed for these special outlines. For example, it includes the straight shift, the slightly shaped, the empire line, the two-piece overblouse look and the elastic belted dress. A classic slip with its fitted bodice when worn under the long torso middy or shift dress is a uncomfortable as a straight jacket. The slip fits in all the wrong places, and the wearer becomes unsteady.

Several special new slips have been designed to answer this need. The newest is the shimmy shift, a straight line slip suspended from shoulder straps and ending about one inch above the knees. The bodice usually has a lace trim. The chemise slip is the same story, but even shorter. (A short skirt works up over the knees when the wearer is seated, but often a slip will not shorten itself in accordance with the dress.)

EMPIRE WAISTLINE

For the new dresses with just a hint of a shape, such as the banded raised empire waistline, there are new slips with molded bustlines and straight skirts hanging from just under the bustline. The new long torso dresses of which the "middy" is the newest, with its sailor collar and pleated skirt, needs its own undercover story. The long torso slips match this silhouette with lower waistlines and pleated or lace-trimmed gored skirts. The classic slip with a fitted five point bodice, pieced, gored skirt and natural waistline still has a place in every woman's wardrobe, but only when worn with dresses having a natural waistline and a suggestion of fit to the bodice. This year the classic slip is called "the body beautiful" — not a bad name!

Carrying the undercover story one step further, there is interesting news in foundation garment fashions. The newest and most comfortable "bras" are those with stretch shoulder straps. Some "bras" and slips have been combined into one garment with the "bra" built into the slip. Sometimes the straps, stretch or not, have been eliminated and the slip is boned. These are ideal when worn with sheer dresses.

Deeply plunging necklines on blouses and dresses, edged with wide expansive ruffles call for specially designed "bras" cut even deeper. These are usually the new front-book type with softened modified cups, as the whole silhouette is rounded and feminine.

COLORED GARMENTS

Rumor has it that color will play a big role in the newest undercover story for this coming summer. Not only color, but flowered prints are mentioned in pretty blues, greens or beige tints. Of the newest foundation garments, whether plain or wildly printed, are light in weight for

Successful Living

Self-Indulgent Alcoholic Needs Prodding by Law

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I would like to add my encouragement to Reformed Alcoholic. One year passes quickly; just keep reminding yourself of all the lousy years you gave your wife. If you can prove to her you can still stand on your own feet, she will be with you at the end of that year and you will have a good life together again.

I have been married to an alcoholic for nearly 20 years. In my case my husband has never loved anyone but himself. He gets what he wants out of life while the innocent stand by and get hurt. He doesn't even support us. He still feels I should tolerate his way of life, be nice to him and appreciate those few days he manages to keep sober.

The laws in Canada I feel are outdated. I do realize A.A. and the alcoholic foundation do good work, but how do you get an alcoholic to go to either one unless he is willing? Even a family borrows is of little or no use to you, since no one has the right to make a move between husband and wife. Why should we live an empty life because of one person's selfishness and weakness? — ONE WHO KNOWS.

DEAR ONE — Why couldn't you use this couldn't-care-less husband of yours for support? There are some pretty definite Canadian laws about that! His kind of self-indulgence needs to get the message that he has hit bottom.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — My boy friend is having an affair with an awful girl and I am a very nice girl and I really don't know what to do. I am really mad for him but I don't like to crawl to him or beg to him to come back. She is very sexy.

Another problem is that he is spreading terrible stories about me at the office and he lies to me. I have all kinds of stories "on him."

I don't want to give him up even though he is a rat. If you don't write me soon anything could happen. — A PERTURBED GIRL.

DEAR PERTURBED GIRL — Now look, dearie: If you know he is a rat and you still don't want to give him up, why write to me? Now is the time to let your head rule your heart. If you don't your heart will take a beating late on anyway — a worse one.

• • •

Confidential to A. R. — You aren't scared, you aren't shy but you "just can't open your mouth in company"! Next time, have the nerve to identify yourself with name and address on a stamped envelope and I'll send you some Tips On Talking which may help.

• • •

Confidential to AGGRAVATED — Do you want to form a tight little threesome clique and stay that way? Never meet anybody different? Follow your "opportunist" friend's example and have some adventures of your own in making friends.

• • •

Confidential to DIANE — I am told it is quite possible for cigarettes to be the cause of your nervousness. At 15 years of age you should not be smoking.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I would like to know if a boy kissed you would that be a sign that he loved you?

If you were walking along the road and he had his arm around you when all of a sudden he walked over to your friend and started teasing her, would that be a sign that he liked her as much as he liked you?

I would like for you to send me some books on dating and how to act on a date. —JEALOUSY.

DEAR JEALOUSY — No to both questions. He's just doing what comes naturally — enjoying the company of the opposite sex. For the names of books, write again, enclosing a five-cent-stamped, self-addressed envelope.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I have been appointed as president of our women's association at church. We are very anxious for our group to be a success. Last year we only had ten members, I am sorry to say, but we have quite a number of very poor families. Some are now asking for help for clothing.

We would like to get some good used clothing and I thought you might be able to tell me who to contact. — CHURCH WORKER.

• • •

DEAR CHURCH WORKER — Be wise — advertise! — This way:

(1) A written out request to be made from the pulpit.
(2) A notice in the church bulletin.
(3) Hand lettered notices for store windows around town.
(4) A catchy message to be read over local radio.
(5) Notice in local paper, or short news item.

Put some drive into it, and you'll be surprised just how many public minded people will give you a helping hand.

Confidential to ROCK — Many thanks for your poetry, which I had a laugh over but was unable to run in the column.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — If a mother of two leaves her husband, does she have the legal right to take her children with her? It would break her heart to leave her children behind. — A MOTHER.

• • •

DEAR MOTHER — Without knowing why she's leaving, I couldn't say. If abuse or unfaithfulness or alcoholism is involved she'd be an unnatural mother who left children behind. In such a case she may sue for support.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — I think my mother is against me; my sister and grandmother also. If something happens around the house or if anything is lost they immediately accuse me. Never my brother or sister, always me.

One time I was so hurt I packed a suitcase and planned to run away, but I didn't because I didn't have any means of transportation. I am really worried. Could you please help me? — WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED — I'm sorry, little sister. Do you feel like the family goat? If you can't face a talk with your mother about this, write her a letter. Tell her you need somebody on your side; ask her for praise when you do well.

Take a hand in changing things by showing her your love. A little unasked service, a friendly kiss, might bowl her or Granny over — even Sister — but I'll wager it would change things!

• • •

(If it's a question of straight information about Canadian affairs, ask Doris. What she doesn't know she'll find out — for you!)

Women's Institute

RIVER VALLEY PIE SOCIAL

On Friday evening, February 21st, the River Valley Women's Institute sponsored a pie social at the school house. There were 38 members, apportximately 30 other adults and 25 children in attendance.

Glenn Bush was master of ceremonies and spoke briefly. Mrs. Philip Conley was pianist for the evening. Eight school girls sang a medley of songs. Mrs. Kenneth Myers read a poem. Trudy Bush contributed a piano selection, and Mrs. Charles Wilson outlined "Current Events". Mrs. George Heasman led in the singing if humorous songs which had been written on the blackboard.

The main feature was a travelogue of a recent holiday in Mexico. Mr. Ed Heasman was in charge of the projector and Mrs. Heasman was the commentator. On December 14th Mr. and Mrs. Heasman, their son Dennis and daughter Maria and Mr. Fred Heasman left by motor for a trip through Mexico.

HOOKS SAIL FISH

They spent a week at Acapulco and here Dennis went deep sea fishing and was successful in hooking a sail fish which weighed 140 pounds and was nine feet six inches in length. Dennis was shown in a picture beside the fish and one of the long fins was mounted and engraved for him to carry home. This was displayed during the evening with many other interesting souvenirs.

The pictures were clear and colorful and gave a graphic picture of Mexico with its ancient temples, monasteries, large evergreen trees, buildings of all descriptions, a fish hatchery, modern motels, lovely flower gardens, several scenic pictures of life on a busy day at the market square, and various animals. At the close a few pictures taken by Miss Alice Heasman, Belleville when she visited Mexico in the summer months were also interesting.

Mrs. Jack Bush voiced appreciative thanks to Ed and Isabel for the entertainment and they received a hearty ovation.

CONTEST WINNERS

A pie eating contest followed with four couples taking part. The winners were Maria Heasman and Billie Wilhelm.

Mrs. Vernon Harry, president of River Valley W.I. spoke briefly and expressed thanks to all who had furnished pie for the occasion and assisted in any way to make the evening a success.

The Home Economics and Health group with assistants from the other three groups served refreshments. At the close a dozen pies were sold and the proceeds of the evening were $20.30.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

Two true stories tell a tale of America — a tale of how Americans think.

The great anthropologist and student of human culture, Dr. Margaret Mead, came one day to address a group of American university women about the different ways of raising children. She explained that in some cultures she had studied, children are socialized before they are two years old and certain standards of behavior are already inculcated. In other cultures, she went on to say, this process comes much later in the child's life. In America, she said, if it happens at all, it usually happens after the children are four and before they are six and conscience is the main impetus. There are, the learned lecturer stressed, lots of different ways of bringing up children.

At the conclusion of her address, a young college woman rose in the rear of the room and asked: "Well, you have told us about all these ways of bringing up children, but which is the best way?" And Margaret Mead replied: "That is a typically American question!"

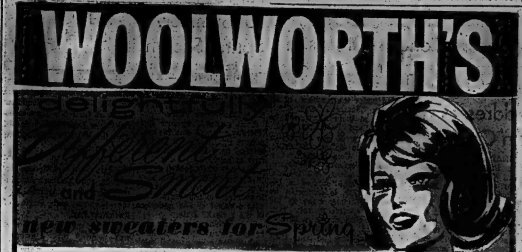
LAND OF SAVAGES

Dr. Mead was right. The girl, like most other Americans, had assumed not only that there was a right way, but that all you had to do was to decide which one it was and you could choose it!

And now the second story. A well-known American writer was visiting India some years ago, meeting with the leading thinkers and philosophers of that storied land of sages. At the climax to his trip, he spent some hours with Mr. Nehru discussing the various political difficulties which were facing the world community. The American visitor summed up what he thought were the basic questions of conflict and then, turning to the Indian Prime Minister, asked: "These, it seems to me, are the problems we face. Mr. Nehru, if you were an American, what would you suggest that America do?" The wise Indian leader took a moment before replying, not to overwhelm his listener, and then slowly spoke these significant words: "An Indian could not answer your question because he could not ask it — your way. To us, it is not possible to ask 'what should America do?' Only Americans ask this kind of question. We would ask the question as follows: "What should America be? When we know what we are we will know what to do!"

VALUE SYSTEM

Unhappily, Americans have the notion that, unlike all other peoples, they can make up their minds regarding what is the best way to do things, and then proceed to do them. Somehow, they forget that a value-system must be tied into a style of life, and they simply choose to do what is right from time to time, is not enough. Men must first have definitions regarding what it is they are or want to be, before what they do about solving their problems can truly reflect their deepest hopes about life's meaning.



If we have a view of life which leads us toward an attempt to actualize in our lives the ideas which we truly believe in, then our day to-day activity will begin to reflect more than it is doing, but also believing. What is more: if we would cultivate such a view, we would stop measuring the whole world by what we think is best for them. For—instead of thinking of the best way as our way, we would begin to understand a higher truth: that our way must be our best way, even as other peoples have made their way their best way.

Fur Fashions For Summer, Spring Shown

By THERESE BERNIER

MONTREAL (CP) — High fashion detail characterizes this year's spring and summer fur collection shown Tuesday at the Salon Raoul-Jean Fours.

Each garment, whether it is liberally endowed with fur or is a mere rigidly tailored piece, is marked by a skillful cut and a note of originality.

The very short jacket, falling in a straight line in the back, may be worn with a narrow leather belt in front or perhaps with a velvet or silk neckpiece in the style of a tie.

It is fashioned of dark gray or black astrakhan, sometimes embellished with a small mink collar.

Also displayed were similar models fashioned of ocelot or mink.

The longer jacket is provided with a detachable belt that may serve equally well, if required, as a cravat.

HAS ORNAMENTAL CUT

The couturier has created a fashionable trading at the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto under Professor Defetf. The object of the concert was to encuggled out of Czechoslovakia after the war and was made its debut in 1950 by Giovanni Fiorini Farvara.

GUEST ARTISTS

Guest artists Mr. and Mrs. Reid are residents of Belleville. Mr. Reid is director of Bridge Street United Church choir while Mrs. Reid is a frequently soprano soloist. Both studied at the Royal Conservatory and performed with the Toronto Symphony Orchestra and Toronto Mendelssohn choir.

This evening of fine music will offer those who appreciate a good accompaniment much listening and visual pleasure.

Tickets are now on sale at Don Thomas' store or may be procured from any member of the St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E.

Home and School News

MARMORA—The Home and School of Marmora Public Schools celebrated Founders' Night at their February meeting in the Earl Prentice School with the president, Mrs. Allan Wells, in the chair.

In addition to Founders' Night it was the 17th anniversary of the Marmora Association. Mrs. G. Wentworth read the purpose and origin of Founders' Day.

Business was discussed and it was decided that a delegate would be sent to the annual convention held in the Royal York Hotel in Toronto for three days, March 24-26. An amount of $25 was voted to cover expenses.

Two metal shields will be purchased to be awarded for public speaking, one each for senior and junior pupils.

Plans are being made for the second Fun Fair to be held April 24th in the High School auditorium. Mrs. G. Wentworth and Mrs. H. Bleecker are to be convenors.

Mrs. C. Cook took the attendance in the absence of Mr. K. C. Gillies. Attendance banners went to Mr. R. Pringle and Mrs. J. Cook at the Earl Prentice School and Mrs. R. Empey, Central School.

Guest speaker, Mrs. A. J. Fort of Belleville, president of Area 7, was introduced by Mrs. L. Stetson. Mrs. Fort spoke on the pamphlet that has been prepared by Mr. R. E. Prink, principal of Queen Victoria School of Belleville, on improving public speaking through Home and School. Mrs. J. Smith of Belleville was also present.

Women Have Legal Right To Equal Pay

ORILLIA, Ont. (CP)—Ontario women have only themselves to blame if they aren't getting equal pay for equal work, says Ethel McLellan, director of the provincial labor department's women's bureau.

Many of them, she suggests, either don't know or are afraid to do anything about the fact they have a legal right to equal pay with men.

The right was established as part of the Human Rights Code in 1962.

"Nothing has happened since," Mrs. McLellan told the Orillia Council of Women. "What is the matter with the women if they know their right and don't make any use of it?"

She suggests that women who are afraid of losing their jobs if they file a signed complaint should turn to one of their community's larger women's organizations for support. The Council of Women and the Business and Professional Women's Clubs had been advocating equal pay for years.

The Ontario government advertises jobs without designating sex, she says, and urges that all businesses follow its example.

The attitude of young women who consider work only a bridge to marriage helps keep alive prejudice against working women, she says.

She acknowledges that women are criticized for taking jobs only long enough to earn money for new appliances, or to qualify for unemployment insurance, but maintains that men do the same thing.

She denies any justice in the male complaint that women take jobs away from men.

"Unemployment is highest in jobs which require men only — road construction and building. Most of the men applying for these jobs would not be able to work a typewriter or do other clerical jobs."

Emperor's Macaroni

by Mary Moore

We were at the end of our tether. Deadline day was getting close and we needed one more column to complete the week's work. Eleanor said "We haven't given anything for Lent this week". So we whipped these two third horses, whomped up some meatless fodder (below) and hit the hay!

The dishful of Emperor's Macaroni that was actually made by Eleanor and served to her family and shared with two of us at my house, is a real find. It has two or three variations and discerning hostesses in this audience will make it part of their repertory for buffet entertaining.

Stuffed olive or broken salad olives, ¼ cup green pepper, cut in strips or chopped, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion, 1½ cups grated old Cheddar cheese, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 cups scalded milk, 4 eggs, yolks and whites separated.

Cook the macaroni in the boiling water with the first 2 teaspoons of salt until tender — about 15 minutes. Drain. In your large mixing bowl combine melted butter, breadcrumbs, sliced olives, green pepper, onion, Cheddar cheese, remaining 2 teaspoons of salt and scalded milk. Beat egg yolks well — about 5 minutes or until thick and lemon-colored. Stir into bowl mixture. Add cooked drained macaroni and stir. Beat egg whites stiffly and fold in.

Turn into greased 2-quart (large casserole and stand this on boiler pan (or other shallow pan) containing hot water to depth of ½". Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for one hour. Note: Add a little sour cream mixture that rises and remains risen. If desired serve with Cheese Sauce.

Cheese Sauce: Heat together gently 1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup, ½ cup milk, ¼ cup grated cheese, shake of paprika.

Variations: You may add some or all of following: One-quarter to ½ cup chopped blanched almonds, ¼ cup chopped sweet red pepper or canned pimento, ½ cup flaked drained canned tuna, or when meatless days are not being observed, ½ to 1 cup chopped chicken or ham.

A wonderful many-purpose casserole with a recipe all of you will try. Eleanor's Bruce gave it his enthusiastic seal of approval.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS By PATRICIA LEWIS

SOCIAL COMPLICATIONS OF ILLNESS

If anyone is itching to have a case of chicken pox, I can get it for you quickly.

Our oldest daughter just came down with a whopping good case. The doctor assures me that the three younger children are bound to follow and, since I've never had them either, it looks like the grocuses will come out before I do. I figure we'll be well into spring before the disease has run its full course in this household.

Having such an unexpected guest in the house does present problems, of course. Aside from trying to keep the afflicted child isolated and rushing quarts of orange juice up to the third floor sick room every so often, there is the social angle, and I'm now hard at work trying to get this little knot untangled.

Since I've managed to get to a ripe old age without getting any kind of pox, chicken or otherwise, it stands to reason that there must be a few more people around who also have been able to avoid it. Now our whole social structure for the next two months — said I, pessimistically — has to be completely revamped so as not to put a pox on anyone who hasn't already had 'em.

The only fair thing to do is let people who have invited us, and people we've invited, know exactly what the score is. So I'm now trying to find out if anyone still wants to visit us, if I'm still socially acceptable anywhere, or if my husband, who sensibly had the chicken pox when he was two, is to remain my only contact with the outside world.

One couple we were expecting next weekend turned out to be immune, so they're not afraid to die with us. But the other couple had reservations so we cancelled ours. The husband is not sure if he's had 'em or not, so since he has to make an important presentation in two weeks, he didn't want to take a chance on blotching the job.

FRESH COUNTRY AIR

Another city couple with two children were supposed to bring the youngsters for a visit in the fresh country air in a week or so. When I called to courteously alert the mother and politely inquired whether her children had had the chicken pox, she assured me they had, but since they both were down with the German measles she thought she had better stay home and let her family courteously keep their germs to themselves.

Then, another complication.

Our four-year-old was invited to a party next week. There had been an outbreak of chicken pox in her nursery school around Christmas, and, although she didn't get them then, most of the other children did. So it was fairly safe to assume that a majority of the youngsters at the party already had had the disease or had been so thoroughly exposed that their parents couldn't care less.

However, after investigation, it was discovered that one three-year-old had not been exposed at all, so our Maggie had to politely send her regrets in favor of doing the "right thing."

And so it goes. It will take a while to get things unravelled, but at least we're giving everyone a fighting chance to avoid us like the pox.

WANT MORE SPEED

OTTAWA (CP) — The Farm Credit Corporation is looking for ways to speed the disbursement of loans to farmers, Agriculture Minister Hays said Wednesday. In a report to Commons reply to John R. Matheson (L—Leeds), Mr. Hays said the average time it took to receive money to the last 50 loans granted in Ontario was 200 days. Some corporation is actively considering methods of reducing the time required to disburse loans," Mr. Hays said.

Roll call at the March meeting will be answered by members bringing old Christmas cards with will be sent away to organizations able to use them.

Mrs. Burr outlined the new survey which is being conducted. Mrs. H. Nash has prepared a plan on which members are asked to indicate their special interests and needs.

Mrs. H. Pierson and Mrs. C. Burr represented the unit at the annual Presbyterial meeting in Napanee. Mrs. A. Pettingill reported five cards sent and a letter of thanks to Mr. K. Lane for the use of his store for the bake sale. Mrs. H. Nash had charge of stewardship and distributed envelopes.

Mrs. H. Pierson conducted mission study, which was the history of the church in India.

Women's Institutes

CANNIFTON-CORBYVILLE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Last Monday members of Canniffon - Corbyville W.I. met at the home of Mrs. Warren Hinse for their regular monthly meeting.

The president, Mrs. F. Reid presided. The business and letters were attended to and new projects discussed Mrs. P. Meale, citizenship convener was in charge of the evening, having as her motto "A good citizen does not just sit, but finds his place in the community." This was exemplified by Mrs. Meale being since the guest speaker was Mrs. McCaw of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration. Mrs. McCaw gave an interesting and informative talk on our new Canadians and of their enthusiasms, thrift and industry; of their happiness in earning the privileges which belong to a citizen of Canada.

As Mrs. McCaw broadened on her subject it was evident to the members how much native born Canadians take their citizenship for granted; of how much Canadians have to be thankful for in this free, fair land.

An additional attraction of the evening was a bake and novelty sale.

Hostess for the evening, Mrs. K. Bowers and her assistants served a delightful lunch to bring the evening to a close.

Women's Institutes

MELROSE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The Melrose W.I. held their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. S. Genoja last Thursday evening with an excellent attendance including many visitors.

The president, Mrs. M. Lazier was in charge of the business session during which a letter from the adopted child, Sim Yung Soon, of Korea, was read, thanking members for their gift of money with which she had purchased needed clothing. Announcement was made of the officers' conference at Guelph on May 6 and 7th for district officers or their alternates. A short course "Food Shopping" will be held on March 20 at the home of Mrs. G. McLaren. Each person attending is to bring a box-lunch.

Reports of the standing committees were given by each convener as well as by the Curator of Tweedsmuir History who appealed for more pictures and history of the farms and schools in this community. The Girls' 4-H Club sponsored by the Institute gave a demonstration "Milk on the Invalid's Tray" which they had presented on Achievement Day at Belleville with Miss Sally Cook as commentator.

FINE PROGRAM

Mrs. R. Clarke, convener of citizenship and education, was in charge of the program with the topic "Good homes are the good citizens are starting" Mrs. A. Long who emphasized the fact that in the home, character is formed so encouragement for better things should be supplied by all the family. A timely poem was read by Mrs. Don McLaren; a top-winning speech on "World Peace" by Miss L. Genoja, a student at Melrose Secondary School, who deserves much praise for the commendable manner in which it was given.

A humorous reading by Mrs. E. Pascoe provided much mirth and laughter. A paper "The purpose of education in a democracy is to educate the individual according to his gifts and abilities" by Mrs. R. Clarke supplied much information along this line, one particular thought stressed the need of teaching them "How to Think" and distinguish between the essential and trivial matters.

TRIBUTE GIVEN

Mrs. A. English followed with a most interesting travelogue on her visit to Denmark last summer. This country whose area is much smaller than Nova Scotia is densely populated both in urban and rural communities. The weather isn't so extreme, there's a lot of rain, showers coming up quickly and lasting a short time. The buildings are built of brick, stone or concrete, even the farm buildings. The forests are well preserved and paths lead through them with benches or seats located at tentative spots where one can sit and enjoy the beautiful surroundings of nature. The scenery, flowering shrubs and hedges are gorgeous as was illustrated on the various post cards and pictures which were in display. The Danish people are exceedingly interested in antiques and cherish old things to a much greater degree than some other countries including Canada.

Mrs. Clarke extended thanks to Mrs. English for her personal concern in transporting members to Denmark so realistically and in such a vivid manner in the limited time allotted her.

A "City Contest" with Mrs. J. McLaren as winner, closed a most enjoyable program after which lunch was served by the committee in charge.

Women Urged To Check Citizenship

OTTAWA (CP)—Many hundreds and perhaps thousands of Canadian-born women are not Canadians even though they have never been outside Canada.

Among them are women whose foreign - born husbands later became Canadian citizens after living in Canada for five years and applying for certificates of Canadian citizenship.

The husband is a Canadian citizen, while his Canadian-born wife is an alien.

This ironic situation is discussed in an article published by the department of citizenship and immigration urging persons whose citizenship may be in doubt to check on their status.

During the Second World War large numbers of Canadian-born women married servicemen from other countries who were being trained in Canada. Under the law at that time a Canadian woman who married an alien and acquired the nationality of her husband automatically ceased to be a Canadian citizen.

However, the Canadian Citizenship Act passed in 1947 provided that a woman could not lose her status as a Canadian citizen through marriage to an alien. It also was provided that women who had become aliens through marriage, prior to the enactment of the citizenship act, could apply for reinstatement as Canadians.

"It must be noted that such reinstatement was not automatic," the citizenship department said.

"The woman is required to apply for reinstatement. Many hundreds and perhaps thousands have never done so, with the result that they are aliens under Canadian law although they may never have been outside of Canada in their lives.

"Cases have, in fact, been known where the husband, in due course, became a Canadian citizen and the couple went happily along—quite unaware of the fact that their situations ironically now were completely reversed. He is the Canadian citizen, while she is the alien."

Names Property of All, Cannot Be Copyrighted

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am the mother of three children. When our last boy was born my husband and I had trouble agreeing on a name. I had visions of enrolling him in school as "The Baby." After several days of haggling and getting nowhere I went ahead and picked a name I liked with no regard for rich aunts, uncles or illustrious grandparents.

The very next day my husband's sister came storming into our home. She bellowed, "You stole the name I had reserved for our son! "I told her I had no recollection of her suggesting that name, and that I didn't even know she was in a family way. She said she was NOT in a family way but she was saving the name for when she was.

My husband thinks maybe we should change the baby's name to keep peace in the family. What do you think — UNDER FIRE.

DEAR UNDER — Did your sister-in-law invent the name and have it copyrighted? If so, she's the first one I ever heard of who managed it.

Tell her to stop making herself look ridiculous, and let her know that when she has a son she can use the same name and you won't mind a bit.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Yesterday afternoon I entertained our club, which is two tables of canasta. This group has been meeting regularly for 11 years.

Halfway through the creamed chicken Mrs. C. gave a shriek that could have been heard in Coral Gables. "Oh, my Lord" she yelled, "A RAT!" I looked up and saw a tiny grey mouse scampering across the dining room floor. It couldn't have been more than two inches long.

The girls became panicky. Mrs. C. gasped, "I'm fainting" and had to have a cold washcloth for her head. Two women climbed up on their chairs. In less than three seconds the frightened little mouse had disappeared but my luncheon was ruined.

I have a sneaking suspicion Mrs. C. did this to humiliate me. I feel like resigning from the club. What is your opinion?— ON TRANQUILIZERS.

DEAR ON — Mrs. C's hysterical reaction probably dates back to her childhood. I doubt that she intended to humiliate you. It would have been far better, of course, if she had remained quiet and telephoned you the next day to inform you of the uninvited guest at the canasta party.

* * * * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A few years ago I remarried for companionship. It seemed like a fine arrangement for two older people who were lonely. I had a little money and Cyril was comfortably fixed. Together, we have made some good investments.

Cyril's only child, a daughter who married well, told me recently that when her father dies there will be no bickering over his estate because she is his sole heir. This was so embarrassing I made no reply.

I hesitate to mention the incident to my husband because he may feel I am criticising his daughter. I have seen her three times since the ugly remark was made and I confess I am no longer warmly disposed toward the girl. I fear this feeling will grow and it will drive a wedge between her father and me. Can you advise me? — FORT LAUDERDALE WOMAN.

DEAR WOMAN — If you have not sat down with your husband and an attorney to discuss your wills (his and yours) this should be the first order of business next Monday morning.

Don't repeat the daughter's ugly remark to your husband. It would serve no purpose except to worsen a relationship which doesn't sound particularly healthy.

Dress up Easter Platter With Special Garnishes

"Eggcerpts" from the Poultry Products Institute of Canada have sent out some interesting suggestions for using garnishes when serving an Easter turkey. Home Economics director is Belleville's own Dorothy Batcheller, B.H. Sc., (Mrs. D. I. MacKinnon), with the following ideas for making a platter look gay and attractive.

GUMDROP FLOWERS

1. Arrange gumdrop flowers on beds of parsley on either side of the platter where they won't interfere with the server, or supply a small plate on which the garnish may be easily transferred. To make gumdrop flowers, use the large crescent-shaped candies or the largest size of the other shapes available. Sprinkle a little fine granulated sugar on a 12 inch square piece of waxed paper and roll candies out thin with a rolling pin. These thin pieces of candy will form individual petals of flowers. Form one around the other until a flower shape is achieved. Fasten if necessary with a tooth pick. Green gumdrops may be shaped into leaves and the other colors made into flowers. Long strips of gumdrop may be used as stems.

2. Form small nests of shredded lettuce and fill with small jelly beans or Easter Eggs.

POTATO NESTS

3. Shred raw peeled potato on a fine grater or shredder. Dry potato thoroughly and press 2 or 3 tablespoons into a small sieve to form a small nest, and plunge into deep hot fat for 2 or 3 minutes until lightly browned and crisp. Sprinkle lightly with salt. Repeat until required number of potato nests are prepared. This may be done the day before and the nests re-crisped in the oven. Fill with grape or apple jelly and arrange around roast turkey on beds of parsley or shredded lettuce.

4. Use spiced crabapples, in groups of 3 arranged on parsley, around the platter.

TINTED PEARS

5. Tint canned pears pale pink, green and yellow by adding a drop or two of food coloring to the syrup and letting pears stand in it until tinted. Cinnamon, ginger or cloves may be added to the different colored syrups to season the pears. Cut each pear half in three lengthwise and arrange four or five of these strips in the form of a flavor with a maraschino cherry or small circle of uncolored pear, or small ball of grated cheese in the centre. Arrange 2 or 3 of these around the platter on shredded lettuce.

6. Tint peeled hard-cooked eggs by soaking for a short time in pickled beet juice or water to which a few drops of food coloring have been added. Devil the eggs, if desired, or leave whole or slice and arrange with parsley around the platter.

Reduced Charge Cost Motorist Total of $103.50

PICTON (Staff) — Marvin Sharpe, 25, R. R. 1, Belleville, was fined a total of $103.50 by Magistrate R. C. Jackson in court here Wednesday.

Sharpe was charged with drunken driving by Provincial Constable Earl Graves following an accident on County Road No. 2 four miles north of Wellington on February 16, when Sharpe's car piled into four other cars, doing damage estimated at $1,800.

Crown Attorney Lanes Nethery asked that the charge be reduced to ability impaired. Sharpe pleaded guilty to the reduced charge. His driver's permit was suspended for six months.

Clare Jessop, R. R. 2, Picton, re-appeared in court Wednesday to continue his trial on a charge of having care and control of a car while his ability was impaired by alcohol.

At the last sitting of the court, R. E. Nourse, defence counsel, moved a motion for dismissal of the charge due to the fact that when Jessop was apprehended by the Picton police, he was not driving, but was slumped down in the front seat.

When the magistrate dismissed the motion, the accused took the stand on his own behalf and told the court that he had been drinking and had driven to Sidney's car, and had become stuck in a snow bank. When he could not get the car out he walked for about fifteen minutes before coming back to the car, and resting. He maintained he had not been intention of driving the car when he came back.

After the magistrate had been given the evidence of a Crown witness to the affect that the accused had been trying to get the car out and had failed, His Worship said, "this man was actually trying to get the car out of a snow bank; if he had originally slumped behind the seat, he would have been a different case. It seems to me that when the police came he was in the car — he drove it there. He was under the influence Crown witness said he saw him there. He was udner the influence of alcohol and I must register a conviction. You will serve seven days in the common jail," he concluded.

A charge of leaving liquor in a place other than his residence, to wit, in the car, was marked withdrawn at the request of the Crown Attorney.

The new method of issuing driving licenses will be found to cause some problems. One came up in court here Wednesday when a summons for speeding was made out to Allen W. Newton, and mailed out. The summons went to Toronto, and a personal service was made. A man appeared in court here who told the court that the name was William Newton Allen.

On the previous licence cards the given name was used, then the surname. This has been reversed on the new licences, and the surname is now first, with the given name or names second. The charge against the accused was marked dismissed.

Company Will Consider Ways To Control Dust

PICTON (Staff) — At the regular monthly meeting of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce held at noon Wednesday at the Royal Hotel, a letter was received from the Lake Ontario Portland Cement Co.

The letter was in reply to a chamber letter about the smoke, or dust constantly coming from the huge company chimney.

A ratepayer also wrote to the chamber complaining about the fact that the smoke or dust here caused many property values to drop to an all-time low.

The letter from the company stated in part that they were most concerned with the problem and were considering steps for its control.

Earlier in the year, The Ontario Intelligencer contacted the LOPC at which time a spokesman for the latter said that the cost of controlling the smoke or dust would run well over $1,000,000.

The Department of Lands and Forests are considering the establishment of a Bird Sanctuary in the Big Island and Fish Lake areas. Jay Hepburn suggested that a letter be sent to Norris Whitney M.P.A. advising him of the chamber's stating for his support in the matter. The letter will also be sent to other interested persons.

AUSTRALIA ENTERS SPACE AGE — A British Blue Streak rocket is raised on its launching pad in preliminary tests for a space shot that will put Australia's Woomera rocket range into the major league of world space research centres. British Blue Streak Rocket Will Be Launched From Dry Lake in Australia

By IAN McFARLING
Canadian Press Correspondent

MELBOURNE (CP) — Standing on a cliff top overlooking Lake Hart in the shimmering red desert of central Australia is like being in another world.

Down below the lake stretches half-way to the cloudless horizon but there's not a drop of water in it. The lake is blinding white salt.

The surface is packed with black craters that give it the appearance of part of the moon —scars left by bombers that used it for bomb ballistic tests during the Second World War.

It will be here that a British Blue Streak rocket will shortly blast off into space for the first time, putting Australia's Woomera rocket range into the major league of world space research centres.

The 100-ton space vehicle will be launched from an enormous concrete pad that extends over a small ravine on the edge of the waterless lake.

The site is nearly, 30 miles from the Woomera range head, its bright painted collection of buildings that form an oasis in a flat, barren land.

FIRST TEST

No other buildings are within sight of the launching pad and the only witnesses apart from scientists and technicians are likely to be a handful of kangaroos and a few hardy birds, mostly crows.

Already the Blue Streak has had its first static firing test at Woomera — just before Christmas, right on schedule.

This year it will be fired more than 1,000 miles to the other end of the range on the uninhabited coast of Western Australia. If the scientists want to send it farther, they can fire it another 2,300 miles towards Christmas Island in the Indian Ocean.

In 1966 it is expected to loft a satellite into orbit. By 1970 the Blue Streak, or its updated successor, should be on its way to the moon.

The significance of the Blue Streak is that it is the first space vehicle being fired by the recently formed European Launcher Development Organization, a club of 12 European nations contributing money and knowledge to a bold peaceful experiment in international cooperation.

The Blue Streak is the British part of the Eldo space vehicle, the first stage of the missile. The second stage will be based on the French Veronique rocket and the third stage will be substantially German.

Italy is preparing the satellites to go on the nose of the three-stage missile. Belgium is responsible for down - range guidance installations and The Netherlands for long - range telemetry.

Australia is providing the Woomera rocket range, named after the three-gap implanted in wood that the nomadic aborigines of central Australia use for launching their spears.

In return for providing the $250,000,000 range, Australia gets full membership rights in Eldo, entitling it to the commercial benefits from any Eldo-developed launcher.

The Eldo project is purely a peaceful program aimed mainly at developing communications satellites to give the European nations a chance to compete with the giant American corporations that are already well advanced with their own communications satellite systems for telephone and television links.

Eldo also plans to probe the moon and aspects of outer space at least 100,000 miles from the earth.

For years Woomera has been the mystery corner of Australia's backyard. Rarely has the Australian government lifted even a small edge of the tight security veil that hides it.

BRITISH ROCKETS

Yet there is the desert more than 300 miles north of Adelaide, the nearest major city, missile testing has been non-stop since the range was first established soon after the Second World War.

They've been mainly British rockets of every type from the bomber-borne Blue Steel to the big Black Knight which has so far penetrated nearly 500 miles into space.

The very remoteness of Woomera, baked in an average summer temperature of 96 degrees and parched by a yearly rainfall of only seven inches, makes security easy.

Ranchers on the giant sheep ranches, or stations as they are called in Australia, phone Woomera if they spot an unidentified person or wheel tracks.

But to make sure, the Woomera authorities always have planes in the air and the pilots know every track in the outer wastes on the fringe of the range area. The pilots know immediately if a wheel track is unusual.

UNTOUCHED DESERT

In the town itself, a stranger has no hope of concealment. That, of course, is if he should manage to get that far, as virtually the only means of entry is by air.

Where the town stands was untouched desert 20 years ago. Today it is a creation of the latest air - conditioned apartment buildings and private houses for 85a floating population eg scientists and technicians that total more than 4,500.

Grass has been made to grow where none had grown for tens of thousands of years. The town even has a lush green sports area maintained by the treated effluent from the sewage system—a patch of color that can be seen like a lighted match in the dark from 50 miles away.

Trees have been carefully nurtured in every street so that today some stand 30 feet high.

Beer is always on the ice, the men far outnumber the women, but per head of population the birthrate is the highest in Australia.

And the day the Blue Streak gets off the ground you can bet that most of them will raise an extra glass of beer at the canteens.

U.S. Sure Motion to Seat Red China in UN Will Fail

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United States is fairly confident that despite French President de Gaulle's support of Communist China, a motion to seat the Chinese mainland in the United Nations this year would be beaten down, with some votes to spare.

This confidence, it is stated, is based on the historical performance of the UN, along with a contentious close examination of the views of many of the member countries following de Gaulle's recognition of the Peking government.

Yet there is apprehension in American quarters, for the U.S. is not too sure what de Gaulle's next moves may be, and Paris reports quote his advisers as saying de Gaulle's intentions are not only to push for Communist, China's entry into the UN, but to get the mainland seat on the powerful 11-country Security Council.

If, by chance, this should come about, it could contribute to the wreckage of the UN itself—a matter that may be of little concern to de Gaulle who long has been a critic of this world body, but of great concern to the scores of small countries who have made the UN the cornerstone of their foreign policy.

Financially, the UN is in an unhealthy state. It requires sharply curtailed financial transfusions, largely from the U.S. treasury, in fact, it is difficult to see how the UN could function without the American presence. But every time Congress votes money for the UN there is anguish by a number of congressmen who feel the U.S. merely is supporting a weak and anti-American body.

This kind of criticism, with its threat to U.S. financial contributions, probably would rise sharply if Red China were admitted to membership, as de Gaulle proposes.

As the situation now stands, the U.S. can count on the Formosan regime for full support in any Security Council vote. The opposite would be true if Red China came in.

To protect its own position, the U.S. has made a number of quick calculations. It notes that in the 1963 attempt to seat Red China, the vote against was 57 with 12 abstentions. There now are 113 members. It would take two-thirds of those voting to seat the Peking group.

MORE VOTES NEEDED

The U.S. concludes that even if de Gaulle should get the support of the 14 former French colonies in Africa, there still would not be enough votes to allow Red China to enter. But the U.S. also is aware that world opinion in favor of Red China's entry is increasing. By chance, de Gaulle could be the spark to ignite a fire. Other countries may conclude that if de Gaulle can successfully step on American toes and get away with it so can they.

This is the problem the U.S. faces. De Gaulle's actions may be the historical turning point that could wreck the shaky foundations on which some American foreign policy now stands.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO THURSDAY, MARCH 5, 1964

BACK-HOE owned by McFarland's was mired in the parking lot behind the new building at Victoria and Pinnacle Monday. The crawler-track to the left in this picture dug itself into the soft mud beside the bank, the track to the right became derailed. There was no extensive damage to the machine, according to one company official.

"PUT 'ER THERE, GORD." Jack Tatham tells Gordon Farrell at the side of the Baxter Cannery, Bloomfield. Farrell was operating the monster spike, mounted in place of the bucket on a power shovel, used to smash through frozen ground and concrete floors. Monday, when Tatham was stringing the building-lines for the job, the spike was used to punch holes for the batter-boards. He indicated where he wanted the holes with his toe, but was careful to move it before the spike came down.

Quebec Separatist Leader Forced to Flee College; Provincial Flag Trampled

MONTREAL (CP)—A Quebec separatist leader slipped out the back door of Sir George William University Wednesday after telling 600 students the Queen faces possible "aggression" if she makes a scheduled visit to Quebec this fall.

Guy Poulliot of Quebec City, leader of Le Rassemblement pour L'Independance Nationale, was giving interviews after his speech when it was learned the students had left the auditorium and were standing around in the street outside the university's front door.

There was cheering as Quebec's fleur-de-lys flag, carried by one of the students, was sown to the street and trampled.

Several students inside the building escorted Mr. Poulliot to the back door and he sped away in a taxi.

A spokesman for the students' association said later it was normal for students to congregate in the street because the downtown university has no campus.

MOSTLY PEACEFUL

The students were generally peaceful, the spokesman said, although "a small group of irresponsible students — maybe three or four — had a Quebec flag and did attempt to dance on it."

Other students retrieved the flag and had it placed in a police car. The flag was not torn.

The students had invited Mr. Poulliot to address them in French as part of the English-language university's bicultural week activities.

His speech on separatist principles was interrupted frequently by boos, catcalls and shouts of "speak English."

Before it began, students sang O Canada while Mr. Poulliot sat quietly on stage.

Referring to the queen's visit, he said:

"I think the Queen could very well be the victim of aggression when she comes here.

"This is not a threat or warning—but just my own opinion as a private citizen."

MONTREAL (CP) — Twelve college students who drove through northeast Montreal last Thursday in open convertibles while brandishing old-fashioned weapons are being kept after school.

"They're being punished like children for acting like children," said Brother Clement, Mont St. Louis College's prefect of discipline.

"What do you do with so-called seniors, 20 and 21 years of age, when they act like children?" he asked Wednesday.

"I mulled that over for several days before coming to a fitting conclusion. I decided to treat them like children."

Brother Clement, said the length of punishment will "depend on their reaction to the treatment."

During their antic, which police termed "a particularly obnoxious hoax," the youths wore old army helmets. Two of them carried rifles and lugged a cumbersome German machine gun of First World War vintage.

DISPLAYED WEAPONS

They drove up to several radio and television stations, shouting and displaying their weapons which they obtained from the college museum.

Police released the students only after Brother Clement said the students would be given a fitting punishment.

"If this had happened a year ago," Brother Clement said, "I wouldn't have thought too much about it. But in the light of what has been happening lately, they certainly displayed a lack of maturity."

The students said they carried out the demonstration to protest police refusal to watch over one of their sports activities. Police said the stpendence wouldn't be large enough to warrant police guards.

Police said the demonstration was in bad taste because of recent terrorist activities of separatist groups.

IT'S NORMAL

A spokesman for the students' association said late Wednesday night that it was normal for the students to congregate in front of the Drummond Street university because of the lack of a campus.

"There is nowhere students can go outside the building except on the street. They congregated there after Mr. Poulliot's address but were peaceful.

"A small group of irresponsible students—maybe three or four—had a Quebec flag and did attempt to dance on it. However, other students retrieved the flag and had it placed in a police car. The flag was not torn."

The students' spokesman said that arrangements had been made beforehand to have police on hand to avoid any possible trouble.

SHOWS 'BRAIN DRAIN'

OTTAWA (CP) — The extent of Canada's "brain drain" to the United States was indicated Wednesday in statistics tabled in the Commons. They show that 1,583 university teachers, engineers, scientists, and physicians and surgeons left Canada in the year ended June 30, 1963, bound for the United States.

Former Bookie Sent to Trial For Forgery

TORONTO (CP) — Former bookmaker Samuel Balsom, 45, of St. Catharines Wednesday was committed for trial on a perjury charge arising from evidence he gave to the royal commission on crime in 1962.

Balsom, who was also committed on two charges of attempting to persuade his one-time employee, Thomas McGroarty, 42, to commit perjury, had bail of $1,000 continued by Magistrate Robert Taylor.

The perjury charge concerns Balsom's alleged false statements that he told McGroarty to tell the truth to the commission. McGroarty said Balsom told him to "deny everything."

During a three-day preliminary hearing that saw tape recordings of conversations between Balsom and McGroarty introduced as evidence, McGroarty testified that two provincial police officers acted as tip-off men for a gambling ring in 1959.

McGroarty, whose address was kept secret by court officials, said Constables K. C. Lamorie and W. C. B. Lawrence would telephone him if there was to be a raid. Under instructions from Balsom, he would then tip off bookies whom Balsom protected.

He also testified that he allowed police to wire him with battery - operated microphones and to tap telephones to record conversations between him and Balsom.

The tape recordings were allowed as evidence after the court was told they were accepted by Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, who conducted the crime commission.

Search Toronto Bars and Cafes For Missing Man

TORONTO (CP)—A group of Owen Sound businessmen searched more than 200 downtown restaurants, bars and hotels Wednesday in an unsuccessful attempt to locate fellow businessman Joseph McCauley, 32, who disappeared here Feb. 25.

His wife Marie, who accompanied the searchers, said a number of leads were turned up and given to the police. The searchers had good co-operation from restaurant and tavern operators.

Mr. McCauley, proprietor of a meat packing business and father of two young children, was last seen when he left a friend to return to his hotel room. He was attending the Ontario Good Roads Convention.

Construction Roundup

By ANDY TURNBULL

BAXTER CANNERY

First concrete at the new Baxter cannery in Bloomfield was poured Tuesday, according to contractor Bill Tatham. The footings may be poured by the end of the week. Tatham's started work, with Jack Tatham himself as superintendent, on Monday. Bloomfield contractors John Leavitt and Blaine Foster bulldozed the remains of the old factory from the site over the past few weeks.

Construction will be of concrete block and precast concrete and Tatham's have promised to have the factory and warehouse more than an acre of floor space — completed and running during the first two weeks of June.

Sub-contracts let so far include block-laying to Bradshaw's, prestressed concrete to Wilson's and final roofing to Quinte Roofing.

BUILDING RECORD

Building permits issued last month in Belleville were for $369,500 worth of construction, $326,100 of it in new residential buildings. Five single houses, four six-plexes and a 21-unit apartment building were authorized. Commercial construction included one $40,000 garage and $400 worth of alterations. There were no industrial buildings.

CAROUSEL MOTEL

Construction of the new Carousel Motel, just north of the new Elliott Motors building, will begin March 15 according to Don Burr, who sold the property for D. J. Whalen Realty Estate. Plans include a 400-seat dining and convention room. Burr says, and a 50-foot illuminated tower is proposed The motel will rank with the biggest in town.

NEW SEWER

They're blasting now, to lay the new storm and sanitary sewer along Latimer Street. Lightfoot's, handling the job, bumped into three feet of unexpected rock below the pavement and explosives are being used to get it out. According to powderman Raymond Cole, charges are being kept small because of the buildings and other sewers in the area. One stretch between an apartment and a retaining wall, may have to be cleared by hand if the rock continues that far. Cole says, though, that the rock there may have been cleared out and replaced with fill years ago.

BELL BUILDING

First day on the job as crane operator for Wilson Concrete Products, Lewis Grey of Northport went out with regular crane operator Mill Whiteman and foreman Jim Whitley to drop some precast slabs on the roof of the new Bell Telephone building. The job involved moving the mobile crane in and out of the parking lot — with the 80-foot boom mounted. It was a tight fit.

The precast slabs were coverings for the top of the stairwell. The rest of the building is cast-in place concrete, but the owner wanted to be able to re-open the stairwell, in case another storey is added. The building is planned to provide for another storey.

SIDNEY ST. SIX-PLEXES

Carsen and Lambert's Sidney court development has the first floor framed now, of the third six-plex in the development. Basement blocks are laid in the fourth, and framing may begin any time now. Leo Buckley is finished, except trim, on his first building and nearly ready for plaster on his second. Basement floor of Buckley's second building was poured Monday and the furnace will be installed as soon as the concrete is set. Plastering will start as soon as the furnace is working. Howard Thompson of Belleville has permits to build two more six-plexes in the immediate area, but there's no progress showing yet.

BANK OF MONTREAL

Plaster is finished and the windows are installed at the new Bank of Montreal building, North Front at College. Plywood panels below the windows will be replaced, soon by aluminum. Plastic tile for the floor is on site, acoustic tile for the ceiling is mostly installed. The all-night depository and vault are about ready.

RAY HEDGER MOTORS

Front end of Ray Hedger's new building, North Front Street, is bricked to first floor ceiling height, but there's another storey to go on top. Back end will be one floor with service-drive-through service bays, not far from completion. Roof steel is expected on site within the next week or two, the roof itself should be on this month.

ELLIOTT MOTORS

Frames are going in the big front windows at Elliott Motors, North Front Street and Pinnacle. Pittsburgh glass foreman Derek Lawday says the glass may arrive this week. It will be installed as soon as it comes. Terrazzo has been laid but not polished in the general offices area. Cement has been poured in the parts department. The floor of the main service department is still dug up while plumbing is being installed.

SMITH TRANSPORT

Howard Lewis of the Tatham Co. was ready to pour the second-last section of the roof of the new Smith Transport terminal a week ago, but it was too cold. Instead, he poured the last two sections together, last Friday. A total of 86 cubic yards of concrete, with two cranes handling the buckets.

In a week or so, when some of the supports can be removed, Bradshaw's men can return to lay blocks in the back wall, and the big doors can be installed. As soon as the building is closed, the floor of the main warehouse area can be poured.

Frank Westlake, doing wiring for Acme Electric, says all the light wires in the building are going through steel conduit. Service wires from outside are coming in underground, telephone lines will probably be underground and even the wires to the pole-mounted floodlights outside the building are buried.

CAR WASH

Gordon Ray of Belleville poured the floor in the new washroom — storage area part of the new car wash on Dundas near Foster last week, working as subcontractor to Fred Smith.

NEW WATER MAIN

City Council Monday gave third reading to a bylaw authorizing construction of a new water main from the filtration plant to the intersection of West Moira and Sidney Sts. Lightfoot's have the $250,000 contract and Norm Lightfoot says he will start work on it early next week.

Refreshment Stand Issue Before Council

DESERONTO — The problem of Mr. Kirvar's refreshment stand on Stanley Avenue continues to plague the Town Council of Deseronto.

Displaying the rare form that has kept them successful in this problem for over a month council once again faced the disposition of the lunch counter proprietor, the question and operation of the booth.

The report that had all the elements of "let's pass the buck" council had voted at a previous meeting to turn the matter over to the Board of Health.

Apparently this move was made out of some indecision in the letter from Mr. and Mrs. Jordan, next door neighbors to Mr. Klever, that their property was being blighted with refuse from children using the refreshment booth.

Council came to this decision after the letter had been handed over to the Committee on By-Laws for a scrutiny of the By-Law governing the residential area in which the booth had been established.

The Board of Health dealt with the Council's move summarily and returned the letters to council with a statement that it was questionable that they were within the Board's jurisdiction. Somewhat at a loss as to what to do the Council had Mr. Jordan's letter re-read.

Although the first sentence of the letter pointed out specifically that it was the erection and operation of a refreshment booth" council was more concerned with the questions of litter and the noise of children during the use of the booth during the summer months.

Reeve Alford, sitting in for Mayor Lott, who was absent in Toronto on town business, said he felt the problem definitely centred in the letter and the noise of children.

He said he felt that "Mr. Klever is a reasonable man" and volunteered to speak to him concerning these two problems.

Council seemed relieved to discover another way out of their vexing problem.

Little Chance Filtration Plant to Operate This Year

DESERONTO — The river of letters continues to flow past Deseronto's yet unbuilt filtration plant.

Monday night's council meeting showed little chance of the plant's operation this year.

In a lengthy letter from Hindsey and Barrington, consulting engineers for the town, indication was given that preliminary work would un much of the summer and fall. A further problem was seen in the method used to dispose of dispensed filter.

Town council has been openly critical of the engineering firm's determination to make a full test of the town's water during the period of highest pollution.

Councillor Marks voiced the committee's disapproval of the length of time proposed by the Ontario Water Resources Commission and the consulting engineers as necessary for the test.

In a motion passed by council Mr. Marks recommended that the town contact the Resources Commission and ask for a meeting with council to see what could be done to cut down the delay in putting the filtration plant into operation. "Nothing definite in short notice stor working yet," said Mr. Marks, "and that is only a small part of the filtration system."

In their letter to council Hindsey and Barrington agreed with the OWRC on the necessity of a test during the first few months of highest pollution. In a previous letter this was point ed out to be through summer to the fall.

PROPOSE ALTERNATE

The engineering firm retained by the town are a further problem in the method adopted to get rid of expended filter material. They disagreed with the OWRC's recommendations and proposed an alternate.

The firm pointed out that the disintegration used to filter could be trucked to the town dump when expended used as land fill, or pumped into a lagoon.

Each of these was felt to involve, respectively, a high cost of labor, equipment, or operation, the latter being most expensive. There is no suitable property near at hand on which to build the necessary lagoon.

The alternate plan proposed was to make use of the marshy area that lies to the east of the town between it and the country boundary.

According to the consulting firm this would be a ready made disposal area.

The consulting engineers stated that no commitment would be made on behalf of the town without the prior approval of the council.

School Board Delays Work On Budget

DESERONTO—Failure of the Napanee School Board to supply the local trustees with costs of education figures caused the Deseronto School Board to postpone their major item of business.

Meeting to set their budgets for the coming year the board found itself unable to do so because the auditor's figures from Napanee were not yet available.

Chairman John Neal indicated that the necessary figures would be available in time for the finance meeting scheduled the 19th of March.

Correspondence and business were at a minimum at the February meeting of the board.

A letter from the Council of the Town of Deseronto regarding the boards decision to take legal action in order to meet debts outstanding on the high school account was read. Council's letter, couched in legal language, pointed out that it (council) had never refused to pay the high school account.

It did request, however, that the board provide an itemized statement on all high school accounting and that since the school board had itemized costs in other areas of expenditure that it had no real reason for refusing to do the same when high school expenses were involved.

Chairman Neal pointed out that the Board had itemized the high school account in the same manner as it had done the others.

"We indicated," he said in a statement later, "that the request for $250 was for maintenance. This was not sufficient, evidently."

Secretary Madeline Stevenson pointed out that the bill for maintenance was yet unpaid although Council had covered all other expenses.

Trustee Armitage recommended that the bill be filed suggesting that the board might wait to see how long the council would refuse to meet the expense.

A further statement from the secretary indicated that the board, now operating under Bill 80 of the Schools Administration Act, had the latest grant cheque deposited to its credit.

It was moved that the board pay the outstanding account and the bone of contention be laid to rest.

Mrs. E. B. Bealey of London, a district commissioner of girl guides in England, said that mixed camping for boys and girls at an early teenage level was just beginning in her country.

Councillor Gets Absence Leave For 3 Months

DESERONTO — Acting to preserve his seat on Council Councillor Colley was granted Monday night to provide Councillor Colley with a three-month leave of absence due to illness.

Both Councillor Colley and his wife have been in hospital until recently where both underwent serious operations.

It was not expected the Councillor would be able to resume his council activities for some time so the motion to request his absence was made.

At the same meeting of council the Deseronto Athletic Association requested a grant with the property chairmen to obtain funds to demolish the old building adjoining the arena and build a new one.

Property Chairman Jim Sharpe informed Council that the roof of the present building was salvagable. He felt a grant of $400 from Council would provide materials enough to build a concrete block building that would hold the present roof and provide adequate room for the arena.

Since no member of council would second Mr. Sharpe's motion it was assumed that council were in disagreement with the plan. The motion was not proposed and it died.

In a following move Councillor Marks reversed the action and recommended that the amount required be placed in the budget of the property committee.

Although three councillors voted in favor of the motion no contrary votes were taken.

John James Deutch at the Helm

A Prodigious Task for an Economic Prodigy

BY DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—At the command, he wrote in 1962, tre of economic thought in Canada is John James Deutsch, 52, the $25,000-a-year chairman of the new, untried Economic Council of Canada, he has the prodigious task of piloting a group of 25 businessmen, industrialists and labor and farm leaders on the trail of a long-term economic program for this country.

His Canadian friends say difficult, politically delicate job are unquestioned.

For nearly 30 years the Saskatchewan-born economist has been a sort of roving royal commissioner, taking assignments alternately from both Liberal and Conservative governments with all the equanimity of a man with an avowed distaste for party politics.

His career has spanned domestic economic affairs, federal - provincial relations, central banking, trade and tariffs, unemployment and education. He has included key positions in both domestic and external affairs departments.

Observers here predict that Dr. Deutsch influence will be predominant when the council makes its first report, toward the end of next year.

DIDN'T SAY YES

In fact he has practically written his own ticket for the job.

In 1962 Prime Minister Diefenbaker approached Dr. Deutsch to head up the Conservative government's proposed National Economic Development Board.

However, Mr. Deutsch was non-committal. He reserved his answer until he saw whether the legislation would pass through Parliament, and in what ultimate form.

The board was never set up. The legislation died when the Diefenbaker government was defeated in February, 1963. The bill had been attacked by the Liberals as just another wing of the finance department to make confidential reports to the Cabinet.

Informants say that after the Pearson government was formed, Mr. Deutsch was sounded out before the Liberals drafted the legislation that led to the present council.

Ultimately he was offered the chairmanship. He accepted. But he attached conditions.

One of these was political independence for himself, as well as in statutory intent, for the council. Friends now say they have no doubt that Mr. Deutsch will quit in a trice if the council's work is either thwarted or shunned.

HAND IN SELECTION

He also had a strong voice in the choice of the two full-time council directors — J. Arthur Smith and J. L. E. Coulliard — as well as in the make-up, and in some cases the individual selection, of the 25 part - time council members.

Moreover, he was given a free hand—within some financial limits—to recruit his own relatively small, select staff of researchers and analysts.

With the help of salaries above the civil service level, he plucked about 20 of these experts from government departments and business and industry.

"It's Deutch's council," said one Ottawa observer.

There is no doubt, however, there is nothing in his other than writings to indicate that he ever advocated the creation of such a body.

This is not to say that he has any doubt about offering advice to governments.

As late as 1961 he wrote—in an address to the Canadian-American relations seminar at Assumption University in Windsor, Ont.—that he favored "selective" free trade with the United States.

He explained this as an arrangement "under which those industries with the greatest potential for a more efficient division of effort are given free and assured access to the markets of both countries."

MUST SPECIALIZE

He has long been an advocate of specialization in Canadian industry. To wit:

"We must concentrate our manufacturing efforts more on the things we do best, and stop trying to produce bits and pieces of everything."

Mr. Deutsch has been sharply critical of using public funds to prop up "declining industries" with continuing subsidies or various protective shields against competition.

The money would be far better spent on providing the capital, skills and social facilities for setting up new industries "which have a rising consumer

"We seem to be slow in developing machinery and policies for such a shift in emphasis. In a period of exceedingly rapid change this deficiency is a serious handicap."

He has said Canada can have a "satisfying role" in the Kennedy round of tariff-cutting negotiations.

"However, we cannot expect to find a satisfactory place if we abow ourselves to be only a numb and clueless bystander. We shall have to make an active contribution in outward-looking trade policies, in new concepts and new ideas. The old and petty horse-trading tactics of the past have become irrelevant and useless."

OFFERED GATT POST

Before he took the council chairmanship, it has been learned, he was offered the post of head of the Canadian negotiating team for the Kennedy round, opening in Geneva this month under GATT (the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade).

Now he works behind a large desk in a walnut-panelled office in a spanking new commercial building across from Parliament Hill. The room is flanked with loaded bookshelves and desk gadgetry as clean—he quit smoking a year ago.

His manner, dress and speech are as low - keyed. Deutsch speaks simply and to the point, yet chooses his words carefully. He does not like to be quoted directly by reporters.

He wants to be known as "Mr. Deutsch." But for years he has been called "Dr. Deutsch" and still is, by those around him. The doctorate is an honorary one from St. Mary's University in Halifax.

He doesn't regard his present job as a career, he said in one recent interview. His professorship at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., where he was vice-principal, awaits him.

He is the oldest of 17 children of a Bavarian peasant who emigrated, homesteaded at Quinton, east of Saskatoon, and married a Hungarian immigrant.

QUEEN'S GRAD

Only John got a formal education. And he got it during the Depression, working at odd jobs to put himself through high school at Campion College in Regina. Then he moved to Queen's where he worked his way to a B. Comm. in commerce and economics by teaching mathematics at Regiopolis College in Kingston.

After doing some post-graduate work in 1936 at Queen's, he took a job in the research department of the then-new Bank of Canada in Ottawa, but within a year was on loan for the 1937-40 period at assistant research director of the Rowell - Sirois commission on federal-provincial relations.

Then he got his first assignment from Lester B. Pearson. In 1942 Mr. Pearson, then undersecretary of state for external affairs, was looking for economists for the department. He went to the Bank of Canada and got Mr. Deutsch, taking him on as his special wartime assistant.

For the next three years he was on the three-man Canadian team that played a vital role in the Bretton Woods Conferences that led to establishment of the International Monetary Fund.

The other two were Louis Rasminsky, now governor of the Bank of Canada, and Dr. W. A. Mackintosh, emiment economist whom who then was in the finance department and now is vice-chancellor of Queen's.

TOURED WORLD

After the war, he did a brief stint as editorial adviser on the Winnipeg Free Press, moving late in 1945 to the Manitoba commission on adult education. Then a year later to the post of secretary of Walter Gordon's first royal commission — the one on administration and relations in the federal civil service.

In June, 1946, Mr. Deutsch went to the finance department as its first director of the newly created International economic relations division. In that post he toured the world, attending conferences on GATT, the IMF and the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development, the Colombo plan, NATO, and the Commonwealth economic conference in 1952.

On Jan. 1, 1953, he was appointed an assistant deputy minister. One year later he became secretary of the treasury board.

He is credited with helping oversees federal budgetary spending. It was his last administrative job, lasting for three years.

He resigned in 1956 to become head of the University of British Columbia's department of economics and political science.

Then began the round of royal commissions: 1957, member of the royal commission on Newfoundland finances; 1958, chairman of the Greater Winnipeg distribution inquiry commission; 1960, economic adviser to the Senate manpower committee; 1961, chairman of New Brunswick's royal commission on high education; later in 1961, a member of the special federal inquiry committee on unemployment insurance.

Dr. Mackintosh named Mr. Deutsch as vice - principal of Queen's in 1959.

Mr. Deutsch is married. He has one daughter, 17, now attending school in Switzerland.

Blues Stop Hawks; Leafs Tie Bruins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One consolation for Toronto Maple Leafs: They won't have to face Boston's battling Bruins again until next season.

Maybe the last interval they'll be able to devise a sure strategy for winning against the perennial last - place National Hockey League club.

Wednesday night's 4-4 tie in Toronto—while New York Rangers edged the visiting Chicago Black Hawks 4-3—was the latest in a series of Toronto humiliations that goes back to mid-January.

The Leafs seemed to have the Bruins' number in the early half of the schedule, well enough to win six of the first eight games between them.

Then the Toronto team lost the touch suddenly, and managed only one victory and one tie in the last six encounters. Two of their losses were shutouts, including an 11-0 landslide that Torontonians doubtless would rather forget.

SCORE LAST-GASP GOAL

Veteran Red Kelly salvaged the tie Wednesday night, last game of the season between the two clubs, when he scored on a close-in backhander with 21 seconds to play and both teams a point apiece.

Kelly's goal capped a late Toronto recovery that saw the Leafs bounce back from a three-goal deficit in the last half of the third period.

Sloppy Toronto defensive play gave veteran Leo Boivin the chance to score for Boston in the first period and Gary Doreboefer to make it 2-0 early in the second.

Then Ron Stewart, a standout for Toronto all through the game, scored the first of two goals on a clean breakaway after Bruins defenceman Ted Green fell with the puck at the Toronto blueline.

Don McKenney muffed a chance to tie the score before the end of the second period when he slapped a penalty shot a foot wide of the Boston net. He was rewarded the shot after Bruins defenceman Tom Johnson hooked him from behind.

In the third period, Boston moved ahead 4-1 when Wayne Rivers banked a shot into the Toronto net off defenceman Carl Brewer and Dean Prentice scored after breaking into the clear at the Leafs' blueline.

Stewart started the Toronto comeback at 11:13, scoring his second goal on 45-foot screened shot that Boston goalie Eddie Johnston never saw.

Two minutes later Andy Bathgate, a former New York star, scored his first goal in Toronto uniform to make it 4-3 and Kelly tied it up at 19:39.

In New York, former Maple Leafs winger Dick Duff provided the margin of victory with a goal in each of the first and second periods.

Harry Howell got New York's third goal and Phil Goyette notched the winner late in the second period.

Chicago scorers were Bobby Hull, Stan Mikita and Eric Nesterenko.

Nesterenko and Hull scored in the 1st period to put the Hawks ahead 2-1, and Mikita's goal in the second period made it a 3-3 tie after New York had taken the lead.

The third period was scoreless.

Both Montreal and Chicago, still tied for the league leadership with 7 points, are in action tonight as Canadiens receive Detroit and the Hawks visit Boston.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Hayward Long Beach, Canada's famous nautical ring for the world heavyweight hydroplane championships may again echo to the roar of the "madding crowd." But don't bet the little lady's cookie-jar on it.

If it does it won't be the full-throated thunder of the unlimited behemoths, thirty-foot rooster tails arching in lacy curtains. More likely the humming staccatos of the flyweights of racing, the seven-litre craft.

It's probably a 100-1 shot, but stranger things have happened. Cassius Clay tore a mighty hole in the bag that was supposed to hold Sonny Liston's title retainer.

Canada retires from the activities of world championship unlimited hydroplane racing a proud undefeated champion.

"Miss Supertest III," her Rocky Marciano of the nautical ring, has "turned in her gear" and reposes somewhere with her rakish hull filled with memories of Harmsworth triumphs and a gallant young Bobby Hayward who died at the helm of a sister craft, "Miss Supertest II".

She will recall that brilliant triumph of 1959 when she wrested the famous Harmsworth from his American thirty-year guardians on the foam-tipped waters of the Detroit River.

She will never forget the slightly-rippled surface of the "Reach" in 1960 and 1961 when she easily-turned back the threat of American challengers.

Harmsworth trophy racing has a misty future, it may. The United States is the only country in the world with unlimited hydroplanes. Canada was left in the unique spot of possessing the trophy but with no boat to defend it. She was forced to default in the face of a 1964 American challenge.

Col. Gordon Thompson and son James Thompson, owners of the "Supertest", craft retired from hydroplane racing after the tragic death of Hayward. In a gesture of respect the Americans did not challenge the year after the tragedy.

That year the Thompsons announced their retirement and in the deep established a significant memorial to Hayward who will live on the pages of Canadian sports history as the greatest Harmsworth pilot of all time.

The growing popularity of seven-litre craft racing caused international officials to turn their heads in that direction. Canada has several of these boats as has the Americans and other countries. The Canadian Boating Federation offered to make a Harmsworth defence with seven-litre boats which was promptly turned down by the trophy's Deed of Trust.

So the next best was international seven-litre racing between Canadian foreign boats.

Charles Speers, Windsor, chairman of the International Committee of the Canadian Boating Federation, has written a letter to Len Thompson, of the Yachtsmen's Association of America.

Wrote Speers: "We feel the time has come to propose the organization of an international seven-litre championship race. As you're to our inf rmation there are at present 28 such boats in your country, several in Canada and more in other countries, thus providing us with the opportunity for a race of truly international character. I would suggest that we have a meeting as soon as possible to initiate this plan and draft a set of rules.

Racing officials feel that Speers' suggestion has merit. They say it won't be for the nautical heavyweight championship but flyweights of titular ability would be better than nothing.

And Canada would have a better than even chance to cop the laurels. I noted with pride where two seven-litre craft from Quebec met and defeated American "sevens" in Florida. One of the American boats held the world speed record for the class.

So racing buffs but better keep their fingers crossed. The Hayward Long Reach may yet resound to the purring hums of these flying water-sprites.

Sonny's Opinion Of Cassius

'Average, Lots Of Luck'

DENVER (AP) — The old champion calls the new champion "just an average guy and, him in a corner where he could get away."

.t was Sonny Liston talking about the man whom he lost his heavyweight boxing title, Cassius Clay.

Liston said in an interview that he would like to meet Clay again, "just as soon as my arm gets well and I can give em a test."

Clay won a technical knockout in the seventh round at Miami Beach Feb. 25 when Liston complaining of a pain in his left arm and shoulder, stayed in his corner.

The ex-champion who makes his home in Denver, said Clay has a weakness. "He pulls back when you punch at him." Liston said. "He does not duck them—he goes straight back instead of ducking."

Liston said if he does fight Clay again, "I wouldn't change my style. I'd just try to catch

May Have Flunked Army Test

Quiet Cassius Plans World Tour

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP) — Cassius Clay says he plans on taking a world tour in a month or two and may be gone for a year.

This would seem to confirm a report that the newly crowned heavyweight champion had flunked an army pre-induction psychological test. It also indicated that Sonny Liston may have to wait a long time for another shot at his conqueror.

Clay said Wednesday he had taken the army test at Cincinnati Feb. 26 but declined any knowledge of the outcome.

"I know nothing about that," he said when asked about a report from Louisville that he had failed the exam.

The defence department said the results of the examinations were being "administratively processed in Washington."

He said in a flight some exhibitions on the trip.

COULD JOIN CONTRACT

If Cassius goes through with the lengthy trip he would make his contract with Liston's International Promotions Incorporated a worthless scrap of paper. But after leaving the UN he told a reporter he may only be gone for two months.

Liston is president and a 25% per cent stockholder in International Promotions, which has Clay signed for his next fight. The option, however, expires Jan. 20, 1965.

Soft-spoken and on his best behavior, the 22-year-old Louisville boxer toured the diplomatic and the common folk at the UN with his deportment and enthusiasm.

"I love to meet all the people from all over the world," said Clay in explaining why he came to the UN.

He said he is champion he said his main goal is "to see that 20,000,000 Negroes have freedom, justice and equality in the United States."

Clay, conservatively attired in blazer, shirt and black tie, said he plans to visit Ghana, Nigeria, Egypt, Turkey, Pakistan, Hong Kong and the Moslem holy city of Mecca in Saudi Arabia. Clay has adopted the Moslem religion.

Asked if he expected to meet Pope Paul VI in Rome, Clay replied: "I would love to meet him—yeah."

The Big Seven

Blonde Bobby Hull clicked for one goal and two assists Wednesday night and moved two notches closer to the National Hockey League scoring leadership.

The Chicago strongboy brought his total to 88 goals—tops in the league—and 54 assists for 77 points, while the scoring leader, teammate Stan Mikita, scored one goal for a points total of 81.

Both improved their individual records while their team lost 4-3 to the Rangers in New York.

Jean Beliveau of Montreal, idle Wednesday, remained in third spot with 71 points and Chicago's Kenny Wharram picked up one assist in New York to hold fourth place with 67.

Fifth is Toronto's Andy Bathgate, who collected one goal and one assist as the Leafs tied the visiting Boston Bruins 4-4.

Bathgate's goal was his 32nd of the season and the NHL leadership in that department.

The leaders:

MILAN (AP) — Internazionale of Milan defeated Partizan of Yugoslavia 3-1 in the second match of their quarter - final round European Soccer Cup competition Wednesday and advanced to the semi-finals. In their first meeting, Milan won 2-0.

Seiling Impresses Rangers

NEW YORK (AP) — Muzz Patrick, general manager of New York Rangers, sat in a corner looking much like the cat who'd swallowed the canary.

He had just watched young Rod Seiling's first game in a Ranger uniform and the big National Hockey League treat which brought Seiling and four other Toronto Maple Leaf chattels to New York. Punch Bathgate and Don McKenney was looking better all the time.

Seiling, playing most of two periods, had assisted on the tying goal and led all-star defenceman Pierre Pilote a merry chase the rest of the evening as the Rangers dumped Chicago Black Hawks 4-3.

The youngster rammed Pilote into the boards on his first turn on the ice and from then on he was No. 1 on Pilote's list.

"He was looking for me after that," he said winking. But Pilote never caught up with the youngster and even if he had, the Ranger brass seemed to think Seiling would have been equal to the task.

ISN'T AFRAID

"He's not afraid to take a check to come with that puck," said coach Red Sullivan. "That's the kind of hockey I've been looking for."

"He's big and strong and he knows how to handle the puck," said Patrick.

But perhaps the highest praise for the 19-year-old junior prospect came from Dick Duff, another player in the package the Leafs sent to New York.

"Seiling reminded like he's been in the league for 10 years," said Duff. "The kid really showed that he's got it."

Seiling returns to Toronto Marlboro Juniors today after the one game look-see.

Name Clay Fighter Of Month

NEW YORK (AP) — Cassius Clay, the Louisville bard who threw enough words to fill 10 magazines and enough blows to wrest the heavyweight title from Sonny Liston, Wednesday was named Fighter of the Month for February by Ring magazine.

Liston, a seventh - round technical knockout victim Feb. 25, was dropped to the leading challenger's spot. In other heavyweight division changes, Zora Folley of Chandler, Ariz. and Eddie Machen of Los Angeles each moved up one place, to third spot with 71 points and George Chuvalo of Toronto was ninth.

Among the light - heavyweights whose titleholder is Willie Pastrano, Harold Johnson of Philadelphia, the former champ, moved into the No. 1 spot. He supplanted Eddie Cotton of Seattle, who dropped a 10-round decision to Johnny Pascal, New York. Cotton dropped to third.

GORDIE HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

In my book, there are two kinds of coaches, the fellow who likes to athletics and the fellow who likes to teach.

Let's face it, coaches get a little frustrated at times. Sitting on the bench, they can't do a thing about what's going on on the ice during a game.

You have the old 'hard hat' who believe in noting but work, work, work, that' eventually the problems will solve themselves. And you have coaches who criticize.

After I worked with the youngsters in the Detroit Red Wing hockey school last summer, I was particularly impressed with the way Jim Chapman handles the spuirt team on which my two youngsters, Marty 9, and Mark 8, are playing.

He puts the boys on the back when they come off the ice during the game and he says:

"You worked hard and you did what you thought was right but this is the right way to do it," and he explains the proper technique. This is a coach who teaches.

Then you see the other kind who criticizes. When the boys come in he'll say:

"No, no, no, you did it all wrong. Go back and try it again." The youngsters are learning actually nothing.

Of course, it is considerably different when you get into the National Hockey League. They are the pick of the crop and should know all the fundamentals of hockey.

However, sometimes there are bad habits you've had that you'll have to unlearn. You forget. That's when a fellow like Bob Abel who was a great hockey player, himself, will note these things.

He's not just a gate-opener. He'll come in after a period and say "You're doing this wrong," or "You're doing this too often" and tell you what you should do. That's what I call a teaching coach.

If you do it a second time, as Jack Adams would say, you'll hear about it. You appreciate it when you're treated like a gentleman. You're happy and I think a fellow who is happy can produce much better.

DCA Names Skinner President

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — F. A. (Art) Skinner, an Edmonton insurance company executive, Wednesday was elected president of the Dominion Curling Association, succeeding C. A. (Dick) Topping of Oliver, B.C.

The election of the 43-year-old Albertan at the association's annual meeting here—held in conjunction with the Canadian championship — was unanimity. The executive moves up a notch this year by tradition and Skinner came to the island province as first vice-president.

Fran Sargent of Port Arthur advanced to the first vice-presidency.

The association's membership increased to 136,734 from 122,242 the previous year. The figures are exclusive of women curlers and schoolboy curlers.

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Saskatchewan and British Columbia, pelting away steadily from the ice of the Mid-Ice in the Canadian curling championship, had three more opportunities today to locate the range and fore their climactic meeting Friday.

The redoubtable Richardsons from Regina and Lyall/Dagg's Vancouver foursome both remained unbeaten in five starts as Saskatchewan's defending champions took advantage of a B.C. bye in Thursday night's sixth round to catch the Pacific Coast stink.

Manitoba, rebounding from a pair of opening-day losses, was tied with four victories in six starts, followed by Northern Ontario, Prince Edward Island and Quebec with 3-2 records. Nova Scotia, with an even split in six games, was next. Then came New Brunswick 2-4, New Brunswick at 1-4, Alberta at 1-5 and Newfoundland, winless in six tries.

Today's schedule, the busiest of the five-day round - robin tournament, sent Ernie Richardson against Newfoundland and B.C. against Nova Scotia in the seventh round with the other matches pitting Manitoba against New Brunswick, Northern Ontario against Quebec and Alberta against P.E.I.

Saskatchewan and New Brunswick and Quebec.

WILL FACE N.B.

In tonight's ninth round, Saskatchewan will face Harold Mabey's New Brunswickers and B.C. drew Elmer Bard's Quebec foursome as opponents. Alberta - Newfoundland, Manitoba-Nova Scotia and Northern Ontario-P.E.I. rounded out the remainder of the schedule.

Alberta drew the bye in the morning round with Nova Scotia idle in the afternoon and Ontario in the evening session.

Richardson, seeking his sixth Canadian title, knocked off Ron Mosdell's Calgary foursome 9-5 Thursday's fifth round while Dagg, in what he described as the best game of the tournament, "whipped New Brunswick 10-6. Then, curling with pinpoint accuracy, the champions downed Bob Mann's Hanover, Ont., quartet 12-3 while B.C. sat out the evening round.

Manitoba stayed within shooting distance by dropping New-foundland 15-8 and Northern Ontario 10-8.

Northern Ontario topped Nova Scotia 7-4 and Quebec defeated Ontario 12-8 in the remaining fifth-round games. In the sixth round, Quebec outscored Newfoundland 13-6 and Charlottetown's Art Burke drew hometown cheers by counting one point in the last rock to edge Alberta 9-8.

SCORE 15 LOW

The evening session also produced the lowest-scoring game in tournament history as Jan Baird's Kentville, N.S., rink defeated New Brunswick 4-3 as six of the 12 ends were blanked.

Alberta's Northcott, tied 9-9 with Saskatchewan after 10 ends, lost a possible chance for the game in the next when he chose to go for the buncle instead of blanking the 11th end to gain single point. His difficult attempt for a two count failed a Richardson rock into the house and his opponents counted three.

The 11th end of the Saskatchewan-Alberta match also produced fireworks as both skips face throughs on 18-inch port: Richardson, who had last rock, finished with a four count. Baird chose to draw to Mabey's shot rock with his last effort to win the low-scoring Maritime battle, which enlisted a record six in 1950 that found Nova Scotia on the losing end to Quebec.

Bruins Slip Past Braves

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minneapolis rode past St. Louis into second place in the Central Professional Hockey League Wednesday night on Ray Bruins' 20, 1 line did some fancy skating to pace a 6-4 victory over the Braves.

The Bruins took second place by one point over the Braves. Pacing Minneapolis was the line of Jeamor Gilbert, Gerry Ouellette and Pete Panagabko.

Gilbert and Ouellette each scored twice and Panagabko once as did Moe Bartoli. Al Carse tallied for St. Louis with teammates Ray Cullen and Schaffe getting the others.

St. Louis trailer Ray Uren was jailed following a third-period altercation in which he went into the stands after a fan.

Shelved For Another Year

Curling Body-Passes Up Code Of Ethics

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — The sheep and the goats of Canadian curling will remain peacefully unseparated for at least another year.

In what is becoming a ritual at annual meetings of the Canadian Curling Association, members of the sport's governing body defeated the issue of professionalism Wednesday and backed away without reaching a decision.

By a 24-to-19 vote, with at least five abstentions, the DCA voted to shelve a proposal for a code of ethics that would have forced the best curlers in the country out of the Canadian championships and all other events sanctioned by the national organization.

The proposal, strongly backed by Ontario and other eastern provinces and just as vociferously opposed by the West, included a ban on product endorsations and restricted the value of a bonspiel's top prize to $800 a rink or $200 a curler. It also set up a residence rule. Violators of the code would have forced the best curlers in the country out of the Canadian championships and all other events sanctioned by the national organization.

The proposal, strongly backed by Ontario and other eastern provinces and just as vociferously opposed by the West, included a ban on product endorsations and restricted the value of a bonspiel's top prize to $800 a rink or $200 a curler. It also set up a residence rule. Violators of the code would have forced the best curlers in the country out of the Canadian championships and all other events sanctioned by the national organization.

Colin Campbell of Kingston, a past president of the DCA, formally put the issue on the agenda two years ago by introducing a motion to introduce a code limiting prizes to $800 a rink or $150 a man. Last year's meeting referred the measure to a committee for redrafting.

MAKE CONCESSION

The eight - man committee made a concession to the West by empowering affiliated associations to sanction carspiels, in which automobiles are awarded to the winning rink.

Western curlers, who have dominated competitive aspects of the game for years but command a minority of DCA votes, argue that the code would restrict the development of curling and turn it into a rich man's game.

In a 25-minute speech against the code Thursday, Chief Justice E. M. Culliton of Saskatchewan said the measure, by eliminating Canada's best rinks from international competition, which are under DCA control, would damage Canadian curling prestige.

"Why place Canada at a disadvantage to other countries that don't subscribe to the puritanical view," he asked, urging that every effort be made to make sure the best men go to international events.

LAUNCH SENIORS

In other business, the DCA launched a national senior championship for curlers 55 and over with a minimum aggregate age of 240 for a rink. Applications to hold the first bonspiel in 1963 were received from Hamilton and Bathurst, N.B.

A rule change was adopted prohibiting any part of a curler's equipment from crossing the hog line on delivery. Previously the restriction was limited to a curler's body and the broom was permitted to cross.

F. A. (Art) Skinner, an Edmonton insurance executive, succeeded R. J. (Dick) Topping of Oliver, B.C., as the DCA's president. . . . Bob Sargent of Port Arthur, Gordon Bennett of Charlottetown, William Lumsden of Winnipeg and Harry Carter of St. John's, Nfld., were named vice-presidents.

Don Zimmer Heads List

Injuries Hit Training Camps

By MURRA YCHASS

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Veteran infielder Don Zimmer, who attracts injuries like John Wayne's jaw draws flats, can't even find refuge on a handball court.

As a result, Zimmer heads the rapidly growing list of players hurt in the early stages of spring training. The 33-year-old Washington Senator is set for a four - to - six - week involuntary rest with a broken left hand.

Joining Zimmer on the injured report Wednesday, among others, were pitcher Gary Peters of Chicago White Sox, inflamed left shoulder; Chicago Cubs shortstop Andre Rodgers, ailing finger; Don Mossi, Detroit Tigers' pitcher, sore left elbow, and infielder Phil Linz of New York Yankees, face cuts.

Zimmer, expected to be Washington's third baseman this season, reported he broke his hand last Monday when he hit it against a wall in a hand-ball game.

It was only another in a long line of mishaps for Zimmer, who broke his right leg in 1958 with his fifth team. He has been hurt in the minor leagues, in the service, Puerto Rico and on the highway.

HAS BEEN SHUNTED

Perhaps because of Zimmer's problems, he has only a .237 lifetime batting average and has been shunted around among five teams in the last four years.

Peters, the American League's rookie of the year last season, was advised not to throw for five days following treatment for his sore shoulder. He joined third baseman Pete Ward on the White Sox injured list. The Montreal-born third baseman went to hospital Tuesday with a back injury.

Rodgers had the middle finger on his left hand spiked when he tagged a runner sliding into second base in the Cubs' first intrasquad game. Three stitches were taken in the finger.

Mossie came up with his sore elbow as the apparent result of a strained muscle. The Detroit southpaw probably will be out until next week. A teammate, first - baseman Norm Cash, pulled a muscle in his right side during a batting drill and was not expected to miss any practice.

Linz was hit by a batted ball during practice. The ball shattered his glasses, which cut him on the left cheek and the nose. His cheek required two stitches.

Dr. Sydney Gaylor, Yankees' physician, pushed from the bench when Linz was hit and ruptured a left leg muscle.

MOSCOW (AP) — Gaffiel Korobkov, veteran coach of the Soviet track and field team, predicted Wednesday the Russians will be so powerful at Tokyo that they will win the 1964 Olympic games regardless of the competition. "Our athletes have been training for five months," Korobkov said in an article in Sovietsky Sport, "and some of them have been training since the end of last season."

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

Remember when Canadian pro football was rammed down the throats of a panting public as a year-round diet? Recall when either jubilantly announced in March, or ever so far back as December, that they had signed the boiled college prospect in the United States right under the noses of American scouts?

It got so that fans could picture a Canadian coach outsprinting his American counterpart to put the clutch on the greatest pro prospect since Red Grange or Jim Thorpe.

Invariably, the Canadian caught up to the sweaty hero as he walked between the goalposts after a Rose, Cotton, Sugar or some other bowl game. They painted such a rosy picture that the hero probably thought he saw greenbacks sticking out of the Canadian's ear and oil spouting out of his pockets.

The prospect wasn't just a triple-threat. He could pass, catch a pass, block punt, kick field goals from the centre stripe, run the 100-with pads on—in 9.5 and jar a ball carrier right to his cleated boots with his tackling. Not only that, but he was a great field general.

BIG SQUEEZE

Season ticket subscribers lined up early. And, inevitably, when the season started, they needed to consult the program to spot the December catch—if he was still around.

Fortunately, most of that jazz has gone. The reason is that the Canadian Football League at last has found itself in the middle of a big squeeze by the National and American Leagues for talent.

Recall, too, the big off-season trade of the five-for-one Jackie Parker deal between Edmonton Eskimos and Toronto Argonauts, the big play boy and Cookie Gilchrist got when he signed with Argonauts a few years ago.

Now, it appears, most of the Canadian teams are using the soft sell.

Listen to Lew Hayman, managing director of the Argonauts in the Eastern Conference who has been through the mill and who, probably more than any other club official, has had high hopes in the spring. And nothing, but grief in the fall when the teams got down to business.

MUST PRODUCE

"People are tired of the same old junk," Hayman said in an interview this week. "They don't want great signings and so on embellished by words in the spring and then watch us fall flat on our faces in the fall.

"I'm directing policy this year at the club hopes—to show people by performance rather than by words. Every year we've come up with one big jazzy play and I feel now that we have to produce. I don't anticipate any big trades, tremendous signings, or any mid-season airlift.

"We know the problems of our club — the pitfalls, the strength, the weaknesses. We don't want to sign more than 13 new Americans. Our idea is to co-ordinate our offensive and defensive units in exhibition games and be all set for our first league game in August."

Americans Nip Bisons, Bears Lose

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It took a long time coming but Rochester Americans finally managed to win an American Hockey League game in Buffalo.

Wednesday night the Amerks shaded the Bisons 3-2 for their first win in Buffalo's Memorial Auditorium since the opening of the 1961-62 season. The Americans had lost 12 and tied one there since.

In other league action, Springfield Indians came from behind late in the third period to tie Hershey Bears 5-5.

Ed Litzenberger put the Americans ahead late in the middle period when Buffalo was on a man short. Doug Robinson then fired two in a row to give the Bisons the lead.

Kent Douglas, sent down to Rochester by Toronto Maple Leafs of the National League, tied the score at the three-quarter mark of the third. Dick Gamble's backhand shot with less than two minutes remaining in the contest gave the Amerks the win.

Komet Lead Cut To One Point

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The league - leading Fort Wayne Komets are cramped for breathing space in the International Hockey League. The Komets' once-comfortable 11-point lead has been trimmed to one point and the second-place Toledo Blades are in good position to make things worse for Fort Wayne.

Wednesday night Toledo whitewashed the third - place Port Huron Flags 4-0 to move within one point of the Komets. With less than a month remaining in the schedule, the Blades have two games in hand on the league-leaders.

In other Wednesday action, Muskegon Zephyrs dumped Chatham Maroons 5-1 and also bit killed any playoff hopes fostered by the fall-end Maroons.

Walter Bradley, Don Westbrook, Chick Chalmers and Terry Slater supplied the goals to give Toledo netminder Glen Ramsey his fifth shutout of the season.

Bryan McLay and Joe Kastelic each fired a pair of goals to pace the fifth-place Zephyrs. Claude Boucher had the other. Frank St. Marseilles scored for Chatham.

Minor Hockey Results

The Browns built a four-goal lead over Flyers with a 5-1 victory last night in one half of the Tyke division semi-finals. Leafs and Barons battled to a 1-1 deadlock in the other semi-final tilt. Both were the first in two-game, total-goals series. Rick Brunelle and Dave Flesch fired two goals apiece for the Browns with John Oliver netting the odd one. Murray Bales was the lone Flyer marksman.

In the tie game, A. Wood triggered the Barons' goal with John Homewood replying for the Leafs.

In consolation play, Rangers clipped Wings 3-1, Royals clipped the Frontenacs 4-2 and Canadiens edged the Hawks 3-2.

W. Monsma scored both Ranger goals. L. Kirby netted the Wing goal.

C. Neff sparked the Royals with a three-goal effort while mate Dale Jones got the other marker. J. Masterson looked after both Frontenac scoring plays.

Tod Eves potted two goals and B. Kaiser one for Canadiens. T. Marta was the triggerman on both Hawk scoring plays.

In an exhibition game, Macs shaded the Bruins 3-2. Dave Sullivan, Doug Mattis and Mattis Thiele scored for the Macs. P. Moorman and A. Tvbworth bagged the Bruin goals.

Interviewing Bette Davis Not Too Enlightening

By DAVE SMITH

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — If you're new to the Hollywood beat, you don't just walk up to Bette Davis and say: "Hi, Bette. What's up?"

Before you even get within gunshot of her house, her manager asks what you want to talk about and then he'll see "if she can find time."

She finds time, and you are brought in as if on a try.

A conversation starts before you get in the room with her, runs hell - for - leather while you're there and continues until you're halfway up the driveway. Only you wind up talking about everything but what you went there for.

Method acting, for instance.

"Stanislavsky was essentially right, of course," she says. "An actor must have a method. But there are method actors today who've strayed far from what Stanislavsky meant. They are so subjective in a role, they impose their personal selves upon it so much . . ."

WORK TOO HARD

"They work so hard at being the character that they lose their audience right away. The audience just sits there and thinks, 'well, you're up there and you're a real mess, but I'm down here and I'm not like you at all.'"

You ask, "Okay, so what's your method?" She sinks back in her chair, lights a cigarette and spits out: "Oh, I just do it. I don't bleed and die, I just do it. And pray to God."

A mounting pile of cigarette butts moves you to comment on the U.S. surgeon general's smoking report.

"I think I'd die if I quit," she says. "Twice I tried to quit. Instead I knit. Which I hated. But it's the hands, you see. I've got to have something for them to do. So I smoke. But I don't really inhale very much."

Hunt for Atomic Submarine Given Splendid Coverage

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The CBS Reports program Wednesday was a careful account of the frustrating hunt for the atomic submarine Thresher.

The ship sank last April 10 about 250 miles out of Boston with 129 officers and men aboard, 8,400 feet down in a "dark, silent and awkward world."

The story of the search showed the almost insurmountable problems — unpredictable tides, rough seas, enormous pressure and lack of vessels that can operate effectively at great depths.

The bathysphe Trieste eventually did retrieve some debris from the submarine, and made some photographs while hovering above pieces of metal. They were shown on the program. But the story of the sub's fate expected to come this spring when the navy deep diving vessel resumes its search.

The point of the television program was that the sinking forced a realization of how little we know about the ocean depths.

The Legacy of the Thresher was a fine program.

Lucille Ball, CBS now expects, will be back next season in her Monday night spot, after all.

Dick Clark's The Object Is will probably be dropped from ABC's daytime schedule to make room for Missing Links, moving over at month's end from NBC . . . Laszlo has been renewed by CBS for still another season, but may turn up next season with a new human family . . . Joey Bishop's series, believed doomed, will be moved to Tuesday nights next fall—and Imogene Coca's Grindl also is a likely candidate for another season.

Liberal Leader Charges 'Political Dishonesty' in Dealing With Gasoline Tax

TORONTO—(CP)— Liberal Leader Farquhar Oliver charged the Conservative government Wednesday with "political dishonesty" for not calling the people of Ontario before the Sept. 25 provincial election to take taxes would have to be raised.

Mr. Oliver was speaking against a bill raising the gasoline tax by two cents a gallon. The bill was given second reading after the defeat of a New Democratic Party motion to replace it with a weight-distance tax.

Liberals voted with the government against the NDP amendment. The New Democrats called for a recorded vote, and the division was 81 to 4. Two of the seven New Democrats in the legislature were absent.

The combined opposition then voted against second reading of the bill. But the government easily approved it in principle by a vote of 65 to 24. The bill now goes to committee of the whole house before receiving third reading.

The government put the additional gasoline tax into effect Feb 13 by order-in-council. Tax on gas now is 12 cents a gallon. It had been 13 cents a gallon since 1957.

IT'S ALONE

Mr. Oliver said that of four government taxation measures, this was the only one that had come before the legislature. The other three — increased liquor prices, increased hospital insurance premiums, and increased automobile registration costs — not need approval of the house.

During the election campaign, said the Liberal leader, the Conservative party issued a propaganda leaflet listing 25 reasons why the pay-as-you-go policy should vote for the government. The 19th of these stated "tax concessions for our people."

The government had known full well at that time that taxes would have to be increased, he said. But Premier Robarts had made a murmur about this.

Mr. Oliver said that was "political dishonesty in a stand of that kind."

The budget presented by Provincial Treasurer Allan was "stand-pat in the extreme," he said.

It was "bringing inadequacies in the past up to the present and projecting them into the future."

ISN'T PLEASANT

Mr. Allan replied that imposing new taxes was not a pleasant responsibility.

The government had given consideration to the weight-distance tax, he said, but decided the gasoline tax increase was more reasonable.

Premier Robarts announced that Ontario will provide a new car pavilion for the Montreal world's fair in 1967.

Mr. Robarts mentioned no estimate of the cost of the exhibit. He said the building would be erected at last site for the six - month life of the fair.

This will be designed to advertise Ontario as a good place in which to live, in which to do business, and which to visit."

The province expects that millions of Americans will pass through Ontario en route to Montreal to visit the fair, the premier said.

Guide Posts For Election Come April 9

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—After April 9 party leaders shouldn't need political calculating machines to figure out which way the general election winds are blowing.

On that date nearly one-sixth of the country's total electorate go to the polls to decide whether Conservatives or Labor will control the 26th session of Great London council.

The new council replaces the present London county council in April, 1965. It will rule over 23 "super" boroughs and county administration areas that roughly embraces 103 of the 220 parliamentary constituencies.

Most observers now believe this general election won't be held until June. Thus London's local election is being heralded as "the greatest three-cornered" in British political history.

The theory is that as London goes, so goes the country.

Of the 23 new boroughs, 12 are considered safely Tory and 6 safely Labor. Current trends reported by public opinion polls suggest that Labor could win five or six of the three marginal boroughs and an overall tie now council.

One possibility has silenced the socialist critics who have been fighting the Greater London Bill, but by Labor's reckoning inch since it was first conceived in 1957.

TRADITIONAL GROUND

Labor has dominated the LCC since 1934 and County Hall, as imposing building just over the river from Parliament, has long been a training ground for promising young politicians who later crossed the floor to sit on the Labor front bench.

At first Labor thought the plan to enlarge London was a Tory conspiracy to gerrymander them out of power. Many of the new boroughs are bastions of old or peripheral counties, lack traditional bastions of Conservatism.

Socialists also objected to the fragmentation in the structure of the LCC which has often been cited as a model of proper urban administration. In the reorganized London, the council will deal only with top civic matters, most of the responsibilities and most of the administrative work will be done independently by the subordinate boroughs.

These criticisms have largely been met by the new awards of the LCC, particularly its school system, will be incorporated in the new London Boards. Skilful redrawing of the boundaries has left the political balance delicately poised.

The geographical result is that the old county of Middlesex will vanish, most of it into Greater London, and odd chunks of Surrey, Kent and Essex have been added to the metropolis.

BIG GAIN

The scope of this change can be judged by the fact that the administrative population of London will be boosted to 8,023,000 from 3,190,000.

As it turns out Labor rules over a huge wedge of the city running roughly from the central area towards the south and east. The Conservatives control a suburban horseshoe and a city nucleus.

In between are the marginal boroughs, middle-class residential streets and modern shopping centres and areas duplex - lined streets and modern shopping centres. One of them is Orpington where a new government protest vote gave the Liberals an upset byelection victory in 1962.

Both Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home and Opposition Leader Harold Wilson will be watching Orpington closely April 9. If the theorists are right, it holds a key to Britain's parliamentary future.

Pattern of Sexual Behavior Pretty Well Established in Men at 16, Women Later

By JOY MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The general pattern of sexual behavior is pretty well established in men by age 16 later for women) and by the time of marriage most men have already passed the peak of their sexual capacity, which occurs in late adolescence.

The death penalty does not appear to influence the rate of homicide.

Prejudice and discrimination are not innate but are learned, usually within the family and often without conscious intent.

During the last century in the U.S. there has been no increase in the incidence of psychotic behavior up to age 50, at least as indicated by rates of hospital care.

These are among the 1,045 general conclusions two behavioral scientists have listed in a book, Human Behavior: An Inventory of Scientific Findings, published recently. They were sifted from research studies, polls and experiments reported by scholars and scientists during the last 75 years.

TWO-MAN TEAM

The men who conducted the massive inventory are Bernard Berelson, vice-president of the Population Council and formerly a faculty member of Chicago and Columbia Universities and director of the behavioral science program of the Ford Foundation; and Gary A. Steiner, associate professor of psychology in the Graduate School of Business at the University of Chicago.

The findings—some of which the authors agree will appear obvious or trivial—start with the development of behavior and go on to cover the family, relations in organizations and society and culture as a whole.

Relatively little of what most people strive for most of the time is necessary for sheer survival, the researchers found. This is especially true in an affluent society. In fact, what many people want and do, not only remains unskilled but even detrimental to their physical welfare — such as smoking, drinking alcoholic beverages and dieting for appearance.

By and large children develop in the sequence—such as crawl before run—although not at the same rate.

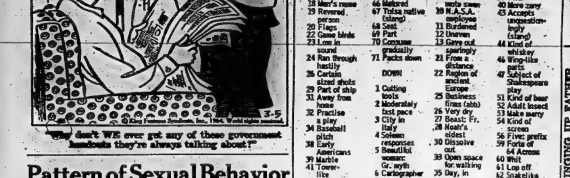
RETARD ADVANTAGE

The faster child is likely to retain the advantage. There is no evidence that slower children are likely to catch up at a later date. Children who are taller or smarter or better at a variety of skills are likely to remain superior.

And there's nothing to the belief that exceptionally bright children are likely to be handicapped in physical health or personality or social adjustment. They also remain superior to the average population in all these areas when they grow up, the behavior report states.

One popular impression confirmed in the inventory findings has to do with the differences between men and women—and certainly few men will dispute it. It's that generally speaking, on intelligence tests "males are usually superior in mathematical reasoning, judgment and manipulation of spatial relationships and mechanical aptitude, while females exceed males in vocabulary, verbal fluency and straight memory."

Marriage, it seems, exists in every known human society. Premarital sexual relations are allowed in a majority of human societies, but extramarital relations are almost universally condemned. And in virtually every society there is some procedure for divorcing a mate, while at the same time it is subject to some social disapproval.



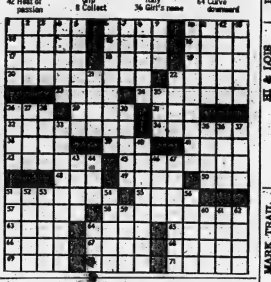
HUMANS VARIABLE

One finding that may surprise sophisticates, inforiate analysts and delight all those who poohpooh psychiatry:

"There is no conclusive evidence that psychotherapy is more effective than general medical counselling or advice in treating neurosis or psychosis."

The two writers regard the conclusions in their inventory as being fairly solidly established by carefully assembled evidence.

But one of their findings probably restrains subridled enthusiasm about being the last word: "Human behavior is far more variable, and therefore less predictable, than that of any other living species."



"Who do we know with three sad-faces, a dog and four kids?"

Soybeans, Cattle Not Kind Of Food That Can Go to Cuba

By HAROLD HUDESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In the lexicon of U.S. export controllers, soybeans and cattle may be considered the kind of food that can be exported to Cuba.

The United States often has stated that its economic embargo against Havana by Ottawa does not extend to food and medicine. The U.S. would not like to see the embargo undergo intense personal scrutiny because of U.S. opposition to the Castro regime.

Yet a close examination of the fine print indicates there is a subtle difference between food and food. As was shown in the case of lard, the government moved quickly to block the door against any unwarranted export of that basic kitchen ingredient when rumors of an impending deal raised a political furore.

Despite published reports to the contrary, there is as yet no firm indication that any American company has completed a sale of lard to Cuba. There were reports to that effect last week, but a quick check by the U.S. commerce department with all sales that were made there completele denials of any deal.

BEGAN WITH WHISPER

In fact, the original report appears to have been rooted in the whisperings of a broker who indicated he was about to cement a $5,000,000 deal to sell 20,000,000 pounds of lard to Cuba—through Canada. The price of lard then was 10 cents up on the basis of that report and then subsided.

A commerce department official said he is convinced there would be no major lard deal with Cuba because of the tight restrictions against lard exports will remain to allow the government to examine all details of any deal that may emerge.

Generally speaking, the official added, the U.S. does not encourage exports of lard to Cuba, unless some unusual or abnormal conditions were affined to any deal that would benefit the Cuban economy, rather than direct benefit to basic humanitarian needs of the Cuban people.

He explained it this way: Americans can ship food and medicine to Cuba but they cannot ship soybeans for use in textile. Soybean oil is a basic food ingredient, but shipping soybeans would benefit the Cuban economy since the beans would provide employment in Cuban textile mills.

OIL YES, BEANS NO

The U.S. sees nothing wrong in shipping the finished soybean oil to Cuba—but not the beans themselves.

Cass Is Seeking Way To Suppress 'Hate' Pamphlets

Is Difficult to Act Under Existing Laws

TORONTO (CP) — The "insidious poison" of hate literature must be stopped now before it spreads, the Ontario legislature was told Thursday.

Fred Young (NDP — York-view) said there must be some way to stop spread of the literature without interfering with freedom of speech and without pushing censorship too far.

He spoke outside the house, after Attorney - General Fred Cass said laws make it difficult to collect enough evidence for prosecution and convict distributors of the literature.

Mr. Young said leaflets distributed in Toronto, attacking Negroes and Jews, are evidently from a local fascist group.

"This group is now a tiny movement, but hate has a way of feeding on itself and with social and economic difficulty can grow into a menace as a national scapegoat is sought among minority groups."

IS CONSIDERING MATTER

Mr. Cass said the government was in touch with the federal justice department and was considering what it could do. The federal Criminal Code makes skilful police work necessary, he added.

Last Feb. 15, hundreds of leaflets were mailed in Toronto signed by Conrad B. Fahrni, who says he is Canadian organizer of the White Americans Party of Atlanta, Ga. He signs his address as suburban Scarborough.

In other business, a bill setting up a permanent commission on law reform aimed at simplifying the province's laws up to date was introduced by Mr. Cass.

Functions of the commission, as outlined in the bill, would be to consider law reform with regard to statute law, common law, and judicial decisions; to consider administration of justice for the province; to consider judicial and quasi-judicial procedures, and to consider any matter that the attorney - general wishes to refer to it.

Municipal law, personal property, and real property titles will be first on the agenda of the commission, whose chairman will be Arthur H. Brown, judiciary or legal profession.

LITTERING AMENDMENT

Mr. Cass also introduced an amendment to the Summary Convictions Act which would allow courts to assess demerit points against motorists wanting to pay traffic points out of court.

Summonses will include a statement which the accused will be asked to sign, in which he waives his right to a hearing and consents to have the demerit points may be registered against him.

Last October, York County Judge F. J. MacRae ruled that demerit points are illegal in a case where a motorist sent in money and his name does not appear on the court docket.

OTTAWA (CP) — Sharply opposed views of the Columbia River treaty were expressed in the Commons Thursday.

H. W. Herridge, veteran New Democratic Party member from Kootenay West saw it "as a political blackmail against the works at creation."

James Byrne, Liberal MP for Kootenay East, saw the treaty as a good document that is going to redound to the prosperity of every living soul in Canada.

Mr. Herridge, who has lived beside the river for 50 years and who has been one of the most persistent opponents of the treaty, made a stirring 30-minute speech in which he charged that the Canadian negotiators were taken in by the Americans, who got "95 per cent of a deal for almost nothing."

The only officially known opponent of the treaty to the House of Commons is Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, who said he got a lot more money for selling Canada down the river.

Conservatives were thrown up against three of the most powerful men in the political realm in the U.S., he said. While they were "on the shop," they couldn't complain that there was a lack of planning on the Canadian side. "Now, I submit, the whole scheme should have been scrapped.

Among the Liberals and Conservatives heading the debate up to the treaty's support, Mr. Byrne was one of the strongest advocates.

But NDP Leader T. C. Douglas recalled that Mr. Byrne used to support the public ownership of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton. When did he change his mind?

"I have never said anything officially that we must have the McNaughton plan," said Mr. Byrne. "To do so would have meant political extinction for me in the East Kootenays."

But he said there was a time, when, "like my mentor, a friend from West Kootenay, I was wallowing in ignorance."

Anyway, he said, a statesman can always change his mind. It's only a politician who can't.

He predicted that the development would result in great industrial expansion in the Kootenays and the people are very happy now that a decision has been made."

While spokesmen for the NDP party have made it clear that the 77-member group will fight the treaty, all four parties will continue to give it general approval, thus assuring its eventual passage.

District Gets Mauling

Gale Topples Trees Facades Here

Not Likely To Change Tax Rates

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon apparently isn't taking his lead from Washington in budget techniques.

Though the stated goals are the same—economic growth and a cut in budget deficits—the paths of the Canadian and United States governments follow widely different routes.

President Johnson's budget calls for a $500,000,000 cut in administrative spending in the next fiscal year and Congress has approved a tax slash of more than $11,000,000. The president estimates that the economic stimulus given by the tax cut will increase revenues by $4,000,000,000 to $80,000,000. The net result forecast: a halving of the U.S. deficit to $4,900,000,000 for fiscal year 1964-65.

Though Mr. Gordon's budget for next fiscal year is yet to be presented, its likely outlines are shaping up.

The basic spending program for 1964-65 presented to Parliament on Tuesday clearly calls for higher spending. The preliminary total spending figures —subject to later change—are up $47,000,000 from the com-

The Quinte district basked in lamb-like serenity today — betraying few signs of its severe mauling 24 hours earlier from the March lion.

Gales gusting up to 90 miles an hour rocked the district for nearly five hours yesterday, as the lion proved itself authority zoological veteran.

MORE STORM PICTURES ON SECOND FRONT PAGE

The district felt the fringes of the big blow shortly after noon, by 3 p.m. it had reached zplenetic fury as meteorological officers at Trenton RCAF Station reported 90-9 mile-an-hour gales coming in from the southwest.

In urban areas public works crews were mobilized as the gales reached a peak and went to work clearing trees and tree limbs scattered across roads and highways.

Private citizens also had their troubles as the gusts lifted roof shingles and snapped TV aerials.

At Marmora, the OPP reported traffic halted on Highway 14, south of the town after a tree crashed down across the roadway.

For once, however, all the trees apparently were falling

U Thant Having Trouble Finding Troops for Cyprus

UNITED NATIONS (CP)— Secretary-General U Thant was expected to name today the commander of the United Nations Cyprus force, but he was having trouble finding troops for the peace-keeping chores on the embattled Mediterranean island itself.

His choice for the post was reliably reported to be Lt.-Gen. Prem Singh Gyani of India, a 52-year-old veteran of UN peace-keeping duty who now is Thant's personal representative in Cyprus.

In two weeks of informal discussions with possible contributor nations, Thant has failed to recruit any generally accepted offer of more than part of the British force now on Cyprus, diplomatic sources said today.

Principals in the dispute have agreed to troops from six countries—Canada, Britain, Brazil, Ireland, Sweden and Finland.

But none of these countries has given any firm pledge, Thant hoped for some positive replies today.

Canada's Ambassador Paul Tremblay met with Thant

U.S. House Passes Tax On Stocks

WASHINGTON (CP - AP) — The House of Representatives passed Thursday a bill to make it more expensive for U.S. investors to put money into foreign enterprises and thus discourage the flow of American dollars from the United States.

The fiscally complicated measure was approved and sent to the Senate by a 238-to-142 roll call vote after a motion to return it to committee was defeated on a voice vote. Two hundred twenty - four Democrats joined 14 Republicans in backing the administration - sponsored bill. Three Democrats and 128 Republicans opposed it.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

The tax is retroactive to purchases since last July 19, and the existence of the proposal already has had dramatic effects.

There have been almost no new issues of foreign securities in New York since the tax was proposed and the total loan of $15,000,000 in the final quarter of 1963 was one of the lowest in the last six years.

The administration has announced that most Canadian issues would be exempted, even Canadian issues have dried up since the tax was first proposed.

Parting Is Such Sweet Sorrow

Mexico Decides Liz Abandoned - by Fisher

PUERTO VALLARTA, Mexico (AP)—An uncontested Mexican divorce appeared today to have cleared the way for Elizabeth Taylor to marry Richard Burton.

Judge Arcadio Estrada granted the brunette film actress her freedom from singer Eddie Fisher Thursday because Fisher had not contested the divorce suit she filed in Puerto Vallarta, Jan. 14.

The judge said his decree permitted both Miss Taylor and Fisher to remarry.

Miss Taylor was in Toronto with the Welsh actor, who played Cleopatra to her Cleopatra both on and off the screen. Burton is appearing there in Hamlet, prior to bringing it to Broadway next month. He and Miss Taylor eluded reporters after the divorce was announced.

There was no comment from Fisher, last reported in Puerto Rico. Presumably he and Miss Taylor will now stage a settlement of his claims on her earnings from Cleopatra, which are expected to be at least $3,000,000.

In granting Miss Taylor's decree, the judge said he could not make a financial ruling because no community property existed in Mexico.

Burton's wife, Sybil, got a decree in Puerto Vallarta in December.

Miss Taylor won her freedom under a Mexican law permitting divorce on the basis of a separation of a year or more. She charged Fisher "abandoned her, by having left Rome on March, 1963, after her affair with Burton had become generally known. Their separation was announced April 2, 1963.

H. W. Herridge, veteran New Democratic Party member from Kootenay West saw it "as a political blackmail against the works at creation."

James Byrne, Liberal MP for Kootenay East, saw the treaty as a good document that is going to redound to the prosperity of every living soul in Canada.

Mr. Herridge, who has lived beside the river for 50 years and who has been one of the most persistent opponents of the treaty, made a stirring 30-minute speech in which he charged that the Canadian negotiators were taken in by the Americans, who got "95 per cent of a deal for almost nothing."

The only officially known opponent of the treaty to the House of Commons is Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson, who said he got a lot more money for selling Canada down the river.

Conservatives were thrown up against three of the most powerful men in the political realm in the U.S., he said. While they were "on the shop," they couldn't complain that there was a lack of planning on the Canadian side. "Now, I submit, the whole scheme should have been scrapped.

Among the Liberals and Conservatives heading the debate up to the treaty's support, Mr. Byrne was one of the strongest advocates.

But NDP Leader T. C. Douglas recalled that Mr. Byrne used to support the public ownership of Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton. When did he change his mind?

"I have never said anything officially that we must have the McNaughton plan," said Mr. Byrne. "To do so would have meant political extinction for me in the East Kootenays."

But he said there was a time, when, "like my mentor, a friend from West Kootenay, I was wallowing in ignorance."

Anyway, he said, a statesman can always change his mind. It's only a politician who can't.

He predicted that the development would result in great industrial expansion in the Kootenays and the people are very happy now that a decision has been made."

While spokesmen for the NDP party have made it clear that the 77-member group will fight the treaty, all four parties will continue to give it general approval, thus assuring its eventual passage.

Think Sudbury Mother Choked Children, Then Strangled Self

SUDBURY (CP) — A mother and her three children were found strangled in their home here Thursday night, and police said later they believed it was a case of murder and suicide.

The victims were Mrs. Mary Trace, 43; Richard, 19; Richard, 11, and Theresa, 9.

Bodies of the three children were found in bedroom. All appar-ently had been throttled manually. Police said they believed they died late last week.

The strangled body of Mrs. Trace was found in the base-ment. A loop of rope with the end broken was around her neck. The other end of the rope was tied to a beam.

City police forced their way into the trace home to find the bodies after a boyfriend of 19-year-old Patricia reported he had been around the house several times and became worried when no one answered his knock.

The woman's husband, miner Steve Trace, has been living apart from the family for about a year. Police said he broke down on learning of the deaths.

100 MPH Winds, Snow And Rain Cause Damage

Problem Just to Walk Along City Streets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A storm packing winds of more than 100 miles an hour pounded Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes Thursday after moving into Canada from the United States Midwest.

Heavy snow fell in Northern Ontario and pelting rain, snow-flurries and ice battered southern Ontario and Quebec.

Eight aircraft and 33 seal hunters were missing in the Gulf of St. Lawrence as the storm raced across the country.

Winds gusted to 110 miles an hour in Montreal, highest ever recorded in the city. The temperature suddenly plunged from a record 55 degrees for the day.

The storm was blamed for 11 deaths in the U.S. in Canada, a wide trail of property destruction was left from Windsor, Ont. to the Atlantic.

Power and communication lines were broken, windows were smashed, trees uprooted, buildings were blown from their foundations and it was a problem just to walk along city streets.

DAMAGES AIRCRAFT

In the Montreal area, squalls caused heavy damage to cottages, cut power lines, toppled trees and damaged two grounded aircraft. No injuries were reported.

At Toronto's Island Airport in Lake Ontario, hurricane-force winds were reported when a wind meter registered gusts to 96 miles an hour.

In Windsor, two women were slightly injured when a wall collapsed against a beauty parlor as they sat beneath hair dryers.

Two of the Detroit-Windsor car ferries were trapped for three hours on the Detroit River when high waves prevented them from docking at either side. The trip usually takes 20 minutes.

Plate glass windows were shattered and uprooted trees cut power lines in several parts of the city.

Winds gusting through Kent County ripped half the roof off Chatham Memorial Community Centre. Chatham radio station CKCO was off the air twice for brief periods.

A big wooden sign crashed to the parking lot at a St. Thomas car dealer just as a salesman moved the last of 10 new cars to safety.

Simcoe, Delhi, Aylmer and Tillsonburg all reported damage to tobacco greenhouses.

An elderly Brantford resident suffered a broken hip when knocked off his feet by winds estimated at 80 miles an hour. Three steel transmitter towers at radio station CFRC, one 214 feet tall, collapsed at the height of the storm.

Gusting winds at Hamilton at times prevented empty transport trucks from crossing the Burlington Skyway.

Nine persons were injured in the Hamilton area as winds toppled chimneys, utility wires and a church steeple.

100 Seal Hunters Stranded

GRINDSTONE, Que. (CP) — Authorities in this Magdalen Islands centre believed that up to 100 seal - hunters stranded overnight on the ice of the stormy Gulf of St. Lawrence could be picked up today.

Thirty - five of the hunters were unaccounted for. But none of the sealers was considered to be in danger despite the situation of heavy rain and winds.

They had been landed on the ice Thursday by more th a 100 aircraft as the annual hunt for harp seals began.

Then came hail, rain, gusty winds and fog which prevented the aircraft from getting them back to shore.

But two ships succeeded in reaching some 100 other sealers who also had been marooned.

RCAF search and rescue headquarters in Halifax said eight planes were listed as missing together with the 35 ships.

SHIPS ARE NEAR

Seven big sealing vessels and many small boats are in the vicinity of the ice pack that bears the men.

Winds were forecast to diminish somewhat today, with the rain changing to snow flurries and visibility improving. A temperature drop into the 20s also was predicted after an overnight spell in the 40s.

Spending nights on the ice is not a common experience during bad weather in the gulf area.

school students were slightly injured when wind smashed a window in their classroom. Trees, power lines and signs fell in the wake of the storm. Hundreds of chickens were killed at a nearby farm when guests tore away the roof and part of a wall of their barn.

Ontario Hydro reported the water level in the Niagara River was raised six feet as results of the storm. Lake Erie water eastward.

Two men jumped to safety when a wall of a Stratford building they were wrecking collapsed in the wind. The fall was 24 inches of snow, isolating several communities.

The Timmins area was partially paralyzed by a blinding snowstorm, the worst blizzard in that district. Temperatures ranged around 10 below zero.

Snow falling at a rate of 1½ inches an hour halted traffic with shipping of Whitney, with its plows down. Its snowclearing equipment broke down early Thursday.

Bus services in Kirkland Lake were disrupted during the afternoon by a 14-inch snowfall.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., reported a near-record traffic with snowplows unable to clear the streets.

Winds at Toronto International Airport gusted up to 77 miles an hour, four miles an hour greater than the maximum recorded during a Hurricane Hazel in 1954.

Balcer Says Chaput Shocks Quebec People

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Leon Balcer, Quebec leader of the Progressive Conservative party, said Thursday if separatist Maurice Chaput gets more attention outside of Quebec than in Quebec he will resign.

Answering questions by collegiate students, he said the people of Windsor were misled by Mr. Chaput's statement in Toronto that the Queen would be in danger if she visits Quebec City in October.

"Chaput is desperate," he said. "He will do anything to attract publicity and headlines."

M. W. Hazerigs (NDP—Kootenay West) assailed the Columbia River Treaty as a sellout to the Americans.

Jack Davis (L—Coast-Capilano) pointed to scarcity and said it will mean great benefits for British Columbia.

W. M. Willoughby (PC—Kamloops) also backed the treaty, saying it would open new timber and trade areas.

James Byrne (L — Kootenay East) said Mr. Hazerigs opposes the treaty because he wants his own "cabbage patch" left alone.

Senator Cyrille Vaillancourt (L — Quebec) said the Queen will be received with joy and dignity when she visits Quebec.

Turks Ask What Will Be Done With Rifles of Greek Cypriots

By CARMAN CUMMING
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Turkish representative declared around the desk of reporters, tapped his fingers on the desk and mused: "But what do you do with 30,000 rifles in the hands of irregulars?"

The reporters gathered in the press conference room at United Nations headquarters had no answer. Nor, apparently, have the planners setting up a peace force for Cyprus.

The thought of those rifles, and the men who carry them, has been in the minds of diplomats for the diplomats charged with creating and supervising the force to keep peace between the Greek- and Turkish-Cypriots.

VAGUE MANDATE

The operation was authorized by the UN Security Council Wednesday in a resolution worded with sufficient vagueness to enlist at least partial support from all the countries and factions involved.

Only four lines described what the force will actually do when it goes to Cyprus, and these lines should be, in the interest of preserving international peace and security to use its best efforts to prevent a recurrence of fighting and, as necessary, to contribute to the maintenance and restoration of law and order and a return to normal conditions."

Turkish and Greek - Cypriot foreign minister of Cyprus, Spyros Kyrianou, immediately called a press conference and said stress on the word "conditions" in the third line of the resolution would help the UN force would help existing Cypriot forces to keep order.

The Turkish representative, Turgut Menemencioglu, called in the press the following day and said that, as he understood grammar, the primary function of the force was to "use its best efforts to prevent a recurrence of fighting."

As neutral observers see it, the nub of the problem is that what do you do with 30,000 rifles in the hands of irregulars?

Ice Conditions In Great Lakes Much Improved

CLEVELAND (AP) — The U.S. Coast Guard reported Thursday that ice conditions in the Great Lakes are far from unusual, and 6 weather expert indicated prospects are good for early opening of the shipping season.

The ice committee of the Lake Carriers' Association heard the report and its first meeting of the year.

It was reported there is much less ice than usual in the Lakes, that it is thinner than usual and has less snow cover.

Harold Bunn, a meteorologist, said the 30-day outlook was for "much above" normal temperatures in the Great Lake Erie and the southern half of Lake Michigan and for above normal temperatures in the rest of the Great Lakes.

The coast guard said Whitefish Bay in the upper Lakes usually blocked at this time of the year, is clear of ice.

The disrupted flow of most shipping companies are trying to begin their shipping April 15.

Roofs Blown Off, Aerials Down in Heavy Winds

TRENTON — In the "Wizard of Oz," the heroine, Dorothy, is lifted by a Texas tornado and carried through the air to the Land of Oz.

During the windstorm in Trenton yesterday, much older "Dorothy," weighing in at 200 pounds, was carried up to the railing at Canterbury Hall on King Street, tailing all and sundry as they blew by, that the wind had lifted her right off her feet.

Patrons of Bert's Coffee Shop today were full of tales of aerials blown over on their roofs, garages blown flowering and in one case, of a boat making its way through a field to the bay. The boat, and not the Carrying Place man, was parked, for the winter, on a woodpile beside his home. When he arrived home last night, he found that his wife had gone through an inch or incident field in the wake of the wandering aluminum boat, to the air raid shelter in the yard where she had managed to tie the frivolous craft to a fence. Out in the country, Fred General store owner, Vern Westfall, stood helplessly watching the roof of the big storage and gymnastics in the air.

The burned thing lifted up in the air of the wind, turned a complete flip, reversed itself and came down with a thump on its foundations," Mr. Westfall said today.

"I've never anything like it," Mr. Westfall said, "my TV aerial was bent over double."

Another well known resident had his garage split down the centre and blown over.

Jimmy Gosling, who has been a long time to have a wood-en fence at the back of her garden removed. Yesterday did it.

The roof of a warehouse at the Ontario Paper Company plant in Brighton had illusions that it somehow resembled the Flying Trapeze, left its moorings, sailed through the air with the greatest of ease over a roof of another warehouse and fell between two public scales on the highway.

Fruit, Vegetable Inspector Earl Walton Honored Here

Earl Walton, district supervisor of inspection for the Fruit and Vegetable Division of the Federal Department of Agriculture, was honored by more than 100 people last night, at a retirement banquet at the Hotel Quinte. Among those present were Department of Agriculture inspectors and department heads from Ottawa and from across the province, and representatives from all phases of the industry.

For ten years, Mr. Walton has supervised inspection of fruit and vegetables grown, transported or sold in the area bounded by Sault Ste. Marie on the west and Rouyn, Quebec, on the north-east. With a staff of thirteen inspectors working under him, he was also concerned with the purity of such processed goods as maple syrup. One of his main problems, he said, is the sale of flavored table syrup as pure maple syrup in Northern Ontario.

He joined the department as an inspector, in Newcastle, during 1936. Since his appointment as District Supervisor six years ago he has worked out of an office in the Federal Building in Belleville, while maintaining his home in Newcastle. On duty, he covered the whole of his district about once a month.

Services include the repair of talking machines and radios, artificial eyes and glasses supplied, braille watch repaired and white cane supplied. Residence supplementation is given to four in residence and milk and fuel supplementation and clothing is provided where necessary.

Mrs. Preston Timmins, Field Secretary, and his assistant Mr. D. McCallum reported on their visits made to many registered members of the CNIB throughout the County. The new tape machines are now in use. These take the place of books on records and are a great step forward, providing 20 hours of reading with the use of three Cassettes. The cost of these machines is $150.00 plus a library rental but it is to be hoped that through time many more will become available to those who live in darkness. Mr. McCallum reported that the Lions Club have offered to pay for artificial eyes that are needed. An artificial eye clinic is held periodically in Kingston which eliminates patients having to travel to Toronto. The Home Teacher continues to give help through the area. Classes in ceramics are held in Belleville under the direction of Mrs. Gordon Davies who so freely gives of her time.

Mr. Timmins in reporting on the work of the CNIB on a Provincial level stated that an all-out effort under the caption "Project 64" will be launched to help eliminate the deficit that exists. The Board in this area will obtain its funds through district and specific bequests, county campaign, County of Hastings grant, City of Belleville grant and the Belleville United Appeal.

The annual campaign for funds will be held throughout the third week of September.

With city owned garbage fill area along the east side of the Bay Bridge Road about filled and dumping already taking place on private property, Bay fill officials are hoping every day for word from the federal government granting approval for extension of the dumping area into shallow parts of the Bay of Quinte.

"We are waiting patiently for the go-ahead signal," stated City Engineer Wilbur Purcell. "We would like to be at work over the re today."

Application was made last year to the Federal government for water lot rights and the city solicitor is currently working on the matter but to date government approval has not been received.

33 ACRES INVOLVED

Federal engineers are to investigate and report, on the matter. A water lot area of approximately 33 acres is involved.

In the meantime, however, the city is rapidly running out of garbage disposal area and by the end of last year the existing area was about filled and work was commenced on the new property. In accordance with an agreement between the city and Mr. Purcell.

With the approval of the federal government, plans would be to construct a berm, retaining wall, around the 33-acre water lot area, to allow filling in with garbage.

Mr. Purcell said the plan would be to divide the 33-acre area into four sections, each section to be completely filled and would be progressively filled.

LAST 15 YEARS

He expected the 33-acre area would be sufficient for the city's garbage disposal needs for about 15 years.

But the amount of garbage which will be expected each year is quite indefinite. No actual measurement of garbage volume is made, the amounts merely being estimated.

Last year for instance, the city amount garbage collected was 78,477 cubic yards. Two years ago the amount was estimated at 88,045 yards.

"But unless the city suddenly begins to absorb 100,000 population or the water lots area would last for about 15 years," Mr. Purcell said.

Sanitary land fill method of garbage disposal was started in Belleville in the early fifties.

The program was started with a marsh area at the entrance to Meyers Creek and everything is now saw the entire area west of Bay Bridge Road filled.

Operations were then switched to city property on the east side of Bay Bridge Road and has also now been filled.

The program has been a success.

It has been a comparatively economical method of garbage disposal, and at the same time has greatly extended the park area at Zwick's Island.

City Firemen Quite Busy During Storm

City firemen received three fire alarms during yesterday's wind storm which whipped around the city after 1 p.m. the department was called to East Dundas Street in front of the Hollwood Lumber Comany, where a hydro pole had caught fire. Damage was slight and cause of the fire is unknown.

Shortly after, at 1.31 p.m., a call was received from the home of Mrs. I. Smith on the 9th of Thurlow, to check overheated stove pipes and chimney. There was no damage.

At 4.30 p.m. firemen were called to the 4th of Thurlow where they attended overheated stovepipes and a chimney at the home of Mr. D. Cain. No damage was reported.

Belleville Rink In Finals For Rose Bowl

A mixed rink of Mrs. Agnes Smith, lead, Ernie Benn, second, Mrs. Heather White, third, and Mac White skip has carried into the provincial finals to be held at Thornhill on Monday. There will be eight rinks in competition and it will be a knockout draw. Should the local rink win the three games they will represent Ontario in the Dominion finals for the Rose Bowl in Toronto starting on March 16th. Ten Provinces will be represented.

On Thursday Mr. White and his rink journeyed to Napanee to play the winners of the Ottawa district a two-of-three game series for the right to represent this section of the Province. At the start of the competition there were fifteen rinks competing and then playoffs between two districts left only the Provincial finals to be held at Thornhill on Monday. There will be eight rinks in competition and it will be a knockout draw. Should the local rink win the three games they will represent Ontario in the Dominion finals for the Rose Bowl in Toronto starting on March 16th. Ten Provinces will be represented.

The Ottawa rink was from the RCMP Curling Club of Ottawa with Mrs. Dorothy Ferguson, Howard Hall, second, Mrs. Shirley Gavin vice and William Campbell as skip. In the first game White won by 8-1. Mr. Campbell missing after the eighth end but in the second game in the afternoon an extra end was required before White emerged victorious, 4-3. In the last eight ends the Belleville rink had a perfect cushion but on the ninth end Campbell made one, when White missed with his last stone. Again in the tenth Campbell was lying shot but White made an excellent shot to hold the count to one, which caused the game.

In the eleventh, the White rink was in full control and when Campbell missed with his last rock, a "cold draw", the game was over and the Belleville skip did not have to throw his last stone. The ice was fast but not tricky. Hugh Sharpe of Napanee was the official umpire and the members of the Napanee Club were excellent hosts.

Poland Proposes to Freeze Nuclear, Hydrogen Weapons

WARSAW (AP) — Polish Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki has called for early negotiations on a new Polish proposal to freeze nuclear and hydrogen weapons at their present level in central Europe.

Rapacki told a press conference Thursday:

"We are ready to enter into negotiations on the proposals of (Polish Communist Party First Leader) Wladyslaw Gomulka. All forms of negotiations are acceptable to us."

The foreign minister described the new plan as "the result of the international developments in that area on a approach on this which it would bring out during negotiations. Freedom of movement has been a stumbling block in East-West efforts to negotiate controlled disarmament and the lack of it is blamed for making arms inspections virtually meaningless in the Korean armistice.

'Youth Centre' Is Discussed At Meeting

More than thirty people met last night in Park Dale Community Centre, to discuss establishment of a "youth centre" in Belleville. Plans for the centre are indefinite, but suggestions last night indicated it might include a skating rink, possibly a curling rink, an auditorium, a gymnasium and meeting rooms for special interest clubs, and perhaps a swimming pool and a tennis court. Cost of the centre might run as high as $100,000; and the group would like to see it adopted as a centennial project.

Location of the centre is indefinite, but Zwicky Island and the Belleville Fair Ground have both been suggested as likely locations if Zwicky Island is chosen, the centre would include a football field and baseball diamonds.

The group elected, at last night's meeting to take a booth at the Belleville Home and Sport Show, next week, to promote the proposed centre. Membership cards will be printed and memberships in the "Belleville Youth Centre Committee" will be sold for one dollar. The committee already has it's first funds, a donation of nearly $100 from the Belleville Fire Department. Fire Chief Gerald Vance presented the cheque to committee chairman Ed Adamson at last night's meeting.

Are Still Hardships On Colonial Visits

The Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer;

Horrified hardly describes my feelings after spending a few days in your community.

My company in London, England, sent me here to build up a clientele for its high quality woollens. Instead of being well received as battle the representative of an old, established firm, trading in goods which you Canadians with your history of close homebuilders and shoddy design could not begin to compete with, I find myself repelled by your lack of respect for the superiority of things British and ave tremendous generally.

This has been my first sojourn in Canada and I am appalled at your lack of good taste. Even the town professor has made from a bag innersoul in warm water.

What utter primeval breeding!

Sincerely yours,
Ian Vest.

Editor's note:—Mr. Vest has just had a most trying experience. Let no Canadian sneer at him as an example of that over-sensitive race. Results from the effete life in the Old World until his Mr. Vest, has outgrossly ventured for from his native heath. Let the Canadian greet those high quality English woollens in their native habitat. He will find no complaints, with a fervor equal to that shown by Mr. Vest, the difference between the attitude of the savage and the clothes and men of Canada. In penance for the affront offered by Mr. Vest by purveyors of teabags, let the Canadian order a coffee in the Strand. Let him learn to be able to understand Mr. Vent's feelings—and may perhaps worship at the shades of China, sipping his tea clear from a handled cup, may think of Mr. Vest's improvement on that beverage.

Tobacco War

Although some tobacco is grown around Brighton and Colborne, we are too far from Ontario's main tobacco growing district to know much of the background behind the current dispute over tobacco auctions.

Still, some things appear evident from reports.

Besides fluctuating prices, tobacco farmers in south-western Ontario appear to be concerned over a proposal that control over acreage be withdrawn.

In theory, this control is indefensible. It represents an unwarranted interference with freedom of enterprise. A man owning land capable of producing good tobacco might be prevented from using it for this purpose. He might have to be content to grow some other crop which would yield him much smaller returns for his labor.

In practice, though, one cannot escape feeling some sympathy for the established tobacco growers. Many of them have paid high prices for their land, because it was suitable for tobacco-growing and because acreage-control gave them some assurance that they would be able to obtain a profitable price for the tobacco grown.

Reconciling these two viewpoints is going to be extremely difficult. It has been made so by the use of wrong methods in protecting the interests of tobacco farmers in the past. Government interference with private business, though undertaken for the best of purposes, can often have this effect. The means, as well as the end, needs to be carefully considered.

In the long run, there is no question but that it would be in the best interests of the country as a whole if the use of tobacco declined, permitting these fertile acres to be used for more agriculturally-useful purposes. This, though, is a development which is going to be stoutly resisted, not only by those farmers already established in the tobacco-growing industry but also by those newcomers who now want the right to dip their spoon in the gravy.

Hands off CBC

Clifford Smallwood, Conservative member for the riding of Battle River-Camrose in Alberta, wants legislation to make the CBC responsible to a committee of the House of Commons.

A case can be made out for such a proposal. But not for the reason which lies behind Mr. Smallwood's proposal. He wants Parliament to have more control over CBC programming.

The prospect of a committee of the Commons deciding what should, and what should not, be shown on CBC television is frightening.

It is possible, though hardly likely, that the CBC could survive such control and still provide the Canadian public with good entertainment.

It could not, however, continue to provide those informative and educational programs which have earned it distinction. Even if the Commons committee exercised no control whatever over such programs, there would still be science-fiction who were such control was being exercised. The CBC would lose its status as an independent and enquiring observer of the Canadian scene, and would not be able to speak with authority.

In practice, of course, it is very improbable that the CBC would be left free of interference. Why would Mr. Smallwood want a Commons committee to possess such power if he did not envision it exercising it?

If CBC programming ever comes under the control of a Commons committee, the best thing that could happen to the CBC would be death and a quick one. Private television would be much preferable. It, too, might have its independence questioned, but at least there would likely be some element of competition, which would lessen the danger of censorship for partisan reasons.

Action Please

Dr. T. L. Fisher of Ottawa, secretary of the Canadian Medical Protective Association, says that counting instruments before the end of an operation would mean more deaths than "the one or two patients lost a year in Canada through forceps being left inside them."

May we, therefore, expect the Canadian Medical Protective Association to seek legislation to force those hospitals which do require an instrument count to abandon this practice?

CLEANINGS FROM OUR FILES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

March 9th, 1916.

Thirty four silk flags of the United Nations, the gift of the members of the Belleville community of Belleville, were dedicated at a service in Bridge Street United Church. The Rev. Dr. J. Semple, minister, before a large congregation on Sunday evening, at which the Deputy Vice-Consul for Greece in Canada, Mr. George D. Vlassis, of Ottawa, delivered an address on the part which Greece has played in frustrating the aggression of the Axis by her heroic service. It was an evening devoted to the contribution Greece has made to humanity. Members of the local Greek community were present at the service.

The minister, Rev. Dr. J. Semple, gave a high tribute to the people of Greece and honored the members of the Greek race now resident in Belleville as occupying an important part in the community life.

Thereafter to the contribution made by Greece to the war Mr. Vlassis said "One speaks of the Greek miracle. The miracle of this war is the fatal blow given by the Greeks against the armies of Italian Fascism," wrote an English journalist."

Up to the moment Mussolini delivered his ultimatum to Greece, Italy found herself at the height of her power. The battle of England was lost for the Germans and the centre of gravity of the war against England was transferred to the Mediterranean. Ultimately at a critical moment for all humanity Mussolini threw himself against Greece, thinking he was striking an easy prey. The Axis asked how a small island like Greece could dare hold its head up against the Axis giant. But Greece did stand up and resist.

Buyers Need Slide Rule

Toronto Globe and Mail

Take three similar-sized packages of chocolate-covered peanuts, sitting side by side on the supermarket shelf. One is priced at 5 cents, one at 10 cents, one at 40 cents. It is obvious which is the best buy — until you look more closely at the packages. Then you find that the 5 cent package contains second 7½ ounces, the third 7½ ounces.

How which is the best buy? You need a pencil and paper to figure it out. Such is the housewife's problem — seeking the best value for her dollar — she reels past 16½-ounce bottles of catsup, 18-ounce jars (of peanut butter), 20½-ounce packages (of soup flakes) and 24-ounce cartons of molasses).

Mr. David Croll (NDP, Fleming-Nor'th) has woken up this absurd situation in Parliament. Mentioning a soap product that left its package of 13½ ounces and 27 ¾ounces, he said: "There's no excuse for this kind of odd quantities. It doesn't permit price comparison by the shopper." Mr. Croll now thinks Ottawa should set standards in packaging.

Millions of Canadian housewives will agree — and will add to his list of examples. The Canadian manufacturer of jelly powder puts out his product in a five-ounce size, another in a four-ounce size. The packages of cake mix on the shelf look identical — but one contains 16 ounces, another 18 ounces, another 12.6 ounces.

Two cartons of honey look just the same, but one holds 16 ounces and the other 12. Bottles of vinegar come at 8, 12, 16, 24 and 33 ounces. Soap flakes are offering brands are in packages of 14 ounces, 16½ ounces, 20 ounces, 20½ ounces and 24 ounces. A small box of detergent could weigh (depending on the name) 15 ounces, 20 ounces or 24 ounces.

In these circumstances, the only way to figure out the best buy is with a slide rule, or maybe a computer. What is wrong with plain old pints and quarts, pounds and half-pounds? Could not the shopper's lot be made a bit easier? Or are the manufacturers deliberately setting out to prevent her?

Change Is Not Necessarily Improvement

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

I heard a lecturer utter the very same words after the other day. A few years ago, at the age of 35, he decided that he was not a very good actor, even though he had made a successful career of it for half of his life.

He was a conventional, solid, old-fashioned, craftsmanlike actor, of no particular distinction or depth, who could always be counted on to do a proficient job in a drawing-room comedy or a history of chess champions.

Having accumulated some funds, he took a year off from working and enrolled at Lee Strasberg's Studio in New York. When he emerged from this course he had taught himself a kind of acting hitherto foreign to him — he was, professionally and personally, a new man.

His had acquired a kind of freedom and inner resourcefulness that he had never known before. He was as though his whole system had been flushed out. He applied for, and landed, a job that he could never have handled in the past — a role calling for sensitivity and understanding far beyond the technical aspects of acting. And he has done enormously well in it. He has had a real effect beginning a new career, because a whole range of parts is open to him.

Why do I dwell on this particular case at such length? Because it seems to me especially well what I remarked in a column a few weeks ago — that all of our basic difficulties are rarely realms, that we are six or eight cylinder engines functioning on two cylinders.

But it takes courage to explore these potentialities. It takes the willingness to admit that we are not working to our best advantage, and then the ability to change the amount of energy injected in a have its advantage.

It is possible to switch methods, but if I were the patient, and making progress I would stick with my type.

In any event, let your doctor guide you. He knows your case. I don't. But I do know how the different kinds of injections have worked for him.

To Your Good Health

Doctor Should Decide Best Treatment for Allergies

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been treated for allergy for over two years by the injection method. It seems that the "one-shot" type is preferable due to saving of money and time.

Should a person switch? Can the "one-shot" type accomplish what a series might not accomplish? — M. K. L.

Either method — the series or the "one-shot" — is aimed at the same goal: To expose you, little by little, to some a substance to which you are hypersensitive, and gradually let you develop a tolerance to it.

In a series of shots, a very small amount is given at each time. With the "one-shot," a larger amount is given, but it is combined in an oily, or waxy material so that it is released very slowly over a long period. Thus the difference.

There has been considerable controversy among allergists over relative merits. I am not an allergist, so you must regard my opinion as that of a physician rather than a specialist in that field.

The "one-shot type evidently has worked well in some cases, and is undoubtedly an advance.

But I gather that allergists prefer the series method, and to me that (1) has more flexibility, (2) permits more thorough study of the patient's progress and dictates.

Even if the patient remains quite predictable in the reactions to medicines, there are times (materials to which you are sensitive), he cannot always predict when he is going to be exposed to increased amounts of them. So the ability to change the amount being injected is an important factor.

Right now, I can't switch methods, but if I were the patient, and making progress I would stick with my type.

In any event, let your doctor guide you. He knows your case. I don't. But I do know how the different kinds of injections have worked for him.

One of the few saving graces of military service—or so we've been told by people who ought to know, bless their practical familiarity — is the training it gives future husbands. For example, both kitchen patrol duty and manoeuvres are credited with providing valuable introductory courses in dish washing.

Now, however, our Mr. Al Dahl reports from Alaska where he is observing Joint U.S. Canadian defence manoeuvres that the soldier of the future may eat his dinner plate for dessert. Presumably he may also ditch his drinking mug in the pocket of his electrically - heated suit for a "tween-meals snack.

The sociological effects of such innovations are unforeseeable. But the soldier of the future is to be well advised to take his edible crockery with him when he returns from army life to married life.

Moreover, the signs and hints dropped by the finance minister all indicate his budget will leave tax rates largely unchanged.

Why the differences in approach?

Mr. Gordon has given some reasons in recent speeches and press conferences.

The U.S. government is counting on tax cuts to stimulate the American economy, Mr. Gordon told a Washington press conference that this would help the Canadian economy too.

While both Ottawa and Washington administrations have emphasized the need of reducing their budget deficits, Mr. Gordon's view has been that the government can't be more than a contributing factor to the economic growth and rising employment and reduce the deficit.

"If in practice local government expenditures cannot be reduced appreciably beyond what they have been already, it is difficult to see how governments will be able to reduce the total revenues they must receive in taxes," he said in an Edmonton speech.

He suggested that the government would be in a position to cut taxes when economic growth and rising employment provide higher revenues.

URGE TO FOLLOW U.S.

More than one industrial association has pointed to budget briefs to Mr. Gordon, has urged that Canada follow the U.S. tax cut lead so that Canadian firms won't be put at a competitive disadvantage compared with U.S. corporations.

But a government study shows that when profits and after U.S. state taxes are taken into account, Canadian corporation tax rates in Ontario won't be much different from those in major states.

Mr. Gordon has also argued that Canadian taxes are not high when compared with other countries, including the U.S. and Britain, where taxes take a large share of national production.

State Secretary Lamontagne, who plays an important role in the government's economic thinking, is reported to favor selective economic measures, rather than general tax cuts, to deal with economic problems which the government sees as mainly regional ones.

Report H-Bomb Nearly Tamed Over-Optimistic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission describes as "overly optimistic" reports published Thursday concerning progress toward harnessing the H-bomb reaction for peaceful uses including the production of industrial electric power.

An AEC statement noted also that testimony regarding the status of world-wide research on the problem—presented earlier this week to the Joint Senate - House of Representatives committee on atomic energy—contained the conclusion that "there is still a long, tough road ahead in this field of research."

The commission's statement was issued in answer to questions about a story published in the New York Herald Tribune.

The story by Earl Ubell, the paper's science editor, reports that small-scale experiments at Oak Ridge have demonstrated the possibility of turning into peaceful uses the energy of hydrogen fusion.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD G. MELTZER

Urban renewal is necessary, and many cities must renew themselves if they are to survive. Renewal creates many human problems, however, as people leave the precincts of living their homes, their friends, their way of life. An example of the kind of problem that arises and the new solutions being sought by planners is illustrated by this letter.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: The neighbor who reads your column to us each week is writing this letter for us as my wife and I are both blind. We have a small income and own our home. Now we understand our neighborhood is going to be in a renewal project and we will have to move.

It's true that the neighborhood has run down some, but there are many good houses, willingly by people who want to keep living in them. Our own house, for example, is perfect for us and we know every inch and stick and nail in it and yet we don't know how little it is worth. We could never find another for what they would pay us.

And what about our neighbors? Those we have and love are like our family. Where else could we go where people would care for us as they get respect us as neighbors and good citizens instead of poor old blind folks?

We don't want to be public charges and we don't want to lose our home. Please! Can you help us? — Mr. B. M.

Answer: Your problem is not a hopeless one, although a few years ago it might have been. Urban renewal has moved a long way from the early bulldozer approach. Planners have learned through bitter experience that neighborhoods in themselves are valuable assets to a community, and wherever possible, they are attempting to salvage the neighborhood through programs of conservation and rehabilitation rather than total demolition.

I suggest that you and your neighbors meet with your renewal and planning officials, offer your suggestions and tell them you want to save your neighborhood — keeping the good and removing only that can't be rehabilitated.

Please keep me advised of your progress as I will do anything I can to help you. My experience has been that this kind of citizen's interest is receiving greater recognition.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: This isn't exactly a real estate question but I don't know where else to go. I am one of the procrastinators and invested it then he would be worth over a million dollars today.

Both parents and kids jumped me on that one and I have been trying to prove it ever since. Do you know the answer? — Mrs. C. M. T.

Answer: Not only would that child be worth over a million dollars, he could use million dollar bills to light cigars. The value of $1 invested at 6 per cent compound interest in the year of Christ's birth would be approximately equal today to the sum of money represented by the number 1 followed by six zeros.

To give you some idea of what a fantastic number this is, if this child gave each of the 3 billion people in the world today an amount equal to the total wealth of the United States (approximately 2 trillion dollars — $2,000,000,000) he would not even make a dent in his fortune.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We are about to make settlement on a new house. The contractor very graciously has offered to allow his attorney to handle all the legal matters at no charge to us. We estimate that this would save us about $250 that we would really use, as the house has considerable all of the money.

It looks like a good deal to me but since this purchase represents almost $25,000 my wife felt we ought to write for your opinion and advice. — B. W. C.

Answer: Although the contractor's offer was probably made in good faith, and although the attorney would probably act competently in your interests, I recommend that you decline the offer.

Attorneys are the first to insist that a man cannot serve two masters. Considering the size of your investment a fee of $250 to protect your interest is cheap.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am beginning to feel like a prisoner in my own home. Although our home is only a year old, every outside door is warped after closing in and out has become so frustrating we are beginning to prefer to stay at home rather than fight them.

Now the door to the kitchen is beginning to stick. Since neither my husband nor I really need to diet it seems time to do something about the doors — but what? Mrs. R. I. S.

Answer: Warping is usually due to moisture getting into the door, either through the edges or because any side of the door is exposed to damp and the other to dry air.

The doors can be straightened by removing and suspending them on blocks (or saw horses) and placing heavy books or buckets of sand, etc. — on the raised portion. Sandpaper will serve to level or a bit below.

In order to seal against further moisture apply two or three coats of varnish or paint before rehanging.

Mr. Meltzer welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately he is unable to enter into personal correspondence with readers, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.

Motorist Loses Licence for Two Months

A 24-year-old Belleville man lost his license for careless driving yesterday.

Albert Madd, Foris Street, was charged early Saturday after his car rammed another automobile against a parking meter on Station Street, causing $700 damage. The driver of the other car suffered back injuries.

Police constable Jack Ritzer said Madd's car was being chased for hazardous driving at the time.

Magistrate R. C. Jackson suspended Madd's licence for two months and fined him $25 and $7 costs, on the request of Crown Attorney John Pringle.

Defence counsel Paul Russell said Madd was married, needed his car for work, and a substantial fine might fit the case.

"I feel sorry for a lot of these fellows," said the magistrate, "but after all the only reason why these courts exist is for the protection of the public. Fines are not the only good than a big fine—and maybe teach a few other people to drive a little more common sense.

School Speaking Contest Finals Are Arranged

Preparations for the zone three public speaking contest finals are completed. The winners from the secondary schools for this area will be chosen at the zone finals on Saturday afternoon, March 14, in the auditorium at Brighton High School, beginning at 1.30 p.m. The regional and first prompt classes for secondary school students will be held on the previous evening, Friday, March 13, at the Brighton-Trenton Teachers' College, beginning at 7.30 p.m. Winners of the elementary schools and the two secondary classes are prepared and impromptu — will represent this East Central Section of Ontario in the provincial finals in Toronto March 30.

The contests have been sponsored by the Ontario secondary schools by the Ontario School Trustees and Ratepayers Association for the past several years. Five years ago, Ontario Hydro and the 350 municipally-owned hydro systems across the province, through their organization, the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association, agreed to assist the Trustees Association with the sponsorship. At the same time the contest was enlarged to include all secondary schools in Ontario. hTe contest continues to grow with schools enrolling in record number each year, and estimated 300,000 Ontario school children took part in some level of the contest last year.

Planning Board Seeking Definition of "A Clinic"

What is the definition of a "clinic"?

That is what the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board wants to determine before it makes a recommendation to city council for inclusion in the city's restricted area zoning bylaw.

The question arose following the application of Dr. J. R. Hart to build a medical clinic on the north side of Dundas Street opposite the hospital.

Construction of a "clinic" is one of the permitted uses in special residential areas of the city but the by - law does not spell out what type of a development constitutes a clinic.

To help determine just what a "clinic" is the planning board inviting comments from the various professions, from real estate men and other interested parties.

A special public meeting will be held by the board on the evening of March 26th at city hall when written and personal representations will be made.

City Planning Director P. J. Beevis says the definition of a "clinic" is of importance to all property owners in areas zoned for "R" residential purposes as most of them are in the zone.

Construction of a clinic would not be confined to the Dundas Street area opposite the hospital.

Alaska, Aleutians Vividly Portrayed at Collegiate

By A. HENDERSON

Last evening Don Cooper, of Immutable Name as a travelogue narrator, presented to a capacity audience at the Collegiate auditorium, his unsurpassed travelogue of "The Inside Passage to Alaska and the Aleutian Islands." The clear-cut beauty of the varied scenes through which the trip was made, both by boat and plane, was outstanding, and the spontaneous humor which accompanied the portrayal kept his listeners in gales of mirth.

By birth, Mr. Cooper and his brother, Dennis were loggers. Having been born and brought up in a logging camp, and thoroughly conversant with outdoor life, he was able to bring out the salient points of their adventure, and make it real to his audience. The trip began from the idea of a fast-but-quick fishing trip, but failing to materialize satisfactorily, turned into one of exploration. After purchasing a boat, which proved inadequate, and later an acquisition of a fine 28½ ft. glass 30 foot two-power craft which cost over $8,000 they left Tacoma by water for the north lands, and Alaska, popularly known as "The Country."

Alaska had been purchased from the Russians, who sold it for $7,200 to the United States. In area Alaska is about 586,400 square miles, almost rectangular in shape and mountainous. It is situated to the Aleutian Islands. For 100 years it had been inhabited by the Eskimos.

MAGNIFICENT SCENERY

The scenery is magnificent, the mountains coming right down to the water's edge, and rising to heights of 6,000 ft. in one part a sandstone finger 250 feet high rises out of the sea—the only sandstone in the whole district. Travelling up the coast of Ketchikan, the salmon capital of the world, the first city to be founded in Alaska, were seen fish traps, made of logs which catch as many as 6,000 salmon at one time, often caught by "Indian Hordes." Some fishermen live in cottages built on huge rafts so they can move from one fishing ground to another, and have their families with them.

Other cities visited included St. Petersburg behind which rise mountains to 17,000 feet, called the White Sentry of the North; Seward, the major Alaskan port and terminus of the Alaska Railroad. Here salmon boats were seen, with their seine nets which unwind from the carrier boat and extend many yards in length, forming a sort of rectangle. As many as 16,000 salmon can be caught in one haul each fish worth about $1.25. These immense seine nets are expensive, costing around $10,000. Anchorage, where Captain Cook stopped on his quest of the Northwest passage; Kodiak, the first settlement in Alaska and the Pribilof Islands, mating grounds of the fur seals. The main seal winters in the warm waters of Mexico, but when spring comes he swims the 6,000 miles to the Pribilof, and awaits the coming of the females. Each bull seal stakes out his claim of approximately 30 square feet, and jealously guards it. There are fights in the death for supremacy. The female is much smaller in size.

BEAUTIFUL FJORDS

The fjords and rivers of Alaska are beautiful beyond words—almost like fairyland. In winter the snow piles up to a depth of 50-60 feet on the mainland, but when summer comes the whole is blanketed with beautiful flowers of many hues, deep red, mauve, yellow and white. There are beautiful wild caribou with branching antlers; many, bears, some black, some white and the little ones from other bears; Rocky Mountain goats; and in the Aleutians the big moose whose meat is dried and preserved for winter food. In the Aleutians the whales jump in thousands on the sea surface making the surface spark as if diamonds.

There were towering glaciers, 600 feet high, which split off in summer in mighty masses, falling straight down into the rivers. One huge iceberg had a dark lion cave-like opening, a lovely scene.

TYPES OF FISH

The main types of fish include the salmon, halibut, trout, shrimps and king crabs.

The Aleutians are timbered mountains, mainly, but of four islands from the Pacific, and extend about 1,200 miles from Alaska and are volcanic in origin. The atmosphere is damp and foggy.

Among the many lovely pictures shown was that of a little eagle waiting in the forest tossed to fly, as eagles learn from imitating their parents. In his attempts he always returned to the first taking-off place. His best seen he was slowly imitating the gulls as they winged their flight along the shore.

Alaska, as a whole, is a most beautiful land, where the silence is so great "you most remembered."

A travelogue, beautiful in conception, and one long to be remembered.

Mr. Cooper was introduced by Mr. Gerald Wishart.

Federation Undertakes Study Of Grade 8 Achievements

TORONTO — A study to determine the relative achievement of Grade 8 students in all types of elementary schools across the province is being undertaken by the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario.

"The status committee of the Federation is in charge of this important research project," says Mrs. Hazel Farr, Simcoe, F.W.T.A.O. president. "The assistance and co-operation of the Ontario Department of Education, the department of educational research, the educational research council and Dr. Floyd Robinson of the Canadian Council for educational research has been obtained.

"We feel that this augurs well for the study. Many elementary school teachers will be participating in the study. Our teachers have been asked to co-operate with their inspector or principal by following the testing program and instructions to the letter," said Mrs. Farr.

She stressed the fact that strength in the study "there is no intention to compare the work of teachers one against another, or one school against another.

"All figures will be quite anonymous, and those who will be asked to co-operate in the study samplings will find it an interesting experience," she said. "We are confident the findings will prove useful in improving education in Ontario."

The Federation status committee is headed by Mrs. Doris Flemington of St. Catharines. Committee members, representing all sections of the province include Mrs. Gertrude Proud, Miss Elizabeth Hodgson, Miss Marjorie Finnigan, Mrs. Rina Bell and Miss Miki Maeda.

Perk up your vegetables by adding cooked small whole onions to green beans, peas, green limas or stewed tomatoes. They are excellent for flavor and texture say food specialists at Macdonald Institute, Guelph. If you have larger onions, rings are very attractive and tasty with carrots, peas, or beets.

Not Necessary to Explain That Teeth Not Your Own

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a young receptionist who comes into contact with dozens of people every day.

Last year I had all my teeth extracted. I now have a beautiful set of dentures of which I am very proud. All my fellow employees and friends tell me my dentures are the most natural looking set they have ever seen.

In recent months several new customers have come in and frequently I will receive a lovely compliment on my beautiful teeth. Should I say, "Thank you" and let it go at that? Or should I explain that I am wearing dentures? — ANN LANDERS

I feel deceitful accepting compliments on teeth that are not my own. Also I feel uncomfortable because some of my fellow employees hear these compliments and they know the truth.

Please advise me. — CHESSIE

DEAR CHESS — The teeth are yours, whether you bought 'em or grew 'em. Accept the compliments with grace and keep smiling, Dearie.

• • •

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am now happy with a second marriage. My daughters are crazy about their step-dad who is very good to them.

My former husband has visitation rights, which is all right with me. But his present wife will not allow him to take our girls anywhere or to be with them alone. She insists he bring the girls to their home or, when he comes to my home she tags along.

I do not want this woman in my house. She sticks her nose into everything — closets, drawers, cupboards, refrigerator, broom closet. Last week she moved a picture on the wall to look behind it. She then remarked to the girls, "Tell your mother her walls need washing."

After they leave I always have a headache. Do you feel I should put up with it in silence or should I tell my husband his wife is not welcome in my home? — IRKED.

• • •

DEAR IRKED — The woman is obviously a needle artist and a trouble-maker. Why offer such a character hospitality?

Instruct your husband to take the girls to his wife's home where the walls are undoubtedly spotless.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — This is such a delicate problem that I don't know how to put it into words.

I am a freshman in high school. In most classes we are seated alphabetically. My name is a common one (like Smith — but that's not it). There is a girl whose name is the same as mine. We are not related, in fact I never knew her before we got to high school. She sits in front of me in three classes out of four.

This girl takes a bath about once a month and washes her hair even less often than that. She slaps the make-up on over the dirt and honestly it is enough to make me sick.

I usually sit with a handkerchief over my nose and mouth. I put a few drops of cologne on the handkerchief and it does help. But I hate to think of going through three years of high school this way. Please tell me what to do. — MISS SMITH.

DEAR MISS SMITH — Someone should have a heart-to-heart with your namesake. The physical education instructor would be the logical one to speak to her. The talk should take place promptly — for the girl's sake as well as those who must be around her.

• • •

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Elected Group Travel Convener

OLIVE BRANSCHE

Photographed as she received word of her appointment, Mrs. Branche is quickly recovered and said travel details for her club would be handled exclusively by Canadian National. "CN's Group Travel Plans offer economy, comfortable travel and the most economical rates. We all save because there are thrifty plans for both large or small groups. Party Fares for groups of 10 or more members save us 10% to 30% over and above the big savings on Red 'Bargain' and White 'Economy' Days". Mrs. Branche chirped away happily about her plans for the future — "We'll stretch our excursion budget still further by chartering a CN coach. For example, the 60 of us, with a coach of our 'own', can save as much as 33%. And it's exclusively ours. One day, we'll surprise our husbands and go away overnight. We can, too! We can charter a sleeper. You see, dear boy, nowadays it's smarter to charter — and cheaper by far!"

Two Ottawa Women Win High Award

OTTAWA (CP)—Two Ottawa women who run their own film production company have won international award for an unfilled sound film they made about Canadian-U.S. relations.

Photographer Audrey Mellan and artist Adam Dumont have been notified that their 10-minute educational film "Friendly Inheritance" won the award of merit at the International Labor and Industrial Film Biennial at Antwerp, Belgium.

The film is a historical movie starting with the days of the early voyageurs and tracing the course of Canadian - American relations up to the present.

It took the two women a year to make the 10 - minute film, which has 14,800 still pictures they drew and photographed themselves. Music for the film was composed by Dr. Fred Karam of Ottawa, and commentary was written by James Bowan, Toronto writer.

At the Antwerp film festival last December, competition was keen, with 254 films entered from 28 countries. Of these, 84 were chosen to be screened, and about half of these won awards.

HER OWN WORK

Miss Mellan and Miss Dumont run what is perhaps the smallest film production setup in Canada—Dandelaren Productions. They do all the work involved in film production except supplying the music.

"We work with very primitive equipment, but we get a great deal of satisfaction out of the work," says Miss Duncan.

Both worked for the National Film Board before they set up their own film studio in 1953. Other films they produced are the Sleepy Hunter, an Indian folk tale, and Heart Lake have won film festival awards.

Kumak once was nominated for an academy award in Britain, and has since been in five festivals.

The two women carry on their respective careers as photographer and artist while producing films. The latter is a hobby which brings little remuneration, they say.

Their latest award - winning play, Friendly- Interchange, has been bought by a number of Canadian libraries and is being distributed to educational groups by the Canadian Film Institute.

Readers' Friday Column

by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I have a dinner to cook for 175. It will be a turkey dinner. I am as long as what to serve for dessert. I would like to serve something I could include with cream in, cut in squares ahead of time. Could you give me the name of a good cookbook with quantity cooking? I expect to be doing more dinners, some for weddings as well — H. W.

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Emperor's Macaroni (one Thursday) with Cheesy Mushroom Sauce (see Thursday); Bright Green Brussels Sprouts; Mixed Bowl Salad with French Dressing; Chocolate Eclairs; Coffee.

ANSWER:

The name of a good cookbook is "Large Quantity Cooking" by Margaret E. Terrell, M.A. It is published by J. B. Lippincott Co., Montreal.

An excellent dessert which fills your requirements and which will serve 100 is Pineapple Refrigerator Cake. You will have to make this quantity, one 2000 second quantity three-quarters of this size to serve the remaining 75 people.

PINEAPPLE REFRIGERATOR CAKE (serves 100):

2¼ cups egg yolks, 10 cups sugar, 4 cups (1 lb.) butter or margarine, 2 cups cream, six 20-oz. tins crushed pineapple, drained, 4 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons grated lemon rind, 1 cup lemon juice, 5 lbs. vanilla cookies or dry cake crumbs,

2½ cups (1 lb.) chopped maraschino cherries, 2 lbs. pecans, coarsely chopped.

Beat egg yolks thoroughly. Add sugar, butter or margarine, cream, pineapple, salt and lemon rind. Cook in double boiler or very heavy kettle until of custard consistency, stirring constantly. Remove from heat and add lemon juice. Crush the cookies or cake to make fine crumbs. Mix crumbs with the chopped nuts. Put 3 lbs. of crumbs (half of them) into pockets of 2 pans 11" x 17" x 2½"). Spread 2 qts. (1/5 of amount) of filling over crumbs in each pan. Sprinkle remaining crumbs over the fillings in pans. Sprinkle maraschino cherry pieces over all. Refrigerate for 24 hours. Cut contents of pans into squares. Serve with whipped cream, if desired.

QUESTION:

You published a wonderful icing recipe about a year ago, some "unknown cook — a "butter-cream" that called for cornstarch, sugar, milk, butter and sugar and 20 to 30 minutes of beating. I lost it — Mrs. H. E.

ANSWER:

WHITE WHIPPED FROSTING (repeated from August 29/63):

Cook until thick, stirring constantly, 1 cup milk mixed with 2 tablespoons cornstarch. Let cool. Beat in mixer 1 cup granulated sugar, ½ lb. soft butter (do not substitute) and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat until creamy — 5 to 10 minutes. Fold in cooled milk mixture and beat 15 minutes, or until like whipping cream. Spread between layers and on top and sides of large layered cake.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: My best friend is being married in May and has asked me to be maid of honor. I've never been in a wedding party before and frankly I think it would be a lot of fun, and exciting. However, my mother is not keen on the idea — primarily because of the expense. She says that as maid of honor I'll be obliged to pay for much more than my dress and shoes; that I'll also have to give the bridal shower, pay for my own flowers — including bouquet and headdress — give the bride a substantial wedding gift in addition to a shower gift, and that the maid of honor should give a luncheon for the bride and bridesmaids. Is this correct? I have to give my friend an answer soon. The financial burden is so great, then I'm afraid I'll simply have to decline, since I couldn't possibly take on such a responsibility. — D. F., Stamford, Conn.

Answer: There is a certain financial obligation that has to be reckoned with when one accepts an invitation to be maid of honor at a wedding, but it's not as deep as your mother imagines.

The maid of honor does pay for her own gown and shoes, but she does not pay for her flowers. These are taken care of by the bride and, in some localities, it's become customary for the bridegroom to assume this expense. At any rate, the maid of honor does not have to pay for her own bouquet and headdress, and neither do the bridesmaids.

The maid of honor, as well as the other attendants, do give the couple a wedding gift, but, naturally, it should be something she can afford and does not have to be "substantial" as a silver coffee service or something in that category.

If she attends a shower for the bride, naturally the maid of honor does have to bring a gift, just like the other guests. But shower gifts are supposed to be in the fairly inexpensive category, so that it can be chosen to fit one's budget.

NOT OBLIGATED

The maid of honor often gives the bride a shower, but it's not a deep-down obligation. If other friends are planning to give showers, then the maid of honor certainly does not have to do so, too. Often, the maid of honor and bridesmaids give a joint shower and split the expenses.

As far as the aforementioned luncheon is concerned, the bride often gives this for her wedding attendants. The maid of honor is not obligated to give any prewedding party and the bride can forget the spinster lunch. In these days of simplification, many of the old customs are being dispensed with — and this luncheon is one that is completely optional at this point.

The maid of honor is invited to, and is expected to attend, any other pre-nuptial parties being given for the couple by friends and family. To sum up, though, the only real expenses she has to endure are the cost of her wedding clothes, a wedding gift and a shower gift. Any other expenses, such as a shower, are optional and purely voluntary.

Question: Since my son became engaged, I've done my best to be cooperative about the wedding plans. He's rushed into a lovely family and his fiancee is exactly the sort of girl I had hoped he'd marry. She and her mother have politely asked if I had any suggestions to make about the reception — which I didn't — and have encouraged me to invite as many family friends and relatives to the reception as I want. There is just one problem as far as I'm concerned, and that is the color of the gown they would like me to wear. The bride's mother is to wear violet and I'm expected to wear pink, which is one color I simply can't stand, with my ruddy complexion. I have to make a final selection and don't want to throw my color scheme, but I'd much prefer to wear beige or pale grey which are more becoming. May I state my preference and reasons straight out, or would this be considered rather ungracious and hair-splitting on my part? — Mrs. L. M. D., Trenton, N. J.

Answer: If the color doesn't suit you, then speak up. The gowns worn by both mothers should be color - coordinated, so they won't clash on the receiving line, but they also should be colors that are flattering to the wearers. If pink looks simply dreadful on you and you'll feel miserable wearing it, then it's permissible to let the bride and her mother know how you feel. The three of you can look at additional color swatches to find one that's more becoming to your complexion and still will fit into the overall color scheme of the wedding party.

Women to Study Motion For Freer Distribution of Birth Control Literature

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—A resolution recommending freer distribution of birth control information in Canada will be studied by some 700,000 members of the National Council of Women before it is presented for approval to the council's annual meeting June 14 at Hamilton.

The resolution, given preliminary approval at a council executive meeting this week-end, reads that information on "child spacing" be made available to all parents who desire it, as part of the regular medical service of the community.

It adds that such information should be made available for the benefit of parents who find it acceptable to their personal, moral and religious beliefs.

A resolution recommending a royal commission be set up to study Canada's abortion laws also will be put before the convention. Such a commission, says the resolution, would "report on laws in Canada with regard to abortion to clarify them and bring them into conformity with the realities of Canadian life."

CAREFUL STUDY

Mrs. Neal Hayes of Montreal, national president, said in an interview that the National Council of Women prides itself on the thorough consideration it gives all resolutions before they are submitted to the annual meeting.

The 2,000 federated societies—including such national groups as the Canadian Nurses' Association, the Canadian Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs and the Canadian Federation of University Women—study each resolution in detail. They then instruct their voting delegates to the national convention whether to support or oppose a particular resolution.

After the annual meeting, the approved resolutions make up the council's formal brief to the federal government, usually presented in January or February.

SLOW PROCESS

"In this way," explained Mrs. Hayes, "the council has a full year from the time resolutions are first presented to the executive, to the time of presentation to the federal government, for a thorough study of each resolution at all levels.

"Our wheels grind slowly, but when they finish grinding sure resolutions usually have been considered."

Commenting on any criticism that the council may be "spreading itself too thin" by becoming involved in too many fields, Mrs. Hayes replied:

"Surely an organization as large as the National Council of Women does not have to concentrate its attention on only one or two areas of interest."

Some of the council's resolutions have been presented to the government year after year, she said, because "it takes years of pounding to get something across like the fight for equal pay for women doing equal work."

Mrs. Hayes, whose three-year term as president ends this spring, said that among other resolutions to be studied by the council is one recommending a planned program of education on the hazards of cigarette smoking.

The council also may consider setting up a special committee on bilingualism and bicculturalism.

It plans to present a special brief to the Senate's special committee on aging, and a resolution expressing concern about the recent distribution in Canada of anti - semitic and anti-Negro hate literature will be considered at the council's annual meeting.

Other resolutions will suggest more federal aid to economically - depressed counties, better medical treatment and educational guidance for women prisoners in jails, and changes in the federal Income Tax Act.

STUDENTS PROTEST

QUEBEC (CP) — Laval University students formally protested Thursday night against "acts of barbarism" committed at Sir George Williams University students in Montreal Wednesday when Guy Poulin, leader of Le Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale, addressed the students' body. Mr. Poulin had to leave by the back door after a stormy reception in which a flag bearing the swastika was trampled at one point.

CAMPBELLFORD

High School Staff Stages 'Open House'

CAMPBELLFORD — Several hundred parents and interested citizens turned out Wednesday afternoon to an open house staged by the staff and students of Campbellford District High School to mark National Education Week.

L. S. Caughill, principal of the school, welcomed the visitors in a short address at an assembly in the upper gymnasium, after which students of the English department acted out Act 2, Scene 2, of Shakespeare's Julius Caesar.

Visitors were able to watch demonstrations in many of the classrooms. Students of the French and music departments under vice-principal Jack Cheyneweth, performed action songs in the French language, and the girls provided a demonstration of folk dancing.

The lower gymnasium was the site of a number of sporting events during the afternoon as the school wrestling team demonstrated holds and conducted wrestling and explained a number of holds, under instructor J. E. Hutcheson.

A demonstration of gymnastics by boys from all grade levels under instructor Gordon K. Thomson proved popular, as students made use of the many pieces of gymnastic equipment at the school.

Demonstrations of typing, business machines and shorthand were featured in the commercial department, and the science reference library was open to visitors.

Girls in the home economics department demonstrated the preparation of tea, cookies and sandwiches, which were served to visitors in the cafeteria.

DISPLAYS FEATURED

An interesting display of rock and soil samples was featured in the geography section, under staff instructors Kenneth Jackson and Harry Bradley. The display featured topographic maps and contour models of the area made from the maps.

Students in the art department displayed examples of their work in all forms of art from portrait studies to abstract art, as well as their work with wood block carvings and linoleum cuts.

Static displays of mathematics at the various grade levels was featured in the mathematics department.

Visitors found the science and botany departments interesting as students carried out experiments and demonstrated their findings. Examples of visual aids and anatomical models, and the dissection of prepared specimens held the interest of visitors, as did the displays in the biological and biological sciences in the science and physics department. Students in the chemistry department demonstrated equipment and carried out a number of experiments.

The woodworking and metalworking departments were popular with the male visitors, and machinery used by the students was the envy of fathers, who mentally pictured themselves working with the equipment in their own home basement workshops.

Static displays in the history, occupations and guidance departments rounded out the various demonstrations, which included the use of film strips and sound equipment.

Students were hosts to their parents in the school cafeteria later in the afternoon when sandwiches and refreshments were served.

Quebec Senator Says Queen Will Be Welcomed

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Cyrille Vaillancourt (L — Quebec) pointedly praised Queen Elizabeth Thursday and predicted that she will be received with joy, honor and dignity when she visits Quebec City in October.

In an emotional address in French during the Senate throne speech debate, he said he hopes to meet the Queen himself to convey to her the respects and gratitude of her French-Canadian subjects.

Senator Vaillancourt, 72, a founder of the Quebec Caisse Populaire (credit union) movement and a lifelong French-Canadian nationalist, dismissed separatist leaders as foolish nonentities acting in a destructive, irresponsible manner.

the right way.

Bellerville, which probably marked up the heaviest score in fallen trees, saw little damage to homes or parked cars as a result of same.

However, there were some narrow escapes.

On Front Street, a second-storey brick facade over the offices of Agro Real Estate crumbled under the battering. COMMERCIAL SIGNS DOWN

Bricks cascaded downward but into a parking lot flanking the main street.

Heavy commercial signs were torn loose from their moorings in the downtown area — and were removed as hazards.

By suppertime the gales had abated in intensity — but were still blowing from 40 to 65 miles an hour.

A driver parking outside his regular restaurant suddenly had his car. door wrenched from his hand. Its hinges were twisted from the impact of the gale.

He had just received his pay cheque when the wind stepped onto Front Street into the March 1964 storm.

The cheque was whipped from his hand and carried away. Despite pursuit by his two week's wages a half block down the street. Caught in a tree on Bridge St. E. after back past him — onto the roof of city hall. With a small, sympathetic crowd gathered around him, he waited non-plussed for something to happen. Some-

Harbor Bill Again Studied In Senate

OTTAWA (CP) — A government harbors bill that was killed by the Senate in December was introduced in the upper chamber Thursday in much the same of its controversial sections deleted.

The measure provides machinery which may be used for the establishment of harbor commissions to administer up to 300 local harbors on the coasts and inland. The majority of the commissioners would be named by the federal cabinet, the remainder by municipalities.

The bill would also permit sight-seeing harbour commissions to come under federal control if they desire.

This section drew protests last year from municipal authorities in Toronto, Hamilton and Oshawa, who feared that co-operation between city councils and the present harbor commissions would disappear.

The amended version of the bill does not affect the harbor commissions of Toronto, Hamilton and Winnipeg-St. Boniface, as was originally planned.

The eight commissions covered by the new bill include those in Oshawa, Windsor, Belleville and the Lakehead in Ontario.

DIVORCE SYSTEM WORKS

The Senate was told that Parliament's divorce machinery is shifting into high gear and a backlog of 871 cases from Quebec and Newfoundland; the only provinces without divorce courts, should be cleared up within six months.

Senator Arthur W. Roebuck (L—Ontario), chairman of the Senate divorce committee, said the new system set up by Parliament last summer is working well.

He had received admirable reports about the newly-named Senate divorce commissioner, Allison Walsh, a Montreal lawyer.

Since he began holding closed hearings here Jan. 8, the divorce commissioner has heard 220 cases at the rate of eight a sitting day, Senator Roebuck said.

This left a backlog of 651 cases. All decisions by the divorce commissioner are reviewed by the Senate divorce committee and the divorces and annulments become final when the upper chamber as a whole adopts a governing resolution.

Senator Roebuck made no reference to a government bill awaiting debate in the Commons which would take divorce entirely out of the Senate's hands and provide for a fourth judge of the Exchequer Court of Canada. The new judge would specialize in divorce cases from Quebec and Newfoundland.

MADOC

Junior Farmers' School Is Held

MADOC — The annual Junior Farmer leadership training school with Hastings County as hosts this year, was held in the Madoc High School. Junior Farmers from Prince Edward, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Peterborough and Hastings Counties attended this one-day school.

Following registration in the morning, a very interesting lecture concerning business meeting procedures and a film pertaining to this were given by Mr. Lyall McLaughlin, assistant agricultural representative of Hastings County.

After lunch the Juniors were taken on a tour to some of the industries in Madoc and the surrounding district.

Mr. Clarke Rollins, M.L.A. for Hastings East gave a talk on municipal politics, the duties of Junior Farmers in their communities and the opportunities available to Junior Farmers.

Mrs. Douglas Farrell, at the piano and Bruce Swan with his accordion, provided musical numbers. Mrs. Mary Hinan of Peterborough County conducted the recreation period.

A banquet was held in the evening in Trinity United Church basement with the ladies of Madoc W.I. supplying the delicious meal.

Following the banquet everyone returned to the high school where a representative from each district gave short reports of events and projects carried out in his or her county in the past year.

Mrs. Hinan again conducted recreation and dancing.

Police Request Probe of Curbs On Their Lives

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—The Police Association of Ontario decided Thursday to ask Attorney-General Cass to appoint a royal commission to investigate restrictions placed on policemen's personal lives by the Ontario Police Act.

Dennis Latten, association administrator, said he hoped the study would also look into working conditions, salaries, what rights a policeman has as a citizen and assess his position in society.

The Police Act forbids a policeman to join a trade union or an organization affiliated with a trade union and forbids him to take an active part in politics or hold office in any party organization. He is not allowed to contract debts which may interfere with his ability to perform his duties

Teen-Age Canada Distinctive Canadian Flag Issue Since '45

By JACK HUTTON

A friend who spends a great deal of time worrying and arguing about a distinctive flag for Canada has a friend and darling that keeps coming back and back.

He is sitting at the dinner table when summoned by an obviously important ring of the telephone. He recognizes the voice of The Man who asks in booming tones.

"All right, so-and-so, what would YOU have us put in the flag I've got 60 seconds to listen to your answer."

At this point my friend tries to answer but is instantly handed under an avalanche of hockey sticks, footballs, curling rocks, beavers, Union Jacks, Fleurs-de-Lis, maple leaves, and flagpoles that appear from nowhere.

By the time he fights his way back to the telephone, The Man is gone.

This dilemma isn't as unreal as it sounds. Prime Minister Pearson has promised us a distinctive flag in time for our 100th birthday in 1967. But to meet the deadline he must solve a problem that has been prominent since 1945.

Jane Marshall, 16, a frequent contributor to this column from Halifax, N.S., brought up the question this week.

ASK THE YOUNG

"Our government in Ottawa seems worried about public opinion on a new flag for Canada", she writes. "I wonder if anyone has thought about seeking the opinions of young people in this country.

"After all, adults may design and approve the flag. But we're the people who are going to have to live with it and explain it to our children.

"The whole thing came home to me when we objected, they had another question — 'Well; just what is your flag.' Do you know, Jack, that we couldn't answer. Oh, I know the arguments about the Red Ensign, but that didn't convince them.

"Since that discussion some friends and I have kicked this around after school. I think some of our ideas are good, and a couple of friends are even trying basic designs.

"Don't get the idea that we all agree. One of our group still insists the rest of us are being childish. According to her, the only salvation for the world is to lay stress on the things that make us similar, not national symbols that keep us apart.

"Personally, I believe Canada would make even better progress in impressing her view-points on other nations if her representatives travelled under a flag that resembled no one else's.

"But we'd like to hear what other young people across Canada think about this and thought of your readers. How about asking for opinions. And you might print some designs if they look interesting."

SWITCH HOMES

How about it? Are you interested in what type of flag flies on Canada's flagpoles in 1967? If you'd like to drop a line, I'll see to print as many replies as possible.

From everything I hear, more young Canadians will be swelling homes with each other this summer than ever before.

The Quebec Junior Red Cross for example, is trying an exchange visit deal with Toronto for the first time. A dozen Toronto students visited Quebec City earlier this month and the same number of Quebec students are to return the visit later.

Maj. J. A. R. Gagnon of Montreal, Que., said he hoped that the same exchange will be tried with western Canada sometime in the future. "The cost is almost nothing compared to the benefit they get out of it," he said.

If I'd find any fault with the exchanges, it would be simply that everyone seems to be aiming at Quebec. What's wrong with our two coasts and the other thousands of miles in between?

A Montreal Boy Scout troop has the right idea. It's negotiating right now to spend part of the summer at the top of Canada.

Sunday School Lesson

'Now He Could See'

In his short story, The Pastorial Symphony, the French novelist Andre Gide, tells about a girl, Gertrude, who was born blind. Tragic though her blindness is, it also served as a kind of protection. People were sorry for her, she formed the essential picture of what human beings must be like. Later in life, a great surgeon operated on her eyes, and she received her sight. When she was able to see, she was faced with two surprises. First, nature was so much more beautiful than she had imagined it to be, and second, most people's faces were so much sadder. In fact, she saw so much evidence of worry, emptiness, and harassment in so many faces, she almost wished that she had remained blind.

The fourth Gospel tells about a man who had been "blind from his birth" (John 9:1). He made his living by begging near the pool of Siloam. One day a terrible thing happened to him. Jesus came by on the Sabbath, and after making clay out of dust and spittle, He placed the clay upon the blind man's eyes, and told him to go, wash in the pool of Siloam. The man did as he was told, and the result was that he "came back seeing."

NOW HE COULD SEE

What an amazing moment that must have been in this man's experience. For the first time in his life, he could see the blue of the sky, the green of the trees, the sparkle of the sun upon the water, the purple of the distant hills, the shapes of buildings and of people. Now he could see the faces of his parents, and even see what he himself looked like by seeing his reflection in the pool.

But that is not all he saw. He saw some things that must have made him wish at times he had remained blind. He saw ugly feelings expressed by people who reacted in alarm to what had happened to him.

First of all, he saw the spiritual blindness and frantic behavior of some of the leaders. Instead of rejoicing with him, they were interested only in discrediting the one who had healed him. This was a threat to their position. A man who could heal blind persons would soon have a large following.

Moreover, a man who disregarded their restrictions concerning the Sabbath could challenge the whole system by which they exercised control over the thinking of the people. So they tried repeatedly to get the healed man to agree that Jesus was a sinner. But the healed man refused to become embroiled in their debate. One thing he knew. He had been blind; now he could see. He would take his stand on that.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for March 8: "The Man Born Blind," John 9:1-41.

Again, this man saw the caution and fear of his own parents. To recognize the claims of Jesus was to run the risk of being excommunicated from the temple, for this warning had gone out from the leaders. This was not a threat to be taken lightly. If one were cast out of the temple, merchants would be afraid to sell to him, employers would hesitate to hire him, friends and neighbors would be afraid to offer him sympathy and encouragement. So the parents were afraid to stand by their own son when they were approached by the authorities. "He is of age," they said, "Ask him." They were afraid to let the brunt of official condemnation fall on him rather than to run the risk of sharing the misunderstanding and disapproval that would be directed toward him.

RAW COURAGE OF JESUS

In contrast, he saw the courage of Jesus. When Jesus heard that the man had been "cast out" He came directly to encourage him. He openly defied those whose narrowness had blinded them to the compassion of God expressed in the act of healing. These narrow leaders had been the first to flout the great religious heritage. The great prophets before them would never have approved such narrow and restrictive regulations as they required. They would never have shared in condemning such an act of compassion and healing. The God they knew was a God of justice and mercy, not a God of narrow restrictions. What Jesus Phillips has been saying to many Christians today could have been said to some of the leaders of Jesus' day. "Your God is too small." Jesus believed in a God who would show mercy every day of the week. He would not withhold the hand of healing on the Sabbath.

PROOF IN WHAT HAPPENS

The man who received his sight was no theologian. He could not enter the debate with the trained theologians of his day. But there was one thing he knew. He had been blind. Now he could see. No one could refute this fact in his experience. The final proof of a religious faith is not an argument, but what it does for those who believe it.

Someone tells of a Scotch miner whose life was changed by a Christian experience. Some of his worldly friends tried to chide him. "You can't believe in that water into wine stuff, can you?" they asked him. He replied, "I don't know about that. I just know that in my house Jesus has turned whiskey into furniture."

There was his proof. Christian faith had made a sober man of him. Just so, faith in God has opened the eyes of millions to their own worth, and the worth of their neighbor, as persons made in the image of God. The eyes of many have been opened to the grace of God as they have seen it mirrored in the compassion of Jesus.

Little Damage From Winds In County

PICTON (Staff)—Up to midafternoon, there was no apparent damage from the gale-like winds that tore through Picton. Garbage cans were rolling around — parts of dead limbs of trees littered some streets, but by and large, no damage was reported.

Picton's fire department was called to a Lake Street home, but could find no fire. They checked the house out — Fire Chief J. Nelson Bell climbed to the roof and checked two chimneys, and apart from nearly being blown from the roof, there was nothing to report.

The heavy rain has taken most of the snow from the farmers, and Dr. Frances Edward Memorial Hospital there are actually tulips sticking their pale yellow shoots out into the wind. They are up about an inch — surely spring cannot be far away.

Dust-Laden Smoke Will Be Controlled

PICTON (Staff) — The controversy that is currently being discussed at the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce regarding the dust or dust-smoke problem at the L.O.P.C. plant is one that took The Ontario Intelligencer reporter to the plant this morning to obtain some first hand information so that everyone might be aware of all the facts. Mr. William T. Barron, operations manager of the plant, described this as "dust-laden smoke" and he said "This is one of the problems of operating a cement plant and it is only one. First, let us consider our own viewpoint. The $7,000,000 expansion program currently being undertaken is vitally necessary if we are to stay in business. The competition is becoming tougher each day and if we do not expand and remain in a competitive position it is conceivable that this plant will become only a marginal operation and as such, all of the advantages presently enjoyed by the community would be lost.

We are, however, acutely aware of the nuisance of this dust-laden smoke and we are currently working towards its elimination, at least in part" he added.

"In cases on record, where they have installed pollution control, statistics show that farmers adjacent to the plant have found their crops diminishing because it is a fact that this dust laden smoke contains certain beneficial materials which help in crop growth" he continued.

"Problems such as these must be properly evaluated for the mutual benefit of the entire community. After all, it is the community at large who are the real beneficiaries in this situation.

I am in complete agreement with these people whose properties are in this dust area, but when you look at the complete picture with benefits on both sides you get an entirely different viewpoint. Let us look at the entire picture from the community standpoint. Our payroll of $18,000 each week, taxes of approximately $50,000 per year and our hydro bill of some $20,000 a month makes us a very large participant in the economy of the area. We are in business to make a profit. We value public relations very highly and we are currently working on the problem of this dust-laden smoke pollution and are confident that we will come up with answers that will be completely satisfactory and mutually beneficial to all concerned" he concluded.

In conclusion, Mr. Barron pointed out that there is no odor to this plant such as is commonly found in chemical, paper, canning or other similar operations, and contrary to some beliefs, there is positively no danger, and I repeat, no danger, of respiratory disease from the affluent of the stack.

Several Pigs Perish in Village Fire

WELLINGTON (Special) — Flames fanned by high winds completely gutted a cement-block piggery here shortly before one o'clock this morning.

Joseph Lavender lost ten "shipping" pigs and two three-day-old litters as the fire raced through the building on Green Street in the western end of the village.

Members of the village fire department managed to save five large pigs from the burning building.

A heating lamp for the small pigs is believed to have ignited straw.

Dan Thompson, a neighbor of Lavender's, discovered the blaze about 12:45 this morning and turned in the alarm.

Firefighting efforts were hampered by prevailing high winds and cold weather.

Part of the cement-block walls remain standing but the interior of the building was destroyed.

It is not known if the loss was covered by insurance.

Excessive Temper Sign Of Emotional Problems

DEAR DORIS — My wife's outbursts of temper seem to be getting worse instead of better. Some very small thing will set her off, like a chance remark of mine.

Then she will turn on me, hit me with anything in sight and shout at the top of her lungs. None of it makes sense, really, and long since I have vowed not to return violence for violence. I just wait till it wears off.

DORIS CLARK

I try not to show it, but she is wearing me down. Don't you think she is mentally ill? — BATTERED HUSBAND.

DEAR BATTERED — Perhaps not mentally ill, as we think of it, but on her way to an emotional disorder. Your lack of reaction doubtless enrages her further.

To return violence would be worse; but there are times when an upset person like your wife needs to know she has come up against a normal, healthy reaction which will not stand for the abnormal abuse she is handing out.

Professional counselling which will get to the bottom of it is your best hope and hers.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — You have helped to put my mind straight again. For a while I thought the whole world had changed.

Could you please tell me where I could obtain the book you recommended on the facts of life? — TERESA.

DEAR TERESA — I am glad I helped. For the information you want, you will have to write again enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

• • •

DEAR DORIS — Would you be able to give me any information regarding an old violin I have, or give me the address of a reliable person who would tell me its value? Inside the case there is this printed inscription:

"Antonius Stradivarius Cremonenfis, Faciebat Anno 17."

I bought this some years ago at the auction sale of an old man's possessions, and I have been told it may be valuable. — HOPEFUL.

• • •

DEAR HOPEFUL — Treasures are still being unearthed. There are many violins bearing the name of Stradivarius, so only an expert can say for sure whether yours has the stamp of genius.

A qualified Canadian authority near you may be located by contacting your nearest conservatory or academy of music.

• • •

Confidential to JUST WONDERING — Your mother is right. A bouquet of roses would be neither appropriate nor necessary. If you want to give a little more than a greeting card, a small box of candy would deliver the message.

Architect Ignored Tradition In Building School in Alta.

By ALLEN BACKMANN

EDMONTON (CP)—The architect ignored tradition when he designed Hillcrest Junior High School in suburban Jasper Place and now 850 students are going in circles.

John McIntosh commissioned by the Jasper school board to plan a compact, windowless school, gave them a round building. It opened last September and even the sceptics were impressed.

From the arched main entrance to the domed gymnasium in the centre, the school is unusual. It has its own generating plant, air-conditioning, classrooms divided by sliding panels and one never-ending corridor to serve the entire structure.

School superintendent Bert Hohol said the design was so radical that school board members considered plans for six months before deciding to go ahead.

Provincial education officials agreed to its construction as an experiment providing no similar buildings are put up for five years, by which time its practicability can be assessed.

To principal W. J. Klufas, a half-term has been enough to convince him of its merits. The lack of windows—which saved $118,912 in building costs—has reduced outside distractions, made it easier for teachers to hold attention of slower students and improved their marks "tremendously."

AIR STAYS FRESH

Air-conditioning makes working conditions more pleasant for teachers and students.

"You know how at the end of the day a conventional school smells like a chicken coop?" says the principal. "Well, here it is as fresh at night as it is in the morning."

The functional heart of the $760,000 school is the equipment room where an engine-driven generator, and a spare for emergencies, use natural gas to provide electricity. Waste heat is recovered in low-pressure steam to heat, ventilate and air-condition the building.

It's estimated that the total energy plant will reduce utility costs by $4,000 a year.

Classrooms fan out within the circumference of the wheel-like structure. Lack of windows is offset by pastel color combinations and large lack and blackboards.

Some rooms are divided by sliding partitions which can be moved to allow one instructor, such as a visiting expert, to lecture to 70 or more students. Seats in these rooms are tiered much as in a theatre to enable all to see.

Laboratories, storage facilities, offices and the library make up most of the centre circle in the building.

Mr. Hohol says a conventional school would have cost 12 per cent more. Basic reason for the lower cost is that only one main corridor is needed and the design allows for full use of floor space. A conventional unit for the same number of students would require an extra 16,000 square feet.

Study Needed to Determine Best Method of Treating Breast Cancer Say Experts

VANCOUVER (CP) — A major Canada-United States study is needed to determine the best method of treating breast cancer, says Chicago radiologist Dr. J. W. J. Carpender.

Two other doctors told the Canadian Radiologist Association that a simple annual test could eliminate cancer of the cervix and that prospects are improving for curing cancer of the nasopharynx, the area behind the nose extending down to the roof of the mouth.

Dr. Carpender, chief of radiotherapy at the University of Chicago and president of the American Board of Radiology, told the association a doctor whose patient has breast cancer faces a dilemma in choosing the best method of treatment.

Dr. Carpender said many of the various methods have still not been properly assessed although many of them have been in use for more than 60 years.

"Breast cancer is the most frequent kind among women, and most reports so far show only 54 per cent of patients survive five years or more.

"One can never be sure of an absolute cure," he said.

Records show that breast cancer can recur as long as 25 years after an apparent cure.

He reviewed various techniques and said there is a lively controversy over the relative merits of the two basic types of breast-removal operations—simple and radical mastectomy.

Radical mastectomy involves removal of the entire affected breast plus other tissues down to the ribs, and simple mastectomy is removal only of the breast, a much less deforming operation.

Most surgeons prefer the radical mastectomy in serious breast-cancer cases, in the belief that removal of more tissue gives them a better chance of controlling the disease.

But Dr. Carpender said an Edinburgh surgeon has achieved a 58-per-cent five-year survival rate with simple mastectomy, plus radiation, compared with an average of 54 per cent for the more radical operation.

He said the percentage difference is small but important because of the number of cases involved—40,000 in the U.S. every year. In Canada alone the disease killed 2,302 women in 1962.

Dr. D. A. Boyes, associate director of the B.C. Cytology Laboratory, said a simple annual test could almost eliminate the threat from cancer of the cervix, or neck of the womb.

He said the test involved a doctor taking a smear of cells shed by the cervix and sending them to the cytology laboratory for examination to determine if cancer is present.

The test now is available to all women in B.C. and the incidence of cancer of the cervix has dropped by 45 per cent.

The incidence of serious cases in 1955 in B.C. was 28.4 per 100,000 women. Today it is 15.5.

Latest statistics indicate that if all women had annual tests the incidence could be cut to 3.5 per 100,000, near the vanishing point.

Dr. J. M. Evans of the B.C. Cancer Institute told the radiologists that prospects are improving for a cure of a cancer of the nasopharynx, a type of cancer especially high among British Columbia's Chinese population. Rare in western races, it is common among both inland Chinese and Canadians of Chinese extraction.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A medical researcher advanced the theory Thursday that every breast gets cancer from time to time, but that the normal human body throws off most of the cancer tissue.

Dr. John Hotchin of the New York State health department said that, when overt malignancy does occur it may be because one such cancer was not recognized by the doctor or because it was partially tolerated, thus allowing a malignancy to form.

NEAR ESCAPE for pedestrians on Front Street came when brick work at this real estate office was toppled by the blast. Site was barricaded by works crews as gales continued to lash city.

Tri-Quinte Mixed Spiel Opens With Eighty Rinks

One of the biggest mixed spiels in Eastern Ontario, 80 rinks from every section of the province, opened at three curling clubs, Quinte, RCAF and Trenton, last evening and will continue until Sunday night, when the finals in four competitions will be played at the Trenton club. The spiel is called the Tri-Quinte Mixed Bonspiel, and its chief aim and objective is for everyone to have a good time, meet old friends and get in a "spot" of competitive curling.

A splendid program has been arranged by the spiel committee, headed by Jim Duncan of the Trenton club. The highlight of the spiel will take place tonight at the RCAF Station, when a banquet, dance and variety program will be staged.

The spiel opened at all three rinks on Thursday night when two draws were played. Those taking part were mostly members of the three clubs involved, but today the outside rinks will "move in" to take their chances with the local curling Rinks from Ottawa, Metro Toronto, Kingston, London and sundry other places have entered.

WELCOMED BY MAYOR

At the Quinte Curling Club last evening, His Worship Mayor Jack Ellis started the ball rolling. Ross Booth, vice-chairman of the general committee, was in charge. He explained the rules, the program, and then introduced Mayor Ellis, who welcomed the curlers to the city, wished them a good time while in the Quinte district and hoped for all good curling. When the second draw was started "Pete" Acton, also a member of the committee, welcomed the contestants and explained the rules and procedures.

Due to space it will not be possible to list all the games but the spiel will be picked up for scores when the contests have reached the eights in all events. Last night at the local club some excellent curling was witnessed and some close games resulted. The ice was keen and a little tricky, but this made for more exact weight.

The women were not disgraced by their male companions and there were a number on the district side who would grace any man's rink and hold their own in any company. It was surprising to see the women making tough take-out shots with hardly any effort at all. And they can sweep, but that should come naturally, after doing housework every day in the week.

Senators Told Conditions In Some Nursing Homes Bad

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate committee on aging was told Thursday that its members would be "amazed" and "horrified" by conditions which exist in some private nursing homes in Canada.

Mrs. N. I. Zemans, president of the National Council of Jewish Women of Canada, made the statement in urging the committee to recommend that municipal and provincial governments should take steps to ensure a high standard of care in homes for the aged.

Mrs. Zemans said the council would like to see a system of licencing adopted and training programs started for persons working in nursing homes.

There are no training programs in Canada for persons caring for the aged, she said. Even doctors and dentists were not being trained in the care of old persons suffering from such ailments as from loss of memory.

The council in a brief submitted to the committee urged that a national association on aging be established to conduct an education-1 program to persuade Canadians to prepare for old age, to bring about uniformity in welfare services and to assess minimum incomes required for a minimum standard of living.

Senator Allister Grosart (PC Ontario) said most organizations that had appeared before the committee had stressed the need for a co-ordinated national program for the care of the aged. He questioned whether a national association would be able to do the job because it would be limited to making recommendations to government.

Senator David Croll (L—Ontario) said some of the responsibility must be placed on government if there is to be any co-ordinated plan for taking care of older persons.

Both the council and the Canadian Labor Congress urged that municipalities make greater use of the National Housing Act to finance new housing for the aged.

They said Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation should try to persuade provincial and municipal governments to take advantage of provisions of the act providing for the construction of such housing.

B. C. Defeats Richardsons In Brier Clash

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) British Columbia virtually clinched the Canadian curling championship today with an 8-3 victory over Saskatchewan in the crucial 10th round of the round-robin tournament.

The victory in this head-on battle gave the west coast rink skipped by Lyall Dagg of Vancouver an 8-1 won-lost record against 7-2 for the second-place Richardson family rink from Regina which is seeking its fifth Canadian title. Each has one more game to play.

B.C. concludes the 11-round tournament this afternoon against Art Burke's hometown rink from Charlottetown and the Richardson's meet Ian Baird's foursome from Kentville, N.S.

B.C. needs only a victory this afternoon to win the title. But a loss, combined with a Saskatchewan win, would force a sudden-death playoff tonight between the two rinks. No other rinks are in contention.

Wife Admits Striking and Killing Husband

WALKERTON, Ont. (CP) — Mrs. Florence Monk, 36, of Elmwood, Ont., pleaded guilty in magistrate's court here Thursday to leaving the scene of an accident which killed her husband.

She testified she felt a bump while driving a car along a township road where her husband's body was found.

"The wind was blowing the snow heavy that night," Mrs. Monk said. "At times you couldn't see anything. I felt a bump and stopped the car, then drove backward. I opened the door and couldn't see a thing."

Police said she was the driver of a car which struck and killed her husband, Daniel, 34, last Christmas Eve. Mr. Monk's body was found by a passing motorist.

Mrs. Monk was remanded a week for sentencing. Charges of criminal negligence and dangerous driving against her were withdrawn.

Witnesses said they saw Mr. Monk walking toward his home before midnight. The car Mrs. Monk was driving back from a party was found stuck in a snowbank about six miles from the accident scene.

Mrs. Monk told the court that she was returning home from a party her husband had left earlier without giving any reason.

Trade Minister Sharp Expresses Criticism of U.S. Flour Export Subsidies

WASHINGTON (CP) — Trade Minister Sharp conferred with a number of U.S. authorities Thursday, expressing criticism of U.S. flour export subsidies and higher American tariffs on some Canadian agricultural products affecting Canadian shippers.

"We take very serious exception to the American policy of giving wheat subsidies which puts our mills under a great handicap," Sharp told a press conference after separate meetings with Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman, Assistant Dyn m e r ce Secretary Jack Behrman and interior Secretary Stewart Udall.

Under the U.S. export subsidy on wheat, the U.S. provides a specific flour subsidy equivalent to eight cents a bushel of wheat. This "excessive" assistance to U.S. flour shippers is a detriment to Canadian flour exporters," Sharp said.

He also touched on this flour complaint during a luncheon speech to the National Association of Grain Dealers where he emphasized that the Canadian government does not subsidize Canadian grain exports.

"Not only so, but when Canadian flour exporters encountered difficulties in competing against flour subsidies paid by competing countries, including the U.S., the Canadian wheat board introduced an export adjustment for flour equivalent to the wheat producers themselves . . . the government was not a party to it."

SEES SOMETHING WRONG

During the association meeting, Erwin Peterson, president of Cargill, Inc., one of the largest U.S. grain shippers, said there appears to be something wrong with the U.S. system when Canadians, with a shorter growing period, "can profit from unsubsidized sales at world prices while our own farmers, even with sizable export subsidies, must submit to severe production and market limitations."

Sharp said he took up with Freeman the question of how to make Canadian - U.S. wheat marketing consultations more fruitful. These department officials broke down last September when the U.S. accused Canada of following unfair wheat marketing practices. Sharp said he is not sure whether the quarterly consultations would be resumed or whether some new channel would be developed.

When Canada introduced a tariff incentive program to encourage expansion of automotive production in Canada, the U.S. commerce department said this also hurt U.S. exports to Canada.

Sharp said his discussions with Assistant Commerce Secretary Behrman broke no new ground. He said Behrman informed him the department still is keeping the Canadian situation under careful review.

DIDN'T SURPRISE HIM

"What he told me didn't surprise me," Sharp said.

He described the Canadian automotive industry, which is mostly under U.S. control, as "just beginning to respond" to the Canadian automotive incentive program. Some companies were more enthusiastic than others, he added.

However, he noted that under the U.S. tariff classification program, which went into effect last year, some Canadian auto parts manufacturers were "adversely affected."

For example, under the old tariff schedules, the duty on imported automobile headlights was 8½ per cent; now the U.S. described them as electrical lighting equipment, raising the duty to 17 per cent.

Behrman indicated to Sharp that the U.S. may be planning duty increases but may not be beneficial to Western countries doing trade with certain Communist countries, but Sharp said he was not at liberty to go into details of this discussion.

He emphasized that Canada's shipments to Cuba consist mainly of foodstuffs and as far as the future is concerned, "that is all that seems in prospect."

Letter Said To Dispute Statements

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Air Marshal C. R. Dunlap, chief of the air staff, has circulated a letter among senior air force officers which MPs say appears to dispute statements in the Commons defence committee report.

The document deals with criticisms of the RCAF and instructs senior officers to use it to dispel any "misconceptions" among RCAF personnel resulting from criticism in the press of the RCAF.

Informants said Thursday opposition MPs are considering what action might be taken on the letter, whether in the Commons or in the defence committee when it opens hearings Tuesday.

The document states that generally-speaking the RCAF has enjoyed a "good press" but that criticisms or misrepresentations might have a detrimental effect if they are allowed to pass without comment.

It refers specifically to criticisms "expressed" by members of the press reporting such things as the proceedings of the House of Commons special committee on defence.

MPS CONCERNED

However, MPs say they are concerned lest Air Marshal Dunlap's statements appear to conflict with statements in the report of the defence committee.

The letter says "it is simply not true to say that the CF-104 (aircraft) was designed to exclude the carrying of conventional weapons."

The committee's report said "the version of the CF-104 with which the RCAF Air Division is equipped is designed exclusively for the delivery of nuclear warheads."

In testimony before the committee, Air Chief Marshal Frank Miller, chairman of the chiefs of staff committee, described the CF-104 as "exclusively atomic."

Both the committee report and Air Marshal Dunlap's letter say modifications are necessary for the planes to assume more than a nuclear role although the air marshal says the RCAF laid down specifications to make the plane capable of carrying conventional weapons.

LETTER OVERRIDES

The letter also says that the air division in Europe acts in conjunction with other air and land forces in defence of the Western Europe in a role which is "clearly and exclusively tactical."

The defence committee's report said the division's "exclusive nuclear role precludes its use in conventional support of NATO ground forces."

Air Marshal Dunlap says the division would be "less liable to destruction in an initial missile attack" through dispersal in the period just prior to outbreak of hostilities.

The committee's report cited as a "basic weakness" of the division's role "its vulnerability to a first strike." And it says the idea of a "limited nuclear war" is a "dubious one" leaving the air division in the position of "limited operational value."

Report Increase Of Waterfowl

WASHINGTON (AP)—An increase of 17 per cent was reported in the number of birds observed during the annual winter waterfowl survey completed recently, the United States interior department said today.

The largest increase in numbers of birds was noted in southern portions of the Mississippi flyway.

There was also a considerable increase in number of waterfowl seen in the central flyway, especially in South Dakota, Nebraska, Colorado and Texas.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

Those fishing buffs are a hardy breed.

Imagine getting up at the crack of yawning, climbing into fur-lined long johns and going out to cut holes in the ice with the mercury flirting with the ice-below mark.

All for the sake of a few lovely speckled trout.

According to the Lands and Forests boys back Tweed way hundreds of the fishing "nuts" were out before Old Sol silvered the eastern horizon busy with axes and other ice-cutting weapons, boring holes in lake ice.

Hundreds of holes freckled the surfaces of the northern lakes by daylight February 28th—and lots of trout came topside to get a fish-eye view of the outer world, not forgetting to indulge in a change of diet.

About six a.m., they started to nibble their man-made breakfast but not in all cases. Some lakes produced few trout by ice fishing but if last season repeats, will be productive after they shed their ice shackles.

A department spokesman said: "It was not uncommon to see between fifty and one hundred fishermen on some of the more accessible lakes, especially those that gained a good reputation last year, along with the lakes that had been reclaimed by eradication of the coarse fish, such as perch, suntfish and rock bass by the use of a fish toxicant, then restocking them with speckled trout."

These reclaimed lakes for the greater part produced by far the greatest volume of trout in numbers, both this year and in 1962.

Lands and Forests personnel conducting creel census on district trout lakes contacted 1,573 anglers who had caught 3,234 speckled trout, 186 lake trout and 13 rainbow trout—indicating a success of about 1.5 fish per angler.

These figures, however, represent only a very small fraction of the anglers who were fishing the district over the weekend and do not indicate the total number of trout taken. They do indicate a trend in the overall catchability of trout by ice fishing.

Success ranged from anglers catching their limit to those who did not catch any. Variable degrees of fishing effort were noted among anglers where some did not put too much stress on fishing while others moved until they found grounds to their liking.

McHale Lake in Lyndoch township produced slightly better than 500 speckled trout this year on the opening weekend. Last year in its first year of production it yielded better than 565 trout on the opening two days.

Other lakes and yields were Scully Lake, Brougham township, 396 speckles; Stinears Lake, Dungannon township, 233; Ketten Lake, Denbigh township, 176 and Sheepack Lake, Barrie township, 165 trout.

There were many other lakes in the district that produced excellent catches of good quality trout over the opening weekend.

And department officials say, most anglers behaved themselves while out on trout safaris. The mild weather that set in on Saturday and continued through Sunday cut down on the number of bonfires. The boys obeyed conservation rules and the damage to trees along shorelines was negligible.

Owners of power toboggans, snowmobiles, etc., had a field day. They played a major role in transporting anglers to and from lakes and because of moderate snow depth the boys were able to penetrate well into the back country.

It would appear despite some criticism, that the government has made no mistake in opening the season on all trout species on March 1st. The early date has given many the opportunity of getting some outdoor recreation at a time when most other activities are at a rather low ebb.

Best of all, department officials say, there are ample stocks of trout still left in district lakes to take care of the fish-hungry Joes who prefer their hunting in the warm spring days, when the only ice around is in the refrigerator or tinkling in long tall glasses.

Syracuse Team Cancels Exhibitions

The exhibition bantam hockey series, between a Syracuse, N.Y., team and Belleville Oddfellows, planned here this weekend, has been cancelled according to a Belleville team spokesman this morning.

Syracuse will not be able to make an appearance but the Oddfellows expect to line up another opponent for Saturday afternoon's game here at two o'clock. The Syracuse team was to have played a second game on Sunday.

Blades Replace Komets

TOLEDO, Ohio (CP) — Toledo Blades Thursday replaced Fort Wayne Komets out of first place in the International Hockey League with a 3-1 overthe time victory.

The win enabled the Blades to take a one point lead and knock the Komets off the top of the circuit for the first time since New Years. Toledo still holds two games in hand on Fort Wayne with less than a month remaining on the schedule.

The teams battled to a scoreless tie until 12:46 of the final period when Greg Jablonski scored for the Blades. Roger Maisonneuve fired a goal at 3:49 of the overtime session.

Wings Whip Habs, Bruins Tie Hawks

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago finally has grabbed a one-point lead in the National Hockey League standings.

It looked for a while Thursday night as though neither the Hawks nor Montreal Canadiens wanted the leadership very badly. Chicago had to come from behind four times to tie Boston 4-4, while the disorganized Canadiens bowed 7-5 to Detroit.

They didn't look much like two teams that had been battling to break a first-place deadlock since mid-January.

Hawks now have 79 points with five games left to play in the regular schedule, while Canadiens have 77 with eight games to go.

The strict victory brought the Red Wings to within two points of Toronto Maple Leafs, who hold down third spot 12 points behind Chicago.

SCORING SHARED

The Thursday night scoring spree in Montreal was a community effort for both teams, as no individual got more than one goal.

The Detroit marksmen were Ivy Spencer, Bruce MacGregor, Doug Barkley, Parker Smith, Gordie Howe, Parker MacDonald and Jim Pappin.

Claude Provost, Bobby Rousseau, Jean Beliveau, Bernie Geoffrion and Jacques Plante were the Montreal scorers.

MacGregor was the sparkplug as the Wings bounced the 3-2 lead in the first period. He set up Spencer's and Barkley's goals and drove one himself from 20 feet out.

Provost and Rousseau scored as Canadiens fought back to tie twice in the first period, but Barkley's goal put Detroit ahead permanently.

Smith and Howe tallied for Detroit and Beliveau and Geoffrion for Montreal in the second period, which ended with the Wings ahead 5-4.

In the third, MacDonald and Langlois put the game out of reach in the first nine minutes. Ferguson got Montreal's last marker at 13:36.

Both goaltenders, Charlie Hodge for Montreal and Terry Sawchuk for Detroit, came up with 33 saves.

HODGE STILL LEADS

Hodge still leads in the goaltenders' race for the Vezina Trophy, but the seven - goal flurry reduced his lead over Chicago's Glenn Hall to one goal. Also, the rest of the schedule works in Hall's favor since Chicago has only five games left.

In Boston, Bill (Red) Hay got the tying goal with less than four minutes left, while Boston had two men in the penalty box and Chicago was one man short.

Again the scoring was a team effort as only Boston's Orland Kurtenbach came up with two goals. Murray Oliver and Johnny Bucyk got the other Boston markers and Bobby Hull, Stan Mikita, John McKenzie and Hay tallied for the Hawks.

The first period ended with Boston ahead 1-0 on Oliver's goal.

Five goals came in the second as Chicago fought back for a decision and Boston recovered the lead.

The period ended 3-3 and Kurtenbach's second goal after 40 seconds of play in the third kept the Bruins ahead until Hay ended the scoring at 16:32.

New York plays at Montreal as Detroit plays Chicago Saturday, while all six clubs see action Sunday—Montreal at New York, Toronto at Chicago and Detroit at Boston.

It was reported in the Maple Leaf dressing room Saturday night that captain George Armstrong may not be in the lineup on Monday night after having suffered a shoulder injury during the practice session.

Not A Conscientious Objector

Muslim Clay Named 'Cassius X'

NEW YORK (AP) — Cassius Clay, the world heavyweight champion, said Thursday that the next time he is introduced in the boxing ring, the announcer will point to him and cry out: "Cassius X."

It is the logical next step in the metamorphosis of the brashly, talkative Negro fighter under the careful tutelage of Malcolm X, a leader of the Black Muslim sect.

In the presence of Malcolm X, Clay is a subdued young man.

"Allah is the greatest!" replaces Clay's boast "I am the greatest!"

Many Black Muslims, who take the name "X" instead of their former slave names, have adopted "X" as a last name, rejecting the names their forebears acquired from white families for whom they were slaves.

Clay, descendant of a runaway Kentucky slave, was asked if he, too, would make the same change now that he has announced his Muslim membership.

NEW NAME NEXT TIME

"Yes," he replied. "The next time they introduce the heavyweight champion of the world, I'll say: 'In this corner, ladies and gentlemen, the heavyweight champion of the world, Cassius X.'"

The 22-year-old Clay has been almost constantly in Malcolm X's presence since arriving in New York Sunday.

Earlier in the day, Clay indicated he is not a conscientious objector.

"That is a dirty word," the new world heavyweight boxing champion added when asked whether the Islam religion he has embraced would make him refuse to go into U.S. military service.

"I don't like the way it sounds. I want to do just what's right. I don't want to go to jail, and I don't want to get in trouble.

"I don't know what my draft status is. That is up to the gentlemen in Washington."

Asked about reports from Louisville that he had flunked his army draft psychological test, Clay said:

"I don't know how I did. It was very tough. I was shown a lot of squares and other figures and I had to put them in the right place."

Belch's Win, SACOS Lose To Daubers

Belch Construction moved to within a single point of a spot in the Quinte Hockey League finals last night but SACO found the road a bit more difficult to travel.

Ter-Haar Daubers nipped SACO 4-3 in the third game of their best-of-five semi-finals series to take command 2-1 in games to one.

Belch's clipped Horlock Electric 6-3 and hold a commanding 3-0 lead with one game tied in that series.

Belch's had to overcome a second-period 3-0 deficit with all four goals in the final frame to defeat Horlocks. The four goals were scored in a space of seven minutes, two each by George Webb and Bernie Rochester. D. Hallam earned two assists, B. Belch and J. Boulter one.

R. Poste fired two second frame goals to build the Horlock lead. R. Hallam had an assist on one of them.

Ter-Haar and SACO were tied 1-1 after one period and 2-2 going into the third before Daubers outscored the losers by two goals. Ross starred for the winners with three goals, including both third-period markers. B. Jeffery got the other goal, H. Pointer helping on two, D. Moore and J. Donovan on one each.

B. Porteous scored one of the SACO goals and assisted on the other pair; Jack Cadman had a goal and assist, D. Knapton one goal and J. Gilby a pair of helpers.

Fourth game in both series will be played next Thursday night.

Richardson, Dagg Rinks Meet Defeat

Showdown This Morning

By MARVEN MOSS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Ernie Richardson, the tall fellow from the Prairies with the Sheriff touch, throws his family rink from Regina against British Columbia's Lyall Dagg today, bent on winning the Canadian curling championship.

Their 10th round meeting should be the showdown of the five-day provincial robin tournament. Both have identical 7-3 records and none of the other nine rinks is within reach.

Or turn, the winner should be home free. The Richardsons have a date with Ian Baird's foursome from Kenville, N.S., in the final round while B.C. takes on Art Burke's young hometown rink from Charlottetown.

But form took a beating twice Thursday as both leading rinks lost their unbeaten records during a busy three rounds of play. If another upset should leave them tied after the 11th round, they'll go back to each other tonight in a playoff at 8 p.m.

MANITOBA NEXT

Manitoba was the closest of the also-rans after Thursday's ninth round with six victories and three defeats, followed by Quebec and Prince Edward Island with 5-3 records. Then came Northern Ontario at 4-4, Alberta, Nova Scotia and Ontario in a three-way tie at 3-5, New Brunswick at 2-6 and Newfoundland, winless in nine starts.

The supporting attractions for this mornings Saskatchewan-B.C. classic sent Quebec against Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island against New Brunswick, Alberta against Northern Ontario and Newfoundland against Ontario with Manitoba drawing the bye.

The two Ontario entries were drawn against each other in the 11th round while Quebec was pitted against Manitoba and Alberta against New Brunswick. The bye went to Newfoundland.

Jack Polphlank's Northern Ontario crew and Elmer Black's Hodson, Que., foursome played the grandfather's role Thursday, the Kirkland Lake quartet taking advantage of a couple of Richardson miscues to topple Saskatchewan 8-6 in the eighth round while Black whipped the tiring British Columbians 10-7 in the ninth.

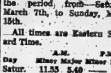
There were no major surprises in the seventh round. Saskatchewan walloped Dave Pedley's back-less Newfoundlanders 16-5 in the most lopsided result of the week. B.C. disposed of Nova Scotia 13-6, Manitoba shaded New Brunswick 8-7, Ontario edged P.E.I. 9-8 and Quebec whipped Northern Ontario 12-8.

B.C. IMPRESSIVE

B.C. looked impressive eliminating Bruce Hudson's Winnipeggers from contention with a 14-4 decision while the Richardsons were getting their comeuppance from Northern Ontario in the afternoon. Burke's hometown youngsters got past Newfoundland, 9-8. Alberta slipped Ontario 7-6 and New Brunswick defeated Quebec 9-7 in the other matches.

Saskatchewan bounced back Thursday night with a comfortable 13-4 win against New Brunswick. P.E.I. caught Northern Ontario on the rebound to win 12-7, while Manitoba whipped Nova Scotia 10-4 and Alberta whipped Newfoundland 7-4.

Two rars missed by Ernie Richardson spalled Saskatchewan's doom in the Northern Ontario match.



In the sixth end, his last stone wicked off a guard and missed the house, leaving Polphlank lying three & 2-1 in. Then he was short with his last rock in the final end, leaving a Northern Ontario skip sitting on the 12-foot circle for the game-winner.

Fatigue, compounded by increasingly heavy ice on the sides, contributed to B.C.'s defeat by Quebec.

"We just couldn't find the weight," said lead Barry Nalmark, who skipped the B.C. entry in the 1959 championships. The veteran lead was able to sweep only on Imperial sheets, leaving only one colleague to do most of the broom work.

Dagg led throughout the early stages but Black rounded twos in the ninth and 10th ends to take over.

Flyers Meet Marlies; Petes Meet Habs

Settle Junior 'A' Playoffs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ron Buchanan of Oshawa Generals has spent most of this season in the shadow of teammate Bobby Orr.

Earlier this week, the fabulous 15-year-old broke Jacques Laperriere's two-year-old record for goals by an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A defenceman by firing his 30th. Then it occurred to observers that Buchanan has been scoring a few goals too.

The first-year centre, son of Bucky Buchanan who once played for New York Rangers of the National League, tied his 31st and 32nd Thursday night as the Generals defeated Hamilton Red Wings 6-4. That left him the league's second - best sniper behind Yvan Cournoyer of Montreal Canadiens, who has 61.

NIAGARA IN FOURTH

Meanwhile, Niagara Falls Flyers clinched a fourth - place finish in the league by defeating Peterborough Peters 3-1. The Flyers will meet the league-leading Toronto Marlboros in the playoffs and the Petes will take on the second - place Canadiens.

Buchanan scored both his goals, now 47 them unassisted, within a 14-second span in the second period. George Vail also had a pair for the Generals, while Wayne Cashman and Bill Smith got the others.

Lorne Knowles, Pete Ververgaert, Bill Cashman and Pete Lovelens replied for Hamilton, Rich Bradford, Bud Delaney and Brian Bradley supplied the goals for Niagara Fails.

Dale Watson counted the lone tally for the losers.

Do-Or-Die Tonight For Petes!

Peterborough Monsena, their backs to the wall and fire in their eyes, will invade Memorial Arena here tonight for an all-important OHA Eastern Junior "B" playoff battle.

Belleville "B" s will supply the opposition and will be doing their best to wrap up a spot in the group finals against Kingston Frontenacs. Belleville leads the best-of-three semi-final set one game to none after upsetting the Mousens 5-4 in Peterborough earlier this week.

Tonight's game should provide the hardest-fought and closest action of the year on local ice. Mel Richard's boys have no intention of going back to the Limlock City for a deciding game on Monday — if they can help it. Mousens on the other hand did not like that first-game setback from the Belleville upstarts", and, realize they must win tonight to stay alive.

The "B" s produced a good, all-out brand of hockey to win the other evening, inspired by the Muteau-Rutherford- Hagerman combination, and will have to repeat the team effort to win here tonight.

Belleville coach Bob Taylor hopes to have a couple extra strength behind the blueline if Roy Maracle, attending a trade school in Toronto, can get down in time for the game. Marcle missed most of last month's games.

Peterborough coach Gary Darling may have a goal-tending problem if regular Steve Rexe's leg injury from the other night is as serious as was first thought. Randy Reid, little used to date, is the stand-by goalie.

The game gets under way at nine o'clock.

FANS PROTEST CHARGE

BOLOGNA (Reuters) — Thousands of soccer fans demonstrated here Thursday against the Italian football federation's allegation that five Bologna players had taken pep drugs. Local fans of the Italian division leaders braved heavy rain to parade through the streets with banners and placards. The team president said the club was not guilty of allowing players to take pep pills. The federation said Wednesday that in one of its periodic checks, tests Feb. 2 were found positive for five Bologna players. Bologna had beaten Turino 4-1.

Name Howell Blues MVP

NEW YORK (CP) — Harry Howell, 31-year-old defenceman in his 12th season with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, was named the team's most valuable player for the 1963-64 season.

Howell, a native of Hamilton, who joined the Rangers in 1952-53 after playing with Guelph, Ont., juniors, was selected by hockey writers who cover the Ranger home games.

Jacques Plante, the Ranger goalie obtained from Montreal Canadiens last summer in a trade, placed second to Howell in the voting and Phil Goyette, who came to New York in the same trade, was third.

Scene Of Cordial Goodwill

Mexicans Mob Casey, Mets

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Anyone here speak Stengelese?

The one and only Casey Stengel, at the head of a 34-man contingent of New York Mets, needed a police escort Thursday to protect him from some 300 enthusiastic well-wishers at the airport as the National League club arrived for a three-game exhibition stand against Mexican Leaguers.

It was a scene of cordial, if inarticulate, goodwill.

In other training camp developments, general manager Buzzie Vavasai of Los Angeles Dodgers indicated that base-stealing shortstop Maury Wills may have to get into shape without pay when the Dodgers open their season next month.

Then there's Tommy Brown of Washington Senators who wants to be sure he can quit baseball and join Green Bay Packers of the National Foot-ball League in July if he isn't signed his contract.

A former star-athlete at the University of Maryland, Brown was drafted second by the Packers after the 1952 season. However, he signed as a bonus baby with the Senators last year as a first baseman-outfielder.

Other prodigals returned to the fold. Kansas City Athletics came to terms with shortstop Wayne Causey, their leading hitter last season at .290, and Chicago White Sox signed hard-hitting outfielder Floyd Robinson. Hal Reniff, New York Yankees' top short relief pitcher, also signed his contract and Cincinnati Reds landed their last holdout, pitcher John Tsitouris.

Steeplechaser Sensation

Britain's Super Horse

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP) — A tremor of expectancy runs round the race course in Britain's superhorse is set for another race.

His name is Mill House, he runs Saturday in the Gold Cup at Cheltenham, and many a prudent judge will expect that there hasn't been a steeplechaser in the same class for a generation, perhaps never.

Still a young horse by steeplechasing standards, the placid seven-year-old gelding by King Hal out of Nas Na Hogh is already being compared with Golden Miller, the gallant jumper of pre-war years.

One recent racing article described Mill House as a champion of "such freakish greatness that he at once transcends and transfigures the accepted standards of steeplechasing."

The "big horse" has won his last six races, effortlessly. It is thought he has never been really pushed.

He is so good that he has all but extinguished his opposition —except for one never-say-die adversary named Arkle, a seven-year-old owned by the Duchess of Westminster.

Despite Mill House's towering reputation, Irish confidence is keeping the odds on Arkle around the 2-to-1 mark. Mill House is seldom favorite for the 3¼-mile pace at the Gloucestershire Course.

Mill House is owned by W. H. (Bill) Gollings, a retired advertising man who bought the gelding for £6,000 ($18,000). In County Kildare and already has won a small fortune in long-range bets at juicy prices on the horse's victory in the 1963 Gold Cup.

To Avoid Soccer Riot

Tickets Sold In Advance

LONDON (AP) — Police have ordered that tickets for the third clash between Manchester United and Sunderland in the quarter-finals of the English Soccer Cup must be sold in advance—to avoid another riot.

Two people died and another 100 were treated for broken bones, cracked ribs, cuts and bruises after riotous scenes at Sunderland Wednesday.

The field at Sunderland had room for about 60,000 but twice that number showed up. After thousands had been trampled at the ticket windows, the gates were smashed down.

Police ordered Thursday that tickets for the next game between the two teams Monday on neutral ground at Huddersfield be sold in advance, and limited to 35,000.

Manchester and Sunderland are battling for a place in the semi-finals of the English Cup.

The teams have tied twice, Manchester scored two goals in the last five minutes for a 2-2 draw last Saturday. A goal in the last minute created a 3-3 tie Wednesday.

The winner of the third match —if there is a winner—will meet West Ham a week from Saturday in the English Cup semi-finals. The winner plays in the semi-finals on March 28 at Hillsborough.

O'Hara Seeks Mile Record

Kidd, Crothers At Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Miler Tom O'Hara, who has been making track history in New York, will try to do it before hometown fans in the 38th annual Chicago Daily News Relays tonight.

A sellout crowd of 18,000 is expected to jam Chicago Stadium to cheer the trail-looping Loyola of Chicago business senior to an indoor record in the mile.

Last month in the New York AC meet, O'Hara ran the mile in an indoor record 3:56.6.

O'Hara indicated he would be ready for a crack at lowering his mark in defending his mile crown against five opponents including a pacer, Jim Irons of Toronto.

The others are Bill Dotson, Kansas graduate; Jim Grelle, Los Angeles and Ergas Lepa, Toronto.

Bill Crothers of Toronto will try to break New Zealander Peter Snell's 2:06 mark for the indoor 1,000 yards, and Bruce Kidd, 20-year-old University of Toronto student and 1964 Schuh of Oxford, Ohio, are expected to have a blistering duel in the two-mile.

Erickson's 69 Tops Rico Golf

SAN JUAN (AP) — Bob Erickson, little known 29-year-old U.S. golf pro, grabbed a one stroke lead Thursday with a three-under-par 69 in the first round of the Puerto Rico Open.

Combining a hot putter with strong iron play, Erickson unscorked five birdies in his 34-35 round.

Tied for second were Art Wall Jr., who holds a 150-point lead for the championship of the Caribbean circuit, George Knudson of Toronto and young Jay Dolan of the U.S.

Wall, winner of the Caracas Open two weeks ago, turned in a 35-35. Knudson, runner-up in the Caracas event, had a 34-36. Dolan went out in 37 and returned with a 33.

Other Canadian scores were:

Norman Hunt, Montreal, 36-35—74; Henry McIlree, Hamilton, 37-37—74; Adrien Bigras, Montreal, 40-36 — 76; Murray Tucker, Toronto, 39-37—76; Ken Duggan, Toronto, 40-38—78; Wilf Homenuik, Winnipeg, 42-40—80.

Wellington Defeats Stinson 6-3

Wellington moved one notch closer to the Prince Edward North Shore Hockey League playoff championship on the club's home ice last night by defeating Stinson Construction 6-3 in the first game of the championship series.

Second game in the best-of-seven series is slated for Tuesday night at eight o'clock.

The winners were ahead all the way although it was a hard-fought contest, a bit closer than the final score indicates. Wellington moved ahead 2-0 in the opening heat and made it 4-1 in the second. Goalies for both clubs were busy all night, making a number of excellent stops.

Al Kelley speerheaded the village club's attack, tapping home three goals. Al Pettingill contributed one goal and three assists, Gary Pyke a goal and two assists and Norm Hodgson the other goal.

Stinson goals were divided amongst Gary Genereaux, Keith Dickey and Billy Genereaux.

There were eight penalties assessed, five to Stinson's, including a misconduct to G. Genereaux late in the final period.

Fist Fight Enlivens Exhibition

PICTON (Staff) — Kingston Junior "B" Frontenacs registered a 7-3 exhibition hockey victory over Picton's Junior "C" Merchants here last night — but it was a third-period fight that stole the whole show.

Two of the Eastern Junior Hockey League's badboys, Kingston's Gary Lavallee and Picton's Bob Brown were the contestants but another "hard-rock", acting as referee for the contest, also got involved.

Lavallee tossed the first punches and Brown the last after the battle had raged for minutes. The fighters were broken apart several times only to come right back for more.

The referee involved was Picton's Keith MacDonald. MacDonald was knocked to the ice by a Lavallee push when he attempted to separate the fighters, but he bounced back up secured a headlock on the Kingston player and "guided" him to the dressing room. Brown also took off his equipment, the explosion coming at 17:00 of the third period.

Kingston led the game 1-0 after one heat and 4-1 going into the third. Pete Convery and John Mercer scored two goals each for Frontenacs, Gary McMillan, Ron Earl and Wayne Clancy one apiece. Rory MacDonald and Carl Byers netted the Picton goals.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Four of the National Hockey League's top scorers picked up a goal and an assist each Thursday night, to leave the standings of the seven best point-getters unchanged.

The extra two points gave Chicago's Stan Mikita, the scoring leader, a total of 83; second-place Bobby Hull of Chicago 79; third-place Jean Beliveau of Montreal 75, and sixth-place Gordie Howe of Detroit 63.

In fourth spot with 67 is Chicago's Kenny Wharram, held scoreless Thursday night, and fifth with 63 is Andy Bathgate of the idle Toronto Maple Leafs.

Hull's goal increased his league-leading total in that department to 39 and Beliveau's assist pulled him back into a tie with Bathgate for the playmaking leadership.

Each now has 48 assists.

TENNIS CHANGE UNGRACEFUL

LONDON (AP) — The British Lawn Tennis Association proposed Thursday that the Davis Cup challenge round be abolished and the country holding the trophy be made to play through the qualifying stages.

The recommendation will go to the Davis Cup participating countries at their annual meeting in July. Under present rules the holder country does not have to play until the final round.

TORONTO (CP) — All semi-final and final games of the Stanley Cup playoffs will be televised, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation announced yesterday.

The four playoff positions have not yet been decided. The National Hockey League has announced the two semi-final series will begin March 26 at the home rinks of the first and second place teams.

If either of the two best-of-seven semi-finals goes to seven games, the seventh game will be televised from the opening faceoff. Other semi-final games will be carried from 20 minutes after the start.

All final games will be televised in full.

The CBC radio network will broadcast all Saturday games and decisive games in the two semi-finals starting 20 minutes after the opening faceoff. If the semi-finals go the limit of seven games, the seventh game will be carried in full, as well as all games in the final.

Barons Clip Aces Home Win String

QUEBEC (CP) — The Cleveland Barons learned the hard way Thursday that Quebec's aces don't lose easily.

Leading 5-1 early in the third period of the only American Hockey League game, Cleveland figured it had snapped Quebec's 12 - game home ice winning streak.

But before you could say Wayne Freitag, the Aces were back in the game. Terry Gray's second goal of the night made it 5-3 and then Freitag hit twice inside of 32 seconds to make it 5-4.

The victory extended Cleveland's Western Division lead to four points over Pittsburgh. Quebec remained eight points in front of Hershey in the Western Division.

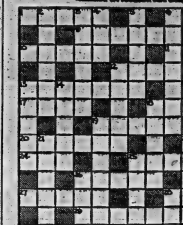
'Old Man' Tops At Pensacola

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Golf regulars on the professional tour were shooting at the "old man" as they teed off today for the second round of the $30,000 Pensacola Open.

The old man is 53-year-old Jack Burnam, who plays infrequently on the circuit but twice in the recent past stole the play from the younger stars when he won the 1962 Celon Classic and when he led after 18 holes in the PGA championship that year. He jumped off in front again Thursday with a five-under-par 34-35—69.

Fifty-one golfers shot par or better in the first round on the 6,830-yard Pensacola Country Club course.



Just a stroke behind with 68s were Gardner Dickinson, Fred Hawkins, Bill Collins and Jimmy Clark, all tournament winners in the past, and Downing Gray, a member of the 1963 Walker Cup team and runner-up in the 1962 National Amateur.

Jack Bissegar of Val Mérin, Que., was one of 11 players bracketed at 70. Al Johnston of Montreal shot a 73, one stroke better than Jerry Magee of Toronto.

Bob Rose of Toronto and Bill Wright Jr. of Edmonton failed to qualify for the tournament.

Ron Hergott Wins Senior Points Race

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galt Hornets rallied to finish in first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series after a close, exciting battle with Woodstock Athletics but a Galt right winger managed to win the scoring crown.

Ron Hergott, a 22-year-old product and a graduate of Niagara Falls Flyers in the OHA Junior circuit, scored 51 points on 23 goals and 28 assists to win the championship. Hergott also led in assists.

Jim Robertson and Vance Miller, both Galt players, defeated Welland Barbeaux, finished second and third to Hergott with 74 and 71 points respectively. Miller fired 37 goals while Robertson had 33.

Dave Dyson, a second-year man with Galt, took top honors in the goaltending race although he finished with a dismal out all season. Dryden, a former Toronto Marlboros Junior, allowed 141 goals in 39 games for a 3.61 average. Ron Salter of Woodstock was second with 3.90.

Defenceman Alex Keeling of Guelph Royals claimed the penalty honors, edging Welland's Chester Warchol in the final week. Keeling had 112 minutes in the penalty box, four more than Warchol.

Maroons Shade Czechs

JIHLAVA (CP) — In their toughest match of a 13-game exhibition tour of Europe, Winnipeg Maroons Thursday scored a 1-0 victory over Dukla Hiblava, a third ranked team in Czechoslovakia.

The victory was the fourth in succession for the defending Western Canada senior champions, following 10-1 and 8-2 victories in Germany and a 4-3 win over a team of Canadian coaches in Geneva, Switz.

Lorne Davis, playing-coach of Regina Caps of the Saskatchewan Senior League picked up for the tour, scored the only goal on a pass from Chuck Lemaine in a what-coach Gord Simpson described as the team's best effort of the tour.

Maroons took only four penalties called in the game and observers credit Ron Farnfield and Dick Lee with brilliant penalty - killing jobs as they weathered the disadvantages.

The game was played under poor conditions before 9,500 fans in an open air rink.

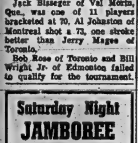
Regis Toomey Has Played Policeman for 35 Years

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Regis Toomey is celebrating this month his 35th anniversary as a police officer.

But after all this experience, Toomey today is a mere detective sergeant, running errands for that rich, girl-chasing, intrepid captain of homicide Amos Burke, who weekly solves a case on ABC's Burke's Law. "I've worked almost steadily since 1929," he said. "Once in awhile I've been cast as a villain but mostly I've been a policeman, although sometimes a bad one."

He played his first policeman in Alibi, the first all - talking gangster movie. Since then he has 225 movies.



Burke's Law is his fifth television series. And he's been a law man in them all.

"It's been a good, busy life," he remarked. "But once in a while it would have been nice if I could have got the girl at the end."

Recommended Viewing:

Tonight—Route 66, CBS, 8:30-9:30 p.m. EST—first of a two-part episode which will wind up the series.

Gene Barry Has Another Starring Role in Series

By DAVE SMITH

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—It really doesn't take much to be a smash hit in the entertainment world.

You have to sing more or less on pitch, try not to fall on your physiognomy when you dance, take a few acting lessons and not have a face that would stop a gundial. And have the stamina of a Clydesdale.

Talent or no, you've still got to lit that barge or you've had it.

Take Gene Barry. He's won praise as a song - and - dance man, musical comedy star, on- and off-Broadway actor, film star and television idol.

But all that talent would be for nought if it weren't for the fact Barry can work like a consumed paperhanger and still arise next morning with a full head of steam.

KNOWN AS BAT

Barry probably became best-known as television's Bat Masterson of Bat Masterson, a series that ran for six years. Now he's back in another series, Burke's Law, as detective sergeant Amos Burke, who weekly solves a case on ABC's Burke's Law.

Burke's Law is his fifth television series. And he's been a law man in them all.

"It's been a good, busy life," he remarked. "But once in a while it would have been nice if I could have got the girl at the end."

Burke's Law is the first television series created by Barry's wife Patricia Barry. Her husband says she's a natural writer, and he's not prejudiced.

"She's been writing since she was a little girl," he said. "She's had a number of short stories published in magazines and has written a couple of books. She's also written a number of scripts for television shows."

Barry, waging a constant war against bloodshot eyes, works from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. five days a week on the series, then goes home, eats dinner, reads the next day's lines and falls into bed sometime after midnight.

NEW TENNIS CAPTAIN

LONDON (AP) — Angela Mortimer, Wimbledon queen of 1961, was named non-playing captain of the British Wightman Cup tennis team Thursday. She succeeds Mrs. Bea Walter who resigned Wednesday after guiding Britain's girls through four cup matches against the United States. Britain has been defeated the last three clashes.

May Have Tossed Away $84,114.20

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A bettor in the $1 general admission seats at Gulfstream Park scored the largest payoff in U.S. horse racing history Thursday — $84,114.20 — but he may have thrown the ticket away.

The holder of the only good ticket after three races did not show up at the pari-mutual windows by the time they closed at 6:30 p.m. However, he can cash the ticket any time before the meeting closes April 23.

The track did not know the identity of the man who held the winning ticket, or what he did with it. But there was more than a chance that he tore it up when his horse, Initabar, finished second, in the eighth race.

The winner, Gathering Dusk, was disqualified and Initabar, a $115.40 longshot, was awarded first place.

Ordinarily the twin double requires the bettor to pick the winner of four races, the fifth, sixth, eighth and ninth.

The previous high payoff in the twin double was $79,660.30 at Roosevelt Raceway last fall.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21). Review investment plans. Concentrate on potential, future. Get details out of the way early. Consult family member. Key is service. If you are considerate, you will gain.

Leo (July 22 to August 21). Some delay to be expected. But if you are calm, you win. If you display humor, you can gain admirers. Much in your favor if you act with self-assurance. Message very clear by tonight.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20). Emphasis on ability to make new friends. This is a fine day for getting out and around. Accept invitations. Be a good listener. Express interest in activities of loved ones.

If today is your birthday you have tendency to seek perfection. To avoid disappointment try being a bit more realistic. Keep principles high. But realize that to err is human.

Prosecution Case Against Ruby Near End

DALLAS (AP)—The prosecution expects to complete its direct testimony against Jack Ruby today, adding more new licenses to tell what he said in the first moments after he killed Lee Harvey Oswald.

The television film of the police station scene when Oswald was shot down by Ruby was to be shown to the jury.

Ruby has never seen the film, broadcast "live" and re-run numerous times. Ruby has been in jail since the shooting, Nov. 24.

Ruby, 52, operator of a girlie night club in Dallas, is charged with murder with malice. District Attorney Henry M. Wade says he will contend a verdict of death in the electric chair is justified.

The defence says Ruby was temporarily insane when he shot Oswald, the accused assassin of president Kennedy.

Seven Prisoners Stage Break At Dallas Jail

Former Strip-Tease Dancer Terrorized

By TOM JOHNSON

DALLAS (AP)—Seven prisoners staged a spectacular break from the Dallas County jail Friday and terrorized a former strip-tease dancer who was about to testify in the Jack Ruby murder trial.

"Oh, my God, he's after me," cried 19-year-old Karen Lynn (Little Lynn) Bennett, as she saw an escaping inmate wielding what looked like a pistol.

Little Lynn, who worked for Ruby at his Carousel Club here, is pregnant and several days overdue for birth.

Four of the men were recaptured shortly after the break about 2:30 p.m. The other three still were at large today.

Little Lynn was being escorted to the women's room by Mrs. Melvin Belli, wife of the chief defence counsel, and Mrs. Rosemary Allen, a sheriff's deputy, when she saw an escapee with a fake pistol stuck in the back of a hostage, Mrs. Ruth Thornton.

Sheriff Bill Decker said the prisoners began the break-out when several of them pushed their way into an elevator as it stopped on the sixth floor near a table where the weekly soap ration was being distributed to prisoners.

Seven prisoners finally made their way into the elevator and demanded to be taken to the second floor. There they took the keys from the jailer operating the elevator and poured into the hallway that runs some 40 or 50 feet to the door of Judge Joe B. Brown's court, where Ruby is being tried for murder of Lee Harvey Oswald, accused assassin of president Kennedy.

Two jailbreakers ran into probate court. One was captured.

The other man—who wielded a realistic pistol fashioned from soap, cardboard and a pencil and painted black with shoe polish—showed the pistol in the back of Mrs. Thornton, shoved her, window of a former district judge, and demanded: "Show me the way to get out of this place."

Mrs. Thornton said he told her he would not harm her if she showed him the way. "I said, 'let's go,'" she related.

As the escapee and Mrs. Thornton moved toward Judge Brown's court, a sheriff's car, leading to the sidewalk, she told reporters, deputies and spectators: "Don't shoot, stop back . . . please stay back."

Outside, Deputy Sheriff Charles Fraser took the fake gun from the prisoner. Other deputies then overpowered him.

TAKEN HOSTAGE — Mrs. Thornton, with a gun at her back, is marched down steps of Criminal Courts Building by Clarence D. Gregory, who with several others, broke jail in Dallas yesterday. The same hostage was propelled along a corridor near the Jack Ruby murder trial courtroom. (AP Wirephoto)

Gordon Hikes Deficit

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon told the House of Commons Friday with a $240,884,747 bill to wrap up the government's spending program for the fiscal year ending March 31.

He also served notice of a $76,000,000 increase in his budget deficit for the year resulting from adjustments in the armed forces pension fund.

An official estimate of the 1963-64 deficit won't be known until Mr. Gordon's budget speech, expected in three to six weeks. But the size of the final appropriation bill, combined with the $76,000,000 pension fund item, added strength to speculation that the deficit will top the $700,000,000 mark.

The appropriation request — which did not include the $76,000,000 — brings to $6,900,000,247 the budgetary estimates Parliament has been asked to vote for the year.

Thus it appears that actual government spending in 1963-64 will come close to the $6,965,600,000 forecast by Mr. Gordon in his last budget, since actual outlays in some fields fall short of the estimates voted by Parliament.

OMITS PENSIONS

The total of budgetary estimates for the year doesn't include an estimated $207,000,000 in universal $75 old age pensions which aren't counted in budget accounts.

Mr. Gordon's basic spending program for next fiscal year starting April 1, presented last Tuesday, is $6,703,519,508 in budgetary estimates and, $882,000,000 in old age pension costs.

Supplementary estimates during 1964-65 will raise this total considerably. Typically additions to current year's expenditures bring each supplementary estimates for the year to a total of $552,813,022—larger than any in the last decade.

Former Conservative finance minister George Nowlan, commenting on the more than $240,000,000 added Friday, compared Mr. Gordon with Atlas who tried to hold up the sky.

"The sky has fallen . . . on us."

Castro May Obtain $200 Million From Sugar to Finance Purchases

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Fidel Castro may have $200,000,000 from sugar sales this spring to widen the crack in the crumbling U.S.-economic blockade of Cuba, exile experts estimate.

The estimate was contingent upon harvesters winning their race with anti-Castro saboteurs as Havana radio, monitored here, told of increasing trade relations with Cuba by Canada and Japan.

The Cuban Sugar Growers Association in exile estimated this spring's crop at 5,200,000 long tons. This compares with 3,821,000 tons last year, smallest in 18 years.

A spokesman for the exile group said that if Russia releases to Cuba all or even 2,000,000 tons, as expected, Castro could keep 1,000,000 tons to buy machinery, parts and other things needed to bolster his shaky economy. Moscow, Cuba is obligated to sell her sugar to Russia for six cents a pound in merchandise. The world market is higher.

A million tons could mean $200,000,000 for Castro, depending on the market.

Exile sugar men said Castro already has sold or offered more than 1,000,000 tons of this year's harvest on the world market.

Tobacco Crisis In Stalemate

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's tobacco crisis was in a stalemate today after about 200 angry growers marched on Queen's Park Friday to demand a return to minimum market price levels.

The action came eight days after farmers forced the closing of three exchange auctions because the free market established this year resulted in bid prices as low as three cents a pound.

The first serious side-effect of the dispute was the announced closing Friday of the Simcoe Leaf Tobacco Company Limited Plant and the laying off of 350 employees.

Tobacco companies predicted in London, Friday that 1,000 layoffs can be expected if the exchange auctions at Tillsonburg, Delhi and Aylmer remain closed.

The government's tobacco advisory committee, meeting in London, concluded with no announcement on deliberations. About 50 growers were barred from the meeting.

Agriculture Minister Stewart, who met with six of the growers at Queen's Park, said it has been a good meeting but "I can't say we are any closer to a solution."

UP TO GOVERNMENT

A spokesman for the marching growers, ohn Tarr of Norfolk County, said it was up to the government to make the next move and that the growers will play ball with anyone to get the tobacco sold.

"But if they (the government) decide against us, we're all through yet."

One of the farmers said "the only thing that will bring relief is violence."

A majority of the 4,500 growers have agreed to keep the auctions closed and one-third of the crop unsold until a solution is found.

Minimum prices on various grades of tobacco were in effect during the 1962-63 auctions but these marketing areas. The Fine-Cured Tobacco Growers Marketing Board decided to set the market free during the 1963-64 season, allowing tobacco grades to find their own levels.

There were some suggestions among the farmers at Queen's Park that the fine-cured board took this step against the wishes of the farmers and because of pressure from the government's marketing board.

Crown Prince Constantine Is New King of Greece

ATHENS — A rugged dark haired athlete with a taste for fast sports cars, an eye for beauty and a strict military and political upbringing is the new king of Greece.

The death of King Paul automatically made his only son, Crown Prince Constantine, 23, the new ruler of this Atlantic Alliance nation of 8,500,000 people.

Under the Greek constitution, Constantine became king instantly through right of succession. By the same constitution the moment he takes the oath of office he was able to perform royal duties. Greece's constitutional monarchs require no coronation.

He pledged immediately to guard Greece's democratic regime and serve "the highest interests of the people."

Speaking in firm voice, young King Constantine told the people of the country Friday he had told his father of their prayers for his recovery before his death.

"My father replied to me 'I was tough and thorough from the start—training that really began almost from his birth on June 2, 1940. With others of the royal family he left the country in 1941 to escape invading German armies. They travelled first to Crete, then Egypt and finally South Africa, returning to Greece in 1946.

During those difficult days the young prince could not always count on royal treatment. He and his sister, Sophie, now the Olympics.

He was the first Greek of the 20th century to bring home to this ancient birthplace of the Olympics a top Olympic honor, the title of champion, that famous took down a bit of the city's ancient wall to welcome him home.

Constantine, as prince, was Greece's chief boy scout and became a familiar figure to scouts from around the world who attended the international boy scout jamboree at Marathon in August, 1963.

He also is a devotee of the sports car. He was a familiar sight as he piloted his cars over the streets and roads of his country. He took 13 for his license number.

Before his engagement to lovely 17-year-old Princess Anne-Marie of Denmark, to whom he will be wed next January, Constantine often was seen in the company of attractive Greek girls.

But his training to be king is finished. He is ready to take over the armed forces and rule his country.

"My father replied to me 'I thank them and I take leave of them,'" he said.

"King Paul thanks you and bids you farewell. Long live Greece."

He said he was succeeding to the throne "with the pledge to follow my father's example and fulfill my duties, inspired by his virtues."

To the world at large, Constantine is probably best known for his diversions. In 1960 he won for his country a gold medal for yachting at the Rome

Living Costs in Canada At Record Level in January

OTTAWA (CP) — Living costs in Canada rose to record levels in January, with the consumer price index at Feb. 1 rising three-tenths of a point to 134.5 from 134.2 a month earlier.

The bureau of statistics said today the January increase in the index—gradation of urban living costs—occurred after it had slowly during November and December at the previous high of 134.2. The index is based on 1949 prices equalling 100.

The index at Feb. 1 was 1.8 per cent or 2.4 points above the figures for the corresponding date in 1963.

In January most of the increase in the index was caused by a 1.1 per cent rise in the transportation index.

Indexes for recreation and reading, tobacco and alcohol and clothing also were higher, while housing and health and personal care indexes were unchanged and the food index declined slightly.

The January rise followed a decline in industrial wages during December. The index of average industrial wages and salaries at Jan. 1—latest date available—was 190.3, compared with 197 a month earlier and 182.8 a year earlier.

This index — also based on 1949 levels equalling 100—represents the average of total wages paid by firms employing more than 15 persons in a wide range of industries.

The transportation index advanced 1.5 points to 142.6 at Feb. 1 from 141.1 a month earlier. This resulted from a sharp increase in insurance rates in the automobile operation component of the index.

Oratory Stream Flows

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — The stream of political oratory about the Cuban missile crisis flowed in the Commons for the fourth straight day Friday without generating any action. The flow will continue Monday.

Under debate is a government motion to refer the 1963 treaty with the United States and the protocol signed in January, to the external affairs committee for detailed study.

The Communist party, the rules say, has the vision or lack of vision of Premier Bennett of British Columbia, nuclear power and the legality of the Peace River dam all entered the debate Friday.

A string of six Conservative speakers argued that their party deserves the credit for the historic power and flood control treaty, which would bring rich benefits to Canada and B.C. in particular.

They accused the Liberal government of trying to steal the credit after fighting the treaty savagely in the 1962 and 1963 election campaigns.

The three NDP speakers argued that the protocol greatly improved the original treaty. The two NDP spokesmen called the treaty a rape of Canadian interests and a sellout to the U.S.

ANGERS NDP

Perry Ryan (L—Toronto Spadina) angered the New Democrats by accusing them of standing the Canadian civil servants who negotiated the treaty and of taking the same position as the Communist party of Canada.

He read a Communist press release of last June which termed the treaty "a disgraceful and treacherous betrayal" of all

New Postal Rates Are Introduced

By AMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP) — First class letters for one ounce will cost five cents instead of four cents under a new schedule of postal rates Finance proposed to Parliament.

Finance Minister Gerard Nicholson gave notice Friday in the Commons of a resolution leading to the amending bill. There was no indication when the proposed new rates would come into effect.

A post office spokesman said the changes are expected to take effect April 1 or later, for the department, which is running at an estimated deficit of $176,808 in the current fiscal year.

Mr. Nicholson said last month, soon after he took over the portfolio, he wants to put the post office on a paying basis.

Other changes will affect newspapers and periodicals.

The rate for letters for local delivery now is four cents for the first ounce and two cents for each additional ounce.

Weekly newspapers now are handled within a city at the rate of one cent for the first two ounces, one cent for the next two ounces, and one cent for each additional four ounces. Rural delivery now is free for the first 2,500 copies mailed, and 1½ cents a pound for additional copies.

These rates are to be replaced with a new standard flat rate of one-half cent per item mailed to each separate address.

Turks Promise To Follow Suit, Easing Tension

UN Peace Force Head Says Move Great Help

CP from Reuters-AP

NICOSIA—Forty-nine Turkish Cypriots, held as hostages by Greek Cypriots today were handed over to a representative of the International Red Cross.

Archbishop Makarios, Greek Cypriot president, ordered release of the hostages Friday in an effort to ease Cyprus' explosive jail minority. He said they would be turned over to the International Red Cross today.

As new fighting resulted in two more deaths, Makarios also promised Turks he would "spare no effort" and will take all necessary measures in order to suppress any unlawful acts and to enforce law and order."

Lt.-Gen. Prem Singh Gyani of India, named Friday as commander of the UN Cyprus peace force, said the release of hostages by both sides will "help the situation here enormously."

Dr. Fazil Kutchuk, Turkish Cypriot vice-president, said the Turks will free their "few Greek hostages, if Makarios carries out his pledge. Kutchuk said the Greeks had 207 Turkish Cypriots.

MUST DISARM GREEKS

But Kutchuk said the proposed UN police force must disarm "the Greek community before the Turks lay down their arms."

At the United Nations, Secretary-General U Thant found unexpected difficulties in creating the international force, authorized by the Security Council Wednesday.

Sweden promised a battalion of about 800 men for the three months' duty requested by the council, but asked for assurances that she will not be the only non-NATO contributor.

Brazil rejected Thant's bid for troops. Finland, Ireland and Canada still indicated reservations about joining the force while Austria was considered likely to contribute only a non-combat hospital unit.

BRITISH TO STAY

Continued British participation was indicated by Cyprus's expressed desire to name the British Army's new commander, Maj-Gen. R. N. P. Carver, as deputy commander of the international forces. Britain reinforced its garrison on Cyprus shortly after the outbreak of fighting between Greeks and former British colony last December.

Fighting continued for the third straight day in scattered areas of the island Friday.

15,000 Young Leftist Terrorists Waging War on Congo Government

By DEREK BLACKMAN

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters) — About 15,000 young Congolese leftists are waging armed warfare against the Congolese government in the Congo's western province of Kwilu.

That is the estimate of Congolese army commander-in-chief Joseph Mobutu during a flying visit here this week-end.

But he told a press conference the revolt so far has been successfully contained. The military phase of the army's "pacification plan," he added, would be over within the next two weeks.

The army would then begin a "psychological campaign" to persuade the people to return to normal life. Troops are already helping to distribute emergency food supplies sent into the area.

Accompanying Mobutu later in a light aircraft on a reconnaissance trip over eastern Kwilu, this reporter saw dozens of villages which had been burned and razed.

UN Peace Force Head Says Move Great Help

By MAX HABKELSON

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Nobody expected U Thant's Cyprus assignment to be easy, but it already has become apparent that it's going to be a big, mixed headache.

It is possible the secretary-general underestimated the difficulties involved when the Security Council handed him the Cyprus problem last Wednesday.

He said the council the responsibilities did not differ much from those of the past and have no hesitation in undertaking them.

Actually, the United Nations has faced few problems as complicated and seemingly as hopeless as the Cypriot dispute.

The secretary-general is finding a pronounced lack of enthusiasm among the countries he has asked for military contingents.

SEE NO -END

This is partly because many see Cyprus as an unending problem which could involve the use of troops indefinitely. Some of those asked for soldiers have been stuck for eight years in the Middle East force and for four years in The Congo. They know how hard it is to get out, once you're in. They are asked this time not only to provide the troops but pay the costs.

There also are misgivings over continued violence between Turkish and Greek Cypriots despite the presence of British forces on the island. Some potential contributors do not relish the idea of their troops being shot at or shooting at Cypriots.

Thant's problem is not simply one of finding countries willing to provide troops and finance them. They have to be chosen from a somewhat limited group which can get the approval of the parties concerned.

The secretary-general narrowed the field to British Commonwealth and non-aligned nations. It was narrowed still more by objections from Cyprus, Greece, Turkey and Britain.

Canada delayed its response to a request for troops, Brazil replied and Sweden said it would send a force only if it has the Ions neutral nation to do so.

The secretary - general ran into the same problem in trying to choose a mediator. Some of the most promising prospects were rejected by one or more of the interested countries.

Tender Arms Burial Service Closes Doors

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Tender Arms burial service, born here four months ago, has died.

The low-cost service, founded by Mrs. Gwynneth Cutmore, is believed to be the first of its kind in Canada, was offered to "sensible people who are tired of the exploitation of the dead."

There were two prices for the disposal of bodies: $250 for burial in a coffin, and $125 without a coffin, in which case the body was placed in a special canvas.

Mrs. Cutmore said Friday the service succumbed to pressure by the board of administrators for the Embalmers and Funeral Directors Act of Ontario.

Max Comstock of Peterborough, chairman of the board of administrators, said legal action would have been taken on the grounds the service was not licensed to be in business "for the purpose of furnishing funeral supplies and services to the public," as stipulated by the act.

COSTS TOO HIGH

Mrs. Cutmore was advised by her lawyer not to take part of fighting the action would be "prohibitive."

She said: "It is unfortunate that the laws concerning burials and cremations are set, not by democratically elected bodies, but by board of administration committees set up from time to time by private undertakers. This is the only trade able to dictate to the public the type of services it shall receive.

"We hope that the publicity afforded our project abroad has awakened the public to this philosophy of a simple burial instead of a lavish and profitless funeral service in which unnecessary and unasked for priced equipment and in its place substituted an ostentatious orgy of grief-mongering."

She declined to say how many persons she had buried in the four-month operation of burial service.

Truck Driver Gives $98,000 To Charities

COBOURG, Ont. (CP)—Frederick Roebuck, a truck driver and a clerk who died Nov. 22, 1963, left $98,000 of his estate of approximately $113,000 to charity, the county clerk's office revealed today.

Gifts of $32,000 each go to the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, Toronto, and Society for Crippled Children, and the Ontario Cancer Research Foundation.

Cobourg District Hospital receives $2,000 from the estate, comprised of shares of stocks and bonds, and the balance will be shared by close relatives and family friends.

In his 70s at death, Mr. Roebuck was a life-long resident of this town, about 25 miles south of Peterborough.

Bunny Manual Is Attacked By Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — Should a bunny girl be fired for wearing crooked ears?

No, says the AFL-CIO Hotel and Restaurant Employees and Bartenders International Union.

The union, in a national organizing campaign on behalf of the nearly 30,000 Playboy waitresses, wants to prohibit orderly grievance procedure for the "Playboy Club Bunny Manual."

The union officials announced at a press conference Thursday that they are prepared to take legal action under the National Labor Relations Act to protect the rights of the waitresses to carry petitions who work at Playboy Clubs — founded by Playboy magazine publisher Hugh Hefner—in New York, Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, New Orleans, Phoenix, Miami and Manila.

PROTEST 'KICKBACKS'

Union officials are up in arms about the "kickback" practices forcing the waitresses to return a large portion of their pay check and also the elaborate regulations published in the approximately 60-page "Bunny Manual."

Some examples from the manual:

"Bunnies are never to criticize the Playboy Club, nor imply that the girls make extremely good wages."

"Bunny trouble" that disturbs the union is the system of "checkers" who test the bunnies by trying to get them to break Playboy Club rules.

"Try to date bunnies. Try to get bunnies' phone numbers. Invite bunnies to parties and see if they accept." Bunnies are instructed to bunny checkers. It suggests offering a free trip to $200 "to meet you later."

This, says the union, is nothing but "espionage on the job."

Ships Cleaning Up in Hunt For Harp Seals

GRINDSTONE, Que. (CP)—It looks like the cream of the ships as far as seal hunting in the Gulf of St. Lawrence is concerned.

The eight Canadian vessels were deep "in the pack" Friday at noon.

"The ice is bloody for miles and miles," said a helicopter pilot after returning from an exploration in their vicinity. "The Russians are in the Soviet Society."

With the exception of helicopters, aircraft were almost out of action Thursday as temperatures didn't solidify "we might just as well go home," said the pilot.

Ice began breaking up again opened Thursday, the fixed-winged planes have been hampered by poor flying conditions.

Most of the fixed-wing pilots stayed on land Friday. A few stand their planes in open water to a point of land closest to the seals. Ice pans were too small to attempt landings.

About 70 planes and helicopters are scattered in bays and around these Magdalen Islands.

There have been seven serious crashes and dozens of men have been stranded on the ice pans all night. No one was injured in the planes and all hunters left on the ice when weather grounded aircraft at 11 Thursday were reported safe.

Constantine's father was a man who believed in democracy. For his son's first formal schooling he chose a private boarding school near Athens, where the young prince could be with boys from various walks of life.

Military education started at 15, and Constantine was trained in all his country's armed forces. At 21 he became a first lieutenant in the army, a lieutenant in the navy and a flying officer in the air force. Now he is commander-in-chief of all the Greek military forces.

He also now plays a political role, particularly in times of government crisis when he names premiers. King Paul took pains to school his son in this area.

Ticket Swindlers Cost Airlines $2,500,000

MONTREAL (CP) — The world's airlines have setup their own police-like squad to deal with a multi-million dollar market in international airline ticket sales.

Similarly, the squad's title is Fraud Prevention Group.

The International Air Transport Association announced the formation of the group at a press conference Friday, and named Col. R. L. Ford of London to head it. Col. Ford is a member of the staff of British Overseas Airways Corporation.

Working with Interpol, the 13-man IATA fraud group will attempt to deal with ticket swindlers that in the past 16 months have cost airlines $2,500,000.

The group said its group has just ended a week's studies in Montreal and established a "program of action" to reduce the racket as much as possible.

He said the group has the situation "under control" and that it will be difficult for the ticket swindlers to move in Canada once word spreads from now on.

PUBLICITY HELPED

He declined to go into details about the steps planned against the swindlers, but said publicity is the key to racket has already resulted in the thwarting of some fraud attempts.

Col. Ford said the racket appeared to have headquarters in London and Paris, and appeared to be "highly organized."

Evidence of frauds had been uncovered in London, Milan, Paris, Rome, Copenhagen, Buenos Aires, New York, Florida, Paris and Geneva.

The biggest prospects were being sought. He said one man was convicted and is serving a jail sentence in Switzerland.

He said Trans-Canada Airlines has uncovered an operation in Toronto and the investigation resulted in the arrest of a suspect.

Col. Ford said most of the frauds followed the pattern of the ones recently in Montreal when Greek immigrants were swindled of several thousand dollars by two Greeks.

Col. Ford explained how the racket worked.

A racketeer would establish good relations with a travel agency. For months, the racketeer would send friends to the customers to the travel agency.

BROUGHT IN SALES

"At last one of the men would bring in 10 sales, the next day 15, then possibly 20," Col. Ford said. Then the tickets supplied these customers was always made promptly to the agent.

Once the honest agent's confidence had been obtained, the racketeer would order a large block of tickets, sell them at bargain prices and then disappear.

Col. Ford said it is almost certain the swindle was operated by a Montreal "possibly the Mafia." But there were also a number of freelance con men involved.

"Just to give you an idea how big this operation is," he said, "there were questionable banks involved too." He did not elaborate.

Col. Ford said the airlines took most of the loss but many small travel agencies were put out of business.

The syndicate had connections with at least 43 import-export firms, he said. "But most of these are only on paper."

Quiet Trading Features Bond Market

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Canadian bond market moved through a week of quiet trading and unchanged prices.

The Friday treasury bills closed at 3.90 per cent, ahead 01 per cent, with Monday treasury bills closed at 4.06 per cent, up .04 per cent.

The long-term market had a slightly firmer tone with prices increasing in the 14 range. Canada first mortgage manufacturing in 1963 closed at 96¼ bid and 96¾ asked.

Provincial, municipal, corporate and municipal markets were dull with few changes.

The long-term money decreased by $12,000,000 to $132,000,000 with the rate down ¼ to 3¾ per cent.

Stretches Age To Get Posted In Navy

TRENTON — An 11-year-old Trenton boy, living on Dundas Street East, has been turned down by the Royal Canadian Navy.

Impressed by a sign in the Trenton post office, urging young men to "Go Navy", the youthful Trenton resident made out an application and sent it in to Navy headquarters. He stated in his application that he was 33, married and the father of four children. His application came back from the Navy. He had been rejected, according to report, because he had too many children.

That's too bad. His reception at Navy headquarters, complete with muffin bag and ready to go to sea, would have made a good story.

WILL EXPROPRIATE

Murray township council will go ahead with the expropriation of approximately 20 acres of land lying along the development road now in the process of building, since township residents contacted can't make up their minds about what a "fair price" for the land would be.

The present road, running from Highway 33 in the vicinity of Frankford, northeast to Highway 2 and coming out at Highway 401, has a 66 foot road allowance. The new road needed for the new development road is 100 feet. Thus, the township council has to buy roughly 17 feet either side of the road allowance from around eight property owners.

The expropriation order will be made up, setting a fair price for the land and residents will be given a chance to sell the land without any fuss or bother. Should they refuse to do this, however, council will enforce the order. Council will pay the land, but will get a 55 per cent grant from the Ontario Department of Highways as compensation.

Murray Council Wants Trenton Dogs Removed

TRENTON — The Township of Murray council wishes the Town of Trenton would get a pound within the borders of the corporation. The councillors said so, at a regular meeting of council Thursday, afternoon.

Mrs. Hilda Jones, the Pet Control Officer for Trenton, lives in Murray Township and the township council has received a number of complaints about barking dogs from residents living in the near vicinity of the pound.

Mrs. Jones, who is also the president of the Trenton Humane Society, went before council Thursday to complain that the councillors were opposed to the Humane Society. Council said it wasn't opposed to the Humane Society . . . it wasn't opposed to it, only that there was no intention of this. The kennels preceded the township coming into, and were considered tolerantly as a non-conforming use of the land. It was hoped Trenton dog council wants quartered somewhere else.

Will Discuss Construction Of New Bridge

TRENTON — The township council of Murray, county engineer George Wilson, and a representative from the Ontario Department of Transport will meet next Wednesday to discuss the construction of a bridge over CPR and CNR tracks on the new development road on the township, now under construction. The costly bridge will be paid for by the township, the railways and the Department of Transport on a percentage basis.

WILL TRY AGAIN

Pine Acres Development residents have asked Murray township council to have an other "go" at getting a lowered speed limit through the development, and along Highway 33. Council, at the residents' request, did try to get the provincial Department of Transport to agree to lower the speed limit from 50 mph to 35 mph but the request was turned down by the department.

Now, the residents say that the request for the lower limit was confined to too small an area. They suggest that the request to the department be sent back, setting out further limits to the lower limit.

With the feeling that if the first request was turn down, second will be refused, they receive scant notice from the department, council, at last report, does not feel inclined to go to all that bother.

URGE DIVORCE CHANGE

The legislature passed an amended version of the motion by Morris Gray (NDP — Inkster) by 33 to 10 vote that did not stick to party lines.

Rusk Rejects Neutralization Of Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — State Secretary Dean Rusk Friday reaffirmed full U.S. support for South Viet Nam in its struggle against communist infiltration and rejected talk of neutralization as "a would mean merely withdrawal and no support.

Such talk, he told a press conference, tended to "undermine the morale of the South Vietnamese people."

Rusk said that the United States did not know of any definite French proposals or of any specific French plan for a neutralization of Southeast Asia.

DON'T LET A COLD CATCH YOU!
The very common expression, "I caught a cold", should be stated just the opposite way around "A cold caught me". For, no one deliberately goes out looking to catch a cold. Rather, they should try to protect themselves from one.
In the month of March the weather is especially changeable. Extra care must be taken to avoid having a cold catch you. At the first signs that you have become a victim of public enemy number one, you should take the necessary steps to prevent it from developing into something serious. Nose drops, aspirin, rest, a cough remedy, etc. can help in the early stages. But if a simple cold starts getting worse or lingers on you should see your physician.
Your Doctor can phone us when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we dispense yours?

Mrs. J. Munro, Stirling, 101 Years Old

A bit hard of hearing and unable to see with the clarity of former years, Mrs. Jane Munro, Front Street, Stirling is observing her 101st birthday this weekend.

Mrs. Munro was born back in 1863 on the Scotch line in the Perth district and has lived in Stirling with her son for the past 16 years.

Despite her years, however, Mrs. Munro is still mentally alert and gets about with an agility which belies her 101 years.

Ice Above Corbyville Dam Moves Out

Spring really must be here! Ice in the Moira River above the Corbyville dam moved out over the dam this morning for what is believed to be the earliest date in many years.

Corbyville resident, Ralph Thompson, said the ice field above the dam pushed itself out this morning at about 10.30. He said the river was clear for about 1,000 feet above the dam.

The ice movement was at least a month ahead of time in the normal year and some years the ice above the dam has remained in place until the latter part of April.

The river is now completely clear of ice from Belleville to Canniffon with open water now having stretched to south of the CPR bridge at the river mouth.

Thieves Break Into Store on North Front St.

Loss was about $100 last night — and it might have been much more — when thieves broke into the Coulter Hardware store on North Front Street. Entry was gained through a broken window on the east side of the store, police say, and the loot included portable electric tools and some petty cash.

Galvanized buckets filled with other loot were abandoned inside the store, according to Harold Coulter, co-operator of the store.

The break-in was discovered Mr. Coulter said, by Robert Hannah, who lives beside the store and who barks his car by the window broken by the thieves to gain entry. Mr. Hannah came home about 11 p.m. last night, Mr. Coulter said, and noticed the broken window. He called police and Ray Dexter, a police constable has checked the front door of the store, and passed near the window, about 10:30 p.m. Mr. Coulter said.

Warm weather brought more vendors, and more customers, to the Belleville market this week. Apples are on sale at prices running from 75c to $1.00 for a six-quart basket, to $2.50 for a bushel. Spies, Delicious, Talman Sweets, Courtland and McIntosh apples are offered. Cider is selling at $1.00 per gallon.

Honey is being sold in two pound pails for 60c, four-pound pails for $1.10 and eight-pound pails for $2.25. Eggs are selling at 55c and 50c the dozen, pickles for 25c to 75c the jar and home-made bread at 20c and to 30c the loaf. Wholewheat bread is selling at 15c the loaf.

Jaycees Call Off Raffle for Boat at Show

The man who gets the boat at next week's Belleville Junior Chamber of Commerce sports show at the Armouries will have to be the highest bidder.

Instead of the boat going to the holder of a winning raffle ticket, the boat will be auctioned off to the highest bidder at the conclusion of the sports show.

Jaycees officials announced yesterday that they were calling off the boat raffle to avoid possible contravention of the criminal code and that purchasers of raffle tickets already sold would have their money refunded.

The criminal code allows raffles by charitable organizations but limits the value of raffles to $50. And to hold them special permission must be secured from municipal authorities.

Chief of Police J. B. McLauchlan said that when Jaycee officials realized their planned raffle was in contravention of the criminal code they decided to withdraw.

The same is true with another local organization which had planned a raffle.

While full co-operation had been received from the two organizations in question, Chief McLauchlan at the same time warned that prosecutions would follow any future contravention of the law in connection with the holding of raffles.

Muscular Dystrophy Body's Receipts Up

Income of the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada totalled nearly a million dollars last year, the organization has revealed. The sum is an increase of about 10 per cent above the previous year's receipts.

In the Quinte area, receipts were up more than 30 per-cent to a total of about $1,400, according to local campaign organizer Ted Wessels, of the Belleville Fire Department. The campaign netted a total of $716 in Belleville alone, through collection canisters in local stores.

Belleville Fire Department is concerned with the welfare of eight muscular dystrophy cases in the district, an increase of two over the past year.

One child contracted the disease within the past year; another had it before but the case had not been reported to the Association.

Plans for the coming year's campaign, according to Mr. Wessels, include a tag day which may be held during the Belleville Fair Week.

THRIVING AGAIN

New Picture of Russian Farm Difficulties Is Clearer

By ARCH MacKENZIE

OTTAWA (CP) — A clearer picture is emerging of the problems created within Russian agriculture by the bitter winter of 1962-63 and the hot dry summer.

The crop losses sent Russia into the world market as a buyer rather than a seller, drastically shook up her farm plans and badly damaged the drive for more meat, milk and other dairy products.

This is the assessment here of the situation which emerged so abruptly late last August, leading to Russian purchase of 8,000,000 long tons of Canadian wheat and flour.

There is some concern about this year's winter wheat crop in the Ukraine as well, reports here say. About eight weeks ago a sheath of ice is said to have developed over substantial areas after a thaw and this could result in high winter kill.

WEATHER TO BLAME

Dr. Elmer Aaks of the agriculture department's economics branch says in a detailed report that the bad weather probably trimmed grain production by 35,000,000 tons to 93,000,000 tons. Wheat alone was down 40 per cent from 70,600,000 tons in 1962.

Livestock herds have had to be reduced because of shortages of feed grains. The hog population, which has expanded the most in the campaign to get more meat on the hoof, may be down 40 per cent.

Farmers have been threatened with fines of from $50 to $120 and with jail terms for feeding bread to cattle, says Dr. Jaaks.

With experience gleaned from Canadian Prairie practices, Russia is supplementing its big campaign to boost fertilizer with new farming techniques in the Virgin lands. These have helped U.S.S.R. farm output to rise about six per cent annually ever since the project began in 1954.

Premier Khrushchev has blamed—with other U.S.S.R. officials—that some of the drier areas may be abandoned. Emphasis now will be on getting more production out of the fertile Ukraine, by using more fertilizer more wisely.

Dr. Jaaks says Russia feels it may be cheaper to beef up output from good existing land rather than continue to seek increases from more land that has to be cleared, drained or cultivated.

But to get the fertilizer required—about 80,000,000 tons by 1970—another 200 factories will have to be built and 500 rebuilt, he says.

Other sources say Russian grain yields even after the farm revitalization begun after Stalin's death—have remained close to pre-revolution standards and almost one-third is good as elsewhere in Europe.

New

rate on specimen copies of publications is being withdrawn and the mail matter made subject to local delivery rates.

Certain cultural and technical publications, as recommended by the royal commission on publications, will be given mailing privileges now granted to newspapers and periodicals devoted to religion, the sciences or agriculture.

COMES UP MONDAY

Mr. Nicholson's resolution will be before the Commons Monday. It will be debated later in the session before the bill amending the Post Office Act is introduced.

After he was sworn in as postmaster - general, succeeding Aseilus Denis, now a senator, Mr. Nicholson said he intended to wipe out the post office deficit and run the department as a business should be run.

He also said he wanted cheap advertising mail, consisting of brochures, circulars and samples, to pay its way.

"The Canadian taxpayers should not be subsidizing this type of mail advertising," he said. "In fairness to the newspaper and radio media, I intend to take care of this."

SET BY CABINET

Postal rates covering advertising matter, generally known as third-class matter, are set by cabinet regulation. Increased rates for publications later, to become effective April 1, were announced several months ago by Mr. Denis.

The new legislative proposals do not affect newspapers or periodicals published more frequently than weekly.

A post office spokesman said it is impossible to predict when the new rates will become effective. They cannot be applied until the Post Office Act amendment has been passed by both houses of Parliament and given Royal assent. After that is done, a date will be set for bringing the new rates into force by proclamation.

The spokesman said the new rates would be introduced after sufficient notice was given for business concerns to adjust their mailing procedures.

WILL PAY DEBTS

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon announced Friday the treasury will pay up to $225,000 to discharge debts some of which it doesn't admit are legal—for the 1962 Dawson City Gold Rush Festival in the Yukon. Included are expenses incurred by the pre-Broadway run of the musical Foxy, which New York reviewers now are describing as a hit.

10-Mile Section Of CNR Track Is Abandoned

A letter from Kenneth E. Hunt, manager of the Canadian National Railways Rideau area at Belleville, went out to employees today notifying them of the Board of Transport Commissioners' decision to allow abandonment of the railway's Millbrook line in the Lakefield subdivision.

The 10-mile section of track to be abandoned by CN runs between the city of Peterborough and Millbrook.

There were no passengers or express business on the line and very little freight.

CN representatives suggested however, that the company could find other methods of coal handling and the Board of Transport agreed that their suggestion appeared to be a sound one.

Mr. Hunt in his letter expressed his appreciation to employees for their efforts in preparing the railway's application for abandonment of the Millbrook line.

Spiel Curlers Enjoy Night Of Entertainment, Banquet

Visiting and local curlers playing in the Tri - Quinte Mixed Bonspiel now proceeding at the three clubs, Trenton, RCAF and Quinte took time off on Friday night to have a social evening and spot of dancing, topped off by a sumptuous banquet. The event was held at the Airmen's mess at RCAF Station and the committee in charge are to be congratulated on their efforts.

The curlers were welcomed by James Duncan, chairman of the bonspiel, who wished for all a happy time in the spiel and thanked his committee for the wonderful job done. A delicious chicken dinner was served by the staff at the Air Station and as usual it was up to a high standard. Appreciation was done to the good things provided and before the meal was quite settled, dancing was started with music provided by Jack Keane and his orchestra from Belleville.

The gyrations exhibited by some curlers when pushing a "stone" home were transferred to the dancing floor and it was noticed that some of the men and especially the women could boast a "mean style". The twist numbers provided a "lull" and it will likely be a tired crew that takes to the ice on the early morning draws of today.

The dancing was adjourned in order to present a variety entertainment produced by local artists and it was a riot. The first number was a dance by the "Belle of the Girls" chorus, mostly of members from the Quinte Curling Club and Cec Kirkwood, Judge Sheppard, Bill Meagher among others were noted in the chorus line. The costumes were the "girls" were "away out" and their dancing was not to be sneezed at. Following the girls' fashion show was put on with Mrs. Elsie Shoniker as commentator and Dr. McCorquodale, Ken Bailey and Ed Kirby were dressed to "kill" with Mr. Bailey drawing the applause with his showing of a bikini outfit.

SPLENDID SKIT

A skit on "Little Red Riding Hood" could bear repeating at anytime. Mrs. Bruce Cardy as the darling who went to see grandmother (Lloyd Worrall) and met by the Beatle and protected by the woodsmen (Dr. Jones), was superb in her role. Mrs. Cardy is an accomplished dancer and gave an excellent interpretation of the role. The skit was a masterpiece and thoroughly enjoyed by the entire assembly.

Back to curling. Two draws were played yesterday afternoon and today the spiel gets into high gear with four draws being played at the three clubs. The events will be down to the finals by today and the semi-finals will be played on Sunday with the final games in all events to be played in the evening at the Trenton Club. Bruce Carty general manager of the spiel has everything under control and he is surrounded by excellent officials at all rinks and the spiel is rolling along in well oiled machine. There have been some upsets but in general the rinks expected to win have come through in the early games.

The spiel has been a credit to the organizers and the curlers have responded with a record entry. It is seldom, outside of Metro Toronto, that eighty rinks compete in a spiel.

Trouble Ahead?

Any driver knows that when one applies the brakes on a steep incline and the car continues to pick up speed, one is in trouble.

The first reaction, therefore, to Hon. Walter Gordon's main estimates must inevitably be that Canada's finance minister is in difficulties.

In spite of the paring of some items, the total federal expenditure is expected to rise almost 7 per cent, one of the steepest increases since the end of the Second Great War.

Some of these increases give real cause for concern. There is, for example, a rise of $156,334,100 in public debt charges, an increase which is almost certain to prove permanent. Moreover, as the years roll by this increased expenditure will add nothing to the services provided; we shall merely be paying for what we have already purchased.

Some of the other increases in expenditures, however, are of a type which often greater promises of benefits. Supplementary estimates, for example, may provide a hundred million in railway subsidies stemming from legislation based on the recommendation of the McPherson royal commission on transportation. Properly speaking, this would not be an increase in expenditure, but rather a change in the manner in which we meet the cost of transporting goods. The subsidies are proposed to provide relief for those who have, in the past, been saddled with an unduly high share of this expenditure.

Similarly, there are other increased expenditures which will not only benefit certain sectors of the population but which should also have the effect of reducing government expenditures in other fields. For instance, the $35,000,000 likely to be required for winter works and, if the program is renewed, the twenty million in bonuses for winter house-building will, by reducing unemployment, ease the drain on the unemployment insurance fund. And the government, of course, will get back a portion of these expenditures in income and other taxes.

Still, and all, despite the fact that much of the increased expenditures will provide services which could lighten the drain on private purses, it is painfully evident that only an energetic search for, and a realistic application of, all possible economies will enable the federal government to continue to expand its services without ruinously increasing taxes or, even more ruinously, increasing debt.

The government ought to take a long hard look not only at defence expenditures, which have been reduced $109,000,445, but at such things as subsidies to producers. Above all, it should eagerly search out every possible way of lowering the cost of providing existing services.

Ball, Away Outside

Historical societies notwithstanding, there can be few things more boring than a recitation of the exploits of pillars of early communities.

These upstanding gentry, who labored from dawn to dusk in a new and harsh land and who established the institutions which were to enable our country to grow and prosper, were unquestionably noble men. The official histories, though, tell too much of their nobility, and too little of their humanity, to make them interesting.

It follows that John Fisher, the eminent Canadian publicist who is now centennial commissioner, already has two strikes across the plate when he endeavors to interest us in the exploits of unknown, but colorful, pioneers of less sterling character.

One of Mr. Fisher's favorite theme songs is that we permit ourselves to worship at the feet of the U.S. folk heroes, while we ignore Canadians whose exploits eclipse those to the south of us.

His latest pioneer hero is a half-breed by the unlikely name of Jerry Potts. According to Fisher's way of telling it, Potts was to Davy Crockett what Cassius Clay is to Sonny Liston.

There is only one thing wrong with this attempt to get the third, and decisive, strike over the plate. There are those of us who find the Crocketts of this world, at least in the poses forced upon them by Fisher and his ilk, so hard to stomach that by comparison the Historical Society's hardy pioneers of noble character become almost loveable.

Do we have to manufacture Canadian Crocketts? Do we have to copy the Yankees, in order not to be mistaken for them?

Sometimes I doubt whether there is divine justice: each part of the human body get tired eventually—except the tongue. And I feel that is unjust. — Dr. Adenauer, former German Chancellor.

Are Good Intentions Enough To Merit Parole in All Cases?

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — One of the more — perhaps even the most — respected of the Social Credit MPs, Dr. Guy Marcoux of Quebec Montmorency, through two Sessions of Parliament has been gravely concerned by the extraordinary powers of a legal tribunal he regards as something of a "Super Supreme Court."

It is the National Parole Board.

For nearly a year he has been waiting for two successive Justice Ministers, first Lionel Chevrier and now Guy Favreau, to explain why and how judgments of the Board overside those of any court in the land.

In short, he has demanded a top-to-bottom investigation of the Board, its thinking and its operations, and how it has been that one out of every 10 of its judgments has been wrong, one of them sickeningly and tragically wrong.

For there is no question but that the Board rules supreme.

Mr. Justice Charles D. Stewart of the Ontario Supreme Court recently made that frighteningly clear when he sentenced to life imprisonment the 46-year-old Newmarket laborer John Frederick McDonald for the non-capital murder of little 10-year-old Thomasina Baxter.

"ALL I CAN".

The child had been killed after being lured away in a car by McDonald while at play near her Seeton, Ontario, farm home.

As McDonald — who already had eight criminal convictions on his record — was led out of court, presumably to spend the rest of his life behind bars, Mr. Justice Stewart said, at a sentencing thing:

"I will do all I can to see you are never loosed on society again . . . because of your deluded and distorted mentality. I believe that no child who ever came near you would be safe."

The long - experienced and highly-respected Justice might, in full propriety, have said "I can," but the ultimate decision — and he was on record in his opinion as believing it would be a life or death one — rested not with him, but with four men and a woman in Ottawa, the members of the National Parole Board.

And they, with the authority to turn McDonald loose again, even although Mr. Justice Stewart had said he believed no child who ever came near the man would be safe.

But would the Board do such a thing?

Well, take a look at the official record — in the past five years, the Board has turned loose 10,531 Penitentiary inmates. And of these, 1,033, or just about one in every 10, have been found guilty and been returned to captivity.

THE RECORD:

What is a failure rate of "only," say, the Board likes to phrase it, 10 percent? Especially in such supposedly humanitarian work?

Perhaps it is as small or even negligible as that. Board would like to believe — it does accept that some of the parolees find it impossible to go straight, Mr. Justice Stewart put it, and gone on to commit other crimes.

The main thing, though, is — and one that Parole Board Chairman George Street has publicly emphasized — "blamed no" was the unspeakable outrage against humanity for which Leopold Dion has been sentenced to be hanged April 10.

Dion had been paroled by the Board in 1956 after a 1940 rape conviction. In 1957, just a year later, he was convicted again, that time for gross indecency, but paroled by the Board again last April.

In December he was sentenced to death for the strangling of a small boy near Quebec City in the same week as his parole. Evidence was that he had molested children along the boys and was a sexual pervert with a case history going back nearly 25 years.

This was the case that set Dr. Guy Marcoux, in Parliament, to handing two successive Justice Ministers for whatever explanation is possible of the thinking and decisions of the Parole Board.

His hammering away, in deep concern that something is basically wrong, is almost certain to bring fundamental changes in the Board and its rationale.

Who, then, comprises the Board.

Good people. All of them.

Again, look at the record. See who they are.

THE TRIBUNAL

Chairman Street at 48 is youngest of the group, a former magistrate and deputy warden of the Welland Juvenile Family Court. He, perhaps in the driving force, the crusader for the parole system on the Board, having made frequent use of probation and the honor system in his magisterial days.

Edouard Dion, 50, is a lawyer with a courtroom background having served as public prosecutor in New Carlisle, a small French Canadian community on the south St. Lawrence shore.

J. A. Edmison, 59, was active in penal work over a 30-year period and was a member of the four-man committee under Mr. Justice Gerald Fauteux which recommended the creation of the National Parole Board.

Frank P., Miller, 51, Worth-Way Tree veteran who secretary for the John Howard Society, then became an officer in Kingston Penitentiary and 12 years ago was recruited for the Federa Remission Service preceded the Parole Board.

Miss Mary Louise Lynch, 53 former Fredericton lawyer, for many years Lord Beaverbrook's Canadian legal agent.

How did these good people come to release the previously twice-convicted and twice-paroled Leopold Dion to go out and, according to the evidence in the case which brought him finally to the foot of the gallows, kill four small boys?

"The Board had many favorable reports on Dion," says Chairman Street. "In this case was very well prepared . . . but you can't predict human behavior . . ."

Then again, Mr. Street; "Parole is granted on compassionate or humanitarian grounds . . . it is not a matter either of clemency or leniency . . . for we do not put a man under there is some evidence of a man's inability to return."

But Dr. Marcoux and a lot of other people remain troubled and wonder if such intentions are enough, and if a 10 per cent margin for life and death error isn't too wide.

Inspectors of the Prices Board made their rounds of Belleville market Saturday instructing farmers offering fowl that the regulations called for the feet of fowl, chickens, ducks, geese and turkeys being removed if they wished to charge the maximum price. All farmers had been aware of the regulations but felt that the fowl "looked better with the feet on."

With regulations regarding the feet of fowl being removed the price enforced, however, prices seemed a bit firmer, with farmers asking 40 cents per pound for best grade. Quite a number of ducks were offered at prices ranging from $1.60 up to $3. Live ducks were offered on the outside market at from $2.50 to $3 each. Egg prices were firm with first grade bringing 53 cents, while pullets sold at 48 and 50 cents.

Ulcerative Colitis Often Affects Younger People

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: Several years ago a dermatologist had a case of ulcerative colitis and have been taking prednisone, among other drugs.

It seems to work well, but the side effects worry me — puffy face, adding weight between shoulders and abdomen, transparency of skin, acne, etc. Can anything be done to minimize these? I hope I am not vain but I'm a young man and social life is important. — A.W.

Prednisone is one of the steroids. It is effective in many cases. Still, when side effects occur I know of nothing that will counteract them except reducing or stopping the drug.

Ulcerative colitis is a formidable disorder. "Colitis," of course, is often a general term used for a variety of stomach aches or bowel disorders. The ulcerative type, however, is truly a disease of the colon, with ulcers which can be found by X-ray and proctoscopic examination. It features such symptoms as diarrhea (often bloody) fever, pain, debility.

Its cause is not known. It often affects young and middle-aged adults. Since psychological factors are important — it's not unusual to find one of what's eating you! Frustration, feelings of rejection, maladjustments often do it.

Yet about two-thirds of the patients have allergies, usually to milk, eggs, wheat or cold. Milk, wheat and eggs are often the offenders. The steroids may relieve you by temporarily suppressing the allergic reaction. The full explanation is not known.

Besides the important use of the steroids, the side effects become objectionable, one alternative is to find out what foods cause the allergic response.

Often complete rest in the hospital is necessary to calm the ravages of ulcerative colitis — it is, I repeat, a formidable disorder.

The psychic (or psychological) elements appear to be very important but they do not necessarily require the services of a psychiatrist. The physician should try to probe all the aspects of the patient's environment, behavior, attitudes and sensitivities. With co-operation, the patient may be able to avoid need for steroids.

This, I think, is easier said than done, but when the patient understands the reason for investigation, he can first does not seem to have a direct bearing on his ailment, together he and the doctor can sometimes achieve remarkable results.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is hay fever or asthma contagious? The reason I ask is that my boy friend has hay fever and his nose always itches when he gets too warm. He then starts sneezing. In a matter or seconds I do the same. — N. C.

P.S. In most cases, we're in close contact when this occurs.

No, neither hay fever nor asthma is contagious. In your case it's a curious riddle, but possibly one of you is allergies and in some way his itching or sneezing, your sneezing, on the other hand, may be purely psychological.

Dear Dr. Molner: We have a relative who smokes a pipe but control her diabetes. We often eat in her home. Can diabetes be transmitted through the filthy food? She persists in kissing all of us on the mouth, too. We hate to tell her not to kiss us. — B. C. M.

No, neither food nor kissing, nor anything else but heredity will transmit diabetes from one person to another. I draw on indiscriminate kissing on the mouth, though, because of colds and what-not. I'd rather your head a little and kissing her on the cheek — then she'll have to, as well.

From the French-Canadian Viewpoint

This is a selection of editorials on current topics, translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Quebec L'Action — In just 10 years the cost of government in Quebec has increased threefold. And the fantastic progression continues. The latest estimates show an increase of 17 per cent above the previous ones.

Investment absolutely essential for the social equipment of a society in transformation. A financial surcharge for tasks put off too long. Necessity for a "policy of greatness" at a time when laggards face ruin. All that is true. All that has been acknowledged, in principle, by an electorate that has wanted to take as large a view as its forces.

But have the people of Quebec the means to finance such realizations at such a sudden and hasty pace? The government has plunged quickly into the task of reconstruction. It has wanted to act simultaneously in all directions. Its undertakings, piled up in such a short period of time, have created a chaotic aspect peculiar to all unfinished works. For example, hospital insurance, a $200,000,000, has become the second item on the budget in importance. This burden has been neither absorbed nor stabilized, yet certain persons are already talking about health insurance. Unrealistic! Not to say irresponsible.

It is high time we paused and checked our arithmetic . . . — Lacerte Fare. (Feb. 27).

Montreal La Presse — In normal times we easily overlook symbolism of royalty. We have practically no fault to find with the Queen coming to open the St. Lawrence Seaway or simply coming to visit us without any specific objective. But this time the situation is anything but normal. And the Queen of the visit is likewise most extraordinary.

The whole question of the constitutional system under which we live has been raised to discussion. And this discussion is not always calm and reasonable on one side or the English-Canadian.

Mr. Pearson ought to have taken into account the fact that the climate is fairly tense, especially in Quebec, where the separatists, without being numerous, are extremely vigorous. Also the fact, unfortunately, that a little group of terrorists remains at large. For them, this royal visit constitutes an affront, a sort of solemn approval of the position of their "adversaries."

This does not prevent a feeling of esteem for a sovereign who is unquestionably most worthy and who fills a difficult role with dignity and in an exemplary manner. But the fact remains that the situation has become simply a symbol.

If the next visit of the Queen to Quebec is becoming a source of uneasiness, prudent or even anxiety about the possible future consequences incidents, it is not because the event is important in itself. But the personality of the St. Lawrence Seaway the Queen's coming aroused neither discussion nor excitement in Quebec. The difference, this year, is that the event may have a political bearing.

The coming visit already appears to be taking on given a predictable significance. A warm welcome in Quebec would prove that the province remains loyal to the Crown and to Confederation. Whether or not that was the original intention, the inference now exists, the authorities have created it. And in this sense one can speak of provocation. That is a superfluous and useless celebration. The best thing would be to avoid it. — Paul Sauriol. (Feb. 27).

Sherbrooke La Tribune

Circulated in Quebec some months ago, the idea of a federal student loan plan at last has been taken up again by none other than the director of studies of the Montreal Catholic School Commission, Mr. Treffle Boulanger. In his mind, it would constitute an excellent means of enabling French-speaking minorities in other provinces to obtain the full and complete justice to which they have a right.

This idea of a federal education department will not fail to look seductive to a certain number of people, especially in English-speaking districts outside Quebec, and even among French-speaking Canadians some are beginning to attribute magic powers to it.

When Mr. Boulanger assigns to the department the mission of protecting minority rights, he is knocking on the wrong door. Since 1867 the federal government has been responsible for protecting the rights of Catholic and French-speaking minorities in the provinces. Well, the history of the last 40 years teaches us that, in respect to the rights of minorities in education, the federal government has lamentably failed to meet its obligations.

It would therefore be illusory to think that, by virtue of the wizardry of a federal department, the federal government would suddenly become an efficient and zealous protector. Experience indicates, instead, that the opposite would very well be the case. (Feb. 27).

Rene Levesque Says Quebec Demands Control of All Social, Economic Activity

By STRUAN MATHESON

MONTREAL (CP) — Rene Levesque, Quebec natural resources minister, said Friday in a lukewarm debate with Douglas Fisher, New Democratic Party member of Parliament for Port Arthur, that he was fed up with bilingualism and biculturalism.

The debate, in English, attracted a crowd estimated at more than 1,000 by the organizers, the young Liberals in the largely English-speaking Montreal district of Notre Dame de Grace.

Mr. Fisher said there is growing dissatisfaction in English-speaking provinces against Quebec demands which many persons feel could impede federal welfare and economic programs.

Mr. Levesque said Quebec demands control of all social and economic activity.

The sharpest difference was over their concept of the relation between Ottawa and Quebec.

"English-speaking Canadians prefer to be known as Canadians, not hyphenated Canadians, and believe that the whole of the country is greater than the sum of its parts," Mr. Fisher said, receiving the biggest emotional applause of the evening from the largely English-speaking audience.

PARTS ARE VITAL

"The parts are more vital than the whole, and if their needs are satisfied, this will allow the whole to live," Mr. Levesque said in rebuttal. He received scattered applause.

Both speakers criticized the federal government's royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

"I'm fed up with B and B—bilingualism and biculturalism," Mr. Levesque said at the start of his 30-minute argument.

"This is my last effort at communication on the topic of what English Canadians should think of French Canada's aspirations. If a French-speaking person tries to do this, there is a danger he will make it more difficult."

Mr. Fisher said there is almost total lack of understanding in the rest of Canada about Quebec's needs. The royal commission's one major task should be to explain Quebec's French language and culture to Western Canada.

Mr. Levesque delivered a strong plea for Quebec self-determination.

He criticized the federal government as "a bloated administration which is still growing" and gave top Quebec priority to provincial control of social and economic fields, "a question of life and death for Quebec, if not for the other provinces."

Premier Lesage's demand for 25 per cent of income tax, 25 per cent of corporation tax and 100 per cent of death duties was "only a minimum." He could see himself a separatist if Quebec's demands were thwarted.

Mr. Fisher said most Canadians outside Quebec look to the federal government for leadership and have a strong but undefined nationalism.

"Most Canadians want a stronger federal government because they believe higher standards can be achieved only on the national level."

English - speaking Canadian radical politicians were leading the fight for social reform through the federal government, the socialist politician said.

REFORMS CARRIED OUT

The reforms in Quebec had been carried out in other parts of Canada.

"On the one hand, the Quebec government gives 'maitres chez nous' (masters in our own house) as a slogan and on the other Quebec Revenue Minister Kierans makes a speech saying U.S. ownership is not important."

He said there would be a "terrific reaction" from both English - speaking politicians and citizens to concessions to Quebec.

Mr. Levesque replied that Quebec was asking only for its share of the money it would receive from federal - provincial schemes it does not join.

DEBATE IS LATE

The debate was an hour-and-a-half late because Mr. Levesque refused to be recorded or broadcast live by radio stations although television cameras were allowed to tape the debate for showing afterwards.

Mr. Levesque said he had the right to refuse radio coverage because he was a "free man in a free country" and knew as a former broadcaster how remarks can be edited to misinterpret their sense.

Mr. Levesque said the bilingual - bicultural movement in Canada is "getting nowhere."

"We seem to be getting closer to complete misunderstanding, and the chasm between the two solitudes — English and French Canada — seems to be widening."

EUROPEAN EXPERIENCE EXCERPTS

"Half the world knows not how the other half lives." — George Herbert, 1593 - 1633.

* * *

What a challenge, not to speak of fun and adventure, to holiday in Europe, as did this young Belleville family!

Perhaps you may know them: Anne and Bill (who is studying for his doctorate at the University of London) Greaves, and baby daughter Ellen — the daughter, son-in-law and grand-daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. Forrester, 65 Bridge Street, E.

The following are excerpts from letters to their families — warm and charming glimpses of life during an eight week summer holiday last July and August spent with a German family: Herr and Frau Vesper of Wuppertal, West Germany.

Wuppertal is not a pretty city." Anne observes, "heavily bombed during the war, and there is still a good deal of construction going on everywhere. We are in the residential part of the city, up out of the valley, on the edge of the city.

The little house is a gem — situated in the outskirts of Wuppertal, quite a bit higher than the town (so proper and therefore, much cooler). We are very close to a pleasant woods, as is indeed the whole city. It is very long, but so thin that every piece in it is near the country. The land slopes a bit, and although there are as many towns, they are all small, so that the overall effect is very rural.

"We have been doing a lot of walking (which we haven't done much . . . by German standards . . . but expect to do more." The German are very fond of walking and one can go anywhere, through farms, across private property, etc. On Sunday we only walked two hours in a large park; the rest of the family walked for 5 and a half happy hours wandering up and down hill on a particularly wild and unpopulated section about 40 kilometers away.

"The Vespers are very patient with us (even seem to enjoy us) and it must take some patience to take two people and a baby into your home who don't speak your language or understand your customs. . . .

"The other night Bill produced his recorder and Frau Vesper produced her flute. Johannes (their son) played the cello and Herr Vesper played the piano and harpsichord. Very spontaneous and most enjoyable. They are a very musical family. Only the youngest son is at home now. Their one daughter is in the United States, studying. Another son has just come home for the summer holidays . . . An exchange student has just been here for afternoon coffee and supper. She has been here for one year, the Vesper's chapter is the German exchange student in Kansas for this year.

"This morning Bill and I ventured forth to get haircuts. I would even speak a few words with the girl who cut my hair with the aid of my dictionary! Bill is now giving Johannes an English lesson, (using Time Magazine for source of world news!) Johannes is having trouble with his English and they are trading tutelage. . . ." Bill and I went with Herr Vesper on an errand. His business is ribbon, tapes, trimmings etc., the industry for which Wuppertal is noted. He has his office attached to the house here. He has clients who buy the finished product from him. He buys the thread, takes them to his workers who are spread all over the surrounding countryside (every farm has two or three of these machines) where the tape is made. He then buys the finished tape from them, a sort of middle man, and sells it to his clients. We went with him to 2 places to take thread. Most interesting. One was a very large factory with about 25 of these weaving machines, the other a farm where there were 3 machines. His business is not, in the decorative tapes and trims. That is done in an other part of the city. I think that his son Joachim is involved in the fancy trim business.

"On Thursday we went to Altenberg in the afternoon. Lovely spot with a cathedral begun in the 13th century. Very severe Gothic, beautiful windows. Curiously enough, the church is now used by both the Catholic and Protestant parishioners of Altenburg. It is Catholic for mass for certain hours on Sunday and Protestant services are held at alternate hours."

Bulletins From Birdland

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

KILLDEER BABIES

Have you ever held a newborn bird in your hand? The experience is quite thrilling, but the reaction varies according to the kind of bird. Very young songbirds have a bit of fuzz on their heads but otherwise look like tiny plucked chickens — not attractive. Shore birds lay unusually large eggs for their size because incubation is long and then the newly hatched baby is well developed. They are born down with down, and both look and feel soft and fluffy. As soon as the down is dry the bird is able to run around, and before long are led to water.

Young killdeer are most attractive. If you know what the adult should look like you cannot mistake the infants. The only noticeable difference is that they have but one dark grey breast-band, whereas their parents have two nearly black breast-bands separated by pure white. All killdeer have two other dark bands: one on the forehead, the other just above the bill, and these also are separated by white. White throats and underparts, soft brown on heads, backs, and wings give these birds a decidedly handsome appearance. This is enhanced by their bright reddish colored rumps (Peterson calls them "golden rod"), especially noticeable in flight.

EARLY ARRIVAL

Killdeer arrive in settled Canada any time after the first of March and may be seen (and heard, too) flying over ploughed fields, pasture land, or wet ground, at times before the spring sun has licked up all the snow. Freshly ploughed fields are favored because worms, bugs, and grubs, have been turned up ready to be caught.

No actual nest is made, but four dull buffy eggs thickly spotted with brown are deposited in a slight depression, generally directly on the ground, but sometimes on grass or a lining. This may happen any date from late March to mid-May according to the locality and the weather. If an early start has been made there is often a chance for a second brood in the season. Usually the spot chosen is not too far from water, be it lake, stream, a lake, a pond, or a stream.

We always know if we have killdeer nesting in our locality. The parents try to mislead us, petulantly calling "kill-deer" or "kill-dee" and using many tricks in their attempt to draw us away. They drag a wing as though broken, pant, or almost roll over. They are exceptionally noisy bird. Do not be fooled by all this or you will miss the nest.

"The sound isn't working on Timmy Smith's television set."

Ann Landers

Mother Creating Problem By Her Constant Nagging

DEAR ANN LANDERS — My 15-year-old daughter and I are hopelessly deadlocked over her bedtime. I insist that there must be a way for her to get to bed on weekdays before 11:30 p.m. She says it is not possible.

Charlotte buries herself in a mountain of work just before supper. With luck it may be finished by 10:00 p.m. Then comes the hair-rolling job, a leisurely bath and putting out the clothes for the next day. By 11:30 I am worn out from pleading, begging, coaxing and finally ordering her to get to bed.

The only weapon I've been able to dream up is a 25c penalty for every weekday evening Charlotte is up after 11:00 p.m. It hasn't worked worth a darn. She pays u pwithout complaint and continues to poke around every night.

Do you have any suggestions? I'm a nervous wreck from this nightly battle. — COLUMBUS, S.C.

DEAR COLUMBIA — Yes, I have a suggestion — get off her back. You say nothing about Charlotte having trouble getting out of bed in the morning. I see no indication that the girl is not getting sufficient rest. Some people require less sleep than others.

As an experienced night owl, I can tell you that the hours between midnight and 4 a.m. are the most productive. I suggest you let Charlotte work as late as she wishes. Don't nag her about bedtime. Let her alone and see what happens. Maybe she will surprise you by getting to bed at a reasonable hour on her own.

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I work in a large office building. The company has provided a lovely ladies' lounge for the employees. It makes me sick the way some girls put their dirty shoes on the beautifully upholstered furniture. They wipe lipstick on the walls, throw paper towels on the floor, crush cigarette butts into the rugs and do all sorts of uncouth things.

What baffles me is that some of these girls are well-bred young ladies who come from high class homes. One girl is "fancy society" in this town. Can you explain it? — ANNOYED.

DEAR ANNOYED — I don't know what you consider "high-class," well-bred" or "fancy society." If you mean a monied background, I have news. Money never made a lady out of any female. Some of the wealthiest homes produce the worst slobs. By the same token, I've known plenty of girls, brought up in poverty, who are well-bred and refined. It's training that counts, not loot.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am a 16-year-old girl who has been a faithful follower of your column ever since I was old enough to read.

I broke up with my boy friend two months ago because he wanted me to prove my love. I know I did the right thing, but still it doesn't make life an yeasier for me. I can't get him out of my thoughts.

Every evening I re-read his letters and gaze at his picture which I took off the dresser and put in the drawer. I keep looking at the little trinkets he bought me and the favors from dances and parties we attended together. I am moved to tears when I play our favorite records.

How can I get over this broken romance? — GRIEVING.

DEAR GRIEVING — Stop trying to re-live the past. Toss out the old letters and the trinkets. Return his picture or dispose of it permanently. And put those "favorite" records at the bottom of the pile.

Most important — remember there's nothing like a new romance to help a girl recover from heart trouble.

A Lift for Living

Man's Spirits Are Refreshed By Life's Turbulent Waters

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

From my study window I look out upon the unceasing flow of my favorite stream, Wood's Creek, colored with sun and shadow, attending its way from nearby springs to a neighboring lake. Upstream a few yards from our home the brook gently glides through deep, green, spruce-shaded silences. Directly in front of the window that illumines my desk the solemn stream suddenly breaks into silvery laughter as it plays mischievously with logs, stones and broken branches and then joyfully skips into a tree-dimmed opening where today it is greeted with fair skies. A few feet downstream the water abruptly becomes serious again dropping its sparklings, forming a tranquil, dreamy pool, perfectly reflecting the unmerciful images of birches that grace the snow-cushioned banks. So the stream moves on toward its rendezvous with greater life, slipping through wind-rippled glades, dancing past snow-and-sun-brightened meadows, resisting lightheartedly in the light, sulking in the shadows.

It is not difficult to probe the secrets of a stream like ours, searching for the multitude of living things that grace the cool, dew-haunted depths and mystery patterned bottoms for darters and darting crayfish and crustacea, brook trout and hyacus, the best results are to be found where the waters are most disturbed. Life is most plentiful and most vital not in the repeated silences of still, dark pools or in the peaceful, dreamy shadows where the stream moves slowly under protective, overhanging banks, or in quiet, unlit stretches of the mirror-surfaced brook where idle clouds leisurely swim on bright winter afternoons, but in the troubled turbulances.

BASIC NECESSITY

The reason this is so? Where water is agitated or agitated it becomes well supplied with oxygen - - a basic necessity for the existence of life. While forests, farms and swamps contribute generous supplies of decomposing vegetation to the streams, adding accumulations of poisoning carbon dioxide and reducing the proportion of oxygen in the water, turbulences caused by falls, rapids, boulder rocks and dropping over falls replenish supplies of oxygen that would otherwise be unbalanced. Scientific experts who deal with water and its properties and effects are filled with water swirling among stones, dashing over logs, and cascading down waterfalls are filled with healthy oxygen because the turbulence creates a vital contact between water and the atmosphere. While stagnant water may be cursed with a deficiency or an excess of certain atmospheric gases, rapid, agitated, disturbed water churns itself into atmosphere that floats just above it.

Life's turbulence, rightly used does a similar thing for us: it mixes Heaven into our human situation in a way that peaceful days never do. Obstacles to our comfort, hindrances to our hopes, distresses, afflictions, misfortunes, and ills become levers in a brook - - create the kind of disturbance that can churn the Above into the Below, the Spirit of God into the spirit of man. As Benjamin Franklin said, "After crosses and losses men grow humbler and wiser." And Saint Paul, long before Franklin, wrote to the Christians at Corinth about the great good that came from his weakness: "I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses for Christ's sake: for when I am weak, then I am strong."

BENEFITS THE SOUL

James Berrie told of his mother suffering cruelly from the death of her eldest son: "She came back to her desolate home and bowed herself before God. But she never recovered from the blow. . . That is how my mother got her soft face. . . and her pathetic ways, and her large cheerfulness, and how other mothers can be that when they lost a child." So trouble, gloriously used, benefits the soul.

It is not by accident that man's profound thoughts have come through disaster rather than through prosperity, that the noblest expressions of the ancient Hebrews were uttered during the Babylonian captivity rather than when they were triumphantly expanding the borders of their kingdom, that the most sublime words spoken in America were voiced during the most agonizing days of the Civil War and not during one of America's great economic flourishes. Privileged succour, comfort and pleasure usually stagnate and fill us with self-content. Troublesome, difficult reveals our need. It breaks up our earthly sophistication. Our Heaven's answer can be joined to earth' central question, and Heaven's rich grace can be stirred into our deep spiritual destitution.

Just about need hovers God's readiness to help us, like the atmosphere lingering over the ocean and fill us with the dashing of our souls against some dressed obstruction to let his Divine compassion mingle with our human weakness so that our struggle souls can be refreshed.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS — BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: I'm going to visit a friend for a few days at my old home town. I haven't been back for several years and would like to get in touch with some other friends while I'm there. What should I do about using the phone? I have a number of calls to make and, naturally, would like to reimburse my hostess for them. How may this be handled tactfully? Also, would it be permissible to ask friends to drop by to say hello, or would it appear I'm abusing guest privileges? I'd be grateful for your advice. — Mrs. I. W. M., Baltimore, Md.

Answer: When someone is a house guest for a length of time, it's all right to use the phone, but it should be done sparingly. A guest shouldn't monopolize it. It's not necessary to pay for a few local calls, but a guest should pay for toll calls and, of course, for long distance calls, if any. Simply list the calls that seem to require payment, then leave it near the phone, together with the proper amount, before you leave. Most likely your hostess won't accept it until after you've left, and then it will be to late for her to demur, although she may send it back. It would be a breach of etiquette to ask anyone over unless your hostess suggests you do so.

Question: I live in a suburban area and wear a hat only when it snows, and then it's the knit type that comes way down over my ears. Hats just don't look well on me. But now my husband insists I buy a good one to wear with a wool knit dress to a luncheon his boss' wife is giving for a few wives of executive. It's to be held at her home, which is also in a suburban area, so I'm sure the hostess suggests it, then you can rest your weary head and take it off when you arrive.

White Theme Of Fashions For Summer

MONTREAL (CP) — White-colored creations, collectively called "Great White Fashion," receive special emphasis in eight Canadian couturiers' spring and summer fashions.

The styles premiered in le Montreal this week at the Association of Canadian Couturiers combined showings also featured what their designers called easy fitting, movement, planned drapes, constructive seams and an up-dating of some 1930 trends.

Marie Antoinette, France Davies, Evelyn, Frances Stewart, Marlo di Nardo, Rodolphe, Olivia and the Pouch-Jean Pouch houses all started their groupings on the white theme.

Marie Antoinette presented a short bridal dress of white arnel surah featuring appliques and re-embroidered fabric in a floral pattern on the skirt border, patterned after Madeira-type embroidery.

In her dress and jacket costume of white double-knit arnel, she covered the bodice with small white satin bows and centred each bow with a crystal drop. She used the fabric of the a dress and coat costume of beige orion and wool spongey crepe for the vertical bands. WHITE FOR IMPACT

France Davies added liberal dashes of white to her clothes for additional impact. Her opening number was a dress and coat costume of white wool boucle. The coat was seven-eighths long and the dress was lightly shaped with brass buttons to mark the midriff.

She opened her group with a white linen organza around the cowl necklike and an overblouse dress of grey plaid terylene and wool worsted.

Her 1930 mood was used for evening fashions which featured a columnar dress of golden arnel ron boucle. The bodice had a cowl neckline and the sleeves were long and tight. The skirt wrapped around and was fastened with a bow at the waistline.

Evelyn presented what she called "super sophisticates," including pleated terrace pyjamas of nylon georgette in the Mandarin shade. Her white fashion was a heavy silk otton man with the skirt above the ankle and topped by a chiffon lame blouse. The topcoat was tunic length and lightly shaped and lined in the same lame.

OLD AND NEW

Her harem dinner dress of dull gold belanca jersey was reminiscent of the '20's but her raisinni presentation was modern, featuring matching rain coat and dress. The combination was made of white and black striped nylon and viscose stretch fabric.

Frances Stewart narrowed the silhouette and lengthened suit jackets. Her white number was a narrow dress and coat costume of sponger white wool. The coat had welt seams at the front waistline and a high back yoke. The accompanying dress had a cutaway sleeve line with decorative seams repeating the curve.

She also showed a two-piece dress of plaid jersey and a print with the briefest of cap sleeves to balance its narrow shape.

Marlo di Nardo featured clothes seamed to a new high inverted "V" under which a bustline at the back yoke. His coats and suits were not fitted. His opening costume was a white wool suit with the inverted "V" also emphasized in his suit of beige arnel and cotton which also featured slit-in pockets placed low on the skirt.

Rodolphe used a white and yellow arnel sharkskin "penguin" coat to introduce his collection. The garment had a partial belt at hip level fastened to his coat by large pearl buttons. He used white again around the edges of a red arnel denim suit. The jacket was buttonless and covered a detailed blouse.

Olivia maintained her "paper doll" silhouette of last season, keeping to the widened skirt line controlled in large codet flares at both sides, resulting in a triangular shape throughout her collection.

Raoul - Jean Fourc also featured white but tempered it with repeated dashes of blue.

TORONTO (CP)—There is a definite movement to standardize traffic signs across the country, says Roy Cooley of the Ontario highways department. ICE CREAM FLOATSIN SUMMER PASTELS

The nautical look is in evidence this spring! There is a wave of navy blue in overblouse middy dresses, crisp pleated skirts, large sailor collars and perky sailor caps. But there are also "fashion floats" which are sweeping the market. These are lovely, airy sheer fashions in pale pastel colors for romantic evenings. Some designers are calling them Ice Cream Floats because of their strawberry-vanilla, lemon and pistachio shades.

A "fashion float" may be a two-piece dress or a tubular shift, either streetlength or sweeping to within an inch of the floor. It may be of a soft or crisp fabric. As long as it is sheer enough to allow a flash of the breeze, then it's a "fashion float".

The perfect "fashion float" has a tailored air with feminine accents, such as a floor-length model of sheer - grained georgette. The georgette is perfect for the wide ruffles which edge the deeply plunging neckline and the modified bishop sleeves while the bodice ignores the waistline and the skirt plunges from the hips to the floor. Side slits on the skirt make walking and even dancing possible.

For daytime floating, this season's sheer suits are adaptable to surfing, swimming or sunning. The blouson look is still with us, but in a slimmed down version — last season's rather baggy look is gone. Some of these designs are slightly shirty while others are more in the fun-filling tradition, but strapless.

New surf suits, two-piece of course, with pronounced bareness between the "bra" and the trunks come with their own cover-up coats. The trunks are laced at the sides in imitation of men's surf suits.

The latest sun hats for beach or boardwalk wear have high rounded crowns and wide brims sharply turned up at the back and pulled into deep eye-shading peeks at the front. They come in finely woven straw or stitched linens.

Coverups for after swimming are varied. They can be ponchos made of striped denim, long scratchy sweaters of wool, capes of denim, flannel, wool terry cloth or co-ordinated fabric to match the bathing suit. The newest are practical and plain with no coy appliques of lobsters or seaweed, as the interest here is in the new color combinations of prints and plains. (For example, orange and purple; crushed raspberry and mint green.)

BEACH ACCESSORIES

Beach accessories include slippers and bags usually of straw with a handmade look. The newest of all these accessories is the "windbreak" a woven straw chair, cushioned for lounging and curving at the back for protection from the sun. Now, but not exactly portable!

Casablanca's Mystic Casbah Exciting Spot to Visit - Once

By SHIRLEY & BOB SLOANE

CASABLANCA, Morocco — "The Casbah! Oh, my, not me! I've been in the Casbahs of Tangier, Oran and Algiers, and during the war too. But Casablanca? You won't find many of the crew of this ship going ashore at this port!"

So spoke Clinton, our kindly room steward on the S.S. Constellation, a veteran of 41 operation at sea. Naturally, this sage advice was all we needed to conjure up visions of fiendish delights. We hopped into the first taxicab on the pier and commanded, eyelids atrop like Pepe le Moko:

"Take us to the Casbah!"

He took us, all right, and for a while we wondered whether we'd ever live to regret it, let alone write the column. But if it turned out to be an alarming day, it was also an instructive one. — the kind of adventure we wouldn't pay five cents to live over, but which we wouldn't trade for a million dollars.

It started pleasantly enough. Casablanca, the largest and prettiest built by the French before they polled out a few years ago. It has the look of Mediterranean sunlight, full of flowered villas and pastel office buildings, palm-lined boulevards and colorful plazas. Orange eucalyptus and rubber trees alternate with cactus in the streets.

COLORFUL PEOPLE

But it is still unmistakably a city of Africa and the sight of women peer curiously over their veils at the strangers, their flowing robes and always concealing the Parisian spike heels below. Some have babies strapped on their backs identified by stripes of fierce Berber tribesman mark swarthy chins. Highborn Arabs are identified by their black skullcaps, and Arab sects are denoted by fezzes, colorful knitted caps, and brimless felts.

The brocaded colors and intricate patterns of the souks and brighten endless rows of sidewalk stalls. For the tourist hunting after the unusual, there are leather bassocks, camel saddles, hand-carved copper and brass trays and such antique sheathed scimitars, bellows and other articles more Scarabilla of the glory that was Islam.

The bazaars have intriguing names like Medina and Souks. The shops squat in dusty cluttered cubbyholes beneath Arabian Nights arches of the old streets and black alleys.

Inside and in front a constant blather and bawl of bargaining and cajoling going on. Shopkeepers rush big fat faces to buttonhole passersby, or chase after them with a "final price" while a bewhiskered Arab stands by with wrapping paper and sounds ferociously huffs the disputed tray with a polishing cloth. A bearded Bedouin beside a pyramid of oranges cuts the throngs pulling filthy pictures out of his jacket pocket, just like in the movies, while boys beg tourists to change dirhams into dollars, or just beg.

IS ANCIENT HEART

But it is still the Casbah which most irresistibly lures the visitors. The Casbah Is the ancient heart of every North African city, and its central fortress behind whose walls windowless tenements house the poor and once upon a time the very poor, the depraved, and the women of the oldest profession.

There are few entrances and few roads, only narrow alleys. When confronted with the prospect of walking through even by daylight, visitors contentedly themselves with a turn around the walls by car. Here they see the market places of the people, sometimes filthy and pitiful, sometimes intriguing with their piles of honey-and-sesame cakes or other delicacies piled for sale. On the paved squares' knots of men cluster around squalling spellbinders practising the ancient Arab profession of story-telling.

It was on our way through and out of the Casbah that our car became stalled in a traffic jam. A soldier or a motorbike had been in an argument with a citizen. It wasn't breaking up fast enough for our driver, who with characteristic Arab impatience and temper, blasted his horn furiously and started a stream of purple cuss-prose that would-have made W. C. Fields blush if it could have been translated.

SURROUNDED CAR

Inevitably, a curious mob surrounded the car, all docile and most of them children. The soldier, helped by his buddies, finally got his truck moving, while he gave the driver an earful about bringing high-falutin' foreigners around to take pictures of poor Moroccans to show in America. The ladies in our car got a little nervous as we peep. Just as humanly, the kids in the crowd looked at them and we'd also.

The military police came, took the driver's license away, and left. The traffic jam thickened on. No one called the city police and they never came.

After what seemed like several years, the soldier agreed to meet the driver at the Army prefecture to press charges and decide whether he ought to have his license back. We met him there, after more screaming and shouting, the battle again was postponed, this time to the following morning when we would be several hundred miles at sea.

That evening a young government tourism official came on board, offered to be chauffeur in he was getting and excited the Arabic surroundings, to take a statement from us and to apologize.

We called shortly afterwards and it was over. But there was much reflecting to be done about what can happen when high falutin American tourists come to see and take pictures of how the world's poor live.

The program was planned for the district annual which will be held in Marmora on May 14. The branches are asked to bring articles for a hobby display.

Mrs. Holmes vacated the chair and Mrs. Ken Rollins conducted the nomination of the new slate of officers to be presented at the annual meeting.

Mrs. R. E. Beatty announced that Mrs. R. C. Walker, Provincial Curator for Tweedsmuir Histories, will be conducting a workshop for the branch curators at the YMCA, Belleville, on April 14 and for the district curators on April 15.

Soroptimists Hear Talk on Science Fair

The monthly dinner meeting of the Soroptimist Club of Belleville was held at Johnny's Restaurant with president Mrs. Yorke presiding. Seven-al new prospective members were welcomed.

The guest speaker, Miss Beverly Davies, Belleville, was introduced by Miss Helen Symons. Miss Davies was one of two winners of Canada-wide Science Fair for the year 1963 and attended the International Youth Science Fortnight in London, England, last summer. Miss Davies told the club members of her exhibit that made it possible for her to be selected as one of the finalists to represent Canada and show, all slides which proved most interesting of her trip to the international fortnight held in England last July.

She was thanked by Mrs. Lucietta Stirland.

The 22nd annual conference of Eastern Region of Soroptimist Clubs will take place in Peterborough, Ontario, Apr. 10th and 11th. Miss Virginia Sink, president of the Soroptimist Federation of the Americas, will give the keynote address. Miss Sink, a chemical engineer with a master's degree in automotive engineering, on special assignments for the Chrysler Corporation, has travelled widely in the United States, South America and Canada and will bring to the conference an intimate knowledge of Soroptimist achievements in several of the international goodwill and understanding.

CONFERENCE HIGHLIGHT

A highlight of the conference will be the presentation of a $500 award to the winning High School senior in a competition sponsored by Soroptimist clubs in Ontario and Quebec. The winner will be sponsored by the Eastern Ontario Region for the International award of $2,500, given to two graduating seniors each year by the Soroptimist Foundation. Students sponsored by any club in the Federation of the Americas, including Canada, the United States, Mexico and South America are eligible.

Because Soroptimists believe in the integrity, worth and ability of youth, they have offered the citizenship awards to encourage youth to develop more effective co-operation in home, community and in-national and international fair.

Readers' Saturday Column

by Mary Moore

Question: "Frozen meat" is now on sale at one of the chain stores. The new names are very confusing. Maybe you could give some help. What part of the animal do they come from and should they be roasted with or without cover? Some of the names are: Niagara Broil, Boston Broil, Denver, Manhattan, Belmont, Westbourne, Key Club Steak. I have to depend on other people to do my shopping. I always love to try out new things, but with meat it is very difficult. When you have time, an article in your column will be of interest to many.

Mrs. S. R. L.

SATURDAY

Dinner Menu

Salmon Loaf; Egg Sauce; Buttered Squash; Celery Hearts; Pickled Beets; Steamed Rhubarb; Crackers and Cheese; Tea.

Answer: Yours is an excellent question and I'm sure you are right about it being of interest to many. I will check the new names in the order in which you listed them. This information comes from the company which produces "Frozen meat." All are roasted or broiled without cover. Niagara Broil: Boneless Blade Steak or Roast. Boston Broil: Boneless Short Rib Roast or Steak. Denver: Boneless Bottom Round Roast. Manhattan: Boneless Top Round Steak or Roast. Belmont: Boneless Blade Roast and Steak (much the same as "Niagara" above). Penthouse: 1) Steak Boneless "Eye" of Round Steak; 2) Boneless Roast from "Eye" of Round. Key Club Steak: Prime Rib Steaks - bone in.

Question: I cook for a family of four. My husband takes a lunch box five days a week. Could you send me a recipe for four loaves of white bread?

Mrs. M. F.

Answer:

WHITE BREAD (4 loaves)

2 cups scalded milk
3 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons shortening
2 cups lukewarm water
1 teaspoons sugar
2 packages granular yeast
10 or 11 cups sifted all-purpose flour.

Scald the milk, then stir in 3 tablespoons sugar, salt and shortening. Cool to lukewarm. Stir 2 teaspoons sugar into the lukewarm water, then sprinkle with yeast and let stand for 10 minutes. Then stir well. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture. Stir in 6 cups of the flour and beat until smooth, then stir in remaining flour. Turn out dough on lightly floured board. Knead until smooth and elastic. Place in greased bowl; brush top with melted shortening. Cover. Let rise in warm place until double in bulk - about 1½ hours. Punch down and turn out on lightly floured board. Divide into four equal parts; cover and let rest 15 minutes. Shape into loaves. Place in greased pans. Brush lightly with melted butter, margarine or shortening. Cover. Let rise until centre is 1½" higher than edge of pan - about 1½ hours. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 35 to 40 minutes.

Stories of Famous Hymns

By HORACE B. POWELL

TAKE MY LIFE AND LET IT BE

Take my life, and let it be Consecrated, Lord, to Thee.
Take my moments and my days
Let them flow in ceaseless praise.

Take my hands, and let them move
At the impulse of Thy love.
Take my feet, and let them be
Swift and beautiful for Thee.

Take my voice, and let me sing,
Always, only, for my King.
Take my lips, and let them be Filled with messages from Thee.

Take my silver and my gold;
Not a mite would I withhold.
Take my intellect, and use
Every power as Thou shalt choose.

Take my love; my Lord, I pour
At Thy feet its treasure store
Take myself, and I will be Ever, only, all for Thee.

Happiness inspired by the winning of a group of friends to Christ led Frances Ridley Havergal, a consecrated young English woman, to compose this beautiful hymn, in 1874.

Miss Havergal, the daughter of an Episcopal clergyman, was born at Astley in Worcestershire, England in 1836. Her father was a musician and hymnist as well as a preacher and Frances, who inherited his musical and literary talents, became a brilliant singer and pianist. Early in life she decided that her talents should be used, as far as possible, to lead others to the Christ she had learned to love and serve. She conducted prayer-meetings, wrote Sunday school leaflets, and composed innumerable hymns for children.

Her hymn, "Take My Life," was written one weekend while Miss Havergal was spending several days with friends at Areley House, in England. Writing, later, of that visit she said:

"There were ten persons in the house, some unconverted and long prayed for; some converted but not very happy Christians. I prayed, 'Lord, give me all in this house.' And He did! Before I left, everyone had received a blessing.

"Then I left 'midst of my visit, after I had retired, the governess came to me and asked me to come to the room of the two daughters of the family. I found them weeping. We talked and prayed together and, then and there, both of them trusted and rejoiced. It was nearly midnight. I was too happy now to sleep and passed most of the night in praise and renewal of my own consecration. And these little couplets formed themselves and chimed in my heart, one after another, until they finished with 'Ever, only, all for Thee.'

Frances Havergal tried always to live in the spirit of her hymn of consecration. In 1878, she wrote to a friend:

"The Lord has shown me another little step and, of course, I have taken it with extreme delight. 'Take my silver and my gold' now means shipping off all my ornaments to the Church Missionary House (including a beautiful cabinet which really is fit for a countess) where all will be accepted and disposed of for me. I retain a brooch or two for daily wear, memorials of my dear parents, also a locket containing a portrait of my dear niece in Heaven, Evelyn, and her two rings. Nearly fifty articles are thus given away and I don't think I ever packed a box with more pleasure."

She died in Wales on June 3, 1879 and was buried at Astley, her birthplace. She went out with a hymn of hope on her lips. She was singing:

"Yesus, I will trust Thee,
Trust Thee with my soul;
Guilty, lost, and helpless,
Thou has made me whole;
There is none in Heaven
Or on earth like Thee,
Thou hast died for sinners,
Therefore, Lord, for me."

Canadians that should be rejected by Parliament. NDP speakers had cited words that were "peculiarly reminiscent" of the Communist statement, he said.

"This is nothing but a smear technique," shouted Reid Scott (NDP — Toronto Danforth), "I insist that those words be taken back. This is a cheap smear. Are we going to have the McCarthy technique used in this House?"

"Why, McNaughton a Communist?" interjected David Orlikow (NDP — Winnipeg North) in a reference to Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, a strong critic of the Columbia treaty.

E. W. Herridge (NDP—Kootenay West) said the Communists endorsed the Liberals' pension plan. Would Mr. Ryan read that statement too?

Mr. Ryan said he stands by his remarks. Speaker Allan Macnaughton said no withdrawal was required since Mr. Ryan had not referred to any MP in particular.

HITS SALES TAX

George Chatterton (PC — Esquimalt - Saanich) said the new sales tax on building materials could add $25,000,000 to the cost of the three storage dams in B.C. and $7,000,000 annually in the cost of B.C. power. The Columbia project should be exempted from the tax.

Former defence minister Douglas Harkness said Premier Bennett is revealing for the fact that Canada did not get the best treaty possible. The MacNaughton - Harkness plan would have been more beneficial, but Mr. Bennett had killed it.

Bert Leboe (SC — Okanagan) rushed to the defence of the Social Credit premier. He resented statements that implied that Mr. Bennett had acted against the will of B.C. voters.

Several Liberal and Conservative speakers warned that quick action must be taken to exploit hydro resources because nuclear power would be available at competitive prices within 10 or 12 years.

Arnold Peters (NDP — Timiskaming) said the treaty rapes Canada.

Liberal backbenchers talked out a bill from New Democrat Stanley Knowles which would have required employers in industries under federal jurisdiction to give their workers two weeks vacation with pay after one year on the job.

The present law calls for two weeks vacation after two years on the job.

FAVOR AIM

The Liberal MPs said they favored the aim of the Knowles bill but contended that parliamentary action should await government legislation to establish a national labor code setting out standards of pay, hours of work and vacations.

Mr. Knowles, MP for Winnipeg North Centre, who has placed the vacation with pay bill before the House almost every year since he entered Parliament, said the Liberal party promised a national labor code in 1919.

Forty - five years later, he said, it finally put its promise into legislative terms for the current session of Parliament.

J. J. Greene (L — Renfrew South) was one of those who supported the intent of Mr. Knowles' bill but opposed its passage ahead of the national labor code.

John B. Morison (L — Wentworth) also favored the package approach to the labor code, but said that changes in labor standards should be viewed in relation to their impact on business expenses.

Garden Notes

Make Most of Accent Plants

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

An attractive garden is not a collection of plants that have taken your fancy at one time or another and planted here and there where ever there is space. It is a thing planned like a room with plants for the furnishings.

The lawn is the carpet around which you will arrange the larger pieces of furniture, these are the trees and shrubs. Pictures are small areas arranged to create a pleasing unit such as a clump of lilies, spring bulb in a mass planting, or bright perannials in groups. These are supplemented with other medium, tall and low plants that compliment the feature planes and bring out the color, form and textures of each.

Focal points that will highlight one part of the garden at a time can be special plants such as a magnolia, tree peony or flowering quince (Chaenomeles). As one completes its act and fades into the surrounding plantings another should be coming into bloom to take its place.

STIMULATES INTEREST

Having a whole garden in bloom at the same time is not possible, and would not be restful, but the highlight can create enough beauty to satisfy the home owner. This stimulates the interest in different parts of the garden through the season.

Permanent focal points, of which there should be not more than one unless the garden is very large, consist of such items as a bird bath, garden seat, ornamental arch or pool. These call for special plants to enhance their importance and fit them into their surroundings as if they grew there. Bog plants and those plants which will like or tolerate wet feet furnish the pool. A semi-circle of shrubs to lend a degree of privacy and shelter it from the prevailing winds enhances the garden seat and an arch demands a handsome vine.

Plants which will create focal points in the garden have special character. These may be important enough to be a single plant such as a tree peony, which is an "object of art" or they can be a group such as delphiniums.

The tree peony when you buy it will look like a horseradish root with a lumpy graft on top. You will question the wisdom of such an ugly root but the second year you will say it was worth it and more.

There are some fine singles with blooms as big as a tea plate, Comtesse de Todoy is double with huge bloom in salmon pink. Reine Elizabeth, equally large, is a double rose red. Peonies are long lived plants and you may be enjoying your tree peony twenty-five years from now.

SPECIAL PLANTS

Magnolias are special plants too. Magnolia soulangeana, the saucer magnolia, grows to four or more feet. Occasionally one sees them the size of a small tree but they still retain their round shrub-like form. The bark is a lovely silver in winter and the foliage is always attractive. The blooms are large and cup-like, white with a delicate pink tinge. If this form nigri is a purple or maroon which is most exotic but not as showy for a specimen shrub. Starry Magnolia stellata is the starry one with fragrant blooms of ribbon-like petals. It is quite breath taking in its beauty.

Yuccas and New Zealand flax are impressive plants to lend distinction to your garden. The flax will make a fine fountain of rush shaped leaves four feet high. The Yuccas retain their sword shaped leaves through the winter and old plants such as petunias, vines or verberra become a bit ragged. They need creeping, or ground covering plants as their neighbors to conceal their unsightliness late in the season. A group or row of them makes a sharp accent in the garden. The Mexicans call them "God's Candles" and when they bloom the tall stately spike of dozens of creamy blooms does resemble a candelabra.

One of the weeping fruit trees, grown not for their fruit but for their graceful form and for their graceful form and years of satisfaction and provide an impressive ornament to your garden.

the minister," Mr. Nowlan said.

He added that Mr. Gordon had taken some of the pressure off his next year's budget deficit by charging some $46,000,000 to this year's expenditures.

COVERS DECLINES

Mr. Gordon told the Commons this amount covers a decline in inventory values of butter, butter oil and pork purchased under price support programs and held by the agricultural stabilization board.

The $48,400,000 is included in a $122,235,000 item to cover losses by the Stabilization board. This was the largest item in the supplementary estimates.

Other major items: $43,013,517 for the CNR's 1963 deficit, $13,653,000 for the RCAF, $11,000,000 for civil service pay, $5,508,000 in special aid to defence industry, $5,798,708 for municipal sewer projects, and $3,314,600 for coal transportation subsidies.

Mr. Gordon also announced a new policy to deal with a long standing problem: the increase in deficiencies in various civil service superannuation accounts representing added liabilities resulting from general pay increases in recent years.

Mr. Gordon said that deficiencies arising from general pay increases...in the civil service since last April 1 would be charged at once their extent was known—over a five-year period starting next year.

Canadian Curling Title To B. C. ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Lyle Dagg Ends Richardson Reign

By MARVEN ROSS

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A veteran Vancouver rink that found the clutch shots when it needed them has captured British Columbia's first Canadian curling title in 16 years.

Lyall Dagg, a 34-year-old accountant executive, and his 30-year-old partners had the fight of their lives Friday before they nailed down the title with a 9-7 victory over underdog Prince Edward Island in an extra end in which their opponent had last rock.

Watching from the sidelines at the finish were Ernie Richardson and his four-time champions from Regina, when Dagg had beaten 8-3 in a tie-breaking showdown earlier in the day and who would have met B.C. in a playoff if Art Burke's youthful Charlottetown quartet had succeeded in pulling off the upset.

Their bid foundered when Burke's last rock sailed through the house, leaving his opponents counting two.

"I'll tell you Al Lyall when Burke let it go and I knew we were in," said Barry Naimark, the B.C. lead, who played third for province's championship entry of 1963. The new champions average 17 years curling experience, got together in 1961.

Its other members are Fred Britton, second, and Leo Hobens.

The B.C. victory, the first since Frenchy D'Amour's Trail rink won the 1948 title, made it a big year for the coast province. Ina Hansen's Kimberley foursome won this year's Canadian women's championship with a Dawson Creek crew, representing Alberta, finishing second.

Dagg, a father of four whose wife keeps up her interest in amateur theatre to permit him to get in the necessary competitive practice, will lead his rink as Canada's representatives in the international championships at Calgary March 16-19.

B.C. finished with nine victories in 10 starts in the five-day round-robin competition, losing only to Elmer Black's Hudson, Que., rink in the ninth round Thursday night. Richardson's family foursome was second with eight victories and two losses, to Dagg and Jack Polkblank of Northern Ontario.

Third place went to Bruce Hudson of Manitoba at 7-3. Quebec was fourth at 6-4 followed by Prince Edward Island, Ontario and Alberta with 5-5 records. Northern Ontario, 4-6, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, 3-7, and the winless Newfoundland rink completed the field.

The 11 rounds drew a total paid attendance of 13,573 to the 2,000-seat Charlottetown Forum.

HAD OFF DAY

The Richardsons, reeking their fifth championship in six years—they missed it the last time in 1962—had one of their rare off-days in the showdown match against Dagg.

Things started to go wrong for Scotch-born Richardson when they conceded a point to B.C. in the fifth end despite last-rock advantage. Dagg stole single points in the seventh and eighth ends to go ahead 5-1 as the usually impeccable Ernie Richardson was consistently heavy with his last shots.

The killer came in the 10th end as Dagg curled past a guard for a takeout that gave him a count of three and an unbeatable 8-2 lead.

"I missed my last shots," was Richardson's simple explanation of Saskatchewan's defeat. "The opposing third skipped."

"The Richardsons never curled that way in 100 years," he said.

But there was more drama to come in the 11th end.

EDGED N.S.

Saskatchewan, needing a victory to stay alive, barely edged past Nova Scotia 7-6. And the B.C.-P.E.I. match was a seesaw battle all the way.

Trailing 3-0 after four ends, the Islanders rocked ahead 5-3 after seven, trailed 6-5 after nines, after Dagg's superb takeout had tied it in the 9th and moved ahead again with single counts on the next two ends.

B.C. sent it into the extra end with a single in the 12th, setting the stage for Burke's unsuccessful last attempt.

In matches not involving the leaders Friday, Quebec downed New Scotia 9-6, New Brunswick thrashed P.E.I. 13-6, Ontario whipped Newfoundland 12-5 and Alberta topped Northern Ontario 11-7 in the 10th round. In the 11th it was Manitoba 11-5 over Quebec, Alberta 13-8 over New Brunswick and Ontario 10-9 over Northern Ontario.

Next year's tournament was awarded to Saskatoon at the annual meeting of the Dominion Curling Association, held in conjunction with the championship competition. The DCA also decided to believe a proposal on professionalism that would have barred the country's top curlers from the Canadian championships.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Water is flowing unhampered by ice down the Moira River; the boy is getting restless and ready to shake his shackles; it is reported evergoes are trying to shove greenish insects through the frost-hardened topsoil; the puny willows will soon be breaking out and any minute now there will be the annual crop of first-robin reports.

Playoffs indicating the final acts of the many hockey dramas are upcoming. Seed catalogues with an original tomato in all its scarlet glory, cover-girl-like on the front sheet, will soon be bulging letter-carriers' knapsacks. Early-season anglers are already scouring the northern latitudes while the "spring" baffle are tackle-climbing and readying for the warm days and soft breezes.

Golfing palms are itching for the feel of woods and irons, and three or four weeks from now signs of life will be shown at country clubs.

Baseball laid some groundwork some time ago with the formation of the Eastern Counties Baseball Association, and it is presumed the clans have been working quietly on plans which, it is hoped, will give the popular summer pastime a new lease of life this year.

And according to a missive from Councillor-at-Cliff Belch, Jr., efforts will be made to organize the Belleville and District Softball League at a meeting scheduled for the Club Canara on March 15.

Softball has been riding a more or less rocky road here the past few years and it is to be hoped that the box office suffered when outside teams failed to throw in their lot with city squads.

By outside teams I mean the Picton and Cobourg clubs. Trenton and Trenton RCAF clubs were always considered more or less "members of the family."

I understand that Joyce's and Trudeau's, two of last year's mainstays, will be back in the fold again this season, while Norse Robert Temple said last year that he would be back with his Bobcats, but with a different organization.

Rumors along the softball rialto have it that Trenton and Trenton RCAF will operate separate organizations this year which could result in two entries for the B and D loop, one or even more.

Softball circuitries in Picton and Cobourg are not known at this writing. Both fielded colorful squads during the years they played in the B. and D. circuit. Softball men here agree that outside "faces and teams" add color to the game and provide an added incentive for Joe Fan.

The Commercial Softball League had a good season last year and it is hoped the boys of this loop will get their organization going in the near future. The league provided some exciting softball, also an outlet for the activities of those players who did not make the B. and D. squads.

BASKETBALL

Today crack basketball teams of the Quinte, Lake Ontario and Kawartha districts of the Central Ontario Secondary Schools' Association are battling for bantam, junior and senior "AB" championships.

Preliminary games were played this morning and afternoon and tonight the top squads will go into championship action.

The boys' bantam, junior and senior tkniker games are being played at Quinte S.S., while the girls' junior and senior "AB" tilts will get under way at Moira Secondary School.

This is secondary schools' basketball at its best and lovers of the game should not miss these important games. They are open to the public.

Softballers Schedule Meet For March 15

The first meeting of the Belleville and District Softball League for the 1964 season will be held at Club Canara, Belleville, one week from tomorrow, Sunday, March 15, at 2.30.

League Commissioner Cliff Belch Jr. in calling the meeting, said that new league entries and persons interested in serving on the league executive are urgently needed.

Last year's four entries, Belleville Bobcats, Trudeau Motors, Joyce Realty and the RCAF Flyers have been notified of the meeting. Special invitations have been forwarded to several other district centres, including Picton, Cobourg and Trenton town. "We need a five or six team loop with several outside clubs competing to restore the league to it's former status" Belch said yesterday.

Belch has indicated that he will step down as league commissioner and hopes to see a full slate of officers named at an early meeting.

All persons interested in the league are urged to attend next Sunday's meeting.

DCA Dodged Issue For Years

Curling Ethics Shelving Not Surprise

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

The Dominion Curling Association didn't surprise anyone the other day when it shelved the ticklish code of ethics regarding professionalism in the sport. It has been dodging this issue for years.

This august body knows which side its bread is buttered on. If it outlaws professionalism, it knows as well as anyone that the pros will certainly run their own tournament and the Canadian championship will be minor league.

The DCA would suffer.

Take a look at hockey. In 1911, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association established what it called the Major Series to keep amateur hockey clubs competing for the newly established Alexander Cup. In that year Ottawa and Galt downgraded the Allan Cup, symbolic of the Canadian senior championship since 1908, to the status of an intermediate series.

NEVER RECOVERED

The Alexander Cup went out of business in two years but the Allan Cup hasn't been able to recover from its loss of prestige.

The DCA sets the rules of play, awards sites of the tournaments, holds its annual meeting at venue of the Canadian championship and is prominent in the opening and closing ceremonies.

And, once a DCA president, you are on the executive for life.

The code of ethics has been kicking around since the late 1950s. It has been on the agenda year after year with the same result: No decision. Let's take another look.

The association took a look on Wednesday and by a 34-to-19 vote, with five abstentions, decided to shelve it. It most likely will come up again next year.

The proposal, backed mainly by Ontario and other eastern provinces and with the West mostly against it, included a ban on product endorsement and would restrict the value of a rink or $200 a curler.

The code would force the best curlers in the country — and these are from the West—right out of the Canadian championship. They compete in no bonspiels with prizes totalling $10,000 or more.

Lopez cropped up in Jamaica when Hec Gervais of Edmonton and Ernie Richardson of Regina, Sips of Canada's two best rinks for years now, made an agreement to split first and second prizes in the Calgary masters bonspiel.

First prize was four computer cars, $800 in stock in the company sponsoring the bonspiel and four seats on the firm's board of directors for a year. Second prize was four television sets. The curlers figured that first prize was worth about $8,500 and second prize about $2,000.

A lot of people were horrified at the secret deal made by the two skips before their sudden death final. Many said the public was hoodwinked, but the final must have been a thriller because Gervais won 9-7 when Richardson fouled on a guard in a last-rock takeout bid.

Right or wrong, deals of sort are a ritual with pro golfers. With $3,000 to $10,000 riding on a shot, why wouldn't they make a deal?

As far as is known, the DCA hasn't said a word one way or the other what it thinks about deals.

For Hotel Cooks

Big Payoff Brings $84,114

MIAMI (AP) — Two Miami Beach hotel cooks, one of whom doesn't have a extra buck in "my pocket in my life," cashed in on the biggest payoff in the stream Park Friday for $84,114.

Not satisfied with the biggest payoff in United States horse history, Juan Taxzon, 60, took part of their winnings in cash and remained at the track.

They made their huge killing Thursday.

When they failed to show up at the cashier's window before closing, it was feared that the ticket might have been destroyed when their horse, Initabas, ran second in the eighth race.

He was placed first when the original winner, Gathering Dew, was disqualified.

Lopez, who had gone to the track to buy the ticket, said that the ticket was in his pocket.

"I just held on to the ticket tight and went home shaking all over."

This morning he telephoned Tuzzon, who had split the ticket in half, and called for a celebration they went to the track to collect.

There, accepted a $40,000 check and the balance of his half share in cash. Then they marched to the sellers window to see if their fabulous luck had changed.

Luck was with them all the way for Thursday's race. They won the first half of the double with Scattergood, $162.60, and Col. Mengel, $8.60, in the fifth and sixth races. After this, 218 tickets remained alive.

Lopez and Tuzzon then exchanged their ticket for Initabas in the eighth and Spendapenie in the ninth. Fortunately, when Initabas won, all other bettors were wiped out and two cooks became owners of the entire twin double pool.

Spendapenie ran seventh in the ninth race, won by Doctor Hasty.

The payoff broke the record of $79,660 won by Joe Mariano, a Waterbury, Conn., bartender at the Roosevelt Raceway harness racing track last Nov. 4.

Lopez declared that "I've never had an extra buck in my pocket in my life." He has been at Miami Beach since 1937 and has a wife, son and daughter at Camuy, Puerto Rico.

The men refused to talk much with newspaper men. He works in the winter here and in the summer in mountain resorts, and is a life-long bachelor.

Youth Can Carry Habs To Stanley Cup

Says Terry Harper

By JOE DUPUIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Young Terry Harper, the bullrough, Regina-born defenceman for the Montreal Canadiens, says youth can carry the team to take the Stanley Cup this year.

Harper, who turned 24 last Jan. 27, naturally includes himself in the team's youth category. "We have a young, strong team. I think we can go all the way."

Harper is one of the amazing rookies who have changed the Canadiens in one short year, from has-beens to powerful contenders in the fast-waning National Hockey League season.

His ungraceful, but hard-bump style tightened a defence weakened in recent years by the loss of such Canadien giants as Doug Harvey, Lou Fontinato and Tom Johnson. His bone-jar style is complemented by the smooth, cool-thinking play of Jacques Laperriere, 25, another rookie defenceman playing like an NHL veteran.

JACQUES MAKE TOUGHIE

Laperriere, incidentally, will be back in the lineup tonight when the Canadiens try to overtake the idle Chicago Black Hawks. Montreal hosts New York and Toronto entertains Detroit in the only two games scheduled.

The Canadiens trail the first-place Hawks by one point but have played one game less. Chicago and the Leafs are just two points ahead of Detroit in their battle for fourth place.

On Sunday, Montreal visits New York, Toronto is at Chicago and Detroit plays in Boston.

Laperriere, sidelined for one game three weeks ago with infection, and Harper are in their first full season in the league. Their play, and that of rookie left winger John Ferguson, 26, has sparked the Canadiens all season.

Sitting in the dressing room in full uniform after a workout, Harper oozed confidence in the team, and in himself.

"I don't let the pressure get to me. I never look behind or two far ahead. I've had some bad games, but I don't think about them. I just try to think about the next game, and say to myself that this will be my best effort."

Harper said that five years ago he and Laperriere would never have made this team because they had too many sound players. Called up at the half-end of last season, the two rookies impressed immediately.

FILLED HARD NEEDS

Harper said "it was really a good break" that the Canadiens needed defencemen. "I think both Jacques and I realized when we came up this year that they (Canadiens) needed strengthening on defence."

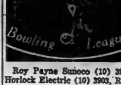
"For my part, I knew that the team needed somebody who could bump a few guys around. It isn't just a matter of being somebody. I never liked to belt anyone too much. I prefer to steer my man into the boards, or into a corner. But we needed somebody who could bump, and so I bumped."

Harper seemed surprised that his play has astonished some of the critics.

"Anyone who saw either Jacques or me in the minor leagues would know we're not doing anything too different now. The only difference is that now we're playing in our full potential whereas in the minors we tended to be a little lazy because the competition wasn't quite as rough."

CALLED UP LAST YEAR

Harper, married and father of a two-year-old boy, stands six-foot one and weighs just under 200 pounds. He played with the Junior Regina Pats before joining the old Montreal Royals of the defunct Quebec Professional League in 1960-61 season. He then went to Hull-Ottawa of the former Eastern Professional League and was called up from there by Canadiens for last season's Stanley Cup playoffs.



Harper has never missed a game because of injuries in his entire hockey career.

"It's luck mostly. Every time I did get an injury that would keep me out for a couple of days, we had no games scheduled."

Once, he played for several weeks despite a broken wrist. His worst injury occurred at the age of 9 when he was burning rubbish in the back yard in Regina. He threw gasoline over the fire to fasten the burning. A bright flash of flame burned Harper, searing his chest and abdomen with second degree burns. He spent months in the hospital and the front of his body was permanently scarred. Fortunately, his neck and face were untouched.

Harper plans to spend next summer on a good-will tour of Canada for the Canadiens. The tour will stall temporarily his plans to complete an arts course at the University of British Columbia.

He has three years to go to finish the course.

Juniors Drop Overtime Thriller

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

A breakaway goal at 5.21 of the second overtime period sent the Belleville "B's" down to a heart-breaking 5-4 defeat here last night at the hands of the Peterborough Monsens.

The game, one of the most exciting played here in two years was witnessed by the season's largest crowd of the season, estimated at near 500.

Peterborough's victory evens the OHA Eastern Junior "B" group semi-finals at one game apiece. The third and deciding game will be played in Peterborough Monday night at 8.30. Monday's winner will open group finals in Kingston the following night.

Belleville, playing a strong two-way checking game before tiring near the end, had leads of 2-0 and 3-2, then had to come back late in the first overtime heat, a ten-minute affair, to force sudden-death play.

Norm Bean ended the thrilling battle when he grabbed a loose puck near the Belleville blueline, beat one defenceman and walked in alone on goalie Ken Kiser. Kiser moved out to meet him and Mean stepped to one side, firing the rubber across and into the far corner. It was his second goal of the night.

Monsens, tying the game 3-3 with less than three minutes left in regulation time, jumped ahead 4-3 on Bean's first marker at 2.26 on the first overtime. Bean rolled the puck out front from the side of the net and it appeared to go in off Kiser as he scrambled on his knees to smother it.

Grant Hagerman made it 4-4 at 4.47, triggering Stu Muirhead's perfect lay-out pass after the latter had made one of his sparkling rink-length rushes out of his own end. Byer was off at the time and the goal was Belleville's fourth with a man-power advantage.

There were 19 penalties are called in a game well handled by Tim Williams and Bill Hurst. Monsens drew 12 of that total and a dozen of the sentences came in the opening period, 5.

The losers had more than their share of the play on the night and outshot the victors by a 42-38 total.

Belleville built up the 2-0 lead on two power-play goals in the rough first period. Shirton had been off for only eight seconds when Muirhead scooped in a backhand from the doorstep at 5.56. Rutherford and Hagerman also trying to get his nod set Mean stepped to one side, firing the rubber across and into the far corner. It was his second goal of the night.

The "B's", led by Bob Boyle's fine checking game near his own blueline, kept the visitors from getting too many dangerous chances until Curtis got the gate at 11.15. A minute later Bill Lang made it 3-0 sitting a high one over Rezo, with help from Pringle and Jones.

Kiser stopped Karito from point blank range at 13.00 and Stabler failed to hit the puck in the open side with the goal in down and out of the play. Then, with the clubs five aside, Dave Karito put one between Kiser's skates at 14.22. The shot never left the ice.

Monsens evened the count two minutes later with Belleville down a man. Pete Byer's shot from well out deflected into the net off the goalie's stick. Karito and Maracle mixed it for majors at 18.42 and Maracle also got two for roughing. Second later Crawford drew the 12th penalty of the period.

Curtis and Lalinovich were both caught at the same time for slashing and tripping Grant Hagerman at 10.27 of the middle frame. Curtis and Stabler also drew misconducts when they argued the calls.

While Belleville had the two man advantage, Rutherford sank a screened shot from well out, aided by Muirhead and Hagerman, who had also peppered Rezo seconds before. Kiser and Rezo traded a couple of key saves later as the period ended 3-2 in Belleville's favor.

The third heat was an end-to-end affair with both goalies saving the bacon time and time again with clutch saves. The Monsens finally tied it at 17.54 when Glen Shirton's 35-foot flipper, screened, curled high in the rigging behind Kiser. The visitors had three close-in chances in the dying seconds but could not put it in.

Crothers Wins, Kidd Loses

O'Hara Runs Mile In 3:56.4

CHICAGO (CP)— J I m Tross of Toronto cast himself in the role of a "rabbit" Friday and paced amazing Tom O'Hara to another record indoor mile run of three minutes, 56.4 seconds.

Afterwards O'Hara said he possibly could have run two seconds faster.

Canada's favorite racing combination of Bill Crothers and Bruce Kidd of Toronto barely missed scoring another double in the nearly - completed indoor winter track season.

Crothers, the 25-year-old king of the half-milers, won the 1,000 yard run by 30 yards in 2:07.6 but Kidd lost a stirring head-to-head duel in the two miles to Bob Schul of Oxford, Ohio, who won by inches in 8:42.2.

Crothers later anchored the Toronto East York Track Club to victory in the mile relay in 3:18.0, with a U.S. marine foursome from Quantico, Va., second.

CHEER O'HARA

But it was the indoor mile that had a Chicago Stadium crowd of 18,307—a record turnout for the Chicago Daily News relays — cheering wildly as O'Hara blistered the boards.

The American is a 21-year-old business student at Loyola of Chicago, a Roman Catholic university.

Two weeks ago the 130-pound O'Hara knocked two seconds off Jim Beatty's indoor mark with a 3:56.5 in the New York Athletic Club games at Madison Square Garden.

Last week in the Knights of Columbus meet in the Garden he did 3:58.5, setting an indoor 1,500-metre mark of 3:43.6 en route.

He passed the 1,500 junctere in 3:41.8 Friday.

Not until just before the race did the red-haired Irish lad know that three of the Toronto Olympic Club was in the field primarily to pace him through the first half-mile—and what a job Irons did.

IRONS SHOWS WAY

With Irons showing the way, O'Hara swung through the first quarter in 58.8 and hit the half with a sizzling 1:58.8.

Irons dropped back and O'Hara's most feared opponent on the board oval, Jim Grelle of the Los Angeles Track Club, moved up.

Then O'Hara opened up, passing the three-quarters in a remarkable 2:52.8. At this point, Grelle was a beaten man. O'Hara just cruised the final 440 in 56.6.

Grelle, who pushed O'Hara to a 3:59.5 Bankers Mile victory last year in the meet, wound up second—80 yards behind.

Ergas Leje of Toronto finished third and Irons wound up fourth.

"I honestly think I could have run at least one second faster and possibly two," said O'Hara, whose last indoor mile of the season will be in Cleveland next Saturday.

"I felt extra good at the end. That first quarter was my best because of the terrific pace by Irons. Around the half - mile mark, I decided to make my move because I wanted to open up as big a lead as possible on Grelle, who has a tremendous final kick.

"When they announced 2:52.8 for three - quarters, I knew Grelle never would catch me. If he had been close enough to come at me in the final lap I would have extended myself O'Hara just cruised the final more.

Wally Lavergne Rolls 700 In Ten Pins

Wally Lavergne became the second bowler in local circles to reach the 700 mark in ten-pin bowling here on Thursday night when he hit that charmed circle right on the button.

Lavergne, bowling in the men's Two-Pin loop, had games of 345, 362 and 813.

One of the city's more consistent bowlers, Lavergne switched to five pins last night and paced the field in the Classic League with a four-string of 1191 and a high single of 378.

Not a bad week's work on any man's lanes.

Poor Old Doc Kimble Faces Another Year on the Run

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Poor Dr. Richard Kimble will have to face another year on the run.

Doc Kimble, played by David Janssen on ABC's The Fugitive, is the pediatrician who was framed for a murder charge and escaped en route to the death house. Ever since he has been dodging the police while striving to find the one-armed man whodunit.

A lot of doubting Thomases, including this one, said you couldn't sustain a television series about a guy on the lam. Yet The Fugitive bounces one of the few real hits of the 1963-64 season. It has been renewed for next year.

NO SURPRISE

The show's success failed to surprise Janssen. Says he: "If you have faith in the integrity of the people involved in a production, as I did with Quinn Martin and his staff, then you don't worry so much about whether a premise is going to pay off.

"Actually, we're not as limited in this show as you might think. Sure, the doctor has to keep on the move, but that can be an advantage. There is no sameness to the show. I don't have to scrub up for surgery every week. I don't have to report to precinct headquarters on each show. I get a change not only of surroundings and characters every week; I also change jobs."

Janssen admits the series is hard work. Besides the running, he gets involved in strenuous occupations. And, there is no sidekick of the fugitive; he is in 85 per cent of the hour-long shows.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Outside pressures due to be felt. What you desire and what is practical not likely to be the same. Utilize common sense. Be true to yourself. But also exercise tact. Conserve energies!

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Positive intellect can now produce "answers." Trust hunches. Volunteer help to one who seeks aid, instruction. You will actually learn by teaching. Handle responsibility with your usual efficiency!

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Don't be afraid of "movement." Welcome news opportunities. Visitors can stimulate you. Say yes to invitations. Write, read, exchange ideas. Pleasure indicated through social contacts.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Time for gain through hobbies, special interests. Relaxation overtime! Minor conflicts indicated. You are happiest if passive. Don't attempt to force issues. Be gentle, considerate.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Let others come to you. Best to be-hot rather than great. Not so good for travel. Energy rating high. Make most of it by being receptive. Much can now be accomplished.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Harmony in home due to demand: attention. Bring differences out in open. Get rid of secrets. Show confidence in family members. You must take first step toward show of affection.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Many hopes, wishes will come closer to reality. Day for action. There are some upsets indicated. But you can rebuild in a more firm manner. Correct past errors with zest, enthusiasm.

If today is your birthday . . . you have way of attracting responsibilities — people depend on you. Take steps to halt tendency for others to take advantage of your good nature. Speak up!

General Tendencies: News concerning large organizations involving many persons indicated — not of happy nature.

FOR MARCH 9

Aries (Mar. 21-Apr. 19.)— Pressure lifting. You can gain pleasure from activities at home. Praise loved ones. Be diplomatic, but firm. Welcome chance to meet new people. Make friends!

Taurus (Apr. 20-May 20)— Prestige is on line. Carry through on promises, resolutions. Don't be too optimistic —but do realize you have tremendous potential. Sum up situation. Put ideas into action.

Gemini (May 21-June 2)— Obtain hint from Aries message. Proposal to be put forth by friend is worth considering. Plan for investments, plans for new business ventures. Wager on own abilities. Be informed.

Cancer (June 22 - July 21)— Spotlight on marriage or business partner. Decision regarding money due. Remember imagine you desire to project. Don't be thrown off track by "panic" statements. Maintain calm attitude.

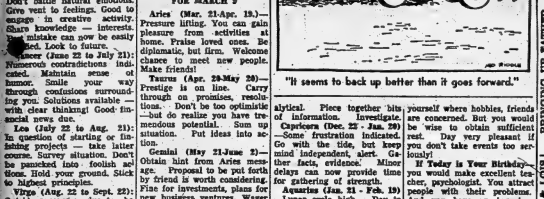
Leo (July 22 - Aug. 21) — Minor disturbances should be taken in stride. Don't get on your high horse! Long-range plans take time—but they are being fulfilled. Obtain hint from Taurus message. Stress patience, thoughtfulness.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)— Ke yis creative relaxation. Do a little day dreaming! Your dreams would turn out to be ultra practical. Give imagination a chance to roam. Answers today come from within.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)— Be versatile, but avoid scattering forces. Key is improvement. Reach out for "something better." Keep mind and heart open. Don't be afraid to express yourself. Read Virgo message.

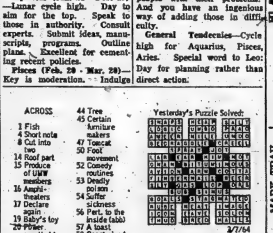
Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21) —Number of details will pop up, demand attention. The more you delay, the costlier the outcome. Take care of minor matters—then the big projects will attend to themselves.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)—Opportunities abound. But tendency indicated to overlook "small matter." Key is being thorough, patient. Be analytical. Piece together bits of information. Investigate.



Capricorn (Dec. 22 - Jan. 20) —Some frustration indicated. Go with the tide, but keep mind independent, alert. Gather facts, evidence. Minor delays can now provide time for gathering of strength.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19) —Lunar cycle high. Day to aim for the top. Speak to those in authority. Consult experts. Submit ideas, manuscripts, programs. Outline plans. Excellent for examining recent policies.



Pisces (Feb. 20 - Mar. 20)— Key is moderation. Indulge yourself where hobbies, friends are concerned. But you would be wise to obtain sufficient rest. Day very pleasant if you don't take events too seriously!

If Today is Your Birthday— you would make excellent teacher, psychologist. You attract people with their problems. And you have an ingenious way of adding those in difficulty.

General Tendencies—Cycle high for Aquarius, Pisces, Aries. Special word to Leo: Day for planning rather than direct action.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

Minor Hockey

Brownes and Lewis stepped up another round in the Fewer division playoffs last night.

Lewis lost a 5-3 decision to the Rangers and that tied the total-goals series at 10 goals apiece. Overtime was played and shots-on-goals were used for the last five minutes to determine a winner. Lewis got the shot the Rangers 3-0 to get the victory nod.

D. Deacon fired all three Lewis goals, unassisted. For the hard-luck Ranger squad, R. MacLean and G. Hughes each scored twice and N. Pope once. MacLean also had assists on the other three goals with T. Beattie and D. Hunt each helping on one.

Browns topped General 5-1 and won the series by an 11-4 total. B. Storms was the entire attack for the Brown's driving home all five of his club's goals. D. Bennett, C. Muldoon and B. Lanning each had an assist. M. Vernon potted the Generals' goal, assisted by H. Wilkinson.

In two other Fewer playoff games, played this morning, Macs defeated the Barons 7-4 and 9-7 on the round, while Bruins lost a 4-2 decision, but won the series 9-8.

D. MacCormack fired three Mac markers after a hat-trick notching two, P. Hayes and A. Genereaux one apiece. A. Jennings, Wilson and Short had an assist each. R. Buchanan potted three of the Barons' goals and two for the other one, scored by R. Fisher.

B. Loyeless fired two goals and R. Adamson and P. McKenzie one each for Hawks, but the gallant try fell short on the series. T. Bonnetta and A. Hoare drew assists. S. Moore, T. Pye and Steve Jeffrey each fired Bruin goals with Fred Nichols assisting on two of them.

Reds Edge Bisons 5-4; Amerks Tie

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds had home ice, a half-place position and an early three-goal lead going into their playoff game last night but it was all they could do to salvage a 5-4 victory over Buffalo Bisons.

The Reds needed the points. They're battling for Baltimore Clippers for the third and final playoff spot in the American Hockey League's Eastern Division and the victory left the two clubs tied.

Pittsburgh Hornets, running second in the Western Division, formally it's the last of a playoff berth by playing to a 4-4 tie with the third-place Rochester Americans. Even if the Hornets were to lose their 10 remaining games and the trailing Bisons won their last 10 contests, they would break the results point-wise on the basis of the greater number of victories.

CAME FROM BEHIND

The Hornets had to hustle to earn their point at Rochester, coming from behind twice. Stan Smrke and Eddie Litzenberger scored for the Americans while Ted Hampson and Claude La-Forge got the equalizers. Pittsburgh goalie Roger Crozier kicked out 27 drives to 20 for Rochester's Gerry Cheevers.

Providence banged in three goals in a two-minute stretch in the first period and held off the Bisons the rest of the way. Jim Bartlett fired the Reds' first two goals after Willis Marshall, Sergio Boschetti and Pierre Queen launched the early barrage. Dale MacDonald scored twice for the Bisons, whose other marksmen were Len Lunde and Pat Hannigan.

Kingston Wins 2-1

MORRISBURG, Ont. (CP) — Kingston Aces defeated Morrisburg Combines 2-1 Friday to tie their best-of-five semi-final series 1-1 in an Ottawa-St. Lawrence Senior Hockey League fixture.

Playing coach Alf Treen and defenceman Dennis O'Donnell scored for Kingston. Wayne Brown got the only Morrisburg marker.

Third game in the series will be played in Kingston Monday and the fourth here Tuesday. Winner of this series will play the winner of the Ottawa Montagnards and Hull Volants series.

At Least Thought Was There

HAMILTON (CP) — Charles Evans of Orillia announced at the opening session of the Ontario federation of anglers and hunters' convention here Friday that he will retire from the post of federation treasurer.

A motion from the floor urging that Mr. Evans be made a life member was introduced, seconded and passed.

In his thanks to the members, Mr. Evans said he was gratified but added, "I already am a life member."

Gilchrist Asks Bills For Trade

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Cookie Gilchrist, the American Football League's most - valuable player in 1962, asked Buffalo Bills Friday to trade him to another football team in the AFL.

Later, Gilchrist told a reporter his request arose from a multitude of reasons but not mostly from what he called unsatisfactory finances.

Ralph Wilson, Jr., president of the Bills, said in a letter to Gilchrist he would "consider any offer of trade in return for a player of equal ability."

Gilchrist joined Buffalo in '62 after being dropped by Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League. Before joining Toronto he played with Saskatchewan Roughriders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Cookie wrote the Bills that he'd like to be traded to another AFL club "in the best interest of the Buffalo fans, in the best interest of the team and, frankly in my own best interest."

A club spokesman explained a player of equal ability would mean a back of the calibre of Clem Daniels of Oakland Raiders, Keith Lincoln or Paul Lowe of San Diego Chargers, Billy Cannon of Houston Oilers or Billy Joe of Denver Broncos.

The Bills, like Cookie's previous employers, have received more than headaches from their disgruntled fullback.

FUT ON WAIVERS

He arrifed from Toronto at the start of the 1962 season after the club put him on waivers for undesirable off-the-field activities and no CFL club put in a claim for him.

In his first AFL season he broke Jim Brown's record for rushing with 1,096 yards in 214 carries. Last year he missed several games because of injuries but still managed 979 yards, including a 243-yard effort in 26 attempts against New York Jets.

The Golden Years
You Are Only One Who Knows How Good You Are After 65

By THOMAS COLLINS

The greatest single factor in whether your retirement will be good or miserable will probably be your ability to govern what your mind thinks about.

This delves into the deepest aspects of the retirement: your attitude on life, your philosophy, your mental health. But it is a simple thing. And it is fundamental.

Men and women now going into retirement must contend with certain miserable thoughts that are almost universal. The first, of course, is that they are now useless, unwanted and fairly well liquidated as human beings. They aren't, but the quite brutal retirement practices our society has set up indicate to them and to everybody else that they are. So they think it.

They think, too, that people believe them undesirable because deprived now of the daily pyramises that went with the job, they are lonely.

HARDENS THEIR MINDS

Usually retired people will try at some point to break out of the circumstances they have been pushed into. But business has no jobs for them, and it faces offer few friendships. These rebuffs tend to harden their minds on the low opinion the world has of them.

There are many men, a few years last of retirement, who let their minds wonder if the good job they had back with the company was just some kind of fluke. How could they have really been worthy of it if they are so unworthy now?

Thus do the dark thoughts go with many retired people until they give up the struggle to be whole and resign themselves to their exclusion behind the walls of their homes.

To these people of dark thoughts, another retired man has something to say:

"Those of us who live retired lives are exposed really only to our own gaze. So we should have within us a pattern by which to test our actions, and sometimes we should praise ourselves — and sometimes should correct ourselves.

"I have my own laws and my own court to judge me. I believe in no other than my own because only by my own light can I understand my actions. None but you can know whether or you are cruel and cowardly, or loyal and faithful. Others judge you by uncertain conjectures because they see not your nature but your artifices. Do not rely on their opinions about yourself. Rely on your own . . . judgment.

Then he said that to base your thinking on whether you are doing well with your life or not on the approval of others is to rely on a shaky foundation. "Especially in so corrupt and ignorant an age as this, the good opinion of the crowd is injurious. Whom are you trusting to see what is praiseworthy in you?"

The fellow saying this was Michael de Montaigne who lived and wrote in the year 1580. He went on: "A life of retirement, whatever men may say, is supported by duties as hard and exacting as any other, if not more so. Because the worth of a soul does not consist of soaring to a height, but in a steady movement. To storm a fortress, conduct an army, govern a people — these are brilliant actions. But to scold, laugh, love and deal quietly and justly with one's self and others — that is something rarer, more difficult, and less noticed . . ."

So in the tribulations of retirement, think for yourself, and govern your mind to think about rebuild and the opinions of other people are no guide to how worthy you are. Only your own knowledge of yourself is. If business doesn't want you, that's its problem. If people don't love you that's their problem. You know how good you are. Nobody else possibly could.

Cars Add To Cities' Smoke Woes

By EUGENE S. MILMOE

For a long while prior to the recent government report linking smoking with lung cancer, some medical researchers had been convinced smoke under equally close scrutiny and suspicion. Unquestionably, this is still a prime cause of air pollution and a health hazard. On the West Coast, exhaust vapors are blamed for smog and laws have been adopted requiring that cars be equipped with devices designed to minimize these conditions. On the East Coast, air pollution experts fight a similar battle and claim they are still searching for the automotive unit or system which will end the problem. Whether this suggests that the devices presently are inefficient, expensive, or impractical is not made clear. The fact remains that pollution is a very real menace from those directly concerned with this situation. As one air pollution expert pointed out, his city is still looking for the answer, and their doors are wide open for the right investigation.

T.W. writes: "During the past week, my engine has missed and stalled on me several times, for no apparent reason. Nothing seems wrong to me."

How about water in the gas? Tank condensation is the common cause, but additive additives which absorb water in the fuel offers a quick cure.

S. T. asks: "Our car gives us a rough ride, even on smooth roads. Yet, I'm certain the shocks and springs are right. What else could cause this?"

Wheel imbalance or incorrect tire pressures. If the car is noisy, as well as springs, shackles or clips may be the answer.

From H. F.: "Is it true that regular anti-freeze will not boil as quickly as water?"

Depends on what you mean by 'regular' anti freeze. Ordinary alcohol types have a low boiling point than water, while premium type anti-freeze has a higher boiling point than water.

Successful Living
Readers Disgusted by Letter From a "Strong Believer"

DEAR DORIS — "Strong Believers" advice recommending premarital sex relations should have been deposited in a garbage can where all filth generally goes. As a result of this sort of thing going on, are there not enough girls becoming unwed mothers?

If the girl should be careful enough to guard herself from pregnancy, she would be foolish to give up her good moral credit by allowing her boy friend such liberties, because the guy will lose a lot of respect for her and perhaps won't marry her in the end. And if he does marry her, his respect for her is even less afterwards.

No, I cannot see how a marriage can be a successful one by preparing for it the rotten way she suggests. — JUST AN AVERAGE FELLOW.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS — I was thoroughly disgusted with "Strong Believers" letter. Heaven knows there is enough of that kind of thing going on in the world without printing it in the paper and advising young people to do it.

If you can't find better things to write about you better quit. — F.E.

DEAR JUST AN AVERAGE FELLOW AND F.E. — Amen to both. I printed the letter in order to disagree with it. In Canada, pre-marital relations can cause more emotional and thorough guilt feelings and fear than abstinence, provided young people understand their own natural reactions and how to cope with them.

We get nowhere by keeping it all hush-hush.

DEAR DORIS — I am 17 and am in love with a boy who is also 17. We attend the same church and have for over the past eight years. He don't even know I'm alive. At night I cry myself to sleep.

I've talked to him two or three times but I say very little. There has never been another boy in my life and maybe never will be. Last Christmas I sent him a gift that cost me almost half of my pay for one week. Am I just being silly? Or is it real love? — LOVESICK.

DEAR LOVESICK — Agony, isn't it? But not love. Before love can grow, you simply have to know that each other exist. And share thoughts, experiences and feelings.

(Putting your dilemma on paper helps. Let a trained social worker know what's troubling you, with a letter to Doris.)

Marsh Hill

MARSH HILL — Several members of Marsh Hill U.C.W. attended the Wednesday evening session of the Belleville Presbyterial of the U.C.W. Mrs. Harry Coulter attended the session on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. David Holsinger, Mr. and Mrs. Laurie Finkle attended the funeral service of Mrs. Ray Walker at Burnbrae Church on Sunday afternoon.

Miss Marilyn Finkle is practise teaching this week at Meadowvale School.

Pine Grove W.I. held a successful card party on Saturday night. This is the last party of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Allyn Finkle and family were guests Sunday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Stan Dier of Belleville.

The Young People of the Foxboro circuit held their meeting Sunday night in the Marsh Hill United Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Finkle called Sunday evening on Mrs. Boulter Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. James Johnston of Harold.

Mrs. Blake Ketcheson of Metro spent a few days last week with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell.

Parliamentary Notebook

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—Preliminary notice his been served on the government that the publicly-owned CBC will be under heavy fire when the Commons broadcasting committee meets.

With a steady stream of questions about CBC programs and news broadcasts, Progressive Conservative MPs are displaying a sharply-critical attitude towards the corporation.

A main target has been the egg-head show Quest which MPs have called "corrupt" and "immoral" for some of its frank looks at human relations.

Another target has been the CBC television news, particularly its reports on the statements of separatist Dr. Marcel Chaput that the Queen would be made, aware—brutally—that she isn't welcome in Quebec during her visit next fall.

The Opposition pressed the government to investigate whether his remarks were treasonable or seditious.

Still another program under fire was Viewpoint in which commentators not on the CBC staff express opinions on current news events. Some of the opinions have been classed as "outrageous" and "disloyal" in the Commons.

The Conservatives have left the impression "among some Liberals that they consider the CBC to be full of Liberal apologists, trailors or overseed persons.

The Liberals have countered by referring to the unparalled visit to mainland China of a CBC employee—formerly an executive assistant to a Conservative minister—at a time when his boss is also in China. The trip was questioned as possibly improper use of public funds.

But generally State Secretary Lamontagne has confined himself to stating that he will bring to the attention of the corporation the views expressed by the MPs.

However, Prime Minister Pearson seemed to take a sarcastic jab at one Opposition suggestion — that a Commons committee be set up so "Parliament might have more control over undesirable programs put out by the CBC"

Mr. Pearson also hoped the author of this suggestion soon would have a chance to express his views "as to the desirability of the Parliament of Canada controlling programs of the CBC."

The New Democrats, who have been advocates of public ownership, also came to the CBC's defence—by asking Mr. Lamontagne to tell the corporation that many MPs don't want the programs investigated every time someone objects to them in the Commons.

"I will be pleased to do so," Mr. Lamontagne replied.

METHOD:

Line greased 9" glass pie plate with a crust made of soda cracker crumbs blended with melted margarine. Slice sufficient onions to come up with 2 cups, make slices thin. Fry these in 2 tablespoons margarine until golden, transparent and well cooked but not brown. (If you don't get them soft now, you never will.) Place the fried onions on the pie crust, then make a custard with 1 cup scalded milk, into which you have slowly stirred 2 slightly beaten eggs. Season with salt and pepper, add grated cheese. Stir, then pour onto onions. Bake in a slow oven 300 Degrees F. for 40 to 45 minutes or until cake tester, inserted in middle of pie comes out clean. Serves 4-6.

NOTE:

If salted crackers are used for crust, omit salt in filling.
